DANIELSON

IS NO LONGER CANDIDATE FOR OFFICE IN CONGRESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 11—Mrs. Lena Fletcher of the Ekonk hill section of the town of Sterling has withdrawn as a candidate for nomination for congress from this district. This was made known Friday, following Mrs. Fletcher's attendance at Thursday's meeting of the democratic central committee, of which she is a member, at New Haven. It is understood that Mrs. Fletcher would prefer to have as a candidate from this district on the party ticket a man with strong sympathy for union labor.

Water back of the new dam of the Providence reservoir system at Kent is said to be nearing a depth of 40 feet since the recent heavy rains. Water is being gathered into the mammoth reservoir from 100 square miles of watershed. It is anticipated that fully two years will elapse from the time the gates were closed, early this fall, until the reservoir is completely filled. The dam is 100 feet high and a remarkable example of engineering skill. Numbers of people from this town make a practice of regularly driving over to South Scituate and that vicinity to inspect the great reservoir.

"I must run over to Providence, but I'll be back in 20 minutes." If someone said that to you in the business section of Danielson any day of this month and year, you would be apt to say "this person is full of zebra juice or his mental equipment is out of adjustment"—or at least think something along that line. But such a thing is now entirely possible. Warden Anderson has a letter from W Irving Bullard in which Mr. Bullard tells of flying a plane, on Tuesday of this week, from a point over Danielson, which was left at 2.55 to Providence, where arrival was made a 3.04 just nine minutes to flash across the distance between the two places. The flight from Danielson to Boston, via Providence, was accomplished in just 35 minutes. There's speed for you. It is approximately 25 miles from Danielson to Providence over the state highway, but the direct air line followed by a plane is shorter, considerably so; and the six-seater plane Mr. Bullard was driving is capable of tremendously high speed.

It was from this plane that leaflets fluttered down over the borough and in some instances reservers, one of them directly in front of the central fire station on Academy street, and others in a garden at an adjoining property. The leaflets bore Mr. Bullard's signature and that of two other men who were riding with him.

These are the newly elected officers of Danielson chapter, Order of the Eastern Star: Worthy matron, Ella M. Chase; patron, William H. Walter; associate matron, Mrs. Ethel B. Ingalls; secretary, Sidney W. Card; treasurer, Miriam A. Boomhower; conductress, Mrs. William Michie; associate conductress, Mabel E. Walter.

At High street cemetery in Dayville Friday morning a committal service for Dr. Susan F. Hammond Field, who died in Boston, November 30 was conducted by Rev. William Swaingon, pastor of the Congregational church at Dayville. The bearers were W. H. Jackson, Abner B. Young, John P. Lewis and John McLaughlin. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Friday morning the funeral of Earl Walter Bixby was held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Napoleon Allen, with funeral services at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Ignatius Rost was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were James Moran, John Lyons, Thomas Lyons and Raymond Allen. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

The newly elected officers of Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion, are: Commander, Arthur DeForest; vice-commander, Herbert E. Hopkins; adjutant, Robert K. Bard; treasurer, Gordon J. Gale; chaplain, Rev. Roger C. Stimson; historian, Arthur Kimball; sergeant-at-arms, Theophile Bernier; post service officer, Walter Evans; executive committee, Almour Grennon, Bernard Casey, Joseph Guertin, the commander, vice-commander, adjutant and treasurer.

Danielson members of Putnam lodge of Elks have been notified that the lodge in connection with its usual New Year's eve party will observe its 25th anniversary on December 31. Putnam lodge has jurisdiction in the towns of Killingly and Plainfield, Pomfret, Southbridge and other sections. It has a large membership and is a thriving organization.

Listed among the contributions to the Day Kimball hospital of Putnam, two Killingly corporations. There were numbers of Thanksgiving gifts from individuals in Killingly, which town each year sends numbers of patients to the hospital.

In order that necessary repairs may be made to the service the electric current will be shut off tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon from 1.30 p.m. to 3.30 p.m. in Danielson, Brooklyn, Wauregan, East Killingly, Dayville, Attawaugan, Killingville, Pineville and Goodyear.

Friday morning the bankrupt stock and fixtures of Allen's Men's shop were sold at auction for $675 to Myer Sanders of Hartford, one of nearly a score of out of town bidders who came here from various cities of the state. The sale was conducted by an order from the bankruptcy court, C. E. Ayer acting as referee.

It was indicated Friday that there likely will be a Santa Claus at Davis park on Christmas eve when the Community Christmas tree party is held there under the auspices of the American legion.

A number of Danielson members of Sphinx temple, Mystic Shrine, were at Hartford Friday evening to attend a banquet, hear a concert and watch the initiation of a class of 100 candidates from various parts of the state.

A two and a half mile stretch of highway to be built next year by the state of Rhode Island will connect the Chepachet-Chop Mist road, 13 miles east of here with the Rockland state highway on the Providence-Moosup route, via Fairbanks hill.

When the members of the Ladies' auxiliary of Leo J. L'Homme post, African legion, entertained members of the cast that recently presented an entertainment for the benefit of the legion at legion hall Thursday evening there were various diversations and refreshments were served.

Miss Leone Berthiaume, a recent graduate nurse of the Backus hospital at Norwich, is to be in this field. Miss Berthiaume is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Berthiaume of Riverview.

At the state armory Friday evening dancers had a happy evening at a dance arranged by the Service battery. The music was by the Ideal orchestra of Webster. A prize Charleston was a feature of the evening.

PUTNAM

PROMOTION FOR MR. LYON PLEASES PUTNAM PEOPLE

PUTNAM, Dec. 11.—The announcement in this morning's Bulletin that Henry S. Lyon, manager of the Putnam district of the Telephone company, was to be transferred on January first to Norwich to assume charge of that district, came as a surprise to nearly everyone. He has made himself so much a part of the business and civic life of Putnam that it had been forgotten that a good man in the telephone service is being constantly promoted.

That Mr. Lyon has earned his promotion will be conceded by everyone; he will leave here a large number of real friends who are glad to learn of his advancement but will regret to see him go. The change was as much of a surprise to him as anyone. Only three months ago he moved from Center street into a residence on South Main Main street and had hardly got settled in his new home. The managership of the Norwich district is quite a marked step upward both in the matter of salary and influence.

J. Nelson Weymouth, whom he succeeds at Norwich, was manager of the local exchange for about a year. He was also held in high esteem, his marked personality being itensified by the way in which he had overcome the handicap of having only one arm. But he drove a motor car, played golf, and did them both well, as well as other things which one would naturally think are limited to people with two arms. His friends here are also interested in the fact that he is to have an influential position in the general offices at New Haven. These changes ar ecffectiv January 1, 1926.

RICH CAT DISAPPEARS HOSPITALS HAVE MONEY

PUTNAM, Dec. 11.—Although the trustees of the Day Kimball hospital have not acted on the matter of permitting $4,000 of the Irving Wood estate to be set aside so that the income would provide enough to take care of the pet cat that Mr. Wood left, it is probable that they would have agreed to it. Whether they will be called upon to carry out their intention is problematic as the cat has disappeared. It was being cared for in Boston but failing to appreciate the favorable position in which it was placed, or impelled by wanderlust, which at times overtakes men as well as cats, John Henry—that's the name it answered to when in the humour to pay attention— disappeared nad left no trace.

As Putnam people are aware the Day Kimball hospital along with the Backus Hospital at Norwich and the City Hospital at Worcester are to share equally in Mr. Wood's estate after other legacies are paid. Nearly all of the latter are annuities and the principals from which they are derived will revert to these hospitals on the death of the annuitants. This means that when the last beneficiary under the will is dead the entire estate will go to these institutions.

How much that is has never been learned with any degree of exactitude in Putnam at least. The value of the estate has been estimated from $225,000 to $1,000,000; and the amount necessary to furnish the annuities is estimated at $200,000.

But although stated in the will that three $1,000 bonds were to be used to provide an income for the cat these bonds could not be found in settling up the estate. The United States Trust Company of Boston, the executor of the will, advised the authorities of the three hospitals, the residuary legatees, of this fact, and also asked if they would be willing to have the Trust Company invest $4,000 for the benefit of John Henry, the income to pay someone for looking after him. This $4,000 to go back to the estate when the cat Henry passed away, as Mr. Wood expressed no desire, written or implied, that John Henry's descendants should profit from this benefaction.

The city council of Worcester, which is the governing body of the city hospital by vote agreed it was willing to have Mr. Wood's desires about his pet carried into effect, and the two other hospitals would doubtless have done the same, but there is no cat.

A despatch from Boston has the following:

"John Henry, this city's biggest and heaviest cat, until recently the most pampered cat, has disappeared.

"Just what arrangements were being carried on by the United States Trust company to create a $4,000 fund, the income of which was to support John Henry in the style he became accustomed to during the life of his late master, Irving Wood of this city, John Henry dropped out of sight.

"Perhaps John Henry, who was five years old, grew tired of the luxury on Mr. Wood's big estate. Always he was supplied with the best of everything. Instead of a back alley fence, where the more common felines congregate, John Henry's background became a divan surmounted by soft cushions. He grew fat after a while and had the thickest, bushiest coat of any cat in Boston. This might have attracted someone's eyes and John Henry may have been carried off unwillingly. Miss Alice M. Backburn, Mr. Wood's housekeeper, is unable to explain the disappearance.

"Two Connecticut hospitals, the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam and the Backus hospital at Norwich and the City hospital of Worcester were to set aside part of the legacies they received in Mr. Wood's will in order that that John Henry might be supported. hospital received approximately $132,000 and althought no action has been taken by the trustees of the Connecticut hospitals, there is little likelihood they will object to aiding the fund. However, since John Henry has disappeared, the fund may not be necessary.

"Mr. Wood died last summer at the age of 81 years. He did not mention the cat in his will but in a memorandum attached to it and had bought three $1,000 San Salvador, the income from which was to provide for the cat's support, according to his housekeeper. These bonds have not been found and the fund is being created in their stead.

"Another unusual provision in Mr. Wood's will was his remembrance of eight women, provided they remained unmarried. This clause was said to have been motivated by bitter resentment kept in his heart for forty years because a young woman he had educated abroad married against his wishes."

On the complaint of State Officer Phelps, of the Humane society, an affidavit has been sworn out against Jabez King, of East Putnam, charging him with cruelty to animals. Captain Jarvis and Officer Phelps brought King before Judge Geissler on the specific accusation of ill treating a pair of horses that he owned. According to the evidence the animals were in a starving condition and King's neighbors notified the Humane society. Both officers told the court that the animals were in a hopeless condition and that it would be an act of kindness to have them shot. This King agreed to do and Judge Geissler ordered the case against him continued for one year and no penalty was imposed.

In the Webster court Thursday, John Chrassez, of Putnam, pleaded guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. The plea was made after an agreement was reached whereby a charge of illegal transportation of liquor was filed. The defendant paid a fine of $100 on the charge of transporting and a fine of $10 for being drunk.

The Putnam Clergy Fellowship, whose membership is made up of ministers of Putnam and the vicinity recently met at the Second Congregational church. Sixteen members were present. A devotional service was conducted by Rev. David P. Hatch of Woodstock and an interesting review of Rev. Harry F. Fosdick's book, "The Modern Use of the Bible" was presented by Rev. William Fryling of Wauregan. There followed a discussion of the more important matters treated in the book. The consensus of opinion was that the volume is one that is of real value to those who in this day desire to understand the book of books. The Fellowship concluded its meeting with lunch at the Grill.

During the afternoon of Sunday there will be the annual every member canvas for the running expenses and benevolences for the Second Congregational church.

The choirs of the locals churches are rehearsing for their Christmas music as well as all are having especial and elaborate music for the season.

The Putnam Lodge of Elks will celebrate its 25th anniversary in its rooms on New Year's Eve. This occasion will be combined with the regular New Year's Eve party. A committee is at work and expect to make it the biggest time the Elk's have ever had. The best of entertainment will be given and the grill committee, who ar already noted for the excellent suppers they provide, will endeavor to excel anything they have ever done.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Eastwood have taken up housekeeping on South Main street. Mr. Eastwood is the New England agent for the Woodworth Co. Mrs. Eastwood spent the week end and in New York city, where she attended the annual meeting and election of officers in the Alpha Chapter, No. 1, O. E. S. For the past year she has held the office of Warder in that chapter.

Miss Marion Holden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Eben Holden, of Grove street, has entered the employ of the Southern New England Telephone company.

The East and West Bridge club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Justin S. Greene at her home on Center street. Mrs. William Richardson had the highest score of the afternoon. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Jones, Main street, on Thursday, January 7.

Judge Isaac N. Mills of White Plains, N. Y., who was counsel for Leonard Kip Rhinelander, in his suit asking annulment of his marriage to Alice Jones Rhinelander because she was a negress, is a former resident of Thompson and, spends part of his summers there. His client lost his suit but the newspapers of the country, which have been giving a great amount of space to the trial because of the prominence of Rhinelander's family, all pay high tribute to Judge Mills as a lawyer. This is the third case of national importance in which Judge Mills has figured within the past two years. As attorney for young Ward he secured his acquittal on a murder charge. He will appeal from the decision in the Rhinelander case.

The regular meeting of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R. is to be held Monday, December 14, in Odd Fellows' hall. The address, "Building a Finer America" will be given by Dr. Henry K. Denlinger, Jr. Denlinger is Professor of history at Connecticut Agricultural college and has bene for a number of years on the Swathmore circuit and is a speaker of ability. Miss Thyra Walker of Norwich Grosvenordale will sing.

When marriage proves to be a mistake it another suit can be ordered in the divorce court.

THE GOVERNOR'S ADVICE ON FUEL

There is much reassurance in the statement made by Governor Trumbull that Connecticut will not lack for sufficient fuel this winter, even though there may not be as much anthracite as is desired or as would be used under normal condition.

It is gratifying to know that the coal users of Norwich have grasped the situation and fortified themselves against the ill effects of a strike by stocking up on fuel, but there is an excellent bit of advice in the governor's statement when he urges the people of the state who have not sufficient fuel to carry them through the winter to make provision for their needs by obtaining some of the substitutes.

It is to be realized that while there is a desire for a settlement of the strike there is no telling when it may come, and that unless the coal users set out to protect themselves and indicate by their orders that they desire the substitutes there will not be a sufficient amount of such fuel for their use when they want it. Dealers cannot be expected to stock up with a great quantity of what is not going to be sold, and the bituminous mines are not going to produce for domestic consumption unless there is a demand for such purposes.

Those who are relying upon being able to get anthracite after there is a settlement of the coal strike are banking on a false sense of security. They are hoping for the best with everything against them. No one knows when the coal strike is going to be settled. Sometime after that coal digging will be resumed but it will take time to get the hard coal mined and distributed in sufficient quantities to meet demands, even should the strike be settled today.

The consumer has a chance to provide protection for himself by continuing to stock up on substitutes. There is salvation in it for himself but it permits the production and transportation of substitutes while favorable weather conditions prevail. With many delaying and later everyone suddenly clamoring for substitutes it will be impossible to meet the requirements.

When the governor urges the consumers to look well to their own interests he offers a timely suggestion and one that should be generally followed. By so doing it will be possible to snap the fingers at the coal strike.

The governor says there is no ground for hardships. If such exist or develop from now on it will be the fault of the consumers. With a chance to do something for themselves they should not fail to act.

DISARMING THE POLICE

There are those who think that everyone should be denied firearms when they know that the criminals have them and will continue to get them. There are also those who believe that the police ought not to go armed.

In Pittsburgh this latter opinion seems to prevail to such an extent that the police have actually been disarmed. This comes about as the result of unusual circumstances, but such circumstances as can and should be dealt with in another manner. In the Pennsylvania city there have been two persons killed by the police. A shot was fired at an automobile the driver of which refused to stop and a bystander was killed. A colored man fled and wouldn't halt and he was shot dead. In neither instance was the crime sufficient to have warranted the shooting. The firing of shots into the air in either of the instances might have been justified, but shooting so as to kill the person wanted or to endanger others was apparently not justified.

But do those cases furnish sufficient reason for disarming the police of that city and leaving them at the mercy of gunmen and thugs? Henceforth they are going to get less and less respect from the criminal class. They have been deprived of an important weapon of defense. Had the same course been adopted in the Michigan city where Dutch Anderson was recently sought and killed he would still be at large and the policeman who was sent to get him would have given up his life in vain.

Pittsburgh may be greatly wrought up over the killing of innocent persons, as any community would be, but conditions existed there which called for greater restraint being placed upon the use of firearms by the police of that city and better instruction in their use. That course, it seems, should have been adopted instead of depriving them of their revolvers. As it is no authorities of the smoky city have thrown directly into the hands of the criminal class, and the police there will mean far less than they ever did before and become almost helpless in cases where the guns of their intended prisoners will prevent them from doing their duty.

Efforts to change the Volstead act promise to occupy much of the time of the present session of congress.

TEXAS WAITS

Texas and the possible impeachment of the governor have been subjects of countrywide discussions for a number of weeks. Although the attorney general of the state, who has been instrumental in bringing conditions in that commonwealth to public attention, has ruled that it would not be legal for private funds to be employed for the calling of a special session to consider the conditions that have been disclosed and possibly to impeach Mrs. James Ferguson, the governor.

Even though the governor has refused to call such a session the authority to do so under such conditions rests with the speaker of the house. What his final decision in the matter is going to be may be determined by the result of the grand jury investigation which is underway. If its report, which can be expected soon, doesn't reveal any justifying reasons for such action there will probably be no special session. If the finding makes a call imperative one will probably be issued and the stage set for placing the skids under the Fergusons.

Special sessions of legislatures are not in the habit of being held without paying the members. If it is impossible to obtain the funds for such a purpose at this time, or if such a special session hasn't the authority to provide them, it is entirely possible for the members to await the next regular legislative session where there will in all probability be no difficulty in obtaining legislation that would provide for such a contingency.

Certain conditions in regard to contracts have been straightened out. Others will find their way into the courts for adjustment. The disclosures thus far are not pleasing to Texans. They have no one to blame but themselves, but they have been aroused to the necessity of correcting their mistake as quickly as possible. Nothing would help a call for a special session of the Texas legislature like additional disclosures through a grand jury report.

RIVERS AND HARBORS

By the report of the chief of army engineers for this district the expenditure of $100,000 is recommended for the Providence harbor and $84,000 for Seekonk river leading to Pawtucket.

Commenting upon this recommendations The Providence Bulletin says, "The engineer's report shows that the improvements already made have attracted larger carriers to Narragansett bay. New industries have been established because of the economies afforded by vessels of deep draught, and there is room for more on the 29,250 feet of frontage available for wharves south of the head of navigation in Providence."

What has been accomplished for Providence and what is anticipated in the future is only what is possible, on a relative scale, for Norwich through the proposed improvements in the Thames river, and that is what has prompted the endeavor to secure the relief and the accompanying benefits.

Vessels of deep draught are denied use of the river because of the shallow and narrow channel and even light draught vessels have repeatedly been grounded. With the granting of the appropriation recommended by the board of army engineers Norwich promises to share the advantages which have accrued to Providence, and which did fail to be extended through the latest report of the chief of the army engineers.

RECOGNIZING RUSSIA

When Senator Borah calls for the recognition of soviet Russia by this country he is repeating what he previously sought, and he is of course making an effort that will be particularly pleasing to the soviet government.

There is of course no more reason now for the recognition of that government than there has been in the recent past. That it has undergone changes from the early days is evident. The soviet government of today isn't the government that was given a six months' lease of life. There has been recognition of the need for reforms and reforms have taken place, but it doesn't appear that the soviet Russia of today has brought itself to the point where it can be said that it has complied with the requirements set forth by this government as a basis for recognition.

These requirements were presented to Moscow and the world through secretary of State Hughes, who was then in the cabinet. They were sound and reasonable and there's no reason to go back of them.

Russia is eager for recognition by the United States and it can unquestionably get it on our terms. Perhaps Senator Borah can show that those terms have been met, but such a disclosure is awaited.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The day has passed, or, at least, is rapidly passing, when the real value of Christianity is to be measured by any dogmatism that it may have sanctioned in the past. It is not a practical application of the spirit and teachings of its divine Founder then it can never redeem this world. If the chief emphasis cannot be put on his life and sayings, as the rule of human conduct, then the whole fabric built up with so much care must eventually topple to the ground. Just at present the most valid proof of the ability of the teachings of Jesus to inspire and apply the very best there is in us is seen in the response that the people of America are making to the unuttered cry of thousands of orphans in the near east. Nothing touches the whole world more powerfully than this mighty humanitarian effort to "rescue the perishing." Nothing is doing more to gain the good will of the orient than this.

The best part of it is that the money is not given as a loan. We are not looking for the customary 7 per cent interest on the preferred stock. That is entirely another side of our versatile American life. We are not watching above or below par value. Here, at least, the American people are free from the imputations—oftentimes so unjustly thrown at them—as being a nation of money grabbers. Not a dollar is given to drive away the pangs or hunger with the least expectation that any money is coming back. What is coming back is the deep gratitude of thousands whose hunger has been appeased and whose lives have been saved. Together with this is coming back the knowledge that the young are being taught useful occupations through which they can care for themselves. With war banished this can be realized.

It is quite easy to see why the burden of this near east relief should largely fall upon the shoulders of this country. As a matter of fact no other civilized state is in a financial condition to give liberally except America. If this country should play the part of Shylock and put the screws on those nations that are indebted to us, where would they be? There is not a nation in Europe today that is able to be generous in its giving, however disposed it may be. Take England with its vast unemployment that has reached a stage where doles from the government have become a necessity. The English spirit would like to be generous, but the English pocketbook—at present — is not able. In this respect other nations on the continent are much worse off. Very much in these urgent days are required of America because she has much.

A very hasty analysis of the Golden Rule is quite sufficient to show its application to the cause of suffering. It starts with the assumption that there are human wants, and that these wants are as widespread as the lives of men. No person has ever lived who is a complete entity in himself. No one person can originate and furnish all the things requisite for his existence. One man is dependent upon another man, and because of this mutual dependency, we have society; that is, the individual man and woman wrought together into unity, and because of this unity there are relationships and responsibilities that we cannot ignore. Our joys, our sorrows, our pleasures and our pains are not wholly individual, they are also social. That is the meaning of the Scriptural passage: "For no one of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself"—simply because he is a social being, forming a part of general humanity.

Now this social being, this organic part of humanity, has needs, he also has the power to relieve needs, and therefore he functions properly only as his own needs are relieved and he does his part in removing the needs of others. There are three things that are indispensable to life: First, human beings everywhere on earth must be fed; secondly, in most parts of the habitable globe they must be clothed; thirdly, for the same reason they must be sheltered. What would we think of a man who should deliberately turn his back on his next door neighbor who was in great distress? Who would do nothing for his little children crying because they were hungry; who would see the man's wife suffer for lack of medical aid; or would see the man himself insufficiently fed and clothed? We would put such a man down as a heartless brute. Not one man in a thousand would do such an inhuman deed.

But who is my brother and neighbor? Is he the man living at the next door? Yes, he is both my neighbor and brother, in the larger moral and spiritual sense. But where are the confines of this human brotherhood? Does our own little hamlet limit our responsibility, or does it include the human family? There are peasants in continental Europe so provincial as to deny the existence of a world beyond their mountains! Can we be put into such a class since modern science has brought the distant parts of the earth right to our doors? We are virtually nearer to the hungry children of syria today than we were to California three quarters of a century ago. Once we might have said that Americans were our only neighbors, but that day has long since passed. Where there is one hungry, crying child; one suffering man or woman: one human being suffering injustice and wrong, there is our work.

The statement has been made that money given to relieve human want, and otherwise given with the idea of human betterment in view, comes back to one not only in the consciousness of having done right, but also in a material way. It may not be very easy to prove this statement, but it has oftentimes been remarked that those who have given liberally to benevolent objects seem to be greatly blessed in their business relations. It is certainly reasonable to believe that men and women who try hard to bring happiness to other hearts are not going to be penalized for their liberality. We have some Scriptural foundation for holding this view. Ecclesiaste II, 1 reads thus: "Cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days." That does not say that it shall be the same bread. It does mean that there shall be a return. Results follow action.

Recently the Brooklyn Eagle came out with a most striking cartoon. It represented a poor woman standing before a hard-faced coal operator. She was poorly and scantily dressed, and evidently pinched with cold. By her side was an empty coal hod. She was represented as saying: "Have we no rights, sir?" Does not this cartoon touch a feature of the present coal situation that is apt to be overlooked? Three parties are involved: the miners, the operators and the public. Up to the present time this third party has been held in utter contempt. In all the discussions between the first and second parties the rights of the third party have hardly been mentioned. It may be that necessity will be the father of some invention that will free New England and all the north from the selfish greed and monopoly of these anthracite non-producers.

PACK SCORES IDLE FOREST LAND OF NEW ENGLAND

Asking what had happened to the widely heralded New England thrift Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association of Washington, D. C., told the second New England forestry congress at Springfield, Mass., this week that ten million acres of idle land in this birthplace of thrift would have to be put to work as one of the first steps in solving the section's industrial problems.

Mr. Pack referred to the recent industrial conference at Worcester and said that lifting a six million dollar annual freight bill on imported lumber from the backs of industry would go a long way toward helping the situation. The speaker pointed to the astonishing fact that New England produces only twelve per cent of the lumber she uses in her varied industries. On this point Mr. Jack says:

"What has happened to the widely heralded New England thrift that we hear about? The leading exponent of the New England brand is the New Englander in the white house. I have been taught that New Englanders dislike idleness as nature does a vacuum. Yet the society for the protection of New Hampshire forests says there are ten million acres of idle forest land in New England, this birthplace of thrift.

"That ide land costs you New Englanders a lot of money. Experts say you are paying six million dollars every year in freight to import the lumber you use. In New Hampshire alone there are two million acres of idle forest land. Do you know that New England produces only twelve per cent of the timber it uses and because of this some of the new buildings of New Hampshire are built of Oregon pine?

"If this remarkable business situation faced a corporation and not the American people it would have been solved long ago. The business concern would have to solve it or become bankrupt. I am astonished that New England thrift has not demanded a solution long ago. The solution is simple. It is a timber crop every year close to the points of greatest consumption.

"I am beginning to lose faith in New England thrift. I am almost tempted to believe there is nothing in it after all and that the rest of us ordinary folks, not of chosen New England, have been bamboozled to some extent in the past. Have you New Englanders forgotten how to be thrifty?

"Well there is a ray of sunshine. In Massachusetts the town forest idea is being pushed to good advantage. As set forth in "Town Forests" by Harris A. Reynolds and published by the American Tree association the idea has spread throughout the state. It has many town forests. It will have more. Other New England states are following the good example. So are states in other sections.

"There are other encouraging signs in New England. At the suggestion of Governor Billings, the Vermont forestry association has been made a member of the Vermont Co-operation council. The governor is the honorary chairman of that organization which aims to further the welfare of that state. Here indeed is progress because the Vermont Forestry association has but recently been organized.

"I want to say to New Hampshire, Vermont and all New England that the welfare of this or any other section of the United States cannot be furthered without giving the question of an annual tree crop every year close to the

ALWAYS REJOICING

"Finally my brethern rejoice in the Lord. Rejoice in the Lord always! again I say, rejoice." So Paul wrote to the Philippians while himself a prisoner at Rome waiting to be tried for his life before the cruel tyrant Nero.

We need to know God better that we may love Him more, we need to love Him more that we may be able to rejoice in Him. We need to rejoice in the Lord that we may be strengthened for serving Him. "the joy of the Lord is your strength."

And if we could see God looking down upon us all the time with yearning and tender affection, longing to see us rise out of self into the Christ life and watching for the opportunity of helping us in every possible way, and confident of our success if we only put our trust in Him. The great success which attended Paul's ministry won his great devotion and loyalty to the cause of Christ, even to death. If need be, persecution was as nothing to him he was willing to suffer for the One to whom he had given his life. What a wonderful record of a life consecrated to the service! We need more just such workers in the vineyard of the Lord, then there might be more that would be brought to know and rejoice in the love of God and lead the life that shall always find at all times a joy in the Lord.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John F. Nugent, the new chairman of the federal trade commission, hails from Idaho, of which state he was one of the representatives in the United States senate before he was appointed a member of the trade commission by the president in 1920. Mr. Nugent is a lawyer by profession and first came into political prominence when he was chosen chairman of the democratic state committee of Idaho. He began the practice of law in Silver City, and later moved to Boise. One of his most important cases in which he won renown was that involving the killing of former Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, in which he served as one of the counsel for the Western Federation of Miners. In 1918 he was appointed to fill out an unexpired term in the United States senate. The following year he was an unsuccessful candidate for election to the full term.

From Small Beginnings

John Mitchell, a Great Labor Leader

The deeps of a coal mine are not pleasant. Solemn blackness is on all sides. Crushed timbers show where strains have come, and where at any moment other strains may come with crushing force, bringing death. In the distance strange rumblings arise, bringing the thought of explosions and of deadly gas. There is an uncanny sense of being remote from all men, of being buried alive for ages and ages. In such a place young John Mitchell worked from day to day without for a moment losing his desire to be a man among men. He had to leave school when he was only nine or ten years old. He had had to use his muscles instead of his brain in order to gain a livelihood, but he did not become sullen and dull. Instead he went to evening school and tried to gain the education that poverty seemed to forbid.

"What are you going to be?" asked the teacher.

"A lawyer," he answered.

And a lawyer he set out to be, studying as much as he could. He never became a lawyer, but he did become a well-read man, a leader of men, a man whose name and picture have appeared in all newspapers and one whom the president of the United States has called upon for advice.

One of the ways to become great is to study the conditions that surround you. If John Mitchell had to work he did have the opportunity to study the conditions of work, to think about what he learned, and to plan for improvement. He was only 12 when he first worked in the coal mines, but he was wide-awake, and interested in everything. Active in the union, he was made an important officer of the United Mine Workers of America when he was only 25. When he was 29 he became president of that organization.

John Mitchell's work was far from easy, but he succeeded in winning better wages and better hours for miners, and he insisted that the union should stand by their agreements and act honestly. His personality was so forceful, and his work so effective, that he was looked upon by all as an able man. He was made an officer of the American Federation of Labor on one hand, and a member of State Industrial Commissions on the other. From being a boy who could not go to school he became a leader of men, and the author of books that give aid in working toward a solution of labor problems. Education always lies with the man, and never with conditions.

Why shouldn't the nose and chin be at variance when words are constantly passing between them?

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE CASPIAN

Mention the Caspian and Baku and its famous oil fields is generally the next thought. The discovery of an ancient submerged city near the great petroleum center recently, however, directs attention to the long-standing enigma concerning the origin and history of this largest of all inland seas.

"In the earliest periods of recorded time the Caspian Sea was thought to be part of the great 'stream of ocean' surrounding the habitable earth," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Herodotus, the Greek Baedeker, mentions a visit to it in B. C. 458, when it was an even greater mystery than today, for then no one knew its extent.

"Some authorities claim that the Caspian had its origin in a great inland sea, an Asiatic Mediterranean, with an outlet to the Arctic Ocean. In support of the Arctic outlet it is pointed out that seals are still hunted in the Caspian and there are other forms of life which now evidences of Arctic ancestry. It is argued that the Caspian owes its present size to climatic changes and evaporation.

"That the sea has reached other levels is evident by the number of terraces than can be seen back from the coast. However, to complicate matters, the weak development of the terraces indicates that the sea did not stand at any one level for a long time. Walls and cities, such as those just discovered, have been found in many sections underneath the surface, an indication that the level of the water was even lower at one period than it is now.

"Shifting shore lines are not the only eccentricities of the Caspian. Although 85 feet below the level of its neighbor, the Black Sea, and with no known or possible outlet, the Caspian is less than half as salty. It is only three-eighths as salty as the ocean. Furthermore, the northern part, which receives large quantities of fresh water from the Volga, Ural and Terek rivers, is so slightly salty the water is fairly drinkable.

"The Black sea, with approximately the equal surface and almost the same climatic conditions, not only retains a constant level but is continually discharging at the Dardanelles. Yet the volume of water poured into the Black sea is not nearly so great as that which the Caspian receives. The Volga, alone, drains almost half a million square miles.

"As other inland body of water is so richly stocked with fish, nor has so wide a range of species. The Caspian presents an intermingling of salt and fresh water forms. Before the world war the annual catch, including the seals of Krasnovodsk bay, was valued at more than five million dollars.

"With an area equal to that of the state of California, or more than all the Great Lakes combined, the Caspian sea today occupies the deepest part of a great depression situated to the west and south of the Ural Mountains. The northern or fresh water half is comparatively shallow reaching a depth of more than 118 feet. The southern half, however, is cut by two deep depressions and soundings have reached 3,000 feet. Both the north and the east coasts are flat and hard to approach. The Caucasus Mountains on the west and the Elburs on the southern or Persian shore are close to the sea and leave only a narrow coastal strip. On this strip are most of the important cities of the region.

"Taken as a whole the Caspian is not an attractive body of water. Its shores are as barren as the granite boulders of its bordering mountains. As there is no fresh water above or below the surface of the ground near the southern coasts, the inhabitants must bring drinking water from long distances or condense sea water. One of the distinguishing features of towns along this part of the Caspian Sea is the floating condenser plant, usually some worn-out steamer or sailing vessel. Sometimes the water is piped ashore, sometimes it is carried in tank boats and then peddled around the streets, as is milk in other cities.

"Baku, capital of the new Soviet republic of Azerbaijan, is the largest city on the sea and the center of a prosperous, busy oil region. Its surroundings are like those of the nitrate towns along the coast of Chile, only the settlements are more numerous and better built. Before the war Baku was one of the most important cities in the Russian empire, although its population was composed principally of Persians and Armenians. The damage it suffered during the conflict has been repaired and it is rapidly regaining its place among the great petroleum centers of the world. Baku also is the home port for most of the great merchant fleet on the sea, and since the construction of the Transcaucasian railroad, has been the chief trans-shipment point on the routes to northern Persia and Turkestan.

"Projects to connect the Caspian with the Black sea, or its adjunct, the Sea of Azov, have been presented almost as often as those for tunnels or bridges in the English Channel. Peter the Great had a plan to cut a canal between the Volga and the Don rivers, where only a slight rise in the land prevents the Volga from turning west, instead of southwest as now. In 1900 Russian engineers discussed a more direct canal from Astrakhan, the great city at the mouth of the Volga and Taganrog, on the Sea of Azov. But so far these projects have gone no farther than the round-table."

Little Talks on Thrift

THRIFT FOR FIRE PREVENTION

Efficiency is one of the watchwards of American business. We occupy the position of world leadership in business resourcefulness and system. The American business man gets things done with an alertness not duplicated anywhere else.

In one respect, however, we could learn a lesson in efficiency from Europe. This is in the loss of life and property through fire. What we gain by business efficiency we are losing to quite an extent by carelessness in the matter of fires. Space here does not permit as thorough a discussion of this subject as might prove of value, but a comparison between conditions in London and in New York may be taken, as typical of the situation in the United States and in Europe.

In 1924, according to the best available information, there were only 36 serious fires in the city of London, 310 slight ones and 974 so-called "chimney fires." The total estimated property loss was $11,977 pounds, the total number of fires being less than 5,000, while in New York city during the same period there were 22,631 fires which destroyed property worth $18,664,835.

These figures indicate the superiority of fire prevention effort in Europe as compared with conditions in the United States.

Here our fire losses amount to about 10 per cent. of the total amount of money expended in building activities.

Most fires occur through carelessness and the only way this element can be eliminated is by education.

Our amazing fire losses testify to the greater need of this phase of thrift education.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

They Catch Them First.

The appearance of one of the last of the season's flies caused Charles to remember the visit his son made to the country last summer. On his return the boy was overheard relating some of the wonders of rural life and among other observations was this one: "Out in the country they don't swat the flies like we edo in the city. They just catch them and put them on paper."

Future Arrangements.

These two girls were discussing a number of plays and finally reached "Topsy and Eva." Betty made the remark that she hoped they would play "Remembering" at her funeral.

Dorothy, who was not such a sentimental type, said: "Well, I hope they play 'Linger Awhile' at mine."

OLD ACTRESSES ADD INTEREST AND COLOR TO LONDON SEASON

LONDON, Dec. 11. — (AP) — Three old actresses are adding color and interest to London's theatrical season.

Lottie Venne, who sixty years ago came to the Haymarket, is appearing with Sir Gerald Du Maurier, Marie Tempest, Gladys Cooper and Henry Ainley in Barrie's "Shall We Join the Ladies?" at His Majesty's theatre.

Seven years ago, ill health drove Ellaline Terriss from the stage, but she has returned and is starring with Seymour Hicks, in "The Man in Dress Clothes."

"An actor can never be happy without work—at least an old time actor can not," she said. "Well, I hope they play 'Linger Awhile' at mine."

24-MILE SPANISH RANCH TO BE SPLIT UP AT LAST

SANTA MONICA, Dec. 11—(AP)—Passing of the last frontier in the southern California coast district is heralded in the announcement that the Malibu ranch, near here, consisting of 18,000 acres, is to be subdivided into home sites.

The ranch has approximately 24 miles of frontage on the Pacific ocean and is the only original Spanish land grant of a century and a quarter ago to remain intact.

Strife marked the history of the Malibu since 1804, when the king of Spain set his seal to the first grant. At present more than a score of cowboys ride the range of mountains and beach, caring for 5,000 head of cattle roaming the vast tract.

To whom the king of Spain granted the land in 1804 probably will remain a mystery, for the original grant has long been lost, but authentic records of 1805 indicate that the ranch was given to Don Jose Dartolone Tapia, by the Spanish governor of California.

Don Tapia ruled his acreage with an iron hand, frequently driving off invaders. He died in 1828, leaving the ranch to his widow and two sons. His will, containing one of the strangest paragraphs in California's history, declared indebtedness to the padres of San Fernando mission to the extent of $800 "more or less, or any sum they claim." Directing the payment, he also gave the fathers three pounds of sugar a valuable bequest in those days.

The Tapia family held the ranch until 1848, when they sold it to Don Leon Vignes or Prudhomme for $400, half of which was paid in "metallic currency," the rest in "goods at current prices."

Prudhomme was not satisfied with the title and he, in due course, had legal titles with the United States government until in 1857, he lost the ranch in settlement of a $1,400 grocery bill to Don Matio Keller, of Los Angeles.

In 1870, Keller's heirs sold the tract for $10 an acre to Frederick Hastings Rindge, late husband of May K. Rindge, present owner and director of the property.

Rindge came west in 1870 in search of health. He bought the 18,000 acres amid the jeers of early settlers, who branded his ranch of mountains and beaches "Rindge's ridiculous purchase."

Regaining his health, Rindge began pursuing a pet vision, now about to be realized—that the huge acreage would become prettily designed home sites—but his struggle to keep the original grant intact forced him to build a $500,000 railway at his own expense to prevent condemnation proceedings by Western railway lines.

Recently, after a long court battle, 150 acres were condemned for a military highway from the north. Mrs. Rindge bitterly opposed the highway, contending that it would destroy portions of the beach and would not conform to the proposed landscaping design.

COLD RECEPTION NOW AWAITS YANKEE HOBO IN MEXICO CITY

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11—(AP)—The Yankee hobo who swings south to Mexico City when chill winds begin to sweep the States will be out of luck this winter.

A police order has been issued to round up all "foreign vagabonds" and deport those who cannot show they are engaged in an honest and industrious life in Mexico.

In the past Mexico City has at some seasons been a sort of paradise for tramps and panhandlers from north of the Rio Grande. On warm, sunny days many could be found sprawled upon park benches, sauntering along the palm-lined paths—and pouncing upon every passing American who appeared to be a good prospect for a "touch."

CHICAGO'S FIRST DOUBLE-DECK STREET NEARING COMPLETION

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—(AP)—Chicago's first double-decked street is nearing completion as a $3,000,000 hardware plant, the last building in its path, gives way to a wrecker gang.

When completed the street, located on the south bank of the Chicago river, will be known as Wacker Drive and will represent an expenditure of $20,000,000 for the one mile of its length.

WEDDING.

Dolbeare—Hugh.

Announcements have been received in this city of the marriage in Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, November 26, of Albertus P. Dolbeare of West Thames street and Mrs. Bessie Lee Hugh of Columbus.

After a wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Dolbeare will be at home, after January 1st, at 131 Fifth street, San Antonio, Texas.

Mr. Dolbeare is well known in Norwich, for many years being connected with the old Norwich Nickel & Brass company, as salesman in southern territory. Since the merging with J. P. Palmenberg & Son of New York, Mr. Dolbeare has continued to remain as southern representative for that company, returning to his Norwich home at brief periods between southern trips.

SEE 18 RECOVERING FROM STILETTO WOUNDS

Arthur B. See, former special agent for the New Haven railroad, engaged for several years in railway police work in New London and this vicinity, was reported Friday as recovering from stiletto wounds received in a fight with Joseph Farisi, at Pittsfield, Mass. See had apprehended the man while in the alleged act of breaking into a freight car and a scuffle ensued during which the railroad officer received three wounds at the base of the skull and in his back.

See was removed to the House of Mercy hospital, Pittsfield, in what was believed to be a dangerous condition but examination by staff physicians disclosed that wounds were not of a deep nature. He is believed to be out of danger.

WONDERS OF SWEDEN IN TRAVEL PICTURE

Under the auspices of Lodge Oscar, No. 30, Order of Vasa, the travel film, Sweden, Its Magic Beauty and Progress, was given Friday evening before a large audience at the Swedish Lutheran church on Hickory street. It showed the wonders and beauties of the Swedish cities, Gothenburg, Stockholm, Malmo, and others, the marvelous scenery of the country's waterfalls, mountains, its farms, rivers, lakes and canals, and "sunlit midnights."

INJURED IN FALL DOWN STAIRS AT HER HOME

Seized with a dizzy spell while she was ascending the back stairs at her home, 8 Summer street, Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock, Mrs. Daniel J. Brown fell over backwards and sustained injuries about her neck, head and back. Two women who were passing, assisted the injured woman into the house and Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve was called. He administered the necessary medical treatment.

ESSAY PRIZES PRESENTED TO ACADEMY STUDENTS

The Academy students who won the chamber of commerce essay prizes of five, three and two dollars, with ribbons for honorable mention, had the prizes presented to them Friday morning when the upper classes at the school assembled at 8:30 in Slater hall.

The essays were on the subject, Why Norwich is an Attractive City in Which to Live. About 250 essays from the Academy were entered in the competition and those to receive the prizes were George Hodges, first; S. Zimmerman, second; Louis Case, third. Ribbons for honorable mention were given to Catherine Zumbro, Otis Fellows and M. M. Cotton.

The meeting of the students opened with music by the Academy orchestra and the singing of "A Long Long Trail" and the Academy Alma Mater song.

Principal Henry A. Tirrell, first vice president of the chamber of commerce, explained the reason for this particular meeting and introduced Dr. James J. Donohue, second vice president of the chamber who, in the absence of President James L. Case who is in Washington, as the chamber's official representative awarded the prizes.

In presenting the prizes, Dr. Donohue, an alumnus of the Academy in the class of 1892, recalled some of his early experiences and told the student body that the foundation they were now laying for their future would surely indicate their success or failure later on in life. He told of his remembrance at being present at the graduation exercises of the Academy at the class of 1890 and that the highest award for Greek was given to a boy named Henry A. Tirrell, the highest award for Latin to Henry A. Tirrell and he felt sure that the boy Henry A. Tirrell won many other honors and distinctions in his graduating class. Today the boy Henry A. Tirrell is principal of the Norwich Free Academy, one of the best known and universally recognized as one of the state's best educators.

DOLLARS MAKE SALVATION ARMY KETTLE BOIL

On Main street every day until the day before Christmas, will be heard the tinkle of a little bell where a red kettle hangs by a chain from a tripod. The little bell is rung by members of the Salvation Army as a call to dinner, but before the dinner is served the kette must boil, and boil hard. To keep the kettle boiling is the public's part in the meal, in fact in the many meals, which it is hoped the kettle will produce. A dollar bill will keep it boiling and a bit if olives will give new life to the inside of the swinging pot. Everyone can add his mite, however small. Many mites will mean many baskets of wholesome food and many baskets will mean many a poor family will enjoy a Christmas dinner. The Salvation Army is in touch with these cases and will provide for them. It takes a considerable amount of money to provide the number of baskets necessary, but it would be unfortunate if sufficient funds are not contributed so that there would not be baskets for all.

The Tuesday following Christmas the children will be given a tree which will be laden with presents, candy, fruit, etc. No children are denied this treat. All are welcome. This is another of the Army's Christmas philanthropies. Both are inviting generous support.

The medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatoria, discussing whether accident or injury could cause tuberculosis, declare that the state law will make it hard for former patients of a sanatorium to secure work in this state and perhaps cause employers to examine prospective employees.

HARD COAL SUPPLY IN NORWICH REPORTED AT 80 PERCENT OF NEEDS

Conditions as to the hard coal supply in homes and with the coal dealers in this city are much better than in many other parts of the state, it was declared Friday evening by a Norwich man who is in touch with the situation.

The coal dealers still have hard coal to sell but there are very few of them having any orders and it is declared that the supply of coal in the consumers' bins and in the wards of the dealers is approximately 80 per cent. of the entire requirements of the year from April to April.

Norwich users of anthracite are showing very little interest in substitutes for hard coal and the suggestion from Governor Trumbull that demonstration stations be established to instruct people in the use of substitutes has drawn out the response that, while this is a very admirable plan, there is not sufficient interest at the present time here in substitutes for hard coal to warrant demonstrations in Norwich at the present time.

Prices vary widely in the state, it is reported, depending upon the price at which dealers were able to buy their last lots of hard coal. In some New York places it is reported that the ton price to consumers has gone to $22 or $24. The current price in Norwich, now is $18.50. Early in the summer, the price was stated to have been about $15.25 and it did not go above $17 until late in the fall.

WHITE RIBBON BANNER. A CONVENTION NUMBER

It gives a detailed account of the proceedings at the recent fiftieth annual state convention held at Middletown, Oct. 22-24, at which the state president, Mrs. Hattie M. Newton, of Durham presided. Besides the various addresses during the sessions, there is given a history in brief of the first half century of the state union, compiled by the vice-president-at-large, Mrs. Mary B. Wilson, of West Cheshire. The record of state officers shown in the list of recording secretaries, in 1879, Mrs. Hannah C. Patridge, of Jewett City, in 1895, Mrs. Susan K. Luce, Niantic in 1904, Mrs. Mary A. Gallup, of Scotland. Among treasurers listed as the late Mrs. Anne Kerr, of Norwich, in 1893 and Mrs. Nellie A. Cager of Willimantic, in 1911."

The fact is recorded that the Norwich union was organized in 1887, the same year with Mystic village, Niantic and New London. The first union in the county to be organized was Jewett City, in March, 1874; Colchester followed, in '75, Wequetequock and Waterford are the youngest branches, starting in 1894.

The two oldest unions in Windham county are Putnam and Danielson, organized in 1883.

The first union to be organized in Tolland County was that at Rockville, which dates back to 1876. Tolland came next, in 1884, with Ellington, Hebron, Stafford Springs and Willington, in 1884.

Twice the state convention has been held in Norwich, in 1892 and 1908.

The total state membership in 1924 was 4,006, against 4421 in 1920, the state union's best year.

Detailed reports are printed from the different officers and heads of the various departments. The county secretary lists:

New London county—Colchester: Mrs. William E. Strong; Groton: Mrs. H. Addie Randall; Mystic: Mrs. J. E. Thompson, Miss Hannah Miner; New London: Mrs. P. Hall Shurts, Mrs. Martha Strickland; Niantic: Mrs. Henry Small; Noank: Rev. C. A. Merrill (Honorary).

Windham county—Danielson: Mrs. Ellen Codding; Thompson: Mrs. Myrtle Law; Mrs. Levina Joslin, Mrs. Laura Tourtellotte; Willimantic: Mrs. Mary E. Pomeroy, Mrs. Lucy J. Champlin, Mrs. John Palmer, Mrs. Clara Crane, Mrs. Ruth Purington, Mrs. Grace Carrey.

Tolland county—Ellington: Mrs. J. T. Kimball; Rockville: Mrs. M. A. Leonard; Stafford: Miss Ethel Smith, Mrs. Nettie White; Willington: Mrs. Sarah D. Mathews.

FOUR-FOLD COMRADES GAVE AMERICANIZATION PLAY

The Women's League of the Central Baptist church held a well attended monthly meeting Friday evening in Bushnell chapel with the president, Mrs. M. H. Pettis, conducting the business session, which was followed by a play called Fare Please, which was presented in excellent form by the Four-Fold Comrades, one of the girls organizations of the church. The play was along Americanization lines.

The meeting was addressed by the pastor, Rev. Dr. D. A. Pitt, who spoke upon stewardship and the every-member plan.

Those in the cast of the play were the Misses Marion Royce, Amie March, Mildred Cash, Mae Gray, Helen Hastings, Susie Hargreaves, Mary Peckham, Helen Denison, Ruth Easton, Florence Bushnell, Unabelle Harbeck. Between the acts piano solos were rendered by Miss Rita Greenlaw.

Refreshments were served after the play.

WILL SEND $100 FOR INDIAN MISSIONS WORK

The regular monthly meeting of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women was held Friday evening in their rooms, 126 Main street. The president, Mrs. R. F. Sullivan, was in charge. Reports of the various committees were read and approved, the report on the recent lecture by Rev. John S. Woods, being most gratifying. The council will send $100 to Rev. Fr. Woods to be used in his work among the Indian missions. A literary class was planned and will have regular meetings after the first of the year under the direction of Miss Mary Coughlin. Rev. Frederick M. Cohalan delightfully entertained the council and guests with piano solos after which refreshments were served.

STATE OF MAINE CLUB WAS ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blaisdell, of Palmertown, Montville, entertained members and guests of the State of Main club of southeastern Connecticut Thursday evening at their home. They were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. C. Everett Chapman, of Montville. There were about 40 present.

The speakers for the evening were S. Hussey Reed, president of the club; Dr. Fred L. L. Varney, house physician of the Backus hospital, Norwich, and J. Nelson Weymouth, president of the Norwich Rotary club. After the speakers' program, music was enjoyed and games were played. The Misses Irene and Ruth Blaisdell, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Blaisdell, rendered a number of vocal solos. A buffet lunch was served by the hostess.

Attending Gym Leaders Meeting

Dewitt Parsons, president of the local "Y" gym leaders' club, is attending a meeting of the state gymnasium leaders, who are gathering in Meriden today (Saturday). The work of the various clubs will be discussed and plans made for enlarging upon the work of the local clubs.

Miss Katherine T. McCarthy, head nurse of the Rockville Visiting Nurse association, in her report for the month shows a total of 401 visits by the three nurses. There were 45 new cases admitted during October and on the first of December 16 cases were under the care of the association.

FUNERALS.

Fernando B. Lafreniere.

The death of Fernando B. Lafreniere, 79, occurred Tuesday at his home in Moosup and the funeral was held there Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Requiem high mass was celebrated at All Hallow's church by Rev. J. E. McCarthy, with Rev. R. P. Morrissey of Plainfield as deacon and Rev. Fr. Norman of Moosup as sub-deacon. The mass was sung by the choir and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Baltic, the bearers being six sons of Mr. Lafreniere. Relatives were present from Montreal, Providence, Bristol, Putnam, Willimantic and this city.

Mr. Lafreniere has been ill for the last six years and had been tenderly cared for during that time by his wife. He was the son of the late Dr. Lafreniere of Norwich. Besides his wife, he is survived by seven sons and two daughters, Amede of Warren, R. I., Charles of Plainfield, Armand and Gustave of Moosup, Moses and Joseph of Oneco, Emile of Moosup, Diana and Yvonne, both of Moosup, several grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Henry Mueller.

The funeral of Henry Mueller was held Friday morning at 8:15 o'clock from his home, No. 137 Baltic street, followed by a requiem mass in St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Myles P. Galvin was celebrant of the mass and Henry LaFontaine presided at the organ. At the offertory Roderick F. Sullivan sang Pie Jesu and as the wailing hymn, Lead, Kindly Light.

The bearers were John T. F. Burns and Charles Korn of Norwich Lodge, No. 950, B. P. O. E., Mitchell Clotier and Fred Bradlaw of the Sons of Hermann, and Thomas Connelly and Eugene Clement of Norwichtown Aerie, No. 267, F. O. E. Burial took place in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May conducting the committal service.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and there was a wealth of beautiful floral forms. Undertakers Cummings and Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Odille De Celles

A former Norwich resident, Mrs. Odille De Celles, of New Haven, died there Thursday at her home, 57 Trumbull street, following an illness which extended over several years. For a number of years Mrs. De Celles made her home in the Taftville section of the city, before going to New Haven.

Mrs. De Celles is survived by a son, August De Celles, an employe of the New Haven Journal-Courier, a daughter, Miss Mary De Celles, of New Haven, and a brother, Francis De Celles, of this city. She also leaves two grandsons, Harold De Celles, of Lisbon and Leone De Celles, of Taftville. Burial will be in Westville cemetery.

Those taking part in the play were the following: Thanksgivin' Ann, Doris Racine; Mrs. Allen, Beatrice Adams; Silas, the hired man, Cleland De Grenier; Mr. Allen, Norman Geer; Johnny Allen, Frederick Smith; Susie Allen, Helen Rudd.

Those present were invited to a social at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Phi Beta Kappas To Meet

A meeting of the members of Phi Beta Kappa of southeastern Connecticut will be held in the library of Connecticut college at 8 o'clock next Monday evening. The Rev. Herbert W. Hubert, D. D., of Groton, president of the New London association, will make a report on the proceedings at the triennial meeting of the society in New York last September.

Important constitutional matters will be discussed and will be followed by entertainment.

TOLSTOY'S HOME AND WORKS TO BE GIVEN SOVIET RECOGNITION

TULA, Dec. 11—(AP)—Soviet Russia will recognize the attainments of Leo Tolstoy, the famous novelist and social reformer, with the issue of a centenary edition of his works at the celebration September 10, 1928, of the writer's hundredth anniversary. The Tolstoy Museum in Moscow will be made a permanent edifice.

All the buildings at Yasnaya Polyana, Tolstoy's home and birthplace, near here will be repaired and the village made over into something of a national shrine and educational center. Already a Tolstoy museum has been established there, the curator being Tolstoy's daughter, Alexandra.

JAIL AND FINES IN LIQUOR CASES SENTENCES

Fines and jail sentences were meted out to two men and two women on charges of violating the liquor law when they were presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Friday morning. The charge against another defendant was continued until today (Saturday). The two women appealed to the court of common pleas and both furnished bonds. The five men and women were arrested in raids made Thursday by the local and state police.

Andrew Rezzi, No. 27 Thames street, entered a plea of guilty to a charge of actual sale of liquor. Rezzi, through an interpreter, told the court that he was selling liquor in order to get money for an operation. He has an infant nine days old and told the court he has no money. He admitted to having been convicted of violating the liquor law some months ago. Judge Libby fined him $200 and costs and gave him 90 days in jail. Rezzi stated that he thought his brother who is in New York might be able to pay his fine.

A fine of $200 and costs was imposed on Mrs. Barbara Wunderlich of Taftville and in addition she was given a ten day sentence in jail. Mrs. Wunderlich appealed to the court of common pleas. Her attorney, Thomas J. Kelly made a plea for leniency on account of Mrs. Wunderlich's physical condition. The charge against Mrs. Wunderlich was selling home brew of more than the legal alcohol content. A bond of $500 was furnished by Philip Nannigartner.

The other woman defndant was Mrs. Eliza Fontaine, of Occum. She had two counts against her, actual sale on November 27th and keeping with intent to sell on December 10th. A demurrer was entered by Attorney Thomas M. Shields but was overruled by the court. On the first count, Judge Libby imposed a fine of $200 and costs and added a 10 day jail sentence, and on the second fined her $200. She appealed to the court of common pleas and a $1,000 bond was furnished by Edmond Proulx.

Charles Caravan, 23, No. 6 North Thames street, pleaded guilty to keeping liquor with intent to sell. He drew a fine of $200 and costs and got 10 days in jail besides. A charge of actual sale was nolled, but on a charge of resisting an officer, Judge Libby imposed a fine of $15.

The case against Daniel Zezuck, known as Big Dan, was continued until Saturday morning. He is charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, actual sale and keeping with intent to sell. He has been before the court before and on his last appearance for violation of the liquor law he was fined $400 and costs and served a jail sentence.

Witnesses testifying in the several cases were State Policemen Kennerson, Watson and Sisson, and Special Investigator Felix MacMahon, who were accompanied in making the arrests in the city limits by Sergeants Morgan and Delaney and Officers Smith, Sharvan and Lamphere of the Norwich police force.

One local man was given six months at the state farm for being a common drunkard and the intoxication case against another local man was continued for six months.

APPROVES RECEIVER'S REPORT AT SHORT CALENDAR

At the short calendar session of the superior court here Friday morning, beginning at 10 o'clock and running over into the afternoon before the last divorce case was heard, Judge C. L. Avery accepted and approved the receiver's report from Sept. 21, to Nov. 21, 1925, in the case of John J. Gannon vs. New London Greenhouses and Nurseries, Inc., George A. Gorton, of New London, is the receiver.

The judge took the papers on argument of demurrer of Frank W. Browning, receiver, in the case of Norwich Savings society against Smith et al.

In the case of Standard Oil Co., of New York, against Kellar and wife, the motion was granted and demurrer was overruled as per memorandum of decision.

Motion to expunge was denied in the case of Johnson, Jr., against Wheeler.

The judge took the papers in the case of McNicol against Tessaer and wife, in which arguments of demurrer were presented.

Statutory continuance for 3 months, termination of continuance and judgment for $543.94, was granted in the case of the Windhrop Trust Co., against Pelton, and others.

The following cases were postponed: Coulopoulos and others against Kostopoulos; orders for payment of claims; fixing compensation of receiver for services and expenses; distribution of balance among the partners; final judgment for failure to plead.

The prosecuting authorities are awaiting the report of the analysis of liquor seized by state policemen in a raid at the place of James Blanchard, 22 South B. street, Taftville.

NORWICH COMMISSIONER ACTS IN COMPENSATION CASE

WATERBURY, Dec. 11—(AP)—Irene M. Skelly, of Naugatuck, widow of State Policeman Batholomow Skelly, was awarded compensation of $18 a week for 310 weeks by Commissioner James J. Donahue of Norwich, here today. Commissioner Donahue came from the second congressional district, in which the accident that cost Skelly his life happened, in order to hear the case.

Patrolman Skelly was patrolling along the New Haven to Westbrook road after the Yale-Princeton game November 14, when his machine "froze" from overheating. He was run into by another state policeman and sustained a fractured skull and other injuries. He was taken to the New Haven General hospital, where he died before morning.

It was brought out at the hearing today that Patrolman Skelly left three minor children besides his wife.

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR OPENED BY WESLEYAN GUILD

The Wesleyan Guild of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church opened a two day Christmas bazaar in the Sunday school rooms of the church on Friday, having a most satisfactory patronage for varied lines of inviting articles that were offered. The sale opened at 3 in the afternoon, supper was served from 5 to 7 and in the evening an enjoyable entertainment.

V. F. W. Auxiliary Rummage Sale

A successful rummage sale was held this week by the Ladies' Auxiliary Veterans of Foreign Wars, to raise funds for their welfare work among the veterans in local hospitals. A good sum was realized. The committee is very grateful to those who contributed so generously.

WORK ON AMERICAN RUBBER PROJECT IN LIBERIA BEGINS

AKRON, O., Dec. 11—(AP)—Clearing away of the Liberian jungle preparatory to the planting of 1,000,000 acres of rich African soil with 100,000,000 rubber trees has been begun by forces marshalled from the ends of the earth by Harvey S. Firestone, president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

By January 1,240 representatives of the Akron company will be in Liberia, pushing forward the project which Mr. Firestone said will be supplying between 25 and 33 per cent of the world's crude rubber within the next decade.

The leasing transactions already are completed with the Liberian government. The construction of wharfage facilities begun at Monrovia, the Liberian capital, and the planting of the first 50,000 acres is under way.

This first planting will be completed within the next six months and a quota of at least the same size will be completed in the six months following.

The Liberian acquisition and development by the American company is certain to bring down rubber prices which have bounded upwards in the last several months in Mr. Firestone's opinion.

"Planters the world over have had the feeling that America has only been bluffing in its rubber projects," Mr. Firestone said. "It has appeared to them that the United States manufacturers have not been willing to invest money with a return no nearer than five or six years. They believe they have noted an American desire to cash in on investments at once and that therefore the Americans are not inclined to make any thorough development. This attitude is rapidly changing now as our work goes forward in Liberia.

Following the entry of the Firestone forces into the little African republic, the company's head announced that 35,000 acres had been acquired in Tobasco on the isthmus of Tehuantepec in Mexico and that rubber already was being extracted from trees planted there by other interests several years ago.

In addition to these enterprises, Mr. Firestone capped his world-wide rubber quest with the announcement that he was seriously considering entering the Amazon basin in South America where millions of acres of rubber lands are undeveloped.

Three concessions have been obtained by the Firestone company from the Liberian government. The first was the lease of 1,000 acres of land, previously held and partly developed by British planters. Twelve hundred acres of this land, now planted in rubber trees, is producing rubber and is to be a nursery and experiment basis for the larger American project.

The second lease, which is the million-acre acquisition, gives the American company not only the right to plant and produce rubber on that increase, but gives it all other rights. The timber rights are given the company, tax-free.

A third grant by the Liberian government gives the company the right to construct its own lines of communication within and without the plantation for its private use, without taxation.

A third grant by the Liberian government gives the company the right to construct its own lines of communication within and without the plantation for its private use, without taxation.

In addition to the planting, harvesting, and collecting of rubber, the Firestone company is improving the harbor at Monrovia, the seat of Liberian government. From the harbor, roads will be constructed to radiate into the hinterlands. In the entire area of the country, which is 43,000 square miles—almost exactly that of the state of Ohio—there are but 190 miles of passable highway. This mileage is fragmented and unconnected.

Hospitals also will be built and laborers' huts will be constructed for the housing of the natives who are to be brought from their pagan villages into the modern sanitary areas of American-built towns.

Provision is being made for the importation of foodstuffs to replace the local production that will be lost when the natives cease cultivating their own farms and go to work on the rubber plantation.

Several thousand of these laborers will shortly be at work for the American concern, employment being made on the basis of one man to every two acres. Thus, if 50,000 acres are planted within the next six months as is contemplated, 25,000 natives will be employed for that tract.

The plantation development consists of several operations in its crop aspect alone. First, the ground must be cleared of the jungle. The brush is heaped high and is burned in sections covering several hundred acres, over which the fires rage for a week or more. Following the burning, the area is staked off, one stake for each rubber tree. Holes are drilled after each stake is pulled, and either seeds are planted or young trees are set out.

It will cost $100 an acre to prepare the ground and to plant the trees, Mr. Firestone estimates.

It requires five years for the rubber trees to reach the stage at which they should first be tapped for rubber sap. The trees usually live to be 100 years old, furnishing rubber throughout this period.

For several years, the shipping facilities at present provided to Liberia will be sufficient. Mr. Firestone believes. Ships now ply regularly coastwise from London and other European ports to Monrovia and from New Orleans and New York to Liberia.

ISOLATED TOWN HAS NO ROAD, BUT BOASTS AN AUTOMOBILE

ETNA MILLS, Cal., Dec. 11—(AP)—Cecilville, an isolated mountain town, hasn't access to a road to the outside world yet but has its first automobile just the same.

All mail and freight for Cecilville and the upper Salmon river country is delivered by mule train along the trail. Roscoe and Archie Farnsworth, Salmon river miners, were unwilling to wait the two years necessary for the completion of the mountain wagon road which the forest service is building.

They wanted to use their car on a short strip road between their home and Cecilville, built years ago by a mining company. So they drove, pushed and squeezed their machine along until the trail became too steep and narrow for further progress. Then they took the car apart and loaded it on pack mules for the last lap of the journey.

LURE OF AMERICA CAUSE OF DECAY IN IRISH SPEECH

DUBLIN, Dec. 11—(AP)—America's lure for sons and daughters of old Erin is held largely responsible for decay of the native Irish language.

A government commission seeking to find the best means of preserving the language found that 75 per cent of the girls and boys born in Irish speaking districts look upon the United States as their future home.

BERLENBACH GETS CLOSE VERDICT OVER DELANEY IN FURIOUS FIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—With the world's light heavyweight title apparently slipping from his grasp, Paul Berlenbach pulled himself back from the brink of disaster tonight to punch his way to victory over his former conqueror, Jack Delaney, in a slashing sensational 15 round battle.

While a record-breaking indoor crowd of 23,000 looked on from the rear spaces of the new Madison Square Garden, Berlenbach rallied after having been knocked down in the fourth round and punched groggy in the seventh. He came back through the closing rounds with a rushing, swing attack that turned the tables on the challenger and deprived the latter of a triumph he thought he had clinched.

Berlenbach's desperate, furious finish, from which Delaney himself took a short count in the twelfth round, saved the 175 pound title for the rugged New Yorker but not by a very decisive margin.

Right up until the last two or three rounds it seemed that Delaney's earlier superiority kept him in the lead, but, courageously as he tried to do so the cool Bridgeport battler could not stem the tide of rights and lefts that engulfed him.

Their faces smeared with blood, both fighters put up a thrilling finish, but Berlenbach was the stronger and more aggressive in spite of Delaney's gallant efforts right up to the closing bell. [illegible] was the scoring among ringside critics that a majority of them accorded Berlenbach a margin of only one round, giving the champion seven altogether the challenger six and registering two as even.

Through the first half of the battle Delaney's weapons dominated and it seemed only a question of time before he would measure the champion for a final count. After a slow and cautious start, Berlenbach brought first blood in the third round with a stinging jab to the nose but Delaney came back in the fourth to floor the champion for a count of three with a vicious right to the chin.

Again in the seventh, after Berlenbach had pulled himself together a bit and covered up, Delaney found his mark twice with hard rights and the champion reeled backward.

These were Delaney's big chances but on each occasion he backed off, shocking his right hand for a finishing blow which never found an opening. Delaney fought coolly and deliberately, seemingly confident that the battle was his, but his lack of aggressiveness when he held the upperhand cost him his chance for victory and a championship.

Despite the punishment he had absorbed, a half closed right eye and a bleeding mouth, Berlenbach rallied and gathered strength as he warded off his rival's attack and then turned the tide with a swarming two-fisted onslaught of his own. From the tenth round to the finish, Berlenbach piled up points as he kept Delaney in retreat, dodging or blocking his rival's dangerous right and laying with telling effect to the Bridgeport man's head and body.

Under this constant hammering Delaney weakened. His blows lost their accuracy and sting. Except for spasmodic bursts in the eleventh and fifteenth rounds, Delaney was badly punished. Bleeding from cuts about the mouth and nose, a choppy right to the jaw sent him flying in the twelfth but he bounded back to his feet without taking a count after turning almost a complete somersault. Again in the thirteenth and fourteenth, Delaney was groggy and reeling under a shower of blows that his generalship saved him from going down again.

Stirred to high pitch by the sensational finish of both fighters in the final round, the big crowd accepted the verdict as satisfactory on the whole, although there was a noticeable chorus of boos from some of Delaney's supporters.

Promoter Rickard did not disclose the official attendance and receipts, but the estimated crowd of 23,000 was figured to have paid close to $150,000 to witness the first boxing show in the new Garden.

THE FIGHT IN DETAIL

ROUND ONE

ROUND TWO

The dancing continued, neither man appearing willing to open up. Delaney bounced a left jab off Berlenbach's jaw and stumbled as he evaded the champion's return, falling to the ring but he was up immediately. Delaney missed with his left and Berlenbach landed a right to the jaw. Jack jarred the champion with a stiff left to the face. They continued to dance and jab weakly as the bell rang.

ROUND THREE

Delaney scored with his left twice. A hard jab to Delaney's face brought a flurry of blood from the challenger's nose. It was the best blow of the battle. Delaney lifted the champion off his feet with a stinging left to the ear. Both landed lefts to the head. Delaney lefted a neat uppercut and drove the champion to the ropes. Delaney landed three jabs to the head and took one just as the bell rang.

ROUND FOUR

The champion landed solidly to the challenger's head and body and Delaney countered with left to face. Berlenbach rushed Delaney to a corner and had the better of a wild exchange. Delaney knocked Berlenbach down with a well-timed right to the jaw and the champion took a count of three before he came up. Blood trickled from his mouth. It was a vicious knockout blow. Delaney was cool as he started to deliver the blow which would change the championship but Berlenbach covered completely. The bell rang with the fighters dancing cautiously.

Delaney jabbed with his left and Berlenbach backed away. A tantalizing jab brought fresh blood from Delaney's nose. Delaney cleverly blocked a left lead and kept sticking his left jab into Berlenbach's face. Another stinging jab sent the champion into a clinch. A well delivered right sent Berlenbach to his heels. Both ducked as the fight assumed faster proportions. Delaney staggered Berlenbach with his wicked right just before the bell.

ROUND SIX

Berlenbach stuck his right jab into Delaney's face and the challenger slipped to the ring in going away. Delaney continued to torment the champion with his tantalizing jab. Delaney was boxing cleverly and the champion could not get set for a punch. Another well timed right to the jaw forced Berlenbach to clinch. A second one backed him to the ropes. Berlenbach landed his left to the nose and the blood flowed more freely. Berlenbach landed a vicious body blow as the bell ended the round.

ROUND SEVEN

ROUND EIGHT

ROUND NINE

ROUND TEN

ROUND TWELVE

Berlenbach's right eye was puffed double as he came up. The champion seemed moving away when Delaney scored a right. Delaney put over another jab and the champion's right eye all but closed. Delaney punched Berlenbach at will in a fierce exchange in the center of the ring, rocking his head back and forth with straight leads and uppercuts. Delaney's right eye started to swell as Berlenbach's left played its tattoo on the cheek bone. A short jabbing left floored Delaney as he was coming in but he was up without a count just before the bell rang.

ROUND THIRTEEN

Berlenbach started to punch wildly and chased his challenger around the ring. A stinging left spun Delaney around but he pulled into a clinch. Both continued to jab away with lefts. The champion was growing stronger as he battered Delaney with both hands. The blood flowed freely from Delaney's nose as Berlenbach's jabs landed to the face. Delaney landed a weak right at the bell.

ROUND FOURTEEN

ROUND FIFTEEN

They touched hands. Delaney sped over his jab to Berlenbach's eye and danced away from a return. A right to the body doubled Delaney. They clinched. Another right to the jaw and Berlenbach sagged. They hammered away mercilessly in Berlenbach's corner. An uppercut drove Berlenbach into a clinch. Both landed crashing drives to the face and jaw. The fans roared at the furious exchange. A weak right to the heart caught Berlenbach coming in. They stood toe to toe and punched at the face. They were dancing at the bell.

Slattery Knocks Out Motto

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 11—(AP)—Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, scored a technical knockout over Patsy Motto, of Albany in the third round of a scheduled ten round bout here tonight when Motto's seconds threw in a towel to save their man from further punishment. It was Slattery's first fight since the lifting of his suspension for refusal to go through with a bout here several weeks ago.

YALE WEEKLY MAKES SUGGESTIONS ABOUT FOOTBALL

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 11—(AP)—Colleges might go out of the business of engaging professional coaches, have a football disarmament with protocols and treaties of peace, might play twice a season with both Harvard and Princeton, and "championship hysteria" disposed of, the Yale Alumni Weekly suggests today in a discussion of college football conditions.

The weekly, commenting upon the suggestion of the Harvard Crimson that the emphasis on football might be cut down by stripping the Harvard schedule of all games except Yale and Princeton says that there "seemed to us to be something in the Crimson's point of view, though we aren't so sure that the remedy would not be worse—so far as public interest goes—than the disease. * * * We have never found ourselves wise enough to say just what could be done about it. * * * Well, there aren't many things the universities can do, short of closing up expensive football stadiums and colosseums that in late years have sprung up all over the country. * * * The interest is universal and Sunday papers devote whole sections to it, using up as much stock from the paper mills in one day as the printers of all college text books in the country demand in a year.

"The answer isn't beating out the fire that has been started in setting backfires and confining what blaze there is left to restricted territory. We are not keen for professional football, for instance, but it is conceivable that with its impending rise to the majesty of professional baseball and prize-fight box-office enterprise (young Mr. Red Grange's half million dollars gain in one week looks that way) professional football might take over the public hysteria that is now concentrated on college games. Or, inside the colleges we might conceivably limit the intercollegiate games—Yale could play Harvard and Princeton twice each season rather than once, so as to lessen the over-importance of the one final game (if it would lessen it). The colleges could certainly, if they agreed, go out of the business of engaging professional coaches, the rivalry in which undoubtedly adds to the public interest in championship contests. There could be a football disarmament and protocols and treaties of peace. And some way could certainly be found of ending "championship" hysteria—in itself the main cause, perhaps, of the over-emphasis on a perfectly good sport that ought not to be ended just because it has brought about an amount of public attention that is bad for it and bad for the colleges."

KILLINGLY TO HAVE STRONG COURT SEASON

Members of last year's squad and also a large number of new recruits are working out daily at the town hall in Danielson, in preparation for the first game of the season next week at a meeting of the lettermen from last year.

Leslie Conklin, of Baltic, was unanimously elected captain for the season. Other men who made their letter last year are: Barrett, Fulton, Major, Brennan and Gallup.

The squad has been working under the direction of Coach Brundage and he thinks the season is bound to be an impressive one. Killingly has the entire team from last year with the exception of Captain Armington, who graduated and is at present attracting quite a bit of attention at the Connecticut Agricultural college where he is making a strong bid for a position on Alexander's quintet.

NEW CONTRACT OFFERED DEMPSEY-WILLS BOUT

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 11—(AP)—A new contract will be made between the local financial syndicate and Jack Dempsey. It was announced today by Andrew C. Weisburg, head of the promoters who last summer secured the signatures of the champion and Harry Wills, negro challenger, for a ten round bout near Chicago. This new contract will be practically the same as the one signed in Niles, Michigan, a few months ago, except it will eliminate Floyd Fitzsimmons in the matter of directing the Dempsey-Wills match. Mr. Weisberg said.

Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, favors the change, it was said.

Westerly Team Challenges

The Majestics of Westerly, formerly the Lorraine team, would like to challenge any amateur basketball team in Norwich or vicinity, especially the Nutmegs, Greeneville Tigers, Taftville, Jewett City Speedboys or any other team. The Majestic manager would like to arrange a game for this week or next. Any team desiring games write to George Winterbottom, 32 Pearl street, Westerly.

McKenney Elected B. C. Captain

NEWTON, Mass., Dec. 11—(AP)—Joseph McKenney, of Boston, a junior, was today elected captain of the Boston college football team for next season. He played quarterback this year and was rated one of the fastest on the squad.

BALTIC BEATS JEWETT CITY IN ROUGH GAME

Before a capacity crowd in St. Jean's hall, Baltic, the Baltic Five defeated the Jewett City basketball team 27 to 18. The first half waxed fast and furious and Baltic emerged in front at half time 16 to 9. Red Charron caged three difficult baskets in this half much to the satisfaction of the Baltic fans. Blake, Barry and Murphy each scored from the floor in the half. Bud Benjamin played a spectacular floor game for the Jewett City team. Barry for Jewett City and Coady for Baltic were the outstanding stars. The game was marked by much rough play and frequent fouls were called. The second half found Baltic playing a much slower game while Jewett City came through with more speed. The summary:

In the preliminary game the Baltic Bantams beat the Baltic Celtics 13 to 10.

NUTMEGS BEAT SOLDIERS IN PRACTICE TILT

Friday evening at the Armory in a practice game the Nutmegs triumphed over the Battery B, five by the score of 23 to 21. Although it was but a practice tilt there was action every minute of play.

The luminaries for the Battery were Goodrow and A. Berberich while for the Nutmegs Murphy and Tombari shone.

The following are the lineups: Battery B., forwards, A. Berberich and O. Berberich; guards, Closky and Brown; center, Goodrow. Nutmegs, forwards, Burdick and Burnes; guards, Murphy and Couture; center, Tombari. Segal, Carlin and Kelly, three Nutmeg regulars, were on the sidelines because of injuries and therefore the team was materially weakened but nevertheless, the Nutmegs in winning showed a fighting spirit and determination that should make the local team one to be feared. The Nutmegs would like to play the Greeneville Tigers, Valiants or any other local team next Wednesday evening at the Armory. For further arrangements either answer through this paper or call 1914.

MEETING SUNDAY TO FORM AMATEUR BASKETBALL LEAGUE

For the purpose of promoting amateur basketball in eastern Connecticut a meeting is to be held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the state armory in Danielson, to see if there is sufficient interest in the game to form a hoop circuit through this end of the state. Several teams have already signified their intention of sending one or more representatives to this session and it is expected that the preliminary plans for the organization of an amateur basketball league will be made.

The amateur game has not been over popular in this part of Connecticut and it is hoped that such a league would help to correct some misunderstandings of the fans concerning it and, at the same time, aid managers of semi-pro teams to fill out their schedules with good games and no financial loss. Many quintets in this vicinity have found it impossible to get the type of games desired without securing opponents from such a distance that finances suffered.

Any teams interested in this proposition are invited to send representatives to the meting Sunday or to communicate with Gordon J. Gale Box J., Danielson, as soon as possible.

WASHINGTON DECIDES TO PLAY AT ROSE CARNIVAL

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 11—(AP)—Alabama's "Crimson Tide" and Washington's "Purple Tornado" will participate in the New Year's Day football game at the Rose bowl, Pasadena, Calif.

The University of Washington, champions of the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate conference, which decided that it would not participate in the Atlantic-Pacific contest at Pasadena and then decided, on an appeal by the conference, to reconsider the matter, today accepted an invitation. This invitation was tendered and accepted here in the annual meeting of the conference.

The University of Alabama, which had already signed a contract to play in the game, was formally invited, and a formal acceptance was rendered.

Jewett City Five Without Games

The Jewett City Stars fresh from victories over Taftville and Willimantic, are practically without games for the next two months. Three home games are carded for three successive weeks but no out of town games are scheduled. They would like to play Westerly, Putnam, Danielson or some New London team next week at their own hall. A return game with Jewett City is assured.

The Jewett City team has come along fast since Thanksgiving and today is probably the greatest drawing card in eastern Connecticut. With a line-up consisting of Happy Harry Mills, a dangerous man with the ball as he shoots from any angle and seldom misses at center, Bub Benjamin and Mondy Normandin, two speedkings who toss baskets as easily as a child feeds peanuts to an elephant, at forwards, Chuck Provost and Joe Faber two guards whose motto is "They shall not shoot," is carried out quite consistently. Thin Blake and Scoots Barry, two alternates of first class order complete this really remarkable lineup. For information regarding games write Charles J. Parkhurst, Box 1373, Jewett City or call 34-12 between 6 and 7 p. m. any evening.

"Y" Indoor Baseball

In a lively and well played indoor baseball game, St. Louis, who is now leading the city boys baseball league, trimmed their rivals, the Washingtons, by the close score of 7 to 4 in the Y. M. C. A. gym last night. The teams were well matched, the batteries being Flaherty and Murphy for the winners, while Henschel and Swartburg represented the losers.

Standing of teams:

St. Louis	5	0	1.000
Chicago	1	1	.500
Detroit	1	1	.500
Washington	3	2	.400
Pittsburgh	1	2	.333
New York	0	1	.000
Boston	0	2	.000

Next games—Thursday 6-7 p. m. Boston vs. New York. Friday 7-8, Detroit vs. New York.

KNUTE ROCKNE SIGNS CONTRACT TO COACH COLUMBIA FOOTBALL SQUAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—The Columbia university committee on athletics tonight announced that Knute Rockne of Notre Dame has signed a three-year contract as head coach of Columbia football teams.

The announcement followed a meeting this afternoon of the athletic and football committee of the university, at which James R. Knapp, chairman of the latter committee, and Reynolds Benson, graduate manager of athletics, submitted a report of negotiations with Rockne which were completed during the latter's recent visit to New York. Rockne's selection was approved by the athletic committee and Benson said he would assume charge of the coaching next spring.

The committee also stated that Rockne would confer with Columbia football officials Dec. 28, at which time the question of his assistants will be discussed. The selections of his aid will be left entirely in Rockne' hands, however, it was explained.

Although Rockne's decision to come to New York was received as a distinct surprise by football followers here, announcement was made that selection of the Notre Dame mentor had been seriously considered two years ago. The late Percy D. Haughton, famous as coach of Harvard teams, was chosen at that time however. Haughton died at the height of the season of 1924, and was succeeded this university.

NOTRE DAME UNAWARE OF ROCKNE SIGNING CONTRACT

SOUTH BEND Ind., Dec. 11—(AP)—Knute Rockne, athletic director of Notre Dame, mentioned in dispatches as having come to terms with Columbia University as head football coach, could not be reached here tonight. The Rev. Matthew Walsh, president of Notre Dame, said that Rockne left South Bend early this week on a vacation. He planned to be gone a month.

Walsh disclaimed any knowledge of a contemplated change by Rockne.

"I know nothing about it. I have not heard of it before, and Rockne has said nothing to indicate he considered such a step, he told the Associated Press tonight.

Rockne's ten year contract with the local institution has eight years to run, Walsh said. He would not comment on the possibility of Notre Dame releasing him. When the agreement was drawn, Rockne appeared entirely satisfied with the terms.

Rockne's connection with Notre Dame has extended over twelve years, first varsity end on the 1903 eleven, then as assistant coach to Jesse Harper from 1914 to 1917 and finally as athletic director in 1918.

Beginning his first real coaching job in 1918, Rockne in a little time elevating the local school to a preeminent position among leading elevens of the country.

Tactics employed by his elevens have had profound effect upon the modern game. Sweeping, well-interfered end runs, use of the forward pass and perfectly synchronized line and backfield shifts soon forced mass attacks into the background on Rockne's tactical horizon. His elevens have exemplified his offensive theories to the extent that they are generally accepted now as basic.

Smooth running, deceptively feinting backs charging from behind quick, rangy linemen have carried Notre Dame teams through three seasons, 1919, 1920 and 1924 undefeated and have rolled up an imposing record of 64 games won and 6 lost, the defeats being to Michigan Aggies, Iowa, Army and three times to Nebraska the 1925 eleven is the first to lose more than one game in any one season, his sophomores this year encountering setbacks from Army and Nebraska.

He has often attributed the success of his elevens to their consistent practice of his favorite and oft-quoted precept, "possession of the ball is the big thing, for any play, if perfectly executed is a potential touchdown."

Individual fame for his players has followed in Rockne's wake ever since he took charge of Notre Dame football. A talented array which included the older Bergmans and Millers, Eddie Anderson, George Gipp, Roger Kiley, Paul Castner, Johnny Mohardt, Hector Garvey, Buck Shaw, Hunk Anderson, Ed Degree, Adam Walsh, Joe Bach and Joe Brandy, had the most illustrious addition to its roll of honor in the "four horsemen" of 1924, Harry Stuhldreher, Elmer Layden, Don Miller and Jim Crowley.

YALE BASKETBALL TEAM SHOWING RAPID PROGRESS

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Although none of the regulars of the Yale basketball team last year are available this season, three weeks or strenuous practice have shown a development that should give the Blue a strong quintet for the coming eastern Intercolligate League race.

For the forward berths the leading condidates are Captain Frank Lackey, Green, Jones and Ward, with Goodwin, Goodwill and Wallace also showing ability. The center postion, always a difficult one to fill satisfactorily, will offer the hardest problem, with Breck, Bryant, Kennedy and Meloy fighting for the post. Bryant, a freshman last year, whose height is six feet, five inches, may fill the position with a little more playing experience.

The guard positions are perhaps the best fortified, with a number of excellent prospects. Carmody, Coleman, Cox, Frankel, Hall, McLean, McNulty, Simmons and Verrill are playing a defensive game that promises well for this site of play.

After a few preliminary tests the team will take a holiday trip which will include the Elis' first league encounted with Pennsylvania at Philadelphia and will conclude with a game at West Point on January 2. Dartmouth comes here January 9 for the first league contest at home.

SHARKEY GETS DECISION OVER JIM MALONEY

BOSTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Jack Sharkey of Brighton won the decision from Jim Maloney of South Boston in a ten round bout here tonight. Sharkey weighed 190 and Maloney 194.

Indoor Baseball League

In next week's play of the Norwich Indoor league the Nutmegs and Tigers will clash at 6:30 while the Battery B. and Faber's All Stars meet at 9:30 Monday evening. These games scheduled will be a repetition of the first week's play as all four teams played in the same order in the opening week's encounters. Last week's postponed contests will probably be played at the end of the season.

Broadway Challenges

The Broadway grammar school basketball team challenges any grammar school team in Norwich, New London, Taftville or any of the surrounding towns. For games write to Coach Ludlow, Y. M. C. A., Norwich, Conn.

NOTED JOCKEY RETURNS AFTER 10 YEARS ABROAD

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—George William Archibald, American jockey, has returned to his homeland for a vacation after ten years of campaigning in the most famous turf classics of Europe.

"It will be ten years in May since I visited America last," he said today. "In that time I have ridden in about every country in Europe—England, Germany, Australia, Switzerland, Spain—yes, about all of them.

"I will leave New York shortly to visit my folks in Oakland, Calif., and we intend to spend part of the winter in Florida. I'll go back to England, where I have been riding for the last four years, probably the last of February.

"The war surely kept me on the move over there. Of course I couldn't ride in a country that America was fighting, so I had to quit Germany when the United States declared war, and I went to Austria. Soon America went to war with Austria, too, and I was interned there for six months, but finally made my way to Switzerland.

"I found that I was not only an American where race tracks were concerned, but also an international affair of various kinds. Many times I have been called upon to entangle some kind of a snarl that an American got into. But I have enjoyed it and am going back to England."

GRANGE UNCERTAIN ABOUT PLAYING IN TODAY'S GAME

DETROIT, Dec. 11 — (AP)—Harold Grange, football star, arrived here tonight with the Chicago Bears who are scheduled to play a professional football game here tomorow. A large crowd met the party at the railroad station and escorted the former Illinois star to Webster hall, a Bachelor hotel.

Grange immediately went into consultation with a local physicinn who examined him to ascertain the extent of the injuries he suffered while playing in Pittsburgh yesterday. On the result of the examination was to depend whether the star football player would appear in the game here tomorrow or merely appear before the crowd in uniform.

"I suppose you do not want to disappoint the crowd?" Grange was asked, before a physician examined him.

"No," the football player replied, "I don't want to disappoint the crowd but I don't want to permanently injure myself either."

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

A half century ago this week the New London County Agricultural society, at its annual meeting, elected as its president for the year 1876, John Turner. The choice for fair secretary was Lucius Brown. The same week the Third Regiment elected Major William H. Tubbs to be lieutenant colonel of the regiment and as successor to him Captain William E. F. Landers was elected major. Interesting events chronicled from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of December, 1875, are as follows:

Monday, Dec. 6, 1875 — The officers of the Third Regiment, in full numbers, assembled at the armory of Co. D, Saturday morning, Col. Ames presiding. The convention proceeded to an informal ballot for lieutenant colonel to fill the position made vacant by the resignation of Col. Packer. The result was as follows:

Total vote	26
Major Tubbs	20
Capt. McCord	5
Capt. Landers	1

Upon motion of Capt. McCord the ballot was declared formal and Major William H. Tubbs promoted by a unanimous vote to the position of lieutenant colonel.

The convention then proceeded to elect a major.

Total vote	22
Landers	17
McCord	4
King	1

And Capt. William E. F. Landers was duly elected major upon motion of Capt. McCord. Upon invitation of Col. Tubbs and Major Landers, the company then repaired to the National hotel, where a very excellent and enjoyable dinner was served to the satisfaction of all.

At the meeting at the Central Baptist church Saturday afternoon, there was a full attendance of children and parents. The Rev. Mr. Stanton presided and addresses were made by the Rev. Messrs. Davies, Howard, Dana, Stanton, Palmer and others. It was decided to hold one more similar meeting next Saturday afternoon.

Tuesday, Dec. 7, 1875—The opponents of the movement for a $15,000 school house in Stonington propose to fight it out and have secured counsel in the city to prevent its erection, if possible, by legal means.

The trestle work is about ready for putting up the new bridge across the Shetucket. A freshet or sudden thaw would make bad work there just now.

There was quite a heavy storm of snow and hail yesterday morning and householders were obliged to clean their sidewalks for the first time this season.

In the matter of the suit of the Thames Woolen company against the city for damages caused by the overflow of the Franklin street brook, the parties concerned have agreed upon Judge Seymour of Litchfield and William C. Crump of New London as arbitrators.

Wednesday, Dec. 8, 1875—Work was suspended on the trestle work yesterday, and the day was devoted to strengthening that part already up as a movement in the ice in the morning was found to have altered its position slightly. The corner stone for the bridge was laid on north abutment.

It is reported that two of the gang who attacked the coachman of Moses Pierce and J. S. Carew on the Norwich Town road some time ago and who disappeared, have returned and are about town. It is intimated that there is a disposition on the side of the attacked parties to settle the case.

The schooner Rambler reported wrecked yesterday morning, was the old yacht Rambler, owned and built by James R. Banker of New York. She did not suit him and he presented her to his sailing master, Capt. Smith, recently lost overboard at sea, who sold her to her late owners. She was one of the fastest and ablest working vessels in these waters.

Thursday, Dec. 9, 1875—The annual meeting of the New London County Agricultural society was held in the city hall yesterday, for the election of officers, etc. The treasurer's report was first read, it being a very satisfactory showing. The total receipts for the year, $4,450 premiums paid, $1,701; total profits of the year $836.14. The following are the officers elected for the ensuing year:

President, John Turner; vice presidents, Willis R. Austin, Albert L. Avery, James A. Bill, L. W. Randall, W. H. H. Comstock, Jacob McCall; secretary, Lucius Brown; treasurer, Henry H. Gallup; auditors, Albert L. Avery, F. L. Winship, David Hillhouse.

The Griswold paper mill was offered for sale by public auction on Tuesday. The incumbrances of the property being announced to be about $40,000, no bid was received, consequently it still remains in the hands of the trustee for disposal.

A leading lawyer was accidently locked up in the court room yesterday morning. About noon the policemen in the basement thought they felt an earthquake and going upstairs found him trying to whittle his way out through the brick wall with his jackknife.

Silas T. Stanton has been appointed aid on the staff of Brigadier General Smith with the rank of captain.

Travel is now light on all the railroads just now. Railroad men look for a revival of business in the Christmas movement which will commence in about a week.

Norwich spends $1,200 annually for the removal of garbage from its streets, $300 more than Portland, Me., and $400 more than New London.

The social held in the Sunday school rooms of the Second Congregational church yesterday afternoon and evening was very fully attended and was exceedingly enjoyable. The sale tables were well patronized and the room was very tastefully trimmed and decoated for the occasion.

The City Guard's social which takes place Monday evening promises to be a grand success, as it should be, considering the object, which is to enable them to purchase a fatigue uniform to take with them to Philadelphia.

A company, said to be a very good one, from the Union Square and other New York theatres, give the Two Orphans, which had so long a run in New York, in Breed Hall tonight. Monday night they present the drama of East Lynne.

WESTERLY

RECOMMENDS USE OF FIRE PROOF SHINGLES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 11—When Charles B. Gorman, of the New England Fire Insurance exchange, of Boston, was in Pawcatuck, the first of the week, to test out fire hydrants one of the questions asked by him was what zoning was doing to prevent fire hazards, and he recommended that in this connection, that fire-proof shingles, at least, be required in areas where the risk was great.

Three zoning building permits have been issued to Pawcatuck residents of the town of Stonington during the month of December, thus far by the Pawcatuck zoning commissioners, George R. McKenna, John F. Gallagher and William S. Crandall as follows:

Dec. 2—Vincent Whipple, Varietyville, R. I., new bungalow cottage at No. 41 Courtland street, William Rinne, carpenter, Wesley O. Whipple masonry work.

Since the zoning laws have been in operation from last September, twenty-four permits have been issued as previously reported, so that the total number issued to date is twenty-seven.

The senate adopted a resolution introduced by Chairman Moses of the senate post office committee, authorizing continuation of the present temporary postal rates until the opening of the next session of congress.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

THE SOCIAL CORNER

THOSE WHO THINK WHOLLY ABOUT THEMSELVES HAVE SMALL THOUGHTS.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
Santa Claus Up-to-Date

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the flat
Not a creature was stirring; not even the cat.
Above the steam heater the stockings were placed
In hopes that by Santa they soon would be graced.
While visions of Teddy-bears danced through each head.

And I in pajamas—like in a grouch—
Had gone to my patent convertible couch;
When out on the asphalt there rose such a clatter:
I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter
A mantle of darkness enshrouded the room,
But after detaching a chair from my feet,
I threw back the curtain, looked down on the street.

Awaiting the call of the D. S. C. man;
And what did my wandering optics de-vour,
But a touring-car of a hundred-horse power,
With a business-like chauffeur, so shiny and slick?
I knew in a jiffy it must be St. Nick

As dry leaves before the hurricane fly,
He ascended the fire-escape, nimble and spry.
I drew in my head and was turning around,
When in through the airshaft he came with a bound;
His coat was of broadcloth—the finest I've seen—
Though it smelled rather strongly of fresh gasoline.
A bundle of banknotes he had in a sack,

His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry,
He'd the air of a man who was satisfied—very.
A fragrant perfecto he held in his teeth,
While the smoke crowned his ten-dollar tie like a wreath.
He had a broad face, and a well nourished belly,
That shook when he laughed like a bowlful of jelly.
He was chubby and plump, but a shrewd-looking guy,

He spoke not a word, but the foxy old elf
Just walked to the mantel and laid on the shelf
A letter, typewritten in business-like style;
He jumped in his car and with three "honk-honks,"
He whizzed 'round the corner and off toward the Bronx.

I opened the letter; the message I read;
And then I crept silently back into bed
For here's what I saw—with dismay and disgust—

Beautiful Things

Beautiful faces are those that wear—
No matter little if dark or fair—
Whole-souled honesty printed there.

Beautiful eyes are those that show,
Like crystal panes where hearth-fires glow.
Beautiful thoughts that burn below.

Beautiful lips are those whose words
Leap from the heart like songs of birds,
Pure whose utterance prudence girds.

Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is honest and brave and true.
Moment by moment the long day through.

Beautiful feet are those that go
On kindly ministries to and fro—
Down lowliest ways, if God wills it so.

Beautiful shoulders are those that bear
Cheerless burdens of homely care
With patient grace and daily prayer.

Beautiful lives are those that bless
Silent rivers of happiness,
Whose hidden fountains but few may guess.

Beautiful twilight at set of sun
Beautiful goal with race well won,
Beautiful rest with work well done.

Beautiful graves where grasses creep
Where brown leaves fall, where drifts lie deep
Wet with tears
Over worn out hands. Oh! beautiful sleep!

A Bit of Cheer

Never mind the clouds dear,
Never mind the rain,
Trust in God and look ahead
The sun will shine again.
Thinking after sorrow
And good health after pain
Sow the seed and after awhile
Comes the golden grain
Sow the seeds of happiness
When all the skies are bright,
If the clouds come lowering down
Laugh them out of sight.
Never mind the wind dear
Though it whistles loud and long
Whistle up a tune yourself
And then break out in song.
Laugh away your troubles
Pray away your cares.
That's the way and only way
To climb the golden stairs.

GREETINGS FROM ORA

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I do want to thank the editor for my pin. It arrived so soon. Many thanks.

C. C. M.: I had a very nice time at your house.

True Blue: Is the Christmas gift sale? I am quite fussy making gifts for Christmas.

I guess I will ring off for this time wishing the editor and all the sisters a Merry Christmas.

THESE ARE UNUSUAL GIFTS

Dear Editor and Cornerites: There is in the large California dahlia used much to finish drapery, or to wear at the waist on evening dresses. It is very pretty made in brilliant king's blue or American beauty red. It is made with three widths of ribbon which are required for the petals, two and one half inch, one and one half inch and one inch widths; all of the petals are made the same. Cut the ribbon in stripe, each strip twice as long as the width. Cut the stripe from the one inch ribbon, two inches long from the one and one half inch, three inches long; from the two and one half inch ribbon five inches long. Cut twelve petals from the widest for the outside row about seven for the middle row from the medium sized ribbon and about five from the narrowest ribbon for the inside row.

Shape the petal by rolling one corner towards you and the other one from you until you have rolled them so they meet at the middle of one selvage side. Pleat the other selvage side and sew these plaits down at the base of the petal. To assemble the petals, cut a two inch circle of buckram or of some other stiff materials and arrange the petals around the center, then the medium size and then the smallest ones. Finish the center of the flower with a little cushion measuring about one inch across the top.

Put a star flower on one garter, make it with five petals, finish it in the middle with a little padded cushion. This cushion is about three-quarters of an inch across the top, and has four lines made by stitches taken with green floss. For the petals cut five, three-inch squares of satin or silk. Fold the squares on the diagonal to form a double triangle then fold the triangle again to make another triangle half as large. Gather this double triangle across the raw or open edge, draw the gathering tight and fasten it. The bud is made of a square the same size as the petal. Fold the square once on the diagonal and gather the raw edges, then roll the petal to look like a bud. The leaves are made of three inch squares folded and gathered exactly like the petals of the flower. They are sewed firmly to the loops of wire. Which are the ends of the stems bent into leaf shape. After you arrange the flower bud and leaves in a spray, wind the leaves in green silk floss to finish.

Then on the second garter take green silk rat tail braid, or you can use tiny silk piping. To make the little flowers cut a strip of bias satin one inch wide and about four inches long. Fold it through the center lengthwise and gather along the raw edge. Roll the gathered bias to form the flower and sew across the base to hold the swirls. Arrange the flowers at intervals along the vine.

Then another garter is the Paris garter with a satin pocket on one side to hold a small powder puff or money. The piece of satin used for the pocket is 6 1-2 inches wide and 6 1-2 inches long. It is seamed to make a compartment two inches deep and the flap folds over about two inches. Around the edge of the flap, shirred satin ribbon, 1-8 inches wide is sewed like a little ruche. Three tiny flowers pink, white, and rose, are placed in one corner with a bit of maiden hair fern. The flowers are made by gathering along one selvage about three inches of baby ribbon and are finished in the center with a French knot. Line the pocket with stiff satin or taffeta to give it body and sew small clasps on the flap to fasten it.

Then you can make the boutonniere that is so popular for wear on the fur collars. It is made of 2 1-2 inch circles of velvet. Cut the circles and gather them around the edge. You need not turn the edges in. Draw the gathering string as tight as possible. Cut about three inches of stem wire, turn a small loop at one end and sew this firmly to the gathers. On the back of the flower sew a French knot or stamen in the middle of the flower. One bright blue, 2 taupe and one brilliant orgnge velvet flower, bunched with a spray of micnonette and one of white heather, make a very attractive blending.

You can decorate the talcum boxes and they can be elaborate as you want them. In pink satin with the top trimmed with a ruche of pale blue ribbon and decorated on the front with a bunch of bright red berries they make a most dainty gift. To fashion the berries cut circles one inch in diameter, turn the edge once, gather stuff and sew in the stem by turning a little loop at one end and fastening this loop well inside the berry. Finish by drawing the gathering thread tight.

Any combination of colors can be used or substituted for the pink and blue of the one I have described. Try to choose them so that they will match in shade the other toilet luxuries of the person for whom you are fashioning the novel gift.

You can make ribbon slippers First cover the soles with satin and finish around the edge with silk cord. Make a tiny heel by sewing the ribbon around the heel's place, then cut the ends of the ribbon about 1-2 yard long to allow for tying over the instep. Shirr the ribbon that is sewed to the sole so that when finished it is only about one-inch high. The vamp or toe cap is made of a fitted piece of satin ribbon, like the covering of the sole. This is covered with a piece of lace that is shirred in rows over the vamp. The rosette on top is made of pink and blue chiffon and then make little satin buds. In the shops these slippers cost $3.50 to $5. but you can make them from scraps of old evening gowns and not spend more than 75 cents.

All of these gifts are attractive if they are arranged with the usual accessories of ribbon, tissue paper and sachet in fancy boxes. The boxes you can easily make yourself with paste board and fancy paper.

DOING HER DUTY

Dear Editor and Sisters: I believe we are all expected to write once a month, so as to do our duty. What a jolly time we all had at Club No. 5's. The sisters are all so pleasant. Most of them are strangers to me but they try to made you feel at home. And the good things which are so tempting to look at! But my how good they do taste. I read a letter which one of the sisters wrote saying she would like to visit Club No. 5 if it met another day. She feels the same as I do about the club. I am a soldier's daughter and there are so few of them left now I think we ought to help them if we can, so I go to the Buckingham.

I wish all the sisters a Merry Christmas.

ENDORSES LETTER BY NORMA AND MARIGOLD

Dear Social Corner Friends: What nice letters we had last week; sorry not to see a full page. The poems were all so good and true. I agree perfectly with Norma about apologies. When I go to see a friend I go to see her, not the way she keeps house. It's easy to criticise but just think if we were in the same place we might not do as well.

I think Marigold has suggested a grand idea about birthdays. Hope to see it carried out. There are always more than one in each month.

I suppose many are busy making presents for Christmas. As for myself if I can get money to pay my bills when they are due and to dodge the doctors and automobiles I'll be contented. I wish you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

JOAN.

SINGING SUGGESTIONS

Dear Sisters: There is one thing in which our Corner has been a little deficient, that is help in the music line and as I can get a little help from one who knows I will state their ideas expressed as follows:

"Not long ago I had the pleasure of hearing a large singing club sing Elijah and I was struck with the comments of the audience as they passed out after the performance. It seemed to be generally agreed that the work of the chorus was far superior to that of the soloists in attack, phrasing, general finish and interpretation. I know the singers were among the best to be secured. The man who sang the part of Elijah has a nation-wide reputation, but, whereas his voice was most unusual and beautiful in quality, his manner of using it was such that the attention was constantly attracted by his faults rather than his good points. His attack was so bad that, instead of striking the note in the middle, he slid up to it through several notes, scooped up and down from one note to another, and, most of all only two or three words of a sentence was intelligible.

Doesn't this show that it is not enough to have a beautiful voice and to have practised intelligently on the technical and breathing exercises, if the same intelligence is not brought to bear upon the singing of the song? All the previous work may count for nothing if the song is botched, or, although this did not apply in the case of the singer of Elijah, if the appearance of the singer is in any way unpleasant or ridiculous.

Suppose we select a song—Drink to me only with thine eyes." This particular one is simple, both in melody and words, and was always a great favorite with most every one. As there is no copyright, nearly every publisher of music issued it. The first thing to do is to read and study the words until you become imbued with the spirit of the song. It is not merely enough to understand the sentiment, but to, put yourself in his place, so to speak; to sing it as though it were your own sentiment.

There is another thing I want to call to your attention. No matter how ardent a song may be, nor how immaterial the sentiment, seek to find the spiritual or intellectual interpretation if possible, and to appeal to the better side of your hearers rather than to the purely material, emotional side. I have heard the song in question sung so it left an impression of coarseness, and I have also heard it sung so that I thought it one of the most exquisite things I ever heard.

Having grasped the sentiment, take the music, learn the correct time and rythm of the music, and then put the two together. Beginning with the first line, put breathing marks after the words eyes, mine, cup, wine, use, divine, sip, wreath, thee, hope, be, breathe me, swear, itself, and be sure always to breathe where marked. As I know in singing breath is sometimes taken, even if not necessary to assist in expression. This is a song that must be sung with dignity, no rolling eyes or shrugging shoulders, nor heaving chest; the manner should be quiet, and composed, and confidential, rather than abstracted and detached.

In the first sentence, "Drink to me only with thine eyes and I will pledge with mine," now you want to exaggerate the consonant. Bring out crisply not only final but the beginning consonants. Give the dr and k in drink very clear enunciation. In "only" of the same sentence you will notice that the note on which the first syllable is sung is twice as long as any other in the measure; be careful, therefore that you hold the "o" and do not stop the ly until ready to leave the note. (This will help you in other pieces written the same.)

You want to work up the song and learn it thoroughly. Before singing it in public, practice before a looking glass and correct all the faults of appearance and expression. Simplicity and sincerity in singing and in manner should mark the song. At the same time there is an undercurrent in it which suggests the singer's consciousness and enjoyment in somewhat extravagant language, sincerity with a sort of gallantry combined.

After you have polished your song to the point where you are going to please your audience, it is a great disappointment to have the whole thing ruined by a stupid accompanist.

Select your accompanist with care, not so much his ability for a soloist as for his ability to submerge his own personality as a player in that of the singer. The accompanist must support the singer, not ride over him, and he should play with the sole object of showing to the best advantage the singer's voice and manner of singing and the song itself as a whole."

If I can get more information will write again.

MARGERY.

CHATTY LETTER FROM FLORIDA

Dear Corner Friends: I think Saturdays papers gave evidences that the writers are feeling the stress of the holidays and find less time to write. But I am going to chat with you a few minutes.

Nannie Lue: I wonder if you are in your new home yet and so much taken up with the charm of it you never find time to write? I hope you are feeling fine.

Student: Don't let yourself be so busy with work or motoring you can't come up to some of our meetings occasionally.

Iola: Miss your interesting letters

Nat: Are pigs so high you are not keeping them any more?

Grace: I miss seeing your cheerful face. Often think of the pleasant day when you entertained the Social Corner sisters. Golden Rod and myself found no obstacles in the way of reaching you as we were used to climbing stone walls and wading dismal swamps.

I called to see Dom Pedro several weeks ago and her nurse informed me she was too weak and ill in bed to see any one.

Practical Polly: Are you so taken up with your grandson you never have time to write and tell us about him? You haven't written since his advent.

Irva Lynn: I wonder if we are a bit acquainted, not cy sight but through a mutual friend? The fludson has a charm for me but it is many years since I have seen it, so many I dare not tell, but when Mary Vance can run her car I shall beg, buy or steal a ride.

Aunty No. 1: I do not think you use your new pen very often; any way, the ink does not flow toward the Corner page and I miss your frequent letters there, as well as scores of others I would like to mention.

I hope all that can will remember our sick and shut in sisters at Christmas time, Diana and O. H. O. and possibly others you may know of.

THE WEATHERSFIELD ELM

Dear Sisters; of the Social Corner: I believe we all admire beautiful trees, which are of great variety. Some that are of the smaller growth, such as the white birch or evergreen trees which appeal to our fancy by their bark or foliage. The tall oaks, maples or elms attract our attention to their great strength, and wonderful wide spread of branches. Truly a marvelous work of nature, which takes years and years to develop as we see them today.

Perhaps it may interest some of my readers, if I give a few notes regarding the historical old elm that has served as a landmark for nearly two centuries in the ancient town of Wethersfield. Tradition tells us, it was a transplanted sapling, by the hand of a Wethersfield lad. About 180 years ago, this young boy, was driving the cows home one afternoon, from the pasture in the meadows, and needing a stick to keep them from the nearby fields also to drive them where they should go, pulled up by the roots, a young elm growing by the roadside. On reaching home he was much impressed by the little sapling and decided to plant it, not dreaming by so doing he was adding an important event to the history of Wethersfield. Once the small twig planted by the hand of this boy took its root, and aided by nature it grew in strength, power and beauty each year until now its vigorous growth, and grandeur far exceeds in size, any elm tree in New England or even in the United States. For miles around, the old Wethersfield elm is known, and visited by many travelers. Its site has a wonderful commanding view and no passerby could escape noticing it. It stands at one side of what was formerly the "village green," and is on the main turnpike through the town. There is a bronze tablet attached to the body of the elm, giving dimensions etc., to those who pause to read.

The circumference at the base of trunk on the ground is 55 feet, 6 in. A: 39 inches from the ground the circumferences is 36 feet, 4 inches. Its height is 125 feet. Diameter of spread 137 feet circumference of spread 450 feet. There are 6 large branches, the longest one being 17 feet in circumference below the 25 feet mark from the ground and above that are 12 more large branches. A few years ago, the old elm, showed signs of age and decay. The town appropriated funds for its restoration, all old limbs were cut away, and nearly six cord of wood was accounted for. Recently the ultimate death of the old tree has been threatened by poison due to a leaky gas main.

Much interest has been aroused by the townspeople, and steps have been taken to prevent from possible future danger. A tree surgeon will have it under treatment for the nevt two years. Sisters and readers, before you go to California to see big trees, just drive through little Connecticut and stop at Wethersfield.

INTERESTED IN FANCY WORK

Dear Editor and Sisters: It has been some time since I have written so thought I must write a few lines as I saw the Corner was getting short of writers. I suppose they, like myself, have been very busy. With the days getting so short it certainly keeps anyone going with the many household duties most of us have to do, but let us cheer up, it won't be long before the days will be getting longer. How time flies! It doesn't seem possible that it can be so near Christmas as it is, I hope the editor and all the sisters will have a very merry Christmas—This best ever. I am still enjoying the radio. Lots of good things we get. I can't begin to praise it near enough. To sit down of an evening and listen to the different programs is certainly wonderful. What a rainy spell of weather we had last week, but I always think at such a time how beautiful it will be to see the sun shining again. It seems to give anyone courage. I have seen a verse somewhere about how beautiful is the rain after the dust and heat.

Well, sisters, I am getting very much interested in drawn in rugs. Have sent for a stamped pattern so you can think of me drawing in the pretty colors. I have never drawn in any before. I wish the sisters would tell what they are doing in the line of fancy work.

Anna Z: it was to bad you had such luck with your preserves. It means a lot of work besides a waste of sugar, etc., but you can think it might have been worse.

Primrose: Why don't you write? Have been looking for a letter every day. I hope you have not forgotten your friend. I wonder if we ever will hear from Free Air. She ought to write some thing interesting about the wonderful climate down there.

Kochie: Sure I am enjoying my radio. Would not part with it for the world. I hear you have been away visiting. You must have some one over that way I guess.

Olga: I received your letter and was much pleased to hear from you. I will write you a line soon. Hope you are feeling better. Will send in a little poetry for the Social Corner.

Regards to all RURAL AUNTY.

RUG MAKING

Dear Sisters: I have not written for quite a while so will write tonight. I was looking over the roll call and see my name was not there so can't say present, but I am here just the same. I have seen several letters about making rugs. So far this winter I have braided one and started one from silk stockings. Not any that I used myself, but I asked my friends for them. If you want to try it crochet them in a chain, then sew. It looks as though it was braided and not half as hard. Now Ora send your silk stocking to me. You know my address, and face when you see it. I wonder if Bonie sings as well as she used to now. Guess I know you. I was listening in one night last week and got part of a poem. It was the Yorks of the Road. Can anyone tell me if they heard it or can any send it to the Corner page? It was good. Now will stop. Hope the sick are better and that all have a merry Christmas.

Best wishes to all.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I wonder if you have room for another member?

I am afraid my letters will not be very interesting, for there are so many nice writers, but will try and do my bit.

I think Club No. 5 must have had a jolly time at their meeting Dec. 3. I have attended a few meetings and can say the dinner can not be improved upon, for the sisters and wonderful cooks.

Century Plant: I think I know you. Have you a daughter living in Hartford?

Wishing one and all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. I hope I

MAY DEW.

HAD FINE TIME AT CLUB 1 MEETING.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Thought I would write and let you know how much I enjoyed the meeting of Club No. 5 at the Buckingston, December 2. The dinner was fine, plenty of it and all were well pleased. The Virginia Reel was fine, the wall-flowers gave them great applause. Some fancy steps!

Catnip: I received the lace, it was very nice of you to make it when your eyes are so poor.

I visited Club No. 1 at Willimatic, December 9th and the glad hand was extended to me all around. I felt at home right away. Effie M. asked me my pen name. I told her and she said she would put me in her garden. Theoda says, "Oh, no, I don't want her put out in the hot sun." Yod meant all right, Effie, glad to know you wanted me so near by. Hope to see you again in the near future. What a splendid dinner and so much of it! Just think, I ate two pieces of pie; I'm not sorry.

The social time was much enjoyed. The grand march was a scream from beginning to end.

Cretia: It seemed so nice to meet you again. You wrote about going to Old Newgate prison. I, too, went there once; had a fine trip.

Fox Glove: I was more than surprised to see your smiling face. You have lots of ambition to come so far. I enjoyed every minute of the day.

Will close now with best of wishes to all.

LEARNING LIFE'S LESSINS

To Social Corner Sisters: It seems we are never to old to learn something more. When the lesson is specially severe we wonder why we did not know better or why some one had not warned us in time.

Anna E: Your little surprise when the shelf gave way and destroyed your preserves was very trying. My neighbor had a similar experience a few years ago. She always canned everything "to save it," until she learned her lesson.

First was rhubarb, "so nice for pies next winter," then strawberries, raspberries, currants, cherries, gooseberries, huckleberries, pears, peaches, plums, tomatoes, citron, quinces, grapes in preserves and jelly and pineapples. She had stone crocks her grandmothers had used, and these were filled with pickles of all kinds and stood directly under th swing shelf, of course. Every dozen cans more she filled were placed on the shelf. Not once did she examine the shelf, but always like at the beautiful cans, "so nice for next winter." She was proud of her work. So was I, as my shelf looked like hers, only not so many cans. But, hark! In the stillness of the night what was that awful crash? It seemed to come from the cellar. When she and hubby went to the foot of the cellar stairs they beheld an appalling sight. One end of the shelf was down. Every can had hit the stone crocks under the shelfs, the covers were broken, the pickles were mixed with glass and preserves of all kinds, the most wonderful hash!

The wall of the cellar was spattered with preserves and catsup, the floor was a pond of preserves and glass.

There was the loss of all the cans and those dear old grandmother's crocks, besides all the contents and all the hard work. To clean up such a surprise was not a happy process. When I saw the total wreck I resolved to save my cans from a similar fate. I took a bag of screw rings and some heavy wire down cellar, screwed the rings into the floor beams, then put the wire through the rings and under the shelves so they were secure. I did not dare drive a nail for fear of a crash of the shelf. I hardly dared to breathe until the shelves were all wired.

Be wise and learn your lesson in time. Watch the shelves. Don't overload them. Don't drive a nail into the end of a shelf as it will split and give way with all that is on it. "There's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip."

SOMETHING FOR THE CHILDREN

Dear Corner Sisters: As Christmas draws near and all the "grownups" are planning their gifts for this one and that what are the little folks doing? Are they making some little gift, too, or are they just wondering what they are going to get and what Santa Claus will bring them? I fear very few know "it is more blessed to give than to receive.

I am trying to have my children feel the joy of giving. So this year, while I am making gifts for auntie and uncle, they are busy making a scrap book for their little cousins.

I have saved my old magazines for some time just for this scrap book. All children love to look at the pretty advertisement in the magazines, so mine are cutting them all out, and we paste them in a smalier book. A blank note book about the size of a small magazine is best, but any magazine may be used.

They love to cut out pictures and they love to paste. I sit down with them and help plan where to put the different pictures, for they are just five and three years of age. But the three-year-old is just as enthusiastic as his five-year-old sister. It gives them something to do and children are always happy when they are busy. Then think of the hours of pleasure it will bring the ones who receive it.

I didn't used to believe in Brownies, but I do now. For when I am very busy and toys are scattered around and the children are "too tired" to pick them up, I call for the Brownies, and they come quickly and quietly, as Brownies always do. They are so willing to do anything I ask. They help make the beds and set the table and lots of other odd jobs. It's strange how much more willing my children are to help when playing making believe? Are yours?

FRED'S WIFE.

RAIN NEEDED IN MAINE

Dear Social Corner Friends: How do you do? Trust every body is happy. I want to tell you how delighted I am to tell you about my invalid friend.

You know I have not said anything about her for some time, for she has been getting better all the time, until now she is quite her own dear self again.

Well I gave a Thanksgiving dinner and had as guests Mrs. Lizzie J. Baldwin whom some of you know, 83 years young, but she seems not more than 50 in her ways, and Mr. and Mrs. Swan the latter my invalid friend, who was I assure you very grateful for the chance to join us. Her cheery countenance and merry laugh were a great pleasure to the rest. It was a wonderful day, beautiful sunshine and a keen wind, but we were all happy and thankful.

Snow fell the 27th to the depth of four inches. It has rained since Wednesday evening. Some one said it would for the Sewing circle from the Gray Baptist church was here for the day to the number of ten. The pastors mother from East Sumner, Maine, was with us. Our pastor's name is Charles Berry and we like him very much. He felt rather out of place with so many ladies, he said, for he could not piece patchwork.

Dinner was served at noon—Baked beans, pickles, brown bread, hot biscuit and pie—two, pie, rice and carrot pudding, tea and coffee. After the dinner a business meeting was held. We had a very pleasant time and they hoped I would invite them to come again.

Well as I must get dinner I will close by telling I enjoyed all of the letters as well as poetry in the last Social Corner pages.

It has rained ever since Wednesday evening and at 11 a. m. today (Saturday) it is drizzling just the same with no visible show of a let up. I am glad, for no doubt we will have a well full of water. It is very low now.

Best wishes to all from

A PRESENT THAT PLEASED.

Dear Cornerites: Christmas is almost here and I'm sure we all want to wish each other a merry Christmas and happy New Year, too. Don't you just love it in spite of all the work and anxiety it often brings?

I received one present that pleased me immensely last year, so I'm going to pass the idea along as it might help out some of you with your gift list. The one that gave it to me was one rather clever with her needle and especially fine at putting ribbons where she wanted them to go. First there was a sachet on the top of the box. This was a short piece of three-inch wide pink satin ribbon backed with white muslin filled with two layers of white cotton with clover sachet powder between. This was sewed perfectly flat and plain. Next a dainty pair of flapper garters such as can be gotten in the 5 and 10 cent store for 20 cents a pair, and last but not least, a small or rather I should say medium sized rose, pink satin with leaves of the same only green in color. In the center of the rose was a small bit of yellow satin lined with a double thickness of muslin and filled with white rose sachet powder. Another nice gift I received was a beautiful red geranium all in bloom accompanied by a smaller pot with two kinds of delicate fern, so they could be transplanted when large enough.

Just Pete: I'm sorry I didn't see you that morning at K—— until you had spoken, but I can only excuse myself on the grounds that my mind was very busy milling out what was to me an exceedingly knotty problem. Tommy was in two days ago but I haven't seen him since. He had a rather large rat one day last week when he came prowling around looking for milk.

I wonder what has become of Gypsy Wanda, Lilac Lady, 1493 and Laila. They haven't written at all lately.

Lilac Lady: I do wish you'd write for you have no idea how I enjoy your letters. They are so like you some how.

Neighbor Eveready's Sister: It is wrong to do so, but I envy you your trip to Montreal, for ever since I can remember I've had a longing to travel in Canada, especially Montreal and Hiltonadale, Saskatchewan.

Votami: I don't know anything about Skinny's two dollar bill, but I do know she is a mighty good sport. Don't you think so? You sound real cheerful and your poem can be applied to all of us I guess, not only Miles Brown.

Best Christmas wishes to all and to the editor, too.

MRS. DAN.

PLANTING AURATUM LILIES

Dear Social Corner Friends:—

The last Social Corner meeting of the year, was held today (Dec. 9) at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Willimantic.

I wonder if any of the sisters have had any experience with planting the bulbs of the auratum lily.

I will tell you how I did it. Perhaps it will help others. Early in November I sent for two bulbs, but for some reason they did not send them until now, Dec. 7. I planted them yesterday. There was not a bit of frost in the ground, so it was easy digging.

I dug a trench two feet deep, one foot wide and long enough so when grown they would not be crowded.

I put in 6 inches of well rotted manure, packed down, then 12 inches of good garden soil, mostly rotted sod. On this I put a pailful of clean sand and set the bulbs carefully in and covered them over with another pailful of sand. Then I filled the trench with more garden soil and gave it a good top dressing of manure. Finally I covered the bed with wire netting as my "barred rocks" were all on the job I was tired, but if I have some lilies next summer I shall feel well repaid for my work.

Nema: How I shall enjoy my favorites! Thank you again. Christmas will soon be here, with best wishes for a merry one.

WILTWYCK

TEACHING THE CHILDREN

Dear Corner Sisters: I have often thought I would write and tell you of a system my son has worked out in regards to his two children—a boy 11 and girl, 15. Until recently they had no conception of the value of money. All they had to do was to ask for what they wanted or needed to wear and they usually received it. Now their father has given them a monthly allowance—the girl receives more than the boy.

He took them both to the bank and made arrangements for them to open a checking account. So they each have their bank book and check book, over which they are very much elated. The argument is that they are to buy all their own clothes, pay car fare, ice creams and amusements. They are not to borrow money or have anything charged as their allowance is sufficient to cover all their needs if they spend it judiciously. At the end of the year their father will add dollar for dollar to whatever they have saved and invest it in their name.

They have many consultations with their mother before a purchase from shoes to hats is decided upon. They take care of their clothes now, brush and clean them and always remember their rubbers. It is amusing to see them look forward to the first of the month for their check and they take great interest in watching each other's bank account. Formerly they did not know the penny is as big as the traditional "cart wheel." They spend much time in deciding what they have to buy and then write their checks for the amount and so far there has been no reckless spending as they know they have to depend upon their own management for their clothes and all spending money.

FINE TIME AT CLUB MEETING

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I want to thank all who helped me at the Social Corner meeting at Buckingham Memorial on Dec. 2 when Club No. 5 met.

We had a lovely time Dec. 2 and had a good congenial crowd. Hope we will keep increasing in numbers. We had an extra fine dinner and a good social time as everybody seemed willing to take hold when some one else started the ball rolling. I hope we will have a good big crowd in January.

With best wishes for the club.

GREETINGS FROM PACIFIC COAST MEMBER

Dear Social Corner Folks: It looks as though we of the far west must be a little slow or a slacker. It has been many months since I had a visit with you.

The truth is both sickness and death have kept me from writing even to those most dear to me, and I too have been very ill the past two months and just getting around and out of doors. Although silent I often think of you, especially the older members. And I see many of them have passed away. And all is a part of life, and natural law.

We are sure a big family. I can not remember the half of you. I mean your pen names, but we are all sisters and just a few brothers. And you surely have some wonderful times at the clubs. I would love to join you in your merry times but it's a long way to go.

The Corner members write very interesting letters and some of the poetry is fine. I am always interested in Aries' letters, as I too study along the lines she writes of often—the planets.

We of the northwest are enjoying one of the finest falls I have ever seen since living on the Pacific coast. We had red raspberries for our Thanksgiving breakfast, picked from the Social Corner garden, and a boquet of roses upon our table.

Well I am not writing to boost the grand old state of Washington but to just say hello to you and I hope to be able to be with you a little oftener in the future. We really never know what the tomorrows may bring to us.

There are many questions of interest to write about but I am not going to visit you very long this time. I hope to come again and have something of interest to tell you.

A. R. D.: I neglected you on your birthday, the first time ever since we joined hands in the Social Corner. The card was ready but I was too ill to send it. You will understand.

I wish to send Christmas greetings to you one and all. May the New Year bring you all blessings of love health and prosperity.

As ever your

TILLICUM POTLATCH.

CLUB NO. 5'S MEETING.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: Am writing a few lines to you concerning the enjoyable time we had at our meeting December 2. As I walked along the busy streets over to the Buckingham Memorial, entered the hall with its cheery warmth, greeted the smiling faces of old and new members, gave a word of welcome to the guests, heard the pleasant sound of laughter as it mingled with the merry chatter of voices, I knew a day of sociability was ours. Soon, but too soon, the noon hour came. Then as our hostess and helpers had prepared a very appetizing dinner we were gathered around a well spread board. I saw the soldier boy of long ago, but the veteran of today, with us, and gladly welcomed them to our social dinner.

With a song of thanks to God from Whom all blessings flow, we were soon partaking of the bountiful supply of food placed before us and soon the cry of "enough" was heard and the fragments were gathered in and disposed of in various ways.

After the dinner hour came the social festivities. As I saw the new table linen so freely given and appreciated by the members, I thought deeds of kindness had been well shown to our club, No. 5.

The report of the secretary was read and accepted which showed a big gain over our last month's report. Our talented pianist rendered a well balanced programme which was enjoyed by all, and our social meeting came to a close.

Best wishes for the Social Corner.

GUSTA.

WANTS TO JOIN THE CORNER

Having visited Social Corner Club No. 5 would like to become a member of the Corner, as I enjoyed it very much.

Will take for my pen name

CHARITY.

(You have chosen the penname of another. Please make another selection and it will be recorded.—S. C. Editor.)

THE PASSING OF L. H. K.

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: I have been so busy I have not written lately. My dear sister, L. H. K., passed away the 11th of November She was here for two months and it was hard to see one we love grow worse and not be able to do them any good. I am thankful she did not suffer pain very much, as her sickness was at the last a form of paralysis. She had no feeling in her feet for nearly six weeks. It gradually crept up in her hands and side. I was so thankful she knew her Blessed Lord and was ready when He called her Home.

The Sunday before she went she sang "Bringing in the Sheaves" and "I'm Standing on the Promises," and the day before she passed away the last time she and mother read the Bible together she said "Yes Lord" as they spoke of something they read. I don't remember the year she joined the Corner but only a year or two after it started I think. She was interested in all the letters and was glad to have it grow and prosper, and sorry for all who were sick or had sorrow in any way.

Quite a number have passed on since I joined but many have come in among us. It is quite a large family now.

It does not seem that it is so near Christmas again. The time goes on and one season follows another. I hope all the sisters had a pleasant Thanksgiving. I send Christmas greetings to each one, and best wishes to all.

SPRY BIRD

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT WILLIMANTIC.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: The meeting of the Social Corner on Dec. 9, at Willimantic was certainly a success, about 125 sisters enjoyed the day. The hostess and her helpers surely did their best to keep up the cheerful spirit of this merry season. The tables were laden with many good things and the decorations were suggestive of the Christmas holiday. We ate dinner by candle light and before we sat down instead of singing the Doxology, we sang the hymn, Blest Be the Tie That Binds. We were first served with delicious clam chowder, then followed the usual good things of salads, cakes, pies, and so forth. After dinner we were treated to a vocal duet, "Star of the East" rendered by Wandering Jew and Fairy which was highly appreciated by all, a number of fine readings by several of the sisters, and last but not least, the great Norwich Bulletin Social Corner band, consisting of Biddy and her helpers, came marching in, led by Hope Cobweb, the drum major. Their playing was fine indeed, and costumes mostly "Paris models." We had a good laugh that day.

Perhaps it would be interesting to those who have not heard the history of the hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," to hear it now. There was a minister who was called to another church and he accepted in spite of the begging of his people to stay. When the men were putting his household goods on the wagon, the congregation came to him in a body and beseeched him so hard not to leave them, that he yielded and promised to stay. Then before putting his goods back into the house, he sat down on one of the packing boxes and wrote this beautiful hymn, which will be sung as long as friends gather together. A Merry Christmas to all.

MARIGOLD

DOM PEDRO RECOVERS

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters, and Friends: I am very glad to be able to greet you all again, after my long silence. I was a shut in from the last of July to Nov. 4, ill in bed some of the time, lost my sight and hearing, could not see to read or discontinued my Norwich paper, as I could not see to read for a long time. But my sight has been restored so now I can see to read and write, thanks to the Giver of all good things. I have had my eyes examined and fitted by an optician, have new glasses, but I still have to be very careful not to overtax them. I suppose the Corner people have forgotten that Dom Pedro existed. But I hope this letter will be a reminder that I still live. I met Lonesome Pine in the ten cent store not long ago. She is the only one of the Cornerites I have seen since last summer. It will be like meeting an old friend to see the Corner page again. I think just as much of the Social Corner as ever although I have been unable to contribute to it so long. I am wishing you all a Merry Christmas and hope the coming year may be a prosperous one for the Corner and all who are interested in it.

DOM PEDRO.

CLUB NO. 1 XMAS MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Club No. 1 had a fine day for our Christmas meeting. There were 130, a few being from Clubs 3 and 5. Our dinner was a surprise by Aunty No. 1, and Biddy. The chowder was just right and the tables were nicely

Paddy Fools Buster Bear

Patience waits; it won't give in.
And in the end is sure to win.
Paddy the Beaver.

Paddy the Beaver had remained behind at the new dam while the tired young Beavers followed their mother home for a much-needed rest. Paddy knew that if he went home he wouldn't be able to rest. He would worry about that dam. It was all right now, but it had been all right when they had left before. Buster Bear had torn two holes in it and there was no knowing but he would return and do the same thing again. Paddy wanted to be on hand if anything like that should happen.

So after inspecting the dam for its whole length Paddy swam to a great upturned root partly covered with water, and here he found a very good place to rest where he could see all over that growing pond, yet not be likely to be seen himself. There he made himself comfortable and prepared to doze and watch between naps.

"Huh!" he growled and started along the edge

Now, you know that Buster Bear isn't at all particular whether it be night or day. He wanders about when he feels like it. So though it had been in the night that he had torn those holes in the dam, he was still abroad long after jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun and begun his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky. He had quite forgotten the mischief he had wrought until chance led him back near that swamp. The sight of it reminded him of that dam. Having nothing of importance to do, he decided to have a look, to see if Paddy had discovered what had been done to that dam.

When Buster came to the edge of the new pond he was surprised. He stopped and looked at it as if he didn't quite believe that that was real water he was looking at. "Huh!" he growled, and started along the edge. Presently he came to the dam. That pond, if not as big as it had been before he tore open the dam, still was a good-sized pond, much bigger than it should be with those two holes in the dam. He shuffled to the first one, or where the first one had been. It wasn't there now. It had been neatly filled in. "Huh!" grunted Buster, and went on to the middle of the dam where he had torn the larger hole. It, too, was no longer there. Buster sniffed all about, and he smelled Beaver. "So that's it!" he muttered. "Paddy has been here and fixed these holes. Well, if he thinks he can get the best of Buster Bear in that way I'll fool him."

Buster began to tear at the dam and presently had a hole through which the water began to pour. He was so intent on what he was doing that he didn't see a brown form slip from an upturned root out in the pond only a short distance away and dive into the water, headed straight for that dam. Buster tore a hole big enough to let the water rush through in a big stream. Then he sat down a short distance away to watch it. Presently it seemed to him that there was less water than there had been. It grew less and less. Presently there was little more than a trickle. Could it be that all the water above the dam had run out in so short a time? He straightened up and looked above the dam. There was a pond of good size there.

Buster shuffled over to the hole he had made. It was partly filled with sticks and brush and rubbish. Buster tore it out again, and again the water gushed through. But presently the same thing happened and the hole was filled in. Some one was filling it in as fast as he tore it out. That some one was Paddy the Beaver. Paddy, working partly under water on the upper side of the dam, kept filling in that hole. But he couldn't be seen by Buster below the dam.

A third time Buster tore it open and a third time Paddy filled it in. Then Buster, instead of growing angry, began to laugh, for Buster naturally is good natured and has a sense of humor. He saw the joke on himself and it tickled him.

"All right, Paddy," he growled from below the dam. "All right, you win. You have more patience than I have. Besides, I don't really care if you have a pond here. Have it if you want it for all I care."

"Thank you, Buster Bear," said Paddy as he patted a sod in place. "Some day you will like this pond to swim in. It is going to be a very nice pond."

CONCERNING CHRISTMAS

In Finland it is a custom to attend church services at 5 o'clock on Christmas morning.

According to an old superstitution, people born on Christmas day are lucky all their lives.

In eastern countries—Armenia, Syria, and Greece—lamb is the chief article of diet on Christmas.

In England the law requires all theaters and other places of amusement to remain closed on Christmas day.

One of the oldest superstitutions prevalent all over Europe is the idea that animals assume the power of speech at Christmas. How this belief started is not known.

The most important of Christmas's namesakes is Natal, in South Africa. The Portuguese discovered it on Christmas day, and named it Natal, since it was cited on the natal day of Christ.

In olden days it used to be the custom for all horses to be bled and thoroughly washed on the day after Christmas. This was supposed to preserve them from harm through the ensuing year.

The Poles have many superstitutions in connection with Christmas. They believe that what they do on Christmas eve they will do all the year round, and therefore they conduct themselves with that prospect in view.

Centuries ago it was quite proper for a male admirer to present the lady of his love with wearing apparel on Christmas. For instance, in 1574 the Earl of Leicester gave Queen Elizabeth a cassnke trimmed with gold lace at Christmas.

Christmas is commonly spoken of as Yule or Yuletide, but actually the festivals are quite different. Yule was originally a pagan feast in honor of the sun-gods and it dates back to long before the Christian era. Yuletide fell about December 22, and when the festival of Christmas was instituted on December 25th it gradually took the name of the older feast.

The custom of hanging evergreens in the house during the Yuletide originally had a purpose beyond that of decoration. In olden days each kind of evergreen was believed to confer special blessings on those who passed beneath its boughs. To pass under holly ensured good fortune throughout the year, bay meant victory, while laurel was supposed to impart a spirit of beauty and poetry.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Centenary of the birth of Giles Henry Mandeville, noted clergyman and educator of the Reformed Dutch church in America.

The annual election of Rhodes scholars from the colleges of the United States and Canada is scheduled to take place today.

Prelates and pilgrims of the Roman Catholic church throughout the world will gather in Rome today for the beginning of the final ceremonies of the holy year observance.

Trans-Atlantic wireless communication today enters upon its 25th year, it having been on this date in 1901 that Marconi, listening in near St. John's, Newfoundland, picked up the first trans-Atlantic radio signal broadcast from England.

With the coming of sunset this evening will begin, by the Jewish community the world over, the celebration of "Hannukah," or the Festival of the Dedication. Although rated in the traditional calendar as a minor festival, "Hannukah," which is also known as the "Feast of Lights," is of major significance, as it commemorates one of the most heroic, and far-reaching victories for the fatherland and the faith.

Breed Theater

Never the Twain Shall Meet, Peter B. Kyne's enchanting story of the South Sea Islands, will be shown at the Breed theater for three days, beginning Sunday, according to an announcement made by the management yesterday.

This picture, a Cosmopolitan production, directed by the celebrated French director, Maurice Tourneur, was picturized in Tahiti and Moorea, two of the famous islands of the South Sea group. The cast includes such prominent players as Anita Stewart, Bert Lytell, Huntly Gordon, Justice Johnstone, George Siegmann, Lionel Belmore, William Norris, Emily Fitzroy, Princess Marie de Bourbon and Florence Turner.

Perhaps never in the history of moving pictures has there been a story filmed against such gorgeously beautiful backgrounds as those which appear in Never the Twain Shall Meet. Filled with all the magic and romance associated with life in the South Seas, this photoplay sounds an entirely new note in the literature and drama of motion pictures.

In the role of Tamea, the half-caste island princess, Anita Stewart appears in a characterization thoroughly suited to her enchanting personality—a portrayal which calls for many phases of dramatic intensity, varied with comedy situations. Bert Lytell plays opposite Miss Stewart in the role of Dan Pritchard.

The production is lavish in the extreme, and as the picture develops on the screen there is a breadth and freedom, a tropical magic and a pictorial panorama of loveliness never before visualized with a moving picture camera. In addition to a wealth of scenic duty there is an equal beauty in the exotic interior setting, designed by the masterful hand of Joseph Urban.

Palace Theatre.

"Stage Struck," an Allan Dwan production for Paramount starring Gloria Swanson at the Palace theatre on Sunday, is unique in that the first and final sequences are done in natural colors, the color being used to suggest the periods of happiness in the life of the heroine.

"Stage Struck" is the story of a drab little waitress in an Ohio river town who determines to become an actress because the boy who fries the wheat cakes in the restaurant likes actresses. She makes her debut on an Ohio river show boat, a locale seldom if ever used in pictures before. To take these show boat scenes, Miss Swanson, Mr. Dwan and a company of 100 journeyed to New Martinville, W. Va., and remained there two weeks.

The little waitress, as played by Miss Swanson, is both humorous and pathetic. She is a bedraggled, down-in-the-heels little figure, always getting into trouble and always being the butt for the laughter of everyone. But with all this comedy, there is something touching about the girl, something that keeps the tear close behind the laugh. The scenes on the boat and in the cheap restaurant are "slapstick" comedy and Miss Swanson reveals comedy gifts hitherto unsuspected.

In the cast with Miss Swanson are Ford Sterling, as the manager of the show boat; Lawrence Gray, as the flapjack turner, and Gertrude Astor, as the blonde leading woman on the boat.

Frank R. Adams wrote "Stage Struck" especially for Miss Swanson. Forrest Halsey who wrote the screen plays, "Madame Sans Gene" and "The Coast of Folly," prepared the scenario. Margaret Evans, Carrie Scott, Emil Hoch and Margery Whittington complete the line-up to supporting players.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

A noteworthy screen entertainment, the Tiffany production "Morals" For Men," will be seen for the first time in this city starting tomorrow at the Broadway theatre. Throughout the showing of this picture it will hold the audience completely interested in this vivid dramatic story of a woman's fight to regain her place in society and a man's easy road to forgiveness after he had diverged from the straight and narrow path.

"Morals For Men" was suggested by "The Love Serum" by Gouverneur Morris and was adapted for the screen by A. P. Younger and directed by Bernie Hyman. It features Conway Tearle and Agnes Ayres, with a supporting cast including Alyce Mills, Otto Matiesen, Robert Ober, John Milljan, Mary Beth Milford and Eva Southern.

In his latest film offering, "The Brand of Cowardice," starring Carmelita Geraghty and Bruce Gordon, which opens Sunday as the second feature at the Broadway theatre, there is a wealth of thrilling and dramatic episodes that crowd one upon the other, culminating in a most unusual and unexpected climax.

An augmented orchestra, Kinograms and comedy make up the balance of this fine programme and all for 25 cents admission.

Silvertone Male Quartet at Y. M. C. A. Sunday. Also Stereopticon Pictures

On Sunday in the big gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. at 4 p. m. The Silvertone Male Quartet will render several selections that are certain to please their audience. This quartet has been heard with pleasure in various parts of the state. Among the selections they will sing on this occasion is "The Old Rugged Cross," which is always a great favorite. In addition to the fine music by the quartet, several stereopticon pictures of "The Life of Jesus" will be shown on the screen. The pictures will include several of the miracles performed by the Master, his conversation with the woman at the well, his trial, his crucifixion, etc. Twelve slides illustrating the world famed hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee" will be shown while the audience sings the hymn. Hugh Kinder will officiate at the piano, and a brief talk will be given. The public is invited to this service, and boys and girls under fourteen must be accompanied by adults.

RAYON FABRIC SURPASSES SILK IN AMERICAN SALES

Rayon, an artificial textile fabric closely resembling silk in appearance, is used in the manufacture of hosiery, which consumes one-fifth of the domestic production, and of ribbon, cotton and woolen goods. Its tensile strength is greater than cotton and less than silk.

Count Hilaire de Chardonnet was the first to produce rayon and he called it artificial silk when he introduced the fabric to the Paris Exposition in 1864. His invention resulted from a study of the organic process which takes place as the silk worm produces silk.

Imitating this artificially, he produced a vegetable fibre which organically resembled cotton more than silk. Improvements were made in the process until cellulose, the material constituting the cell walls of plants, could be manufactured into rayon on a large scale.

Many processes are used, but in all some type of cellulose is reduced to a jelly-like mass and pumped through glass nozzles in which there are fine capillary tubes so small as to be invisible to the naked eye. This produces endless threads which are pumped into chemical baths to harden and bleach them. From this stage, the fibres are spun and handled like silk.

The silk like sheen which rayon imparts to cotton fabric when woven into it within the past few months has resulted in a large demand from the cotton mills of the south and has greatly stimulated the sale of cotton goods throughout the country.

Rayon also is used for covering telephone wires and electromagnets, trimming and beading tire fabrics, for doll's hair, artificial flowers, shoe laces, suspenders, garter linings and in knit goods.

In a statement issued by the Babson Statistical organization it was estimated that the domestic production of rayon was approximately 39,000,000 pounds in 1924, as compared with 8,000,000 pounds in 1920 and 2,450,000 in 1914.

This year's output will approximate 70,000,000 pounds. One hundred and forty million pounds was the total of the world's production last year, with the United States leading all other countries.

The competition between silk and rayon is reflected in prices. In 1920, raw silk dropped from $18 a pound to $5, while rayon of the unbleached 150 dernier grade was cut from $6.50 a pound to $2.

AMERICAN STUDENTS IN PARIS CALL ON PARENTAL WALLET

PARIS, Dec. 11—(AP)—Those American students in Paris who confidently told their parents that living here was so reasonable they could surely do two years work in one, already are writing home for increased allowances.

In the famous Latin Quarter, prices of board and lodging have gone up appreciably. Furnished apartments which once cost 500 francs a month now are renting for thrice this sum.

The long colored glass of appetizing mixture that costs the French student one franc and 70 centimes — leaving him the extra 25 of his two francs for a tip—cost the obviously American patron three francs fifty, with the implied obligation of tipping the boy 50 centimes.

OLD SONG SLIDE ARTISTS FIND PLACES IN MOVIES

Most of the song-slides no doubt have been thrown away long ago, save for a few still hoarded as souvenirs by the theater folk of a passing generation; but as for the "picture actors" who posed for them, some are just where one might expect to find them—in the movies.

For instance, a search of the Famous Players-Lasky lot here revealed Tom Fortune, who was headlined in the nineties as a singer of popular songs. Fortune claims to have been the first entertainer to sing song-hits to the accompaniment of stereoptican slides.

It was in 1896, in the American theater on Chicago's north side, that he was engaged to introduce this startling innovation to the playgoing public. Between the acts of a comedy being presented at the American, he sang After the Ball, and other compositions of the day. The lantern slides illustrating his songs were a big hit. Soon the making of song-slides became a small industry.

Fortune posed for many slides. Usually a slide had to be made for each line of the song. First one posed with one's partner for in the Shade of the Old Apple Tree, and then snapped into the tableau for Where the Love in Your Eyes I Could See the Love through the sentimental itinerary of the ballad.

From this posing for song-slides to acting in motion pictures was a natural transition. When Edison produced The Great Train Robbery, Tom Fortune was in the cast, and by the time the song-slide as an institution had slipped into oblivion, Fortune and most of the other song-sliders had slipped safely into the films.

FAMILY NAME IN GERMANY NOT USED FOR A GIVEN NAME

BERLIN, Dec. 11—(AP)—A German first-born may be baptized with the name Hindenburg, but the name must not be entered in the church register as part of the boy's name.

In Germany it is not permitted to use a family name as a given name. Such combinations as Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt, Washington Irving, Luther Burbank or Douglass Fairbanks, as the Christian names of Woodrow, Franklin, Washington, etc., would be interpreted to be family names which must not thus be misused.

One will never find a Goethe Schmidt, Schiller Schultz, Mozart Mueller or a Bismarck Steinberg in Germany.

The pastor who keeps the church register or the clerk in the city register's office has the right to question any name that is offered as a given name. The burden of proof is upon the parent to demonstrate that the name he proposes to confer upon his child is a generally accepted Christian name.

FEAR DAY WHEN MOTORS MAY DISPLACE ROYAL CARRIAGES

LONDON, Dec. 11 — (AP) — What would happen to the Royal carriages and the Coronation coach should the motor displace the horse, is a question Londoners frequently ask. There are only about 70 horses in the Royal Mews now, whereas before the war they numbered upwards of 150.

The cream ponies, which were bred at the Royal stud farm in Hampton Court Park, have gone, so too have the handsome blacks which had been the admiration of the crowds on state occasion. Only the bays remain. Many citizens have expressed the hope that horses would always be used at national functions.

The Coronation coach probably would remain at Buckingham Palace. It has been used for six coronations and is one of the show sights to all favored visitors. It is drawn by eight horses in red and gold harness.

The Royal train, which King George and Queen Mary use in travelling about England, is the finest in the country. It consists usually of 11 coaches of the Pullman type, and two engines are employed to draw it. Running always as a special, the train generally is on non-stop schedule. Full speed is never maintained after nine or ten p. m., so that the motion may be reduced to a minimum and not disturb the slumbers of their majesties.

DISARMAMENT INVITATION FROM GENEVA

GENEVA, Dec. 11—(AP)—The next of the invitation to the United States government to participate in the special committee which is to prepare for the convocation of an international conference on disarmament was approved at a secret session of the council of the league of nations tonight. It will be forwarded to Washington tomorrow by way of the American legation at Berne.

Invitations almost identical as to text will go to Russia and Germany, the Russian communication being sent by mail. The texts will only be published when the document intended for Russia has reached its destination.

The council tonight reached a complete accord on the program of study to be submitted to the special preparatory committee, and the understanding is that a copy of this program which covers all aspects of the disarmament problem, will form a part of the American invitation.

According to an unofficial synopsis the invitation says that after long study, the council is of the unanimous opinion that owing to the perplexity of the question, it cannot be settled in its entirety unless there is cooperation by all the countries, because it affects the interests of all.

Therefore, it continues, the council gives great value to the collaboration of the United States, both in the preparatory work of the committee and the disarmament conference itself. It concludes with an expression of the hope that the time will come when all nations will be making efforts toward the attainment of the common goal and that the council will be able to count upon the full cooperation of the government of the United States in a work which so closely affects the peace of the world.

Although it is realized in Geneva that the United States has no army reduction problem, league leaders are unanimous in hoping that the country across the Atlantic may see its way clear to some sort of participation. The point is made that the United States might be able to present useful information concerning the economic and industrial aspects of the disarmament problem.

DESIRED EFFICIENCY STANDARD HAS NOT BEEN REACHED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Renewed complaint over the effect on army training of the lack of suitable quarters at army posts is voiced in the annual report of Major Gen. W. J. Snow, chief of Field Artillery. Speaking of observations made during his inspections of regular field artillery units and despite "marked advances in efficiency" he noted, Gen. Snow said:

"However, the desired standard of efficiency has not been reached for several reasons, the most outstanding of which are—lack of suitable quarters at many stations, necessitating large fatigue details to maintain them, and the fact that the regular army is overloading and overworked in carrying out its part of the national defense plain."

Gen. Snow declared that the "fire hazard has been hanging over the artillery school for years like a sword of Damocles."

The report urged steps to increase the number of reserve officers of the field artillery, only 5,899 being enrolled on June 30, 1925 while 20,000 would be needed in a major emergency.

As to the National Guard gunners, Gen. Snow said, that growth of guard field artillery had been rapid since the war and improvement marked.

D'ANNUNZIO AND DUSE OBITS TO BE WRITTEN BY TRAVERSI

ROME, Dec. 11—(AP)—Camillo Antona-Traversi, whose dramatic works were well known in Italy a generation ago, is embarking on the task of telling the life story of Gabriele d'Annunzio, as well as writing the biography of Eleonora Duse, the actress Traversi for 25 years has been a resident in Paris.

Of the two works, that on d'Annunzio will be the more difficult, Traversi believes. "To write the life of such a great living author is a difficult, audacious and perhaps courageous enterprise," he said. "I do not know a life more varied more beautiful or more romantic. My work will be in many volumes."

The book on Duse, which Traversi already has begun, will be called "Eleonora Duse, Her Life, Her Glory and Her Martyrdom."

ANDES ARE GEOLOGICALLY THE WORLD'S INFANT MOUNTAINS

BALTIMORE, Dec. 11—(AP)—The Andes are geologically the world's baby mountain range, in the opinion of Joseph T. Singewald, professor of geology at Johns Hopkins University.

Returning from an exploration trip along the waters of the upper Amazon river in Peru, Professor Singewald says red beds containing fossils have been located on both the east and west sides of the inner range of the Andes, indicating that these mountains are at least 10,000,000 years younger than previously believed.

This discovery, with the added fact that fossils also were found at an elevation of 14,000 feet, convinces the professor that the Andes is the youngest large mountain range.

SOUTHERN STATES TO BUY MOUNTAINS FOR PARKS

The states want the first two great national parks to be established in the southeast and now are engaged in the task of raising funds for the acquisition of a section of the Great Smoky Mountains, of western North Carolina and Eastern Tennessee, and part of the Blue Ridge, in the Shenandoah region of Virginia.

After the purchases have been made, the mountains will be presented to the government, which, through Secretary of Interior Work and the Federal Park Commission, has sanctioned the projects. The state legislatures have passed measures to assist the campaigns for funds.

RHEIMS ONE CITY WITH HOMES BEGGING; REAL ESTATE SLUMPS

RHEIMS, Dec. 11—(AP)—Rheims is among the few cities in France with empty apartments and a slumping industrial real estate market. The return of the population has not kept pace with rebuilding and restoration, as there are only 75,000 inhabitants as compared with 117,000 before the war.

To the world, Rheims generally is associated first with cathedrals, and then Champagne. Before the war, however, it was an important industrial city, where wool weaving, spinning and bleaching employed 10,000 persons, now reduced to about one-third of that number.

Land which at Armistice time sold for 10 to 20 francs the square meter, when it was thought that the city would be itself again in a short time, is now offered at from 5 to 10 francs.

The "League for the Industrial, Commercial and Labor Development of Rheims" has been formed to come to the rescue.

PREHISTORIC FLAPPERS ALSO CONCEALED THEIR EARS

TUSCON, Ariz., Dec. 11——Prehistoric flappers who lived in Mexico about 10,000 years ago used the same care in concealing their ears that the fair senoritas do today.

The sheiks of that period were more worried about their lee line than they were about their waist measurement.

These are two prehistoric fashion notes discovered by Dean Byron Cummings, professor of archaeology at the University of Arizona, in his excavations in the pyramid of Cuicuilco, 12 miles south of Mexico City.

The flappers of the ancient day instead of concealing their ears under the now prevalent barrage of hair used large disc-like ear plugs made of an American variety of jade. Tradition of that time corded their thighs to give themselves a bandy legged effect that apparently was all the rage.

ROSENKAVALIER PROVES TO BE WINNING HORSE FOR STRAUSS

Attending one of the Sunday races in Krlau, Strauss was so greatly amused in learning one of the entries was named after his opera that he placed ten shillings on him.

GENEVA, Dec. 11—(AP)—Mediation of the dispute between Turkey and Great Britain over the sovereignty of the Mosul area of Upper Mesopotamia was strenuously attempted today by the league of nations council, through Foreign Minister Undea of Sweden, who was in close touch with Tewfik Rushdi Bey, the chief Turkish delegate.

Another development causing a glimmer of hope was the fact that the British colonial secretary, L. C. M. S. Amery, was for the first time present at the meeting of the council, and personally conferred with Rushdi Bey.

General Smedley D. Butler said that he would let the people of Philadelphia know sometime between December 31 and January 31 whether he intends to remain here as director of public safety.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE KEEPS THESE CHILDREN WELL ALL WINTER

"I am glad to tell how Father John's Medicine helped our babies. In the spring they all had the whooping cough real hard, and all they took was Father John's Medicine. It sure helped to keep them looking well, and they didn't lose much sleep at night. It is a blessing, and we give it to the children in the winter. We always keep it on hand." (Signed) Thomas Barton, Meatcleva, Ohio.

It is such experiences as the above that have made Father John's Medicine the great success that it is. It has a history of over 70 years of proven value in treating colds, coughs and as a body-building tonic. Guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs.

If Gasoline Cost a Dollar a Gallon

WHERE would your motor car be today if gasoline cost a dollar a gallon? In the garage? Most likely.

Isn't it queer how men will strain at the gasoline gnat and swallow the depreciation camel?

For example, 16% of the cars traded in on the Packard Six are of a well known yearly model—each having run an average of but 15,087 miles.

On these cars the depreciation cost per mile has been nearly six times the cost of gasoline per mile. Just think of that!

Isn't it about time men made their motor car buying a matter of business? Thousands have—those who are buying the Packard Six

The average Packard Six owner expects to keep his car nearly three times as long as the car he traded in.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

RED MEN

Tuesday evening, a number of members of Mohegan Tribe, No. 64, I. O. R. M., trailed to New London, to visit Nonowantuc Tribe, and to attend the regular monthly meeting of the New London-Middlesex Counties' Red Men's association.

Arawanna Tribe, of Middletown worked the Chief's Degree in full form, and were applauded for their fine rendition of this beautiful work. They were assisted at the plane by George F. Farrell of Norwich.

After the tribal meeting, the association was called to order by President B. H. Rose of New London, with an attendance of nearly 100.—Routine business was transacted and under new business, nominations were opened for second vice-president. Samuel Fielding of Norwich, being the only nominee, he was unanimously elected. William Smith, of Essex, was elected outer guard, and George F. Farrell of Norwich was elected inner guard.

Great Prophet of Rhode Island John E. Murrison, of Westerly, gave a long talk on Good-Fellowship, and this note was re-echoed in several other long talks, by prominent members.

Middletown was selected as the place of the next meeting, in January, and Sachem Michael Dowling of Arawanna Tribe assured the brother that a real good time could be expected, and a large attendance was hoped for.

Refreshments were served by the entertainment committee, which consisted of coffee, and several kinds of sandwiches.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Senior Regent Mrs. Mary Hunter opened the regular meeting of the Women of Mooseheart Legion, Norwich Chapter, No. 134, at Moose Home on Thursday evening, with a very good attendance. Regular routine of business was transacted. It was voted to purchase Christmas Seals and help in the fight against tuberculosis. An auditing committee for the quarter was appointed as follows—chairman, Mrs. Irene Burns, Mrs. Rose Carter and Mrs. Georgia Tomanio.

Installation of officers was held, and the following were installed by grand installing officer, Mrs. Anna Crowe, to serve for the year of 1926.

Past regent, Mrs. Mary Hunter, senior regent, Mrs. Teresa Watters, junior regent, Mrs. Ethel Hoelck, chaplain, Mrs. Irene Burns, recorder, Margaret M. Sadusky, treasurer, Mrs. Nora Willett; guide, Mrs. Mary LaValle, assistant guide, Mrs. Martha Wunderlich, sentinel, Mrs. Marie Retkovski, argus, Mrs. Rose Carter, organist, Miss Pauline Wunderlich. The newly installed officers will preside at the first meeting in January.

After the meeting, the following appetizing menu was served, under the direction of Mrs. Nora Willet:

Cold Meats

Chicken Salad	Potato Salad
Celery,	Cranberries
Olives	Pickles
Rolls	Coffee
Cake	Ice Cream

The next meeting of the chapter will be held Tuesday, December 29th, with a Christmas tree and entertainment for the members.

SONS OF HERMANN AUXILIARY

Edelweiss lodge, No. 10, Ladies auxiliary to Herwegh lodge, No. 13, O. D. S., in New London, celebrated its 35th anniversary at its hall, this week. Forty members of Immergruen lodge, No. 11 of Norwich participated in the observance, including Mrs. Henry Liepold of Norwich, past grand president.

Among the speakers of the evening were Mrs. Liepold and Mrs. Emma Braun, president of Immergruen lodge, who presented Edelweiss lodge with a gold token in behalf of her lodge. Other speakers were Grand Treasurer F. A. Baier and District Deputy H. F. Staab of New London.

One of the features of the evening was the initiation into membership of Miss Therese Hopf, daughter of Christine Hopf, charter member, who was made a member exactly 35 years ago. Three other candidates were initiated.

An entertainment and luncheon followed the conclusion of the ceremonies.

REBEKAHS

Election of officers and roll call will feature the next meeting of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., which will take place, Wednesday evening, Dec. 16th. It is expected that a large number of the members will be present. A silver collection will be taken after the roll call. A fine entertainment programme has been arranged by the entertainment committee and a social hour will follow.

REBEKAH PAST GRANDS

The past noble grands of Hope Rebekah Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., entertained the past noble grands of Thames Association on Wednesday evening. There was a large attendance. Business of the meeting included the election of officers which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. Morgan of Orient lodge, New London; first vice president, Mrs. Minnie Matthieu of Violet lodge, Willimantic; second vice president, Mrs. Sarah Swaney of Gates lodge, Niantic; secretary, Mrs. Bertha Barrows, of Home lodge, Groton; treasurer, Mrs. Cecelia Broughows of Osprey lodge, New London.

The next meeting will be held in January with Orient lodge at New London at which time the installation will take place.

ELKS

Norwich lodge, No. 430, is making elaborate preparations for the New Year's eve party for members only, which will be held at the Elks home. Dancing, vaudeville and souvenirs are to be among the attractions of the evening and the supper will be by a Hartford caterer. The fun will start at 9 o'clock, the number to attend being necessarily limited by the amount of floor space in the hall where the tables will be set.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

New London County Pomona Grange No. 6, will hold its regular meeting with Norwich Grange No. 172, on Thursday December 17, at 10 o'clock a. m. at Steiner hall.

After the assembly, business and conferring degree, dinner will be provided by Norwich Grange.

The afternoon session with lecturer's program will be as follows:

Piano solo Miss Nellie Howie, Norwich Grange. The high spots of the annual poultry trip of the Connecticut Poultry association, Bro. Hugh Whitman, Konomoc Grange. Musical selections, direction of Bro. John M. Swahn, Norwich. reading, Sister Burdick, Mystic Grange. "Square Meals" Mrs. Marion Dakin, nutrition specialist of Connecticut Agricultural college. Christmas solo. Miss Charlotte Fowler, Norwich Grange.

A short business meeting of Norwich grange, No. 172, in Steiner hall last Wednesday evening was followed by the lecturer's programme which was carried out with much interest. Original papers upon Things About Norwich to be Proud Of were given by Mrs. Ida Richardson, Leonard Staubley and John E. Fanning. A poem, King Spud, was read by Mrs. John O. Peckham and two fine musical numbers were given in a violin solo; Spanish Dance, by Ralph Marsh, and a vocal solo, Anchored, by Lewis Aldrich.

It was announced that the meeting on Dec. 23 is to be a Christmas party for which each one attending is expected to bring some article for exchange, the value not to exceed 10 cents. It was also announced that a "Sunshine basket" is to be given for one of the Grange members who is a patient at Uncas-on-Thames.

PYTHIAN SISTERS.

Clover Temple, No. 9, held their regular meeting last Thursday evening with E. Grace Fowler in the chair.

Business of importance was transacted, including the second nomination and election of officers which were as follows:

M. E. C., Clara Busch; E. S., Minnie Noyes; E. J., Goldie Herman; M. of T., Hattie Fowler; M. of R. C., Charlotte Fowler; M. of F., Marion Fowler; P. of T., Annie Ableman; G. of O. T., Lillie Rogers; delegate to grand lodge, Alice Lattimer.

MAYFLOWER SOCIETY.

A meeting of the board of assistants of the Mayflower society in the state of Connecticut was held on the evening of December 7th at the home of Treasurer Edwin H. Tucker. Governor Edwin H. Bingham presided at the meeting. The following applicants for membership in the society were unanimously elected: Mrs. Belton Allyn Copp of Groton, 10th in descent from William Brewster; Mrs. Charles Lincoln Taylor, Hartford, 8th from John Alden; Mrs. Harry Edward Crane, Hartford, 9th from Samuel Fuller; Raymond Jones Doty, Milwaukee, Wis., 9th from Edward Doty. The secretary, Mrs. Kingsbury reported the death of Mrs. Frederick L. Osgood of Norwich which occurred a year ago, Dec. 5th, 1924.

Eastern Connecticut members of the society have received invitations to the annual Forefather's Day luncheon at the Mohican hotel, New London, on Monday, December 21.

EAGLES

Worthy President George Nadony presided at the regular meeting of Norwich Aerie, No. 367. The aerie is making plans for a class initiation on New Year's Eve, for which the committee in charge is planning a good entertainment. The pinochle committee reported that the Eagles team was defeated by the Polishers, it being the first defeat for the Eagles. The class initiation committee reported the Thanksgiving class was a great success. There were 175 brothers present at the turkey supper.

The Aerie was given a surprise during the meeting, when Assistant Captain Petrone of the Polishers presented a comfortable chair to the Aerie, which was donated by the Polishers Pinochle players in appreciation for the courtesies extended them during the pinochle tournament.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, met at the Buckingham Friday afternoon with the president Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury in the chair. All reports were read and approved. There was one initiated and one application for membership was received. An invitation from the Daughters of Veterans to attend a social event on Tuesday evening, Dec. 15th was accepted. The department has sent a request to every corps in the state to assist in buying a Victrola for the veterans at Noroton. As the next meeting falls on Christmas day it was voted to hold the meeting Saturday, Dec. 26th. Fitting words were spoken in memory of Warren Lee Goss. The annual election of officers followed and resulted as follows;

President, Mrs. Maud Moody; sr. vice president, Mrs. Grace Fowler; jr. vice president, Mrs. Ines Hill; treasurer, Mrs. Iola Bjurstrom; chaplain, Mrs. Annie B. Newton; conductor, Mrs. Althea Brown; guard, Mrs. Mary E. Austin; first delegate, Mrs. Elizabeth Risley; second delegate, Mrs. Minnie Wilson; third delegate, Mrs. Abbie Olsen; first alternate, Mrs. Annie Turner; second, Mrs., Elizabeth Murray; third, Mrs. Mary Wightman.

The corps closed in the regular manner.

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham Council, No. 14, held its regular meeting Dec. 9 and much important business was transacted with George Faulkner presiding. The degrees were not worked owing to the fact that only three of the degree team were on hand and the degree master picked a new team that could be depended on to put on the work. The next degree to be worked will be Jan. 6, 1926 and there will be about ten candidates to be initiated.

Next Wednesday, Dec. 16, the first nomination for officers will take place and the meeting will start at 8 o'clock sharp as this takes such a long time besides the regular work.

The whist that was to take place next week was postponed because there is other business to be handled and it would be too late to start it after the meeting. The whist will take place some time in the near future.

NORWICH TOWN

As the time draws near to the Yuletide season, enthusiasm increases concerning the many ways in which Christmas is to be observed. With selected sermons by the pastors of the three churches in this district, special musical programmes, beautiful floral decorations, Christmas entertainments for young and old, family gatherings, special guests, etc., and the Community Christmas Tree, there is much for one to anticipate. With good weather permitting, perhaps the one special occasion which can be enjoyed by many hundred people of Norwich and vicinity, will be the exercises on the Norwich Town Green, Christmas Eve, under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association.

Regarding this event, which will be the third of its kind by this association, letters have been in circulation this week which read as follows:

The Christmas celebration on the Norwich Town Green will be held Christmas Eve, and will begin at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening, December 24th, 1925. In order to lend variety to the programme it has been suggested that we have group singing as well as the Community chorus.

The Girls Glee club of Norwich Free academy has consented to sing one number and the upper grades of the Town Street and West Town Street schools will render another. The men are asked to give the song "We Three Kings of Orient Are" by Hopkins. We want every available male singer in the town to co-operate in this song especially, and in the other carols generally.

There will be a rehearsal of the men in the Norwich Town chapel on Sunday afternoon, December 13th at 5 o'clock. Please come. Get your friends to come. Copies of the music will be distributed at the rehearsal.

The main part of the programme will be Community singing of old-time Christmas hymns and carols, and for this, we shall be largely dependent upon women's voices for the melody. Let us have a good crowd. A quartette of horns will assist us.

People may assemble in the Norwich Town chapel previous to the hour of celebration if they desire. The programme will close at 8:20 p. m. In behalf of the Norwich Rural Association, Walter T. Camp, president Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, chairman of committee on programme.

BENJ. GITLOW, ANARCHIST PARDONED BY GOV. SMITH

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 11—(AP)—Governor Smith today pardoned Benjamin Gitlow, convicted in New York in February, 1920, of violating the criminal anarchy act and sentenced to serve from five to ten years in Sing Sing.

SUSPICIOUS CLOSED CAR YIELDS ALCOHOL OWNED BY NEW LONDON MEN

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11.—Carlo May and Frank Breeze, both residing here, were taken into custody this afternoon in Groton, charged with violation of the liquor law. They are being held in bail of $1,000 each for their appearance in the Groton town court next Monday morning.

May and Breeze were in charge of an automobile of the closed type, when state police officers from the Groton barracks became suspicious that the car contained liquor of some description. The car was held up on the outskirts of the borough and an examination revealed five cans of alcohol, each can containing five gallons. May and Breeze and the automobile and its contents were taken to the state police barracks, Groton, where May and Breeze were admitted to bail, after they had been questioned by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas. It is understood that the alcohol, which had been in storage here, had been intended for delivery somewhere between New London and Providence.

Tony Caldarone, 38 Potter street, went to his work this forenoon and when he returned this noon he discovered that his home had been entered during his absence. Caldarone reported the break to the police and Patrolman Clarence Martin, who was assigned to the complaint, found that entrance to the house was gained by the forcing of a window, but the thief failed to obtain any plunder.

Deeds transferring title in the former Guthrie plot, Lower Boulevard, Parkway and Pequot avenue, from the Pequot Realty company to Etta Henderson Sullivan and Mary B. Cushman, were received for record this afternoon at the office of the city clerk. Both purchasers acquired two building sites.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Armanda Thomas, 10 Crescent street and Frank Delaporta, 25 West Colt street, to be suspended.

Christ Sauers, a sailor attached to the United States Coast Guard, state order, for whose arrest the New London police held a warrant, issued by the authorities of Hazleton, Pa., charging Sauers with non-support and desertion, will not be delivered to the local authorities, at least at this time, according to Commander Frank Young, in charge of the coast guard forces. Commander Young stated that the department had taken this action from the fact that Sauers had displayed a written affidavit signed and witnessed by Sauers and his wife, and acknowledged before a notary, whereby the couple, Feb. 3, last, had entered into an agreement of separation and the wife had agreed not to seek support from Sauers.

The funeral of Owen McPartland was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, a solemn mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons, with Rev. Raymond O'Callahan deacon and Rev. Alexander Wollschleager sub-deacon. The bearers were Hugh McPartland, George Skaling, Hugh McPartland, Jr., Harry Taylor, Charles and William McPartland. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Fitzsimons.

William J. Corcoran, 57, who died suddenly of heart trouble at his home, 15 Hinman street, late yesterday, was employed as a machinist's helper at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company. He is survived by his wife, four sons, Timothy J., Patrick Daniel F., and William E. Corcoran; a daughter, Miss Catherine Corcoran, a brother, Daniel Corcoran and three sisters, Miss Mary Corcoran, of this city; Mrs. Kathleen Clifford, of Ireland, and Mrs. Abby Henifin, of Lowell, Mass. Mr. Corcoran was well known and was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

Samuel H. Bliven came down here from Montville and filled up with liquor. He was found and taken into custody in the police court this morning. He said he "just took too much." As he had remained away from the city nearly three years his lapse was overlooked and judgment was suspended.

Edwin Gates, a sailor on the coast guard steamer McCall, was put out of the Canton restaurant because he was creating a disturbance, but he did not stay away and half an hour later he was back again. Then the police were asked to take charge of Edwin, which they did. He was drunk enough to be tidy and resisted arrest, but that did not serve him and he was given a cell in the police station. This morning he was remorseful of what had happened, but he was fined, just the same and his bill was about $15. He happened to have that much money coming to him at the state pier so he avoided jail. The Canton is acquiring a reputation as a resort for drunken sailors that will soon take its business away if that reputation continues. Judge Prince, from the bench in the police court, told the officers to keep a closer watch on the Canton, for reports that come from the police are not creditable to the city.

William Lyman was in court today under the impression that a complaint against him alleging embezzlement was to come up. As he and the witnesses were on hand the case was presented and was nolled upon payment of the costs as Lyman had made restitution of the money he was accused of having taken and which belonged to his employer.

All the stores have put on their Christmas dressing and they present a most attractive appearance in green and red, with an abundance of light.

From time to time it has been reported to the police of the dangerous condition of hatchways on the sidewalks in the business district, and in one or two instances of late pedestrians have been injured. Tonight it was reported to Patrolman Henry Sylvia that the hatchway on the west side of the sidewalk, near the corner of Main street, was in a dangerous condition, the support of the hatchway having become decayed because of the weather conditions. The police reported the defect to the highway department.

Patrolman Edward Riordan in making his round on Main street this evening discovered a stove on the sidewalk in front of the store of William Kaplan. There was no way for the officer to gain entrance to the place, so the stove was allowed to remain on the walk.

Patrolman Henry Silvia reported this evening that an automobile, registered in the name of Alfred Oreno, Jersey City, N. J., had been parked in front of the premises, 36 Home street, for two weeks. Oreno formerly was a lodger at the Home street address, but when he vacated the premises he failed to leave with his machine.

Frank Crocker, 32 Starr street, reported to the police this evening that upon departing from the Huntington street Baptist church, he discovered two boxes of chewing gum, a gross in each box, upon the church steps. Patrolman Edward H. Riordan was sent to the church and brought the gum to the police station. It is believed that the gum has been stolen and then left on the steps where it was found.

One of the oldest colored residents of New London has passed away in the death of Lucy Connor. She was the widow of William Conner, with whom she was wedded when Mr. Connor was an old man. She was his second wife, but their life was one of unusual happiness while he lived. She was willed a little property upon his death and many times Mrs. Connor as surety saved people of her race from jail as the surety on bonds. She is not known to have suffered any financial losses by her kindness. Mrs. Connor, after the death of her husband, for many years earned her living by doing laundry work. She was a religious woman and found much comfort and consolation in the services of the Methodist church. It is not known that she had any relatives.

Mrs. Connor, in recent years, was in the employ of the late Senator Brandegee and went to Washington with him each year.

Freights on the New Haven railroad are running unusually heavy at present and the business of the Sound steamer line from this port is declared by employes to be greater than it has been of late. The New Haven's net earnings have been steadily improving in recent months and the business of December and November are expected to show up much larger volume than they have shown in a long time. The increased business is reflected in the advanced price of the company's securities.

The New London police, as well as the police of the Groton state police barracks, are making a search for Harold N. Terhune, alias Harold L. Terhune, alias Dudley Dean, charged with passing fraudulent checks. They have been unable to ascertain the whereabouts of Terhune.

Terhune, while stopping in New London, registered at the Hotel Mohican as Dudley Dean. During his stay of a week or ten days at the hotel Terhune obtained the acquaintanceship of Robert A. Rutherford, Lyme. He negotiated a check of $25 in favor of Rutherford, who is a cripple, on the Bankers Trust Company, New York. Rutherford cashed the check, but when he deposited it it was returned as being worthless as Terhune had no funds in the bank to meet it. Rutherford then lodged complaint with the authorities and this afternoon Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky issued a warrant for Terhune's arrest.

Terhune during his brief stay in New London represented himself as a bonds salesman. He has since been known to have operated in Waterbury, Derby and Greenwich. Since he operated in the latter place all trace of him has been lost.

MISSING NEW LONDON GIRLS BELIEVED TO BE IN BOSTON

NEW LONDON, Dec. 11—Hazel Mara, 15, is missing from her home, 26 Woodbridge street and her mother, Mrs. Emily Mara, has requested the police to assist her in locating the girl. Although the girl has been missing since last Tuesday night, Mrs. Mara did not seek the aid of the police in locating her daughter because of fearing publicity, but today she entreated the police to use their best efforts in finding her daughter and furnished the authorities with 50 postal cards, giving a description of the girl. These were sent to the various police departments throughout the state as well as the police of New York and Boston.

The Mara girl, who is of large stature considering her age, has been friendly with a sailor, stationed at one of the local reservations. Last Tuesday evening the sailor appeared at the residence of the girl and invited the young lady to accompany him to a motion picture house. The girl accepted the invitation and about 7:30 o'clock departed. The mother of the girl, however, was suspicious that the couple would not attend a theatre and decided to follow the daughter and her escort. As the sailor and the girl passed through Bank street the mother followed, the couple and when the sailor and girl went to the rooming house at 24 Golden street the mother of the girl went to the police station and requested the assistance of the police in gaining custody of her daughter. An officer was sent with Mrs. Mara to the rooming house, but when they arrived there the girl was not located, although the sailor was in the place. The latter declared that he had accompanied the girl to the rooming house, but that he had left her in the hallway while he visited an acquaintance, and that he found the girl missing when he returned to the hallway. The sailor was taken to the police station and quizzed an hour or more, but when the authorities were satisfied that he knew nothing of the girl's whereabouts, he was released from custody.

It developed this evening that while the police were quizzing the sailor, that the Mara girl and two other girl companions and two sailors, retreated to the roof when the police approached and waited there until the police departed. The girls and sailors, it is since understood, departed for Boston and so far as it was determined, they are now in that city.

MANSFIELD DEPOT, Dec. 11—Fenelon McCollum, 84, died suddenly at his home in Mansfield Depot at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon from an attack of heart trouble. Medical Examiner F. B. Converse of West Willington was summoned and after viewing the body gave permission for it removal to a Willimantic undertaking establishment. Three years ago Mr. McCollum suffered the loss of his left arm, when it was caught and badly mangled in a boring machine at his plant and last year he was seriously ill but appeared to have completely rallied from these afflictions despite his age.

He was born Oct. 5, 1841, in Rockville, a son of Erastus and Harriet Bosworth McCollum. He is survived by his wife, Minnie L. Bowers and two daughters, Ruth of Newark, N. J., Ella, a student at Columbia University, N. Y., one son, Fenelon, Jr., of Mansfield Depot; also one granddaughter, Fay E. McCollum and one sister, Mrs. Harriet Cady of Brockton, Mass.

Fenelon McCollum was nationally known as a manufacturer of pipe organs and was the owner of the Mansfield Organ Pipe Works, the largest manufacturer of wood pipes in the world, which was established in 1841 by the McCollum Bros., Selden, Julius and Henry McCollum, and was taken over in 1871 by Henry and Fenelon McCollum. The history of the McCollum family has been connected for generations with the manufacture and development of the pipe organs. Erastus McCollum, the father, came to Rockville from Manchester in 1835 and built the first house on Brooklyn St. In company with Wells Symonds he erected a small shop in the rear of this property, the place now being known as Rock mill. In this shop the elder brother set up the first church organ. They installed organs in many cities in other states, including the organ in the First Congregational church in Rockville, in 1848. Later they moved to Merrow where their factory burned in 1871 and all of the brothers but Fenelon sought work elsewhere. The latter secured a contract for the manufacture of wood pipes and conceived the idea of establishing that as an independent industry. He was successful and in 1873 he was joined by Henry and they set up a shop in a room now called The Millard Saw Mill. They removed to Brigham Mill in Mansfield Depot in the fall of 1876, at that time occupying an ell. They were favored with an increasing demand for their excellent products of pipes, action works, etc., and in the fall of 1881 the entire mill was rented. Following litigation between Mr. Ross of Eagleville and the Brigham estate, the McCollums purchased the mill and tenement houses in 1889 in August 1890. Henry McCollum died and Fenelon assumed full responsibility. To meet increasing demands and furnish room for modern machinery a new four story factory was erected in 1893 and a total of 30 men were employed. About this time the organ works business suffered in the general depression of 1893 but by careful management it survived, and was recovering when it was dealt still another blow on March 24, 1896, when fire destroyed the entire Brigham mill property, the fire being the third in the history of the mill. With his usual courage and energy Mr. McCollum set about overcoming this loss and the work was carried on to the present day in the more recently built factory. The Mansfield Organ Pipe Works is not only known as the largest manufacturer of wood pipes in the world, but is renowned for its improved machinery, which the McCollums had invented after years of experimenting.

Fenelon McCollum was a member of Coventry lodge, No. 15, A. O. U. W. and throughout his life he contributed liberally to the religious and moral welfare of the town.

WORLD COURT DEBATE BY DARROW AND LENROOT

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 11—(AP)—United States Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, urged the entrance of the United States into the permanent court of international justice in a debate tonight with Clarence Darrow, Chicago lawyer, who opposed the court on the grounds that it was not worth the "fuss" being made about it.

Mr. Darrow declared that "this world court which means nothing is got up to take the place of the league of nations." Senator Lenroot, however, maintained that the court was absolutely independent of the league, although the latter body named the judges and paid their salaries.

The debate, held in connection with the opening of the nation's collegiate world conference, was attended by representatives of 245 educational institutions. Mr. Darrow substituted for Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who could not keep his engagement because of an appointment.

"I, there any reason to make all this fuss about the world court," Mr. Darrow asked. "We could pick our arbitrators from the same court even if we were not paying their salaries. I can't take this question as seriously as I wish I might." Declaring that he could not "imagine what on earth the court is for," although he had heard an "address from an able gentleman thoroughly familiar with it," Mr. Darrow belittled the powers of the court to take any worth while action.

The league of nations, if it did work, he said, "might end war, but it would crush freedom and liberty and individuality from the face of man."

"This would court, I insist, is no good," he said. "If it is anything, it is a step toward a league of nations and a short step at that, and I think the intelligence and the self-respect of the American citizen ought to cause him to ponder well before he could give up what he has for the sake of ending wars.

"I believe in ending wars. I would like to end wars. I would like to make everybody sober but not by the Volstead act. I would like to make them sober by teaching them to control themselves. I would like to end wars by good fellowship, and good feeling between the nations, and I believe that it can never be done in any other way."

Mr. Darrow paid a tribute to the fight made by the late President Wilson for the league of nations, but said that measure had been decisively defeated, and the present agitation for a world court was an attempt to substitute another body for the league.

MARRIAGE FOUND BIGAMOUS HAS BEEN ANNULLED

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 11—(AP)—Held to have been bigamous, the marriage of Elizabeth Barry Angale, 70 Hanford avenue, and Carl Angale, Greenfield hill, Fairfield, was annulled by Judge Lowell Jennings in superior court today. Angale is now a seaman on the U. S. coast guard cutter "Cheewink" station at New London. His first wife was said to have been Ruth Green Angale. He and Mrs. Barry were married on February 5, 1923. Under the annullment decree Mrs. Barry resumes the name of her first husband.

GARY HAS DONATED $25,000 TO ROLLINS COLLEGE

HARTFORD, Dec. 11—(AP)—Hamilton Holt, democratic nominee for United States senator in Connecticut a year ago, was authority for the statement while in this city Monday that Judge Elbert L. Gary, head of the United States Steel corporation, has donated $25,000 to Rollins college Florida, of which Mr. Holt recently became president.

The financial support of the country's federal reserve banks has been enlisted for Belgium's program of monetary stabilization, involving an eventual return to the gold standard.

MRS. FANNIE DIXON WELCH WITHDRAWS HER CANDIDACY

HARTFORD, Dec. 11—(AP)—Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, of Columbia, vice chairman of the democratic state central committee up to Thursday, announced tonight that she had instructed leaders of the re-organization movement in the party to withdraw her candidacy for the place on the democratic nationals committee to be vacated December 31, by Miss Caroline Ruuts-Rees, of Greenwich.

"While I asked no one to vote for me, I had consented to the presentation of my name for the office in Thursday's meeting of the state committee, provided there was to be a re-organization," Mrs. Welch said tonight. "Since it is evident that there is to be no reorganization of the party, I cannot consent to the use of my name."

Mrs. Welch was to have been opposed for the office by Mrs. George Troup Glynn, of New Haven, a part owner of the "New Haven Union," who was the candidate of the organization faction in the party. Thursday's meeting was prepared to proceed to choose between the two women for National Committeeman Thomas J. Spellacy's colleague when the reorganizationists protested that Miss Ruuts-Reese had written a second letter moving forward to December 31 the date when her resignation was to go into effect, which, they contended, left no vacancy, for that meeting to fill.

Mrs. James A. Curry, of this city, also will abandon her candidacy, which was to take the vice chairmanship from which Mrs. Welch resigned Thursday. Notwithstanding the Waterbury delegation's refusal at that time to name a candidate for that office, in the face of the defeat of Controller Peter FitzHenry, of that city, for state chairman, by the organization, an effort is being made to induce Town Clerk Dora Egan, of Waterbury to accept the vice chairmanship. The present plan of the organization is to proceed to the election of Mrs. Glynn as national committeewoman at the next meeting of the state central committee which is expected to be held in January.

"RIPPER" BILL PRODUCES TAXES IN BRIDGEPORT

HARTFORD, Dec. 11—(AP)—More than $590,000 has been collected in back taxes in Bridgeport under the "ripper" law since July 1, some of the accounts dating back to 1895, according to Tax Collector Howard S. Challenger, of that city, who visited the capitol today. The interest on many of the accounts is now more than the principal, he revealed. In one case recently paid up the original assessment had more than doubled by reason of interest charges accrued.

Many firms in Bridgeport, he said, have developed the habit of "forgetting penalties." One manufacturing company, he declared, had penalties assessed against it over a period of years amounting to $6,100, which it had been told to "forget", during previous tax administrations. Senator Challenger said he was unable to determine the source of the "forget" order, but that the account had been collected.

COOLIDGE'S VIEWS ON INLAND WATERWAYS DEVELOPMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—(AP)—Although urged by various interests to adopt a liberal policy in expenditures for inland waterways development President Coolidge is inclined to consider budget estimates for the work adequate.

The president is whole-heartedly in favor of a comprehensive development program, however, and believes no time should be lost in authorizing work, with congress making appropriations later for various projects.

The state of the treasury, he feels, should guide the determination of what should be spent for waterway development, and also for new public buildings, so these questions for the time being must await the action of congress with respect to tax reduction.

The president today discussed the waterways problem with Brigadier General Taylor, chief of army engineers, who informed him a deficiency appropriation would be needed to round out work for the current fiscal year, and also with a delegation from the rivers and harbors congress in session here, headed by Representative Wilson, of Louisiana, its new president.

Although strongly in favor of a well-planned development program, the president believes each project should stand on its own merits, and for that reason is opposed to suggestion that projects affecting the St. Lawrence, Colorado and Mississippi rivers be linked in one authorization bill.

Little new legislation is needed for improving the Mississippi channel, while negotiations of a treaty is necessary as one of the preliminaries of the St. Lawrence development and the Colorado project is an intricate and technical proposition involving the rights of seven states.

OCTOGENARIAN LEADS FIGHT TO REDISTRICT LEGISLATURE

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—(AP)—The personality back of the strenuous fight for reapportionment of Illinois legislative strength, leading to a climax Dec. 1 in a state supreme court decision, is that of an octogenarian who is pressing the effort in the waning years of his life because he thinks it is right.

"The legislature's refusal to reapportion sets up a minority ruling in direct violation of our constitution, which sets forth that the state 'shall' be reapportioned every ten years," he says. "It is destroying our form of government."

It is his name as petitioner signed to a plea for mandamus to force the general assembly to convene and reapportion upon which the supreme court will decide. A precedent for such a writ of mandamus was not found in a search of court files since 1776.

Since 1901, with the state's population increasing rapidly, there has been no reapportionment. Chicago (Cook County) has witnessed such a growth that, under reapportionment, her legislative strength would grow from 10 senators and 57 representatives to 24 senators and 72 representatives, with a consequent loss to "downstate" since the entire membership is fixed at 204.

"Downstate" - fears what Chicago might do with so much strength. There also is the matter of 20 general assembly memberships, some of which have been held by downstate for decades.

PREDICTS PUBLIC WILL PAY FOR SUSPENSION OF MINING

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Ellis A. Searles, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, in an address today predicted that the public would receive a "good skinning" through an advance in coal prices when the anthracite strike ends. He declared the suspension would not be called off until the miners were given a contract governing wages and working conditions for a definite period, nor would the men return to work pending a settlement of the controversy by arbitration.

"If past performances of the operators is significant," he said, "they will recoup their strike losses by boosting the price of coal. They did it in 1922 and 1923, making an increase out of all proportion to the concessions to the miners."

Mr. Searles asserted that the operators had rejected Governor Pinchot's peace proposals because they did not want "outsiders" to see their books.

FORECASTS AVIATION AS GREATEST INDUSTRY

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—(AP)—A circuit of the world or a journey of any length requires both travel on land and water where aircraft can succeed alone, Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, famous American flying ace, declared at a meeting today of the Executives' club here.

"In 25 years aviation will be the greatest industry in the world," he said.

The court martial now trying Colonel William Mitchell came in for criticism by the former ace, who stated that the Mitchell trial had advanced the cause of aviation ten years in America.

"I hope the verdict of the board will be against Colonel Mitchell, and I rather think he hopes so himself," Captain Rickenbacker said. "I think at least that such a result would create a wave of popular indignation and do some good."

FRENCH NOVEL LOSING HOLD ON PEOPLE AS TIMES CHANGE

People in France are studying more closely economic and social questions. Works on history, costing three found a remarkable sale, and times the price of the novel, have there also has been a revival of editions of Greek and Roan classics in the original text and in translations.

Of the 8987 books published in France last year, only 1,148 were novels, while 2,608 were on social and economic questions. A comparison of books on sale with those offered before the World war showed a greatly marked improvement in taste.

FIVE WESLEYAN SOPHS. ARRESTED IN NEW BRITAIN

NEW BRITAIN, Dec. 11—(AP)—Five young men, said to be sophomores at Wesleyan university, were arrested here tonight when they attempted to break up a banquet of the freshmen class at the Burritt hotel. The men, after refusing entrance to the banquet hall through the doors, made their entrance through windows. The interior of the room was some what damaged. The men gave bonds of $100 and will be given a hearing in court tomorrow charged with damaging private property. The men gave their names, as Robert Burnstead, Joseph Clement, Myron Jones, Ernest J. Smith and Charles McDonnell.

CHORUS MEMBERS INJURED WHEN RIGGING LOFT FELL

WILMINGTON, Del. Dec. 11—(AP)—The roof of the rigging loft of the Playhouse here, collapsed tonight during the second scene of a performance of "The Song of the Flame." More than a dozen members of the chorus which occupied the stage at the time, were injured, several seriously, and the effects of the company so badly damaged that the company will be unable to continue its engagement.

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss. December 2nd, 1925.
Upon the complaint of the said San-nereletta Wilson, claiming for the reasons therein set forth a divorce and a change of the plaintiff's name, now pending be-fore this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of Septem-ber, 1925.
It appearing to and being found by this Court that Harry Wilson the said de-fendant is absent from this State and gone to parts unknown and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice here-tofore issued, and now the plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.
Therefore ordered, that notice of the pendency at said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bul-letin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Connecticut, once a week for two weeks successively, commencing on or before the 19th day of December, 1925.
By order of Court.
JOHN H. WALKER.
Asst't Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at, Montville, within and for the Dis-trict of Montville, on the 10th day of December, A. D. 1925.
Present, DAN D. HOME, Judge.
Estate of Delia Hyland, late of Mont-ville in said district, deceased.
George O. Allen of Montville, Conn., ap-peared in court and filed a petition pray-ing, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted upon the estate, of said deceased alleged to be in-testate.
Whereupon, it is ordered, that said pe-tition be heard and determined at the probate Court room in Montville in said District, on the 17th day of December A. D. 1925, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this or-der one time in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District at least 5 days prior to the date of said hearing and that return be made to this Court.
DAN D. HOME, Judge.
Attest, SUSAN F. PLOUFFE, Clerk.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks: Firm, many investment rails at new highs.

Bonds: Steady, convertible issues active.

Foreign exchanges: Mixed, francs drop 10 points to 1925 low.

Cotton: Barely steady, foreign selling.

Sugar: Lower, trade selling.

Coffee: Easy, lower Brazilian markets.

Chicago

Wheat: Weak, bulls unloading.

Cattle: Easy.

Hogs: Weak, all interests buying.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—(AP)—Constructive forces were at work in today's market and prices moved upward despite a rather heavy volume of week-end profit taking the last hour. Trading was in relatively large volume, the day's sales totalling 1,787,000 shares.

Outside the stock market, chief speculative interest centered in the renewal of selling pressure against French francs which broke over 10 points to a new low level for the year, but they are still about half a cent above the extreme low record in March, 1924. Commodity markets were reactionary. Wheat fell back two or more cents on selling inspired by the belief that the Argentine crop report expected shortly, would disclose less damage than had been privately estimated. Cotton moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

Bullish sentiment in the stock market was inspired by Secretary Mellon's reassuring statement on business conditions in his annual report to congress, retention of the 3 1-2 rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve bank and by constructive trade news. Duh's Review states that production and distribution in many departments of trade are without peace time precedent. Bradstreet's reports that "some counter-currents are visible in the very full volume of trade and the generally active industrial situation as the month advances."

Rails held the center of interest with new high records for the year being established by Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake and Ohio, Great Northern preferred, Louisville and Nashville, St. Louis Southwestern and a few others. Atlantic Coast Line soared 13 1-2 points to 158, closing a point below the top. Louisville and Nashville and "Nickel Plate" each showed net gains of over five points at 147 1-8 and 178 3-4, respectively and Chesapeake & Ohio close 4 5-8 points higher at 122 3-8. The average of 20 leading rails advanced over a point to a new record high level.

Pool operations were vigorously conducted in a number of specialties. Foundation company soared over eight points to 151 1-4 and American Republics, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies General American Tank, General Asphalt preferred, International Business Machines, Kelsey Wheel and United States Distributing closed 3 to 10 points higher.

Stewart Warner Speedometer moved up two points to a new high record for the year at 89 1-2 on a confirmation of reports that W. C. Durant had acquired a substantial interest in the company, and in anticipation of another extra dividend in the near future. Among the score or so other issues to attain new 1925 peak prices were American Water works, Consolidated Cigar, Continental Can, Electric Power, General Asphalt, Ludlum Steel and Shubert Theatres. Westinghouse Air Brake, apparently anticipated the declaration of a $1 extra dividend announced after the close, by moving up about two points to 126.

American Smelting, which advanced six and one half points to 135 1-4 the highest price since 1907, featured the standard industrials. American Can closed at point lower at 256 after selling nearly 3 points above that figure, and United States Steel common and Baldwin showed fractional gains at 126 1-8 and 128 5-8, respectively.

Call money held steady at 3 per cent., all day with funds in adequate supply. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

There was little interest in the foreign exchanges except in the case of French francs, which sank as low as 3.67 cents, but rallied slightly at the close. Demand sterling ruled a shade lower around 4.84 5-8, and the other principal European currencies showed only nominal changes.

TAFTVILLE

The second of a series of whists was given by Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., this week in their rooms in Parish hall. The affair proved to be very successful, there being a large attendance. The prizes were donated by the members and were awarded as follows: Ladies first, Mrs. William Nolan; second, Miss Mary Murphy and consolation, Miss Pauline Hasler. The gentlemen's prizes went as follows: first, Edward Phelan, second, John Daley and consolation, Robert Mitchell. Refreshments were served and a social hour followed the playing. Solos were sung by James Garvie and Mrs. William J. Malone.

The weekly meeting of St. Veronica's T. A. & B. society was held Wednesday evening at the rooms on Providence street with Miss Louise White, the president, in the chair. A committee was appointed to arrange a Christmas party for the members. This will include the distribution of gifts from a Christmas tree.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brochu and family have moved to the village and are to reside on Terrace avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mish of South B street have purchased a farm in Lisbon and have moved from the village.

Word has been received in the village of the death of Mrs. Odile DeCelles of New Haven, a former Taftville resident. When Mrs. DeCelles made her home here she resided on North street with her daughter, Miss Mary DeCelles. Harold DeCelles of Lisbon and Leone DeCelles of North A street are grandsons.

Henry Troeger of Germania avenue has purchased a new automobile.

Some of the village streets are being repaired, South B street being filled in and North Third avenue scraped.

Work on the new house of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Filliger on Norwich avenue has been started.

SHORT CALENDAR SESSION AT ROCKVILLE BY JUDGE BROWN

A short calendar sitting of the superior court was held in Rockville at 10 o'clock Friday with Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich on the bench. In addition, cases were brough up for assignment for court and jury trials.

The short calendar cases were as follows: Thomas H. Brooks against Charles B. Miller, motion that plaintiff surrender the defendants, books, papers, documents and records; Addie L. Newcomb against Edward L. Spencer and others, motion for foreclosure by sale, appointment of committee and appraisers and judgment. In Re Farmer's Co-operative Dairy Co., William G. Frese, receiver, allowance for attorney's fees; Lawrence M. Dillon against John J. Oates, judgment by default, assessment of damages. The Federal Land Bank of Springfield Against Victoria B. Phelan, appraisers report, committee's report, approval of deed, supplemental judgment; Charles Mitchess against John Ray, bond for prosecution.

Three criminal cases were taken up by State's Attorney Thomas F. Noone after the short calendar session. They were Alice Lukas, violation of the liquor law; Anthony Norkas, liquor law and John Gekitis, liquor law.

ATTRACTIVE CHRISTMAS PROGRAMME FOR CONGREGATIONAL WOMAN'S GUILD

With the president, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., presiding, the December meeting of the Woman's Guild of the United Congregational church was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community House. There was the usual large attendance and routine business was transacted at the business session. Following the meeting the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to a very attractive Christmas programme arranged by Miss Faith Stevens and Miss Eunice Gulliver. The programme consisted of stereopticon slides of the Christmas story, carol singing and a violin solo. The numbers included:

Group of stereopticon slides, The Angels; carol, O Come All Ye Faithful; stereopticon slides, The Enunciation; violin solo, Ave Marie; stereopticon slides, The Nativity, carols, The First Noel and We Three Kings of the Orient; stereopticon slides, The Madonna Adoring the Child; carol, What Child is This?; stereopticon slides, The Madonna and The Child; carol, O Holy Night.

Miss Faith Stevens explained the various groups of slides as they were shown. The carols were sung by a group of Academy girls, sopranos, Viola Levitski, Eleanor Sargent, Betty Zumbro and Dorothy Dewing; altos, Faith Allen, Natalie Holden and Catherine Bunnell; accompanist, Dorothea Simpson. The violin solo was given by Miss Catherine Zumbro, accompanied by Miss Betty Zumbro and the carol O Holy Night was sung by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, accompanied by Mrs. Abbott.

Following the programme there was a social hour, during which tea was served. Mrs. B. P. Bishop and Mrs. Edward D. Fuller poured.

Reports from Women's Board

A meeting of the missions department of Park Congregational church was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the parlors of the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial parish house. The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. John S. Blackmar. There were two hymns, scripture reading and a prayer. There was a short business meeting during which the usual reports were heard. Most interesting reports were given by the delegates to the Woman's Board of Missions meeting held in Brooklyn, N. Y., during November. Miss Amy Coggswell's report, read by Miss Alice Coggswell, told of the first session. It contained a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Warner as an executive and spiritual leader and also referred to the discussion as to the union of the American boards and the Woman's boards of foreign missions, the latter made up of the eastern, interior and Pacific branches. The discussion at the Brooklyn meeting was in favor of the merger.

Mrs. Samuel Smiley gave a very clear resume of a talk by Miss Rena Nutting on the Foochow Mission in China. Her report also gave a resume of a talk by Miss Florilla Pedley, a Mt. Holyoke graduate, who also spoke of China. Another talk referred to was that of Miss Mary Riggs of Turkey, where the spirit of progress is much less marked than in China.

Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn read an article from the Missionary Herald of December by Mrs. Estelle Hynes Warner, president of the Woman's Board, which was entitled, About Face, Women. The closing hymn was Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem. Miss Edith Bliss chairman of the missions department wished all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. Tea was served by Miss Bliss, assisted by Miss Alexandrine Trumbull and Mrs. Blackmar pouring.

HIGHWAY TRAFFIC POLICE SHOULD BE SPECIALISTS

That policemen doing highway traffic duty are not, as a rule, dealing with the ordinary criminal class and should have a different viewpoint towards motorists was a statement made by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald during a recent address to a convention of state highway officials in Detroit.

They should become specialists along the lines of their respective duties, he said, "It is my opinion that a highway police organization should be entirely separate from the enforcement of or the work connected with any other police matters," he said.

1. Examination of operators for licenses, and the examination of the safety features of the vehicles themselves.
2. The prevention of damage or unwarranted use of the highway.
3. Enforcement of the motor vehicle laws.
4. Supervision of the movement of traffic.
5. Prevention and investigation of accidents.

"At no time," he said, "will there be sufficient means provided which will enable highway police to cover every point where their presence seems necessary. Consequently the foundation of any highway police patrol must be an information and statistical bureau to produce the required statistics and the information as to where they should concentrate their efforts.

"The efficiency of any organization of this kind is not to be measured as is the ordinary police department by the number of arrests it makes or the number of convictions it secures, or by the amount of revenue it produces, but by the reduction in the number of accidents and the condition of the traffic which it directs.

"Enforcement must always be standard and not amamodic. The public must necessarily be taught and constantly reminded that at certain places they can do certain things with safety, and at certain other places, it is impossible.

"This force must be properly equipped and the personnel adequate. By this I do not mean numbers but intelligence. Above all things, it must have the confidence of the public and the support of the courts behind it. To gain public confidence and the support of the courts, its enforcement must be reasonable, equal against every person and just. Its officers must be gentlemen, hardworking, sober, industrious, helpful and fair."

C. F. Noyes Co. Finances Bond Issue

New York papers stated Thursday that twenty-one floors in the thirty-three-story office building being erected on the former Delmonico site, Forty-fourth street and Fifth avenue, were leased this week to the Duke estate interests at an annual rent of about $225,000. The lease is for twenty-one years.

The plot upon which the building will be erected was purchased from the Harriman interests and financed through the Charles F. Noyes company with a $5,250,000 bond issue taken by a New York company and quickly oversubscribed.

A leading New York firm, represented the leasing companies and the deal was negotiated by them through the Charles F. Noyes company, the agents of the building.

DIOCESAN HONOR ROLL WANTED BY BISHOP NILAN

The following circular letter will be read Sunday from the pulpits of the 211 parishes and 43 mission churches of the Roman Catholic diocese of Connecticut, to enlist the co-operation of the 500,000 members in completing the state honor roll:

Reverend and dear Father:

The record of the work of our Catholic people during the World War is only partially complete. The most valuable feature of such a record is the names of Catholics who served in the military and naval forces. These are, as yet, far short of even representative measurements.

This diocese undoubtedly gave some 26,000 men to the service. Only 10,398 names are inscribed on our honor rolls.

Approximately five in every one hundred American citizens served the colors during the World War. Our parish honor rolls when made up should show names in number equal to five per cent. of the total war time population of the parishes.

In order to lighten the burden of this work there is enclosed the names of all men drafted from the vicinity of your parish. Kindly indicate the names of the Catholic men.

The names of other men and women who entered the military or naval service by voluntary enlistment are of equal importance. With the aid of the parish groups and agencies these should be obtained.

The completed parish honor rolls should be forwarded the chancery office without delay.

Sincerely,
JOHN J. NILAN,
Bishop of Hartford.

INSURANCE CO. SUES FOR VALUE OF TRUCK

Suit against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company to recover for a motor truck, valued at $4,000, has been brought in the superior court here by the Assurance Co. of America, a New York corporation and H. J. Markle of Mystic, owner of the truck, which the assurance company had insured.

The truck was struck and demolished by a train at the Noank crossing of the New Haven road on Sept. 30, 1925, the driver of the truck being killed. It is claimed that the truck was driven onto the crossing because the crossing tender employed by the railroad gave the truck driver signals to drive onto the crossing, assuring the driver of the truck by such signals that no train was approaching.

The insurance company paid Mr. Markle the amount of the insurance on the truck, $4,000 on Oct. 21, 1925 and Mr. Markle made an assignment of his claim before the commencement of this suit.

Palmer Bros. Co., New London, employer, and Henry Watrous, 37 Lafayette St., Norwich, employe, flesh wound and jammed left leg, Nov. 13, at rate of $8.52.

Inland Paper Board Co, Versailles, employer, and Arthur Sullivan, Hanover, employe, crushed thumb, Nov. 11, at rate of $5.55.

HAD SMOOTH VOYAGE ACROSS THE PACIFIC

In a letter which Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith of Washington street received this week from their son, Rev. E. H. Smith, Ing-Hok, China, he writes that the voyage across the Pacific was the smoothest and pleasantest ever experienced by them. Upon their arrival at Foochow they learned that no physician will be at the Ing-Hok station and possibly that the other missionary there may be assigned another district.

JUDGE AVERY GRANTS SIX UNCONTESTED DIVORCES

Six divorce suits, which were on the uncontested list, were heard and the divorces were granted by Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court here Friday. The short calendar session was unusually long as the final divorce case was not heard and concluded till, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when court adjourned to Friday of next week, as there are no cases assigned for trial during the week.

On the ground of intolerable cruelty since Dec. 21, 1924, Grace Desario Pagano of this city was granted divorce from Ralph Pagano, formerly of Norwich, whom she married Dec. 21, 1924. The plaintiff was granted change of name to Grace Desario. Witnesses who were called to testify were J. W. Carlevale and Dr. J. W. Callahan.

Myrtice E. Fielding Germaine of this city, was granted divorce from James O. Germaine of Norwich and change of name to Myrtice E. Fielding. The grounds were habitual intemperance for more than a year past and intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1922. The couple was married May 24, 1920. Those called to testify were Frances Vars, Elsie Fielding, Elsie L. Fielding and Lemuel M. Fielding.

Annie Stankavica of Griswold secured divorce on the ground of habitual intemperance from Joseph Stankawicz of that town whom she married June 21, 1920 at Norwich. Habitual intemperance was alleged for more than a year past and at the present time. The plaintiff was granted change of name to Annie Daluer. Two other grounds for divorce which were alleged in the complaint were not pressed. Witnesses testifying were John T. Dolan and Richard J. Dudkowski.

Earle A. Crane of Lebanon secured divorce from Nellie Murray Crane of Hardwick, Vt., whom he married on March 1, 1919. The divorce was granted on the ground of adultery committed at Lebanon since July 5, 1922. Witnesses called in the case were Karl F. Bishop and Charles A. Perkins. The plaintiff in this suit had some time previously sued and secured a judgment in the superior court in a suit against a Lebanon merchant for alienation of his wife's affections.

On the ground of intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1922, Irene Mandeville Arsenau of this city was granted divorce from William J. Arsenau, now of parts unknown. They were married May 4, 1916. Louise Foley and Lillian Payne gave testimony supporting the claim for divorce.

Intolerable cruelty since July 1, 1924 was the grounds upon which Lawrence B. Thurlow of East Lyme was granted divorce from Edith Thurlow, formerly of East Lyme, now of Buffalo, N. Y. Her maiden name was Edith Crawford Woody and they were married Sept. 13, 1906. There was also an allegation of unfaithfulness in the complaint. Custody of three children, a daughter and two sons, one of whom is an adopted child, was granted to the petitioner. Witnesses who testified were Mary S. Walkinshaw and Alice W. Thurlow.

A FORMER NORWICH BOY PUBLISHES HIS POEMS

David Merritt Carlyle, of New London, formerly of this city, has published a booklet of his own verse called "The Rose Jar." It contains twenty-five of his best poems, especially selected and arranged in an attractive holiday cover.

Mr. Carlyle has done a deal of work for newspapers, magazines and periodicals. Of late he has been devoting much of his time to giving readings from his own verse, and as he is recognized throughout New England as a fine lyric tenor, has been combining verse and song in these recitals.

Included in the new booklet are the poems which have won him so much approval in recital. Sacred poems, love lyrics and children's poems are happily combined in the work.

Of particular interest to Norwich people is a poem called "When Gerald Griffin Sings" written especially for his friend Gerald Griffin, world famous Irish tenor. About a year ago through the kindly efforts of Father William A. Keefe of St. Mary's Memorial Church and Edward McAvoy, manager of the Palace theatre, Norwich was afforded the opportunity of hearing Mr. Griffin sing on two different occasions.

CHURCH MEMBERS WILL CONDUCT INDIVIDUAL CANVASS

The Central Baptist church is to have a unique service on Sunday morning when each member will "canvass himself" for the work of the coming year. Following the observance of the Lord's Supper there will be a consecration service when each member will make his pledge to the Lord for the work of the local church and the world-wide task. The budget for local expenses is $20,000 and for benevolence $7,500. The pledge cards, letter of explanation and copy of the budget has been mailed those connected with the church and Sunday school this week, and these cards are to be brought and signed on Sunday.

In the evening the subject will be "The Commandment Most Frequently Broken." There will be a beautiful baptismal service when Dr. Pitt and Rev. Valentino Panizzoli, the Italian pastor, will baptize candidates for church membership.

MADE DIRECTOR OF PASTORAL SUPPLIES BOARD

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of this city has been appointed a director of the Congregational Board of Pastoral Supplies for New England, and attended a meeting of the board in Boston this week.

Each New England state has three representatives on the board, which holds meetings twice yearly. Rev. Mr. Ricketts has been county advisor for the past twelve years.

RECOGNIZING AUTO MARKERS BEFORE FIRST OF YEAR

Three states, Pennsylvania, New York and Virginia, have asked Connecticut to recognize in advance of the New Year, registration certificates and markers plates issued by those states for the year 1926. Such markers will be legal in Pennsylvania beginning Tuesday, and in New York, December 27, while in Virginia they have been recognized since the first of December. New Hampshire 1926 markers will not be recognized in that state however, until January 1, and the Connecticut motor vehicle department has been notified by the proper authorities of that state that "there will be no excuse for any New Hampshire resident not having displayed on his automobile on January 1, 1926, the required plates."

In pursuance of the reciprocal relations existing between Connecticut and these states in motor vehicle regulations, the motor vehicle department of this state is requesting local police departments to grant autoists from the states mentioned the same recognition in Connecticut as they receive in their home states, with respect to the display of number plates.

Similiarly, these states will grant the same courtesy to Connecticut automobilists who display 1926 Connecticut markers within their jurisdictions on the last day of this year. To obviate the necessity, technically, of automobile owners of this state getting out and changing their markers at midnight, December 31, if they happen to be using their cars on New Year's Eve, the last session of the legislature amended the law to authorize the use of plates for the new year on the last week day of December, of the year preceding. Legislation of the same nature was adopted in several other states, and a five-day leeway is allowed in New York and one of seventeen days in Pennsylvania.

Approximately 40,000 sets of 1926 markers have been issued to date by the Connecticut department.

B'NAI BRITH AUXILIARY ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Mrs. Alex M. Pasnik was re-elected president of Rose of New England auxiliary, No. 40, I. O. B. B., at its regular meeting this week at the Buckingham Memorial, at which the election of officers followed the transaction of regular business. Mrs. Pasnik gave a report of the conference of the state body at New Britain, at which Mrs. James P. Merritt, a state senator, gave a very interesting report on the duties of scouting.

The auxiliary elected the following officers: President, Mrs. A. M. Pasnik; treasurer, Mrs. Simon Mandell; monitress, Mrs. Elkin Smith; sentinel, Mrs. Belle Bruchner; guide, Mrs. R. Henschel; secretary, Miss Ruth Clark; financial secretary, Mrs. D. Trachtenberg; trustees, Mrs. Geo. Greenberger, Mrs. R. Trachtenberg, Mrs. M. Schwartz.

Home From Wedding Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thrall have returned from their wedding trip and are living in their newly furnished home at 169 Grand street, Middletown. Mrs. Thrall, before her marriage on Thanksgiving day, was Miss Katherine Stetson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Stetson of Cromwell and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Stetson of Moosup.

The bride and groom have many friends about the state who wish them much happiness.

A. O. H. DIVISION BECOMES DANIEL O'CONNELL BRANCH

Acting in line with a vote passed at the national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians this summer that the local divisions should hereafter be called branches and take the name of some man prominent in Irish history, Division No. 1, of this city has voted at its last meeting to take the name of Daniel O'Connell branch.

This was the annual meeting of the branch at which reports were given by Treasurer William J. Malone and Financial Secretary James S. Quinn, showing the good financial condition of the branch with a substantial balance in the treasury.

The officers elected include the following: President, Edward J. Sullivan; vice president, Patrick Barry; recording secretary, Michael O'Connor; financial secretary, Thomas Connelly; sergeant at arms, James Nagle; sentinel, Peter O'Neil. Committee appointments include the following: Irish history, Patrick Barry; finance, D. J. O'Neil, Martin Burke, Peter O'Neil; publicity, D. J. O'Neil; sick, Thomas Connelly, chairman, James Nagle, P. D. Sullivan, James S. Quinn.

POETRY

A Correction

I'm studying the almanacs;
I've conned them o'er and o'er.
They say the very shortest days
Will soon be at our door—
They've got it wrong, those learned ones,
They don't know what they say;
The shortest days of all the year
Begin in early May.

Where is the time, those short May days,
To watch the swallows' flight,
The friendly robin's clumsy work
To make the home nook right?
To see the sheen on Bluebird's wing,
To list his plaintive tune,
Before the days still shorter grow
In the sweet light of June?

We'll listen to the honey bees
As they so zealous work;
"These strange short days," they hum away,
"We'll never do to shirk;
Winter with days so long, so long,
Will very soon be here.
No nectar now, no honey then,
Nothing to give good cheer."

The dear, June flowers tell the same,
The days are never slow;
The leaf, the bud, the flower, the fruit,
All these so swiftly go;
Until too soon they also meet
The long, long days so drear,
Short, short the lovely summer days,
The time of life so dear.

And so you see the almanacs
Have printed it all wrong.
Where are those strange deluded men
That have deceived so long?
Let them come forth with ink and pen
These calendars to fix,
And make it right ere it's too late
For nineteen twenty-six.

—Laura C. Burroughs in Providence Journal.

My Little Neighbor

My little neighbor's table's set,
And slyly he comes down the tree,
His feet firm in each tiny fret
The bark has fashioned cunningly.

He pauses on a favorite knot;
Beneath the oak his feast is spread;
He asks no friend to share his lot,
Or dine with him on acorn bread.

He keeps his whiskers trim and neat,
His tail with care he brushes through.
He runs about on all four feet,—
When dining he sits up on two.

He has the latest stripe in furs,
And wears them all the year around;
He does not mind the prick of burs
When there are chestnuts to be found.

I watch his home and guard his store,
A cozy hollow in a tree;
He often sits within his door
And chatters wondrous things to me.

SLOW IN RECOGNIZING THE IMPORTANCE OF AIR POWER

Finding of Special Committee Appointed by the House Last Congress to Investigate the Air Craft Situation—Reports an Alarming Situation Both in the Army and Navy Air Services Due to Shortage of Flying Personnel and Equipment.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP)—The special committee appointed by the house in the last congress to investigate the air craft situation declared in a unanimous report made public today, that "the army and navy are and have been very conservative, if not backward, in recognizing the great importance of air power."

"We find as a fact," said the report "that there still exists a alarming situation both in the army and navy air services due to shortage of flying personnel and equipment."

It also asserted that this situation was "due further to a failure on the part of these services to duly appreciate" the importance of air power.

Although the report recommending creation of "a single department of national defense," and expenditure of $20,000,000 annually on aviation was concurred in by all members, Representative Reid, republican, Illinois, Colonel William Mitchell's court martial defense counsel, filed a supplementary brief advocating establishment of a department of air pending the creation of a defense department.

The department proposed by the committee, Mr. Reid said, was a step looking toward giving aviation co-equal status with land and sea armaments, as details of the department "would be assigned, naturally, to assistants, one for the army, one for the navy, and one for air."

Emphasizing the "importance of aircraft," the committee said it would be the "first resort of our country in case of a war emergency," and that "it is one of the most essential arms of our military defense."

"Aircraft has introduced an element of mobility in military operations that compels a revision of all military plans of pre-aircraft days," the report continued. "It has lessened the relative importance of the battleship, but has not eliminated the necessity for it. The airplane becomes the necessary auxiliary and defender of the battleship.

"The question of the relative standing of the United States in air power among the nations is largely a matter of opinion. It is clear, however, that the standing to the United States is not higher than third nor lower than fifth."

The special committee, before which Colonel Mitchell first attacked existing air policies, was created after Representative Nelson, republican, Wisconsin, in a speech in the house urged investigation of the relations existing between the government and the aviation industry. In this connection it found "no evidence of corruption."

The report showed the house committee in disagreement with the president's air board in several important particulars. The later opposed creation of a department of national defense, favoring, instead, establishment of additional aviation secretaryships in the war, and commerce departments.

The two groups, were agreed, however, on a number of points in a general way, particularly with respect to increased representation for aviation in the directing agencies of the war and navy departments, elimination of government competition with commercial aircraft manufacture, assistance to commercial aviation and the taking of steps to remove pay and promotion difficulties complained of in the air service.

The house committee's report, which recommended creation of a bureau of air navigation in the commerce department to regulate and encourage commercial aviation said the "essential relation of the aircraft industry to the national defense" was generally recognized and its importance was "undeniable."

The work of the fair mail service was found to be "assisting materially to bring into being commercial aviation," and use of Governors Island, New York, and Grant Park, Chicago, as air ports for postal and civilian aircraft, was recommended.

Operation of commercial air lines in the United States was far behind this development, in other countries, said the report, because of subsidies granted by foreign governments, "the inherent difficulty of operating on a profit making basis," lack of legislation for regulation and encouragement, lack of airways, aircraft facilities, meteorological services, air terminals and lines," and failure of the United States to ratify the international air convention. As one means of encouraging commercial aviation, it suggested the placing of about 10,000 surplus Liberty motors on sale at moderate prices.

Citing expenditures of $30,000,000 by the army and navy between 1920 to 1924, inclusive, for "so-called experimental and research work" the report said the results had not been "commensurate," and added that "in spite of the expenditure of nearly $40,000,000 for purchase and overhauling of airplanes and motors, the air services of both army and navy have deteriorated in equipment and morale."

Other recommendations of the committee many of which have been made known previously, included:

"That the federal government cease competing with the civilian aircraft industry in the construction of aircraft, and accessories.

"That means be provided whereby the inventor who alleges violation of his patents by the government may apply for relief other than by resort to the court of claims.

"That procurement be separated from operation in all government air services.

"That one single governmental civil agency be given sole charge of procurement of aircraft, engine and equipment.

"Congress should at once pass a law permitting the procurement of aircraft engines and aeronautical instruments and accessories without requiring competitive bidding under restrictions that will promote the best interests of the government.

"That the industry be assisted in the procurement of non-comercial supplies either through the government as debits on procurement contracts, or the grouping of purchases within the industry.

"That army and navy landing fields and facilities be made available for civilian aviation, so far as practicable.

"That a greater number of men be trained as aviators and that more adequate equipment and facilities be provided for our reserve flyers.

"That reserve pilots be given not less than four hours training per month throughout the year and be called for active duty at air service stations for tactical training for a period of not less than two weeks each year.

"That additional compensation necessary to secure adequate number of competent mechanics to maintain airplanes in efficient operation be provided, that such mechanics should be relieved of routine military duties.

"That congress provide remedies for the inequalities and injustices suffered by the aviation officers of the army and navy.

"That the war and navy departments should survey, condemn, and destroy all obsolete and unsafe airplanes.

"That there be established a separate and all-inclusive budget for each of the air services, the allocation of the appropriations to be by law.

"That a five year programme of construction, education, training, appropriation, and commercial encouragements should be formulated and carried out.

"That an air service of both the army and navy should at once be adequately represented on the general staff of the army and the general board of the navy."

CONVENTION OF RHODE ISLAND ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The elimination of public officials of "wet" sympathies and a state law imposing jail sentences for liquor law violations were proposed by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America, in an address here today. He spoke at the opening of the three-day convention of the Rhode Island Anti Saloon League and the New England Workers' conference for law observation and enforcement.

"Rhode Island is making a splendid fight against liquor lawlessness," Mr. Wheeler said. "When your legislature restores the jail sentences which were in your law under license and adds the clauses recognized as necessary in a standard enforcement bill, the fight will number more victories and violations will decrease. What your new state police have accomplished with their hands tied by lack of penalties (no padlock law in your state code, and no padlock trials in your federal courts) is an earnest of what they would do with the proper tools.

"The fact that half the county jail sentences last year were for liquor violations indicates the readiness of your officers to arrest and your courts to punish violators of this law, in some cities and towns at least. The cessation of drunken auto drivers, the increase in minor crimes and the number of deaths from alcoholism in Rhode Island are reasons for the correction of the weaknesses of your state law. The elimination of public officials who are wet sympathizers is of paramount importance. The election of judges, clerks and sheriffs by your session this winter is supremely important."

Headmaster Horace D. Taft of the Taft school of Watertown, Conn., a brother of Chief Justice Howard D. Taft, said that while he had opposed prohibition on the ground of personal liberty he was glad to sacrifice this liberty to help prevent the dreadful corruption of our national life which followed its adoption. Declaring that the law could neither be repealed, amended or allowed to go into disuse, he urged each individual to obey it to minimize corruption.

COMMUNISTS RESPONSIBLE FOR DISORDERS IN PHILA

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Responsibility for the disorders which have marked the convention of the International Garment workers, in session here, was placed on communists tonight by Morris Sigman, president of the Garment Workers' union.

"The disorders which have marked this convention," Mr. Sigman said in a formal statement, "is but another indication of the efforts of the communist party to capture the union and use it for its own political ends. They would welcome the breaking up of the convention so that they may have fertile fields to exploit with their false propaganda."

Referring to yesterday's session, which police, responding to a riot call, broke up by clearing the convention hall, Mr. Sigman said:

"The breaking up of Saturday's sessions of our convention by the riot squad of the police department was directly due to the interference of members of the communist party the vast majority of them noteveen members of our union." Sigman said scores of communists were brought from New York for the purpose of using the convention as a rostrum for staging a demonstration for Benjamin Gitlow.

Gitlow, who on Friday was pardoned by Gov. Smith of New York from Sing Sing prison, where he was serving a term for violating the criminal anarchy act, is scheduled to address the convention tomorrow.

FALL OF "PROPHET CITY" HAS BEEN CONFIRMED

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The fall of Medina, the "Prophet City" of Hedjaz is confirmed through a message received by the Khilafat committee from one of the ministers of Ibn Saud, sultan of Nejd. Medina was captured by the Wahabi tribesmen under the sultan's direction.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Death of Antonio Naura.

MADRID, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Antonio Naura, former premier and one of Spain's most illustrious citizens, died suddenly today at the estate of his son, Gabriel, Count of Morsera, at Torrelodones, near Madrid. He was 66 years of age.

Amplifiers in Commons

LONDON, Dec. 13—(AP)—Members of the house of lords must be on guard against making side remarks which are not intended for the assembly at large, for, since amplifiers were placed in the house—the slightest whisper can be heard in the farthest corners of the great room.

REPEAL DEMANDED OF THE AUTO PASSENGER CAR TAX

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP)—Repeal of the automobile passenger car tax was demanded today by the American Automobile Association almost on the eve of consideration by the house of the section of the new revenue bill which provides a cut in this levy from 5 to 3 per cent, while repealing those on trucks, tires and accessories.

The appeal reopens the fight over the passenger car tax, which Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, expected to prevent through an agreement reached with leading automobile manufacturers of the country.

Under this agreement, Mr. Green said the automobile industry, which receives a cut of more than $80,000,000 in the $325,000,000 tax reduction programme, accepted the two per cent reduction in the passenger car tax in return for a provision allowing automobile dealers refunds of the difference between the old and new taxes on cars in stock when the latter go into effect 30 days after enactment of the measure.

The house, after a week of debate on the bill, will start the actual work on it tomorrow, when it will be read for amendment and approval. The first real test of the non-partisan measure is expected to be reached tomorrow, when the new income tax schedules come up. These provide for a cut in the maximum surtax rate from 40 to 20 per cent., a subject hitherto the main point of issue in the consideration of revenue acts.

The bill further provides in this connection for cuts in the normal rates and for increased personal exemptions, proposing a reduction of more than $190,000,000 in income taxes payable next year.

Although bearing the endorsement of leaders of both parties, this and other vital provisions of the bill will be subjected to fights this week. Amendments will be offered to make the maximum surtax 30 per cent., and probably to eliminate the provision increasing personal exemptions for single persons from $1,000 to $1,500 and for married persons from $2,500 to $3,500.

MITCHELL COURTMARTIAL ENTERING ON LAST WEEK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Delivery of summing-up arguments by opposing counsel and the starting of a legal battle to determine whether evidence heard will be accepted by the court as a defense or in mitigation of sentence, stood out tonight as sensational features of this, the last week of the courtmartial trial of Colonel William Mitchell.

The prosecution plans to dispose of its remaining witnesses including several of the highest ranking officers in the army, Wednesday, and unless the programme is altered by unforeseen developments, the fight on evidence will begin at that time. Court observers are certain that Representative Frank P. Reid will demand that the evidence be accepted as a complete defense and that the government counsel will insist that it be considered only in mitigation.

The foundation of the defense's argument in this connection will be the contention that the truth of Colonel Mitchell's charges against the war and navy departments' administration of the nation's air defense, which led to his trial, has been proved, and that truth is of itself a defense. The prosecution, on the other hand, will insist that Colonel Mitchell has not proved the truth of his charges, and that truth, even if proven, is not and never has been a defense under military law.

STAMFORD WOMAN WAS FOUND DEAD IN HER HOME

STAMFORD, Dec. 13—(AP)—Mrs. Gertrude E. Rawnsley, 37, of Harvard street, was found dead in her home at 3:30 o'clock this morning by her husband, Charles. Police investigating the case found all the jets in the gas stove open and claim that the woman committed suicide, while her husband stated tonight that she died of heart failure.

Medical Examiner Dr. Geroge C. Sherrill backs the police in the matter and will probably make a suicide report to Coroner John J. Phelan.

The Rawnslees went out to dinner together last night and after the dinner, Mrs. Rawnslee went to their home, while her husband went to his club where he stayed until shortly after 3 o'clock. Returning home he found Mrs. Rawnslee dead in her bed.

He summoned police who claim that upon arrival they found the jets in the stove open and the room filled with the odor of gas. They immediately reported the incident to Dr. Sherrill. Attempts to verify the suicide theory through the husband failed tonight Rawnslee claiming that she died of heart failure.

AURORA, Ill., Dec. 13—(AP)—Few clues were found today by investigators of the triple murder last night of Henry Jeskie, young bank clerk, his wife, Eva, and 6 year old son, Ralph as they returned to their lonely farm house near Batavia, Ill., after Christmas shopping.

Their automobile, in which the slayer fled after leaving the bullet pierced bodies of Jeska and the boy in the yard and Mrs Jeske in the living room, was found this morning in West Chicago, Illinois, five miles away. It was covered with blood splashes. Search was made on it for finger print traces

SISTERS OF MERCY HOSPITAL WAS DYNAMITED

KALISPELL, Mont., Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Sisters of Mercy hospital filled with nurses and patients, was dynamited here last night, but although a portion of the building was torn away and all its windows broken, no serious injuries have been reported. The only clue to the deed is the fuse of a bomb, which was exploded under a window of the brick structure. The sheriff and posses are scouring the neighborhood for suspects.

Press Of France Warns Parliament

Temps Informs Solons That the Desire of the People is That They End Politics.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Leon Bailby, editor of the independent newspaper L'Intransigeant, follows up the demand voiced by the Matin for "The Sacred Union," non-partisan and non-political, which would take direction of France's affairs and steer the country through the crisis.

The Temps takes a milder tone, but solemnly warns parliament that it must abandon political shiftings and make possible a "national government embracing all parties and representing all except those that deliberately exclude themselves."

Every sign, the paper says, points to a universal desire throughout the country for the end of politics and the establishment of a new concord like the Sacred Union of war days. Meanwhile there is a concrete step in the direction of a wider accord in the decision of a group of the radical left to seek a reunion with the centrist group of the republican right as a means of enlarging the government's majority in the present crisis.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(By the Associated Press)—With the approach of the holiday season, two distinct developments have become visible in the general business situation—a perceptible quickening of retail trade and a moderate slackening of activity in the basic industries.

The volume of Christmas buying, as reflected in reports of department store sales throughout the country, has been unusually heavy and promises to break all records. Industrial operations at the same time have been maintained at a high seasonal level, although buyers last week showed a tendency to withhold orders until the inventory period is passed and plans for the new year more definitely outlined.

Meanwhile, many leading corporations have begun to celebrate a prosperous year by rewarding their stockholders with increased or extra dividends. Higher payments announced last week alone, it was estimated roughly, would mean the distribution of an additional $35,000,000 spread over the next year. Among the important increasese were those of the Southern Railway and the Western Union Telegraph company.

The sustained improvement in the steel industry was attested last week by the announcement that unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation had expanded more than 470,000 tons during November, placing tonnage bookings over a million tons above the low level of the year and less than a million tons below the peak reached last February. On the basis of trade statistics, predictions were made that the corporation's output of ingots and finished products would exceed the high records established in 1916.

Statistics now at hand indicate that the railroads are approaching the end of one of the most satisfactory years since the war. Net operating income of the class one carriers will be well above $1,000,000,000, while the 1925 volume of freight traffic promises to exceed the 1923 record of 49,521,113 car loadings. Because of the Thanksgiving holiday interruption, the loading, for the last week in November fell to 923,213 cars, breaking a long chain of million-car weeks.

For the first time in many years the opening of a new congress found business in a cheerful and optimistic frame of mind. This feeling was heightened by several developments at Washington—the president's message in which he forecast a period of unexampled prosperity if the policy of enlarging production and eliminating waste were followed: the outline of a satisfactory budget; the evident desire of both the president and the interstate commerce commission to expedite railroad consolidations and Secretary Mellon's prediction of a complete, worldwide economic stabilization.

25 PERSONS CHLORFORMED BY ROBBERS IN OHIO

Steubenville, O., Dec. 13—(AP)—Sheriff's deputies tonight after an all day search were without clues as to the identity of robbers who yesterday invaded the village of Bradley near here chloroformed 25 persons and escaped with money and jewelry valued at $1,300.

The robbers confined their activities to five families. At the home of David Landers five were chloroformed; six in the house of Dewey Lyons; four in the home of Joseph Duranek; three in David Harlison's home, and seven in the home of Julius LeGross.

Entering the homes the robbers put their victims under the influence of the anesthetic and for several hours deliberately and systemmatically ransacked the five houses. A number of the homes were entered by means of skeleton keys.

All the victims had fully recovered today, reports said, and had suffered no ill effects. The robbers in each home opened windows so as to insure recovery from effects of the chloroform.

PRISONER, WAS REMOVED FEARING MOB VIOLENCE

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 13—(AP)—Fearing violence from a mob which was forming near the home of Mrs. Lela Blevins, who was slain by a negro Friday, Sheriff Homer Adkins, of Pulaski county, tonight took George Washington Martin to an unannounced destination.

All available deputies and policemen were called to duty, but late tonight Sheriff Adkins called off the long distance telephone and directed his forces to disperse, saying he had reached a safe place.

The mob began to form soon after the funeral of Mrs. Blevins today. The funeral was attended by between 4,000 and 5,000 persons.

TWO MEN ASPHYXIATED IN ROOMING HOUSE IN DERBY

DERBY, Dec. 13—(AP)—Thomas Ryan, 55, of 146 Carpline street, and John Hickey, 49, were asphyxiated last night in Hickey's room in the rooming house of Marcello Colombo, who went to rouse Hickey. Both were dead and police investigating found gas leaking from an unconnected jet in the room. Coroner Ell Mix will conduct an investigation.

House Plans to Pass Tax Bill This Week

No Important Alteration of the Committee Bill is Expected.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP)—The house plans to pass the $325,000,000 tax reduction bill this week while the senate is considering the legal right of Senator Designate Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, to a seat in that body and is debating the long delayed proposal for American adherence to the world court.

With general debate closed last week, the tax measure will be opened tomorro wto amendment and more than a dozen changes will be proposed. No important alteration of the bill as it came from the ways and means committee, however, is expected.

A final vote probably will be reached Friday and the bill then will go to the senate, where the finance committee will begin its consideration January 2 with a view to a report by the midd'e of the month.

The Nye case in the senate still is in the hands of the privileges and elections committee, but Chairman Ernst hopes to get out a report without delay. Several days of debate on the floor is looked for but leaders expect a vote to be taken before the world court proposal comes up, Thursday by agreement.

The resolution for adherence of this country to the court which the senate is to consider is that offered by Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking democrat on the foreign relations committe. He plans to open the debate with a prepared speech. A vote on this proposition, which has had the approval of two successive republican presidents, Harding and Coolidge, is not expected for a number of weeks.

Two of the annual appropriation bills—those for the treasury and postoffice departments—are ready to be reported to the house and they will be taken up immediately after the tax bill has been passed. Republican leaders plan to pass one before congress recesses for the Christmas holidays Dec. 22.

The house also is to receive this week reports from three investigating committees dealing with subjects inquired into during the last session. These are aircraft, shipping board and charges brought against Federal Judge George W. English, of the eastern Illinois district.

NEGRESS ON COMMITTEE OF NAT'L STUDENT FEDERATION

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 13—(AP)—A storm which first night threw it into a turmoil when a negress was elected to its executive committee, the National Student federation, formed last night at the National Collegiate World Court conference, indicated today that it would continue its function, despite withdrawal of one representative of a southern university.

The original executive committee of seven members met this afternoon with the four national officers, appointed seven other members and announced that the second conference would be held next fall at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A letter was sent to K. C. Kizer, representative of the Louisiana State university, who last night withdrew from the conference asking him to reunite with the federatoin. Kizer's withdrawal came at the height of a storm which followed the election of Miss Mabel Halloway, negress representative of Howard university, of Washington, D. C., to represent the entire south on the executive committee.

Although protests from several other universities were made at last night's meeting, the executive committee announced today that no other withdrawal had been made. Before the conference adjourned last night, it was voted to have two representatives from each of the seven districts of the country, and today Charles Greaves, of the University of Georgia was selected to represent the south along with Miss Halloway.

MAINE'S CHAMPION FIDDLER IS ON HIS WAY BACK HOME

DETROIT, Dec. 13—(AP)—Reluctantly turning his back on the scenes of his greatest triumph, "Mellie" Dunham, champion fiddler of Maine, was being carried back by train tonight to New York where he may heed the call of the footlights.

Cherishing memories of a memorable week that brought him from the humble surroundings of his little home in Norway, Maine, into the spotlight and into friendship with one of the world's wealthiest men, Dunham was undecided whether to accept the vaudeville contract offered him.

His place in the public eye came through the interest displayed by Henry Ford in his musical ability that earned him an enviable reputation at the simple old time dances of New England. Accompanied by his wife, "Grandma Dunham," for whom the western trip was a celebration of their 55th wedding anniversary, and the entourage of Boston newspapermen, the veteran fiddler looked forward to his visit to New York.

There he will be entertained by a club that decorated him with the order of the Cut Steel Bulldog. Its emblem, he proudly displays in his shirt front. From there he will go to Boston and Portland and then to his home into the little Maine village.

RESULTS OF ELECTION OF RHODES SCHOLARS

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Dec. 13—(AP)—The results of the annual election of Rhodes scholars held yesterday in 32 states of the union were announced today by President Aydelotte of Swarthmore college, American secretary of the Rhodes trustees. There were 420 candidates representing 84 colleges and universities this year, for the 32 appointments, as compared with 344 in 1923 when the corresponding group of states elected. Ohio led with 39 while Pennsylvania was second with 30.

Under the Rhodes will east state in the union maintains always two Rhodes scholars at Oxford. Each scholar stays three years so that each state elects two years out of three, elections being so arranged that 32 scholars go to Oxford each year.

The list of scholars-elect subject to ratification by Rhodes trustees includes: Connecticut—Robert R. Brooks, Delta Upsilon house, Middletown, Conn; Wesleyan university.

Delaware—Cornelius A. Tilghman, New Haven, Conn.; Yale university.

Rhode Island—Gordon K. Chalmers, Denver, Colo.; Brown university.

CALL FOR EXTRA SESSION OF PENN. GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Date Set is January 13 at 2 P. M.—Among Eight Subjects to Be Dealt With is Anthracite Coal and Regulation of the Mining Industry—The Governor is to Endeavor to Have the Hard Coal Mining Declared a Public Utility.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 13—(AP)—Governor Pinchot tonight called an extra session of the Pensylvania general assembly for 2 p. m., Jan. 13.

Eight subjects are set forth in the call for consideration by the legislature. Among these is anthracite coal and regulation of the mining industry.

Although the section in the proclamation dealing with anthracite asked only consideration of measures to regulate the industry through a propet state agency and authorization of compacts with other states for the same purpose, his statement indicated his intention of asking that hard coal mining be declared a public utility. He outlined his own efforts to bring about a settlement of the anthracite controversy through the submission of proposals to the operators and miners and after referring to the miners' acceptance of his plan as a basis of settlement, he said, "if the operators had done the same the mines would have been open in a week." The operators, "from first to last," he said, "have refused to yield one jot or little of their original position." The future of the industry, he declared, "is threatened by popular resentment and the use of substitutes" and, he said, the public "must either suffer in silence or it must take measures to protect itself."

The governor termed the industry a "monopoly" and said the attorney general has advised him that in that case it may be declared to be affected with a public interest and therefore subject to regulation as a public utility.

"Action by the legislature declaring the anthracite monopoly to be a public utility will supply some degree of public control where none exists today; will furnish information never before revealed, and will exert the most powerful influence the public can apply toward the settlement of the strike," he said.

CLUE TO DISAPPEARANCE OF MISS ALICE M. CORBETT

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 13—(AP)—A fresh clue to the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Miss Alice M. Corbett, of Utica, N. Y., Smith college junior, was developed today, just a month since Miss Corbett left her dormitory. An unnamed person told Detective Joseph V. Daly here that in Hadley, November 13, he saw a girl wearing a yellow slicker walk toward the Connecticut river and disappear below the bank.

Miss Corbett was wearing a yellow slicker when she left her room, and the authorities recalled that a man in Holyoke, five miles down the river from Hadley, reported several days ago seeing a yellow garment resembling a slicker floating down the stream the day of the girl's disappearance. Detective Daly said he regarded today's information as "important."

Daley said yesterday that he believed the possibility of Miss Corbett's being alive was very remote, but that private detectives maintained she was probably earning her living in New York. All the investigators agreed that Miss Corbett was in sound physical condition at the time she disappeared but had probably suffered a nervous breakdown or mental upset.

SITUATION IN SYRIA CONSIDERABLY IMPROVED

MARSEILLES, France, Dec. 13—(AP)—The situation in Syria was described as "considerably ameliorated" by general Duport when he arrived here today from Beirut. General Duport, who is chief of the army headquarters staff and who acted as high commissioner of Syria pending the arrival of the new high commissioner of Syria pending the arrival of the new high commissioner, M. De Jouvenel, will report to the government upon his investigation into Syria affairs.

He warned interviewers against unauthorized reports and rumors which were finding their way out of Syria, insisting that all the actual facts had found the way to publication through government channels.

OBITUARY

Lewis J. Corr

WATERBURY, Dec. 13—(AP)—Lewis J Corr, of White road, president of the State Bricklayers' union and assistant superintendent of streets and sewers, died today after three weeks' illness.

Mr. Corr has been a well known figure in politics in this city and in union activities throughout the state. Formerly a member of the democratic town committee, he was identified with the street department during democratic administrations for about twenty years. During most of his service in this department, he held the position of assistant superintendent which he held at his death.

For some years Mr. Corr had been a walking delegate, representing the local bricklayers' union. Active for a long time in the state union, he was president of the association at the time of his death.

He was born in Waterbury, the son of Lewis and Mary Bergin Corr and always lived here. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Felicia Corr, one daughter, Miss Leona Corr, and several cousins all of this city.

The funeral will take place from his home at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. A solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated in St. Michael's church in Waterville, at 9 o'clock and burial will be in the family plot in new St. Joseph's cemetery.

James D. Goodwin

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 21—(AP)—James D. Godowin, retired from active service in the fire department November 19, last, died at St. Raphael's hospital today after a brief illness. He was 67 years old. Mr. Goodwin was appointed a regular fireman in 1889 and for many years was the driver of the chief's automobile.

A short time before the jail fire in 1919, Goodwin was appointed telegraph operator, holding this position until his retirement.

FOUR FATAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK-END

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Four persons were killed in automobile accidents in Connecticut yesterday and today and three persons met death by gas poisoning.

Henry Gaumond, ten years old, of Norita Gravenmordale, died in the Day-Kimball hospital in Putnam today, the result of an automobile crash last night in which a car operated by his father and another driven by Joseph Gagne, were involved. Six persons received minor injuries.

Alfred Mutter, 32, of Waterbury, was killed when his motorcycle ran into an unoccupied automobile in North Main street, Waterbury.

Rocco Ragazzo, of Ansonia, died in Grace hospital here today, from injuries received last night when an automobile struck a trolley pole in Centerville, Hamden. Three others were injured.

John Haight, 77, of Bristol, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile truck operated by F. Clinton Shark last night.

Two men, Thomas Ryan, 55, and John Hickey, 49, were found dead at a rooming house in Derby today, having been asphyxiated by illuminating gas. Gas was leaking from an unconnected jet in the room.

Mrs. Gertrude E. Rawnslee, 37, of Stamford, was found dead in her home this morning by her husband. All jets in a gas stove, were open. The woman had tied her bulldog in an adjoining room. The police claim that Mrs. Rawnslee took her own life but her husband claims she died of heart failure. It is said that they had quarreled last night.

SAYS BELIEF IN IMMORTALITY HAS BEEN DETRIMENT TO RACE

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Human belief in immortality has been an outstanding detriment to the race, Dr. A. Wakefield Slaten asserted today in a sermon at the West Side Unitarian church. Arguments in support of the belief are unconvincing, he declared, and its general rejection would improve social conditions.

"The belief in immortality," Dr. Slaten said, "has been one of the most terrible curses that has ever befallen our bewildered and credulous and exploded race. It has laid us under the power of religious charlatans and demagogues. It has degraded humanity into subservient syncophants to an order of fakirs. Fear and love are the two universal emotions that religion has exploited, and in no respect with such enormous success as in the field of the supposed future life. The belief in immortality has sent multitudes into the increasing army of the insane."

STRANGE REQUEST SENT LEAGUE OF NATIONS

GENEVA, Dec. 13—(AP)—The League of Nations has been asked to do a lot of strange things by people all over the world, but it remained for a New York business man to request action on the most unusual topic of all.

Announcement is made by the league secretariat that it has received a letter from the New Yorker declaring his opinion that "brain enslavement, otherwise known as spirit writing or receiving messages from the dead, is a cause of many evils. He said he wanted the league to stop this system all over the world, making the specific charge that the American courts of "so-called justice" are controlled by the spirit movement.

The American people, the letter went on, "need help from the whole world to bring an end of something which is really the greatest crime against civilization."

KILLED WHEN MOTORCYCLE RAN INTO A PARKED AUTO

WATERBURY, Dec. 13—(AP)—Alfred Mutter, 32, of 29 Camp street, was killed early today when his motorcycle ran into an unoccupied automobile parked in North Main street. Mutter was picked up but he was dead when St. Mary's hospital was reached.

WOMAN BANGS CONSTABLE WITH BLACKSMITH HAMMER

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13—Constable Louis H. Hodis of this city suffered injuries about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when he allowed his head to intercept a blow with a blacksmith hammer which Mrs. Rose Budnick of Spring hill, town of Mansfield, was directing at a jug of moonshine which the officer had just seized. Already dazed by one blow which quite badly lacerated his skull on receiving a second the officer maintained his nerve and succeeded in thwarting the frantic woman's attempts to demolish the jug and destroy the evidence against her Constable Hodis was assisting State Policeman Harrison J. Hulburt of the Stafford Springs barracks to locate contraband liquor on the Budnick property. The officers had searched for a time, but had succeeded only in finding two old oil stoves and other paraphernalia which had been used to manufacture moonshine in the woods on the farm. Then Constable Hodis noticed a newly made pile of leaves and extricated from it the gallon jug filled with the liquor. Mrs. Budnick came racing at him screaming wildly. Officer Hulburt rushed to the rescue but before he could intercede the woman had drawn a two pound blacksmith hammer from under her sweater and she struck at the jug which the constable held under his arm. Hodis warded off the first blow with his free arm and then the woman struck him twice on the head just above the right temple. Within a few seconds she was handcuffed by Officer Hulburt, but not before the latter had also received a blow which failed, however to cause injury. The woman fought vigorously against arrest and on the road to this city in a little roadster she tried to add to Constable Hodis' injuries by nearly pushing him out of the car. Arriving in this city, the injured officer was given medical attention and at 5 o'clock the party proceeded to the home of Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews in the town of Mansfield. Mrs. Budnick insisted that she had bought the liquor for her own use and plead not guilty was entered for her. She was presented on a triple charge, possessing liquor with intent to sell, resisting an officer and breach of the peace. Justice Andrews fined her $100 on the first count, $25 on the second count and $5 on the third. The fines plus the costs amounted to $170.76 which the woman refused to pay and she was committed to Tolland county jail. Grand Juror Carleton T. King prosecuted the case.

Ralph Collins of 280 Main street, arrested Friday afternoon on a warrant charging him with assault on the five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McManus of 13 Ives street November 25, was brought before the police court Saturday morning but was not put to plea, to await collecting of further evidence. The case was continued to Monday, December 28, when Doctors Herman E. Little and Edward L. Ottenheimer will be summoned to testify in regard to the child's condition. It is said that the little girl was injured as a result of the atrocious act.

A continuance until Monday, December 28, was granted in the case of Alfred J. Lariviere, collector of taxes and assessments on the city grand list for 1923 who was presented by the police court Saturday morning. Bonds of $3,000 furnished by Thomas E. Killourey were continued to the date of the hearing. County Detective William E. Jackson stated that although the bonding company had reimbursed the city treasury for the above amount which experts had definitely established as a shortage, he had sufficient evidence of a misappropriation of the funds to secure a conviction. In this event it is believed that the case will be allowed to go over to the superior court.

Radiant Chapter No. 11 O. E. S. elected the following officers at the meeting held in Masonic hall Friday evening: Worthy matron, Mrs. Maude Beebe; worthy patron, Fred L. Avery; associate matron, Mrs. Minnie Jones; secretary, Mrs. Edith M. Phelps; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian Whitford; conductress, Mrs. Viola Houston; associate conductress, Miss Gladys Bradley. At a supper which proceeded the meeting covers for sixty-five members were laid. The officers of the chapters served.

Edward P. Burdick of 30 Whitney street, Hartford, who backed his automobile over the sidewalk and into the show window of the restaurant conducted by Ralph Verry in the Frank Rosen block Saturday evening, December 5, was charged in police court Saturday morning with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Chief of Police Allan McArthur, Officer Edward P. Leahy and Constable Louis H. Lodis testified that there was every evidence that the man was intoxicated at the time of the accident and a bottle containing dregs of alleged muscatel wine, which Burdick admitted having spilled on the floor of his car, was introduced as further evidence. Burdick, they said, was in such a helpless condition that he could not drive his car away from the broken window and the machine had to be pushed back into the road by a body of men. Officer Leahy, who arrested the man and Chief McArthur, who talked to him when he arrived at police headquarters and was locked up, both testified that Burdick had told them he had a few drinks and that he acted drunk and smelled of liquor.

Burdick's story in denying that he was drunk was original. He claimed that he had about a pint of home-made muscatel wine in a quart bottle which he secured before leaving Hartford. He had intended to leave the sample home, but somehow took it along with him. Somewhere on the road he said he became ill and upon arriving in this city he stopped on Main street to look for a drug store and obtain medicine to relieve his pain. Suddenly a plain clothes man approached his car and after telling him that he was under arrest, told him to start the machine. For some reason the shifts refused to work properly and he went through the window. While this was going on he remembered the bottle in his car and fearing arrest for bootlegging, he pulled out the cork and spilled the contents on the floor. He believed that some of the wine got onto his coat and gave this the odor which the officers smelled. He said the only liquor he had drunk was some newly made wine which he had swallowed while syphoning it into the bottle which he carried. He further added that his illness made him weak and caused him to stagger at times. Mrs. Burdick testified that her husband had been under the care of two physicians for some time. A mechanic who had examined the machine was called by the defense and the lawyers argued for some time on the shifting of machines. Spectators in the gallery were thrown into excitement during a brief recess when Burdick became weak and nearly fainted. Judge Foss found the man guilty and imposed a fine of $100 and costs. Attorney King gave notice of an appeal to [illegible]

Mrs. Margaret Flynn of South Norwalk, department president of the state organization, was the guest of honor at a supper and meeting of A. C. Tyler auxiliary, U. S. W. V. held in G. A. R. hall Friday evening. Mrs. Ward E. Hoey, president of the local auxiliary was in charge of the business session, during which one new member was admitted. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Grace Sweet; senior vice president, Mrs. Ruth Joyce; junior vice president, Mrs. Elsie Warren; chaplain, Mrs. Gertrude Jackson; historian, Mrs. Mabel Peck; patriotic instructor, Miss Laura Snow; conductor, Mrs. Mary Mathieu; assistant conductor, Mrs. Dina Lavigne; guard, Mrs. Mary Ashton; assistant guard, Miss Margaret Sullivan pianist, Mrs. Emma Doyle. Department President Mrs. Flynn in acted the officers and was presented a bouquet of chrysanthemums. Mrs. Dora Grady was awarded the "spark plug."

Mayor-Elect John C. Tracy will preside at the first meeting of the newly elected common council this (Monday) evening when the board will perfect organizations. It could not be determined whether or not the new chief executive will make his committee appointments this evening.

Eddie John, arrested on a charge of breach of the peace, Friday forenoon, when he again repeated his act of going to the home of his parents at 63 Milk street, asking for money and creating a disturbance when it was refused; was remanded to the Norwich State hospital for observance, by Judge Foss in the police court Saturday morning. Doctors Michael D. Riordan and C. E. Simonds examined the man and both agreed that he was of low mentality and treatment at the asylum would be beneficial to him. Mike John, father of the defendant, testified that his son had been a constant source of trouble and expense to him. Eddie John has figured in series of escapades which probably place him far in the lead of any other troublesome individual in the city. Two weeks ago he stabbed himself with a bread-knife when refused money. In his behalf John said that a Hudson car which he owned was sold some time ago and that his father and another relative were holding $300 which was due him as a result of the sale. He believed that his demands were justified. Judge Foss noted the charge of breach of the peace in complying with the findings of the physicians.

A successful food, candy and apron sale conducted in the afternoon under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor and Ladies' Aid societies of the First Baptist church was followed by an entertainment Friday evening in the vestry. The walls and tables were gay with decorations of Christmas trees and greens. Mrs. Ada N. Merrifield was in charge of the program and she introduced a banjo quartet composed of some of her South Manchester pupils who pleased with this popular numbers. Miss Lillian Grant gave two readings. Miss Eugenia Maslen, soprano soloist of Hartford was heard. Mrs. Merrifield and Miss Sherwood were the piano accompanists.

The case of Leslie Flippen, charged with reckless driving, Monday November 23, when the car he was driving was wrecked in a crash against a tree in Windham Center and two of the occupants, Joseph Weaver and Martin Prue were injured, was again continued, this time to January 2 to allow time for Prue's recovery so that he can be called in as a witness.

Sherrod Soule of Hartford, Thursday evening, were concluded Sunday with a sermon by Rev. Gurion F. Bailey of the mother church of Norwich Town. Mrs. John F. Woods was heard in a soprano solo, "Fear Ye Not O, Israel," (Dudley Buck.) The South Windham and Windham choirs joined in singing, "I Was Glad When They Said Unto Me." President Casius A. Barstow led the C. E. meeting when the subject was "Looking Backward and Looking Forward," carrying out the spirit of the day. A number of ministers, offsprings of this and other churches were guests of Rev. James G. Graham and members of the parish for the exercises.

John White, 62, a resident of this city for many years, died at his home, 238 South street early Saturday morning after a long illness. He was a native of Ireland. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary White; and five sons, John T. of Greeneville, South Carolina, Hugh, Francis and James of this city and George White of Hartford. He was a member of San Jose Council No. 14 Knights of Columbia.

Funeral services for Albert E. Benoit were held Saturday morning with a high mass of requiem at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock. Rev. J. J. Papillon sang the mass. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and there were beautiful floral tributes. Burial was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Papillon read the committal prayers. The bearers were Edmund R. Portelange, A. J. Dubreuil, Prosper Vectard, J. B. Davis, Alfred Delude and Raoul Lariviere. The Martineau-Bacon company had charge of the arrangements.

BOOTLEGGER TRAPPED SELLING BRANDY AT $20

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13—Isadore Pollack, 21, of Gurleyville, played into the hands of County Detective William E. Jackson and was caught red-handed delivering three gallons of powerful cider brandy to Constable Louis H. Hodis at the latter's home on Mansfield avenue Sunday forenoon, at 11 o'clock. By previous arrangement Constable Hodis had placed his order with Pollack for the brandy which he was to pay for at the rate of $20 a gallon. Detective Jackson placed himself in hiding and as Pollack drove up with the contraband liquor he was placed under arrest. Pollack carried the stuff to this city in a Ford delivery truck which is being held pending the hearing of the case. The liquor was contained in two one-gallon cans and a glass jug set into an egg crate. The young man protested arrest, saying that he was merely delivering the brandy for his father, Nathan Pollack, Gurleyville farmer. He was taken to police headquarters by the officers and locked up while awaiting bonds. His case will come up in police court Monday morning when he will be charged with transporting liquor.

C. H. WILSON GOES TO JAIL— BOUND OVER FOR FORGERY

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13—Clifford H. Wilson of South Manchester, who was employed by L. H. Maples, of Norwich, at a skee ball establishment in this city in the fall of 1924 pleaded in police court Saturday morning to two charges of forgery. He asked for mercy for his wife who was about to become a mother and said that if given a chance he would make full restitution, but the court decided that the matter was out of its jurisdiction and Wilson was bound over to the January term of the superior court under bonds of $1,000. He could not furnish the amount and he was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn. Wilson passed a forged check drawn on the Willimantic Trust company and made out by Maples on Prag Brothers, local business men, November 30, 1924. Later he forged another check to the amount of $30. This check was made out in the name of Robert Thompson and issued in the name of Robert Saul. Wilson hired Albert J. Coutu, local public service man, to drive him to Moosup. He gave Coutu the check and the latter cashed it with A. L. Chartier in Moosup. Later, when Chartier presented the check it was pronounced worthless. This check was also drawn on the Willimantic Trust company.

AMERICAN CHEMISTS SEEK NEW PHILOSOPHER'S STONES

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Working in obscure laboratories, American chemists today are devoting their wizardry in an unheralded search for new Philosopher's Stones—ever seeking for that precious knowledge that will enable them to transmute the potential wealth now locked in Nature's cupboards into actual resources for American housewives and American industry.

Between the housewife and the captain of industry and the ores of the earth are these virtually unknown alchemists, delving into infinity and atoms in a ceaseless search for new secrets, new elements and new products.

Vast and important as this work by American chemists has been few realize the actual magnitude of the progress of the art in this country. It was a new field for American brains a field in which Europe, the birthplace and for centuries the home of scientific arts, had been preeminent. But American wizardry triumphed once more.

The American Chemical society has outlined a few of the important developments of scientific research in this country during the last few decades. Save to the savants themselves the names of the chemists who made these discoveries are generally unknown.

For examples, Bakelite, that hard synthetic resin used in cigarette holders, radio dials, radiator caps or timing gears of the automobile. Discovery of this important material came only after years of systematic organic chemical research in a field in which many scientists had labored long and unsuccessfully.

The modern production of furfurol, a tremendously important organic chemical in industry, is another brilliant page in American chemical achievements. Experimenting with oat hulls, a by-product in the preparation of breakfast cereal, with a view to utilizing the hulls as fuel, the savants accidently stumbled upon a secret that chemically treated oat hulls give large quantities of furfurol at a low cost, with the result it is today, with scientific production the cheapest aldehyde available.

No less important was research into the potential commercial utilization that resulted in Casein plastic material. Prepared by coagulation from skimmed milk, casein today is used in fountain pens, automatic pencils and buttons, instead of the hitherto unchallenged rubber and bone materials in liquid form it is used as a glue.

With the development of the tungsten filament, metallic tantalum, a relatively rare metal, appeared doomed commercially. Industry had little use for it. But metallurgists came to its aid and after years of experimentation, produced the metal in this country at a comparatively low production cost. It now is used in the construction of battery chargers and devices for delivering direct current to the plates of radio tubes directly from the lamp socket. To a limited extent, Tantalum also is used in the manufacture of certain surgical instruments.

Using the largest diffraction grating in the world, American scientists by separating chlorine into isotopes, have produced a heavy chlorine of different atomic weight from the original element, a feat which resulted in the first weighable and visible material ever produced with an atomic weight differing from the ordinary element. This step was the first actual separation of an element into different elements and engendered a radical organization of theory of primary elements.

Chief among the accomplishments in the field of chemical warfare have been the laying of failing smoke screens from airplanes by discharging the smoke-producing material through motor exhausts; the "Stokes" mortar shell, the explosion of which generates a heavy pall of smoke for land screening; a distinctly American tear gas call "C. N." (chloracetophenone); the "C. N." hand grenade and cartridges which fire this gas, and the McBride gas gun, a weapon that discharges asphyxiating gas into the faces of advancing troops.

Originally a military weapon, "tear gas" nevertheless has found important appliance in peace times. Police have found it an effective instrument.

Utilization as food values of the principal protein products of blood drawn from slaughtered animals, previously regarded as waste products available only for conversion into glue or fertilizer. Blood albumin and haemoglobin are the principal products.

Pyrex, the heat-resisting, low-expansion glass, now used in arc lamps, battery jars flasks, breakers and test tubes used in laboratories, radio insulators, evaporating and chafing dishes and other cooking utensils.

Chromium plating, the sheathing of other metals with a layer of chromium plating by an electro-chemical process. This process has enabled the use of other metals in industry whose susceptibility to rust made their use impossible until plated with rust resisting chromium.

Heat-treatment of nickel-free alloys, a process which resulted in a revolutionary change in the operation of submarine cables.

Ethylene, a chemical used in the coloration to mature yellow of ripened, but green fruit. Fruit—oranges or lemons—that are ripe for the market but are still green can be brought to yellow tint by this treatment. It has saved agriculturists millions of dollars.

Vat dyes, in the production of which American chemists have challenged the hitherto acknowledged superiority of German chemists.

In Abyssinia no one is allowed to use the telephone directly. All messages must be written out and given to the operator, who shouts them into the transmitter at the top of his voice, so that every one about can hear.

DANIELSON

H. L. BAER LIKES FLORIDA WHICH LIKES HIS DOGS

DANIELSON, Dec. 14—Henri L. Baer went back to Florida Saturday night. This is his second trip south this season. A few weeks ago, with what might be termed a flock of police dogs in tow, he headed for Florida, convinced there was a market for the dogs down there. He was right. He disposed of 48 of the animals at good prices within a few weeks and then returned to East Killingly. On this trip 40 more dogs have been taken along. Mr. Baer is to remain in Florida for about four months. He is located at Del ey, about 17 miles from Palm Beach. He has purchased a houselot, not at the fabulous prices that one hears of real estate men getting at Miami, but at about the rate one would pay hereabouts for a similar size holding and is erecting a shack upon it. His entire investment will be less than $1,000. On their way south with Mr. Baer is his wife and their children.

Mr. Baer has become a booster of Florida, not of the pell mell, hectic, speculative life of Miami and other boom centers, but of Florida as a great state, where one may locate and live without spending a fortune every month. Mr. Baer says that food stuff prices are 10 to 20 per cent. higher than in Killingly, that gasoline retails for 27 cents a gallon and other things in proportion. Lumber is scarce down there, on account of the widespread building boom, and it is hard at other times to get necessary supplies, because of inadequate railway facilities. Concerning this, Mr. Baer mentions that on his last trip south he went three days without meat, it being impossible to get shipments through, but this is unusual.

Florida is not the bonanza this season for men in the building trades that many think it is, Mr. Baer says, not because there is not plenty of work, but because supplies for building cannot be obtained. Thousands are waiting to build homes, but the choked railways cannot get materials through to them. Carpenters, plumbers and painters and many other artisans have flocked into Florida from every state in the union, sure of getting work, but thousands of them are disappointed.

Mr. Baer says that places like Del Rey offer the best chance for the New Englander looking for a pleasant winter in the south. These smaller towns are reasonably cheap to live in and free from the extortion being practiced in the boom centers. Mr. Baer's shack will be on the Dixie highway and five minutes walk from a beautiful bathing beach. He has a small car down there and will use it in covering country for 100 miles in all directions.

Mr. Baer remarks that clothing prices are excessively high and says he believes that a man could drive a truck loaded with men's clothing down to Florida and, selling from the truck, make a cleanup during the next few months.

That advantage might be taken of the comparatively mild weather for this season of the year, workmen were engaged Sunday in pouring concrete for the railings of the new bridge over the Assawaga river at Main street. The season is so late that every effort is being made to complete the bridge at the earliest possible time.

The pretty custom of placing Christmas greens in closed motor cars is again being practiced this season. Some of the cars have been decorated with special small size wreaths particularly fitted for the use to which they are being put.

For the second time at a week end, the coach service of the Connecticut company demonstrated its capacity to handle heavier than the average traffic. Additional vehicles were required to do the work, but these were available and the public seemed well served.

Norman Reeves has purchased from Clifford H. Starkweather a dwelling now occupied on Reynolds street by Mr. Starkweather. Mr. and Mrs. Reeves are not to occupy the home until spring.

Mrs. Morris Hardy and son of Montreal are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benoni Meunier.

Graduates of Killingly High school who were former star basketball players for the institution have plans for forming a team to play a series of games during the winter and early spring season.

Royal Choquette plans to provide the Community Christmas tree, that is to be set up on Davis park for Christmas eve. It is understood that this tree will be about 30 feet in height.

It is anticipated that this will be a banner week in the sale of Christmas seals in Danielson. A special effort will be made to dispose of a great many seals and to interest numbers of people in using them that have not already adopted the practice.

The Bulletin of the 11th stated that Susan F. Hammond Fisk died in Boston and was buried in the old Dr. Hammond lot at Dayville. The name should have been Susan Hammond Field, not Fiske.

On Tuesday of this week the Fortnightly club will meet with Mrs. Revelo Spencer of Reynolds street.

In view of the fact that the D. and P. Gas and Electric company had made an announcement in advance, there was little or no inconvenience Sunday afternoon because the electric power was shut off all through this territory for a period of three hours.

Advance work is being done on the construction of the new state highway from Chep Mist hill south to Rockland.

Attorney Louis A. Wolsard has completed his visitations to the villages of Killingly outside the borough for the collection of personal taxes, all of which must be paid this month.

Taking a chance, numbers of boys were skating Sunday on the smaller bodies of water in the vicinity of Danielson.

Harold Burgess of Stearns hill is spending the winter season in Florida. He is engaged there as a carpenter.

A Christmas week end sale was held by the Ladies' Sewing circle of St. Alban's parish and was successful.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich is to be in Danielson today (Monday) to conduct a monthly clinic at the health station in the town hall building.

An idea not so bad is the one that men have adopted, in some instances here, of buying women's woolen stockings to wear the winter season. The long stockings are worn with light weight underwear.

Mrs. E. B. Wilbur of Broad street will have the members of the Reading circle at her home for a meeting this (Monday) afternoon.

Mrs. James Harvey of Danielson was pleasantly surprised, Wednesday evening when a party of friends and relatives gathered at her home to celebrate her birthday. All spent an enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith and family of Moosup visited Mrs. E. A. Tourtelot last week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Tibbles and children of Hartford have been visiting Mrs. Tibbie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Anderson of Allen Hill.

MISSIONARY TO INDIANS STIRS ST. JAMES' LISTENERS

DANIELSON, Dec. 13—Congregations at the masses at St. James' church Sunday morning sat in rapt attention as Rev. Arthur Dupont, a missionary temporarily returned from Idaho told something of his life in a parish that consists of 80,000 square miles of territory, wherein he ministers to both the white and indian people of the sparsely settled territory. Much of the time he is 200 miles from a railroad. Over the vast area to which he ministers as he travels about, clad like a cowboy, a rifle slung across his shoulders, mounted on a horse and with a pack animal trailing along.

Broken in health and weighing only 105 pounds, Father Dupont went west about three and a half years ago, in the hope that life in the wilderness and along mountain trails, while he labored for God, might bring back his strength, in spite all the hardships he has endured and the endless traveling he has done, Father Dupont has regained his health and now weighs 130.

He came Sunday to plead for funds for his mission work; pitiful, indeed, was the picture he painted of the numbers of an indian colony of impoverished people, who, a few months ago had the four barns in which they were living destroyed by fire, forcing them to build temporary shacks of wheat shucks and other material to shield themselves during the winter season.

A horseback journey of 100 miles to make a sick call, canoe journeys of scores of miles to bring spiritual comfort to some suffering soul, awakening at night to find a rattlesnake curled up over his stomach on the indian blanket in which he had wrapped himself to slumber on the ground, were some of the incidents of his life out there that Fr. Dupont mentioned. Mr. Dupont has lost four horses by their tumbling off mountain passes into the depths below, and twice has been stunned under fallen animals, once for 22 hours and once for more than 40 hours, with his foot crushed under the body of the horse, before the discharging of his rifle brought aid from passing cowboys.

The loneliness of it all is the greatest trial, Fr. Dupont says, and having tried to cheer himself by singing he has often stopped to cry in the midst of the great desolation. Yet his fervor for the mission work is unabated and his plea Sunday for the parishioners of St. James' to do something for the unfortunate people to whom he ministers was deeply impressive, and it may be added, the response was generous indeed.

Speaking of his church Fr. Dupont described it as a shack with a shelf on which he sleeps when there at night. This self same shelf serves as an altar for the masses he says there, also as his dining table at mealtime.

Fr. Dupont's home is in Springfield Mass., and he went there Sunday, after completing his work in Danielson.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS DETERMINE NICKNAMES FOR GRID STARS

IOWA CITY, Ia., Dec. 13—(AP)—Our here in Iowa, where the corn grows tall and the west begins, and where the University of Iowa usually has a first class football squad, the followers of the team love to bestow colorful nicknames on their heroes.

Nick Kutsch, the flashy halfback and a holy terror to Iowa's opponents, is known as "The Flying Dutchman" and "Cowboy Nick." He gained the first sobriquet because of his fierce running when tearing through the line, and he naturally had to be a cowboy when he came from the stock-yards district of Sioux City.

When the team returned from Columbus after upsetting Ohio State October 24, and old star had a new nickname. Fry the human bullet who plays fullback for the Hawks, is now "Plowboy Fry." He was given this name because of the manner in which he plowed through the Ohio line — at the same time plowing through ankle-deep mud on the gridiron.

A few years back when Iowa was beating all Slater, a giant negro played a wonderful game at tackle. Slater immediately became the "Duke," and that name has clung to him ever since.

At Last—Something Effective for Wrinkles!

It has been conclusively demonstrated that a simple home-made tarkroot paste, applied to the face, will very quickly eliminate wrinkles, worry, care and age marks. You need only mix a spoonful each of powdered tarkroot and lemon juice, spread this over your face, then sit down before your mirror and watch the unwelcome lines disappear. In less than 15 minutes your face will be as smooth and firm as a young girl's! Bagginess will also melt away—youthful contour will be restored. It's simply wonderful how this harmless mixture works.

The result, after the mixture is washed off the face, is infinitely better than from the most skillful face massage. And the cost is trifling—less than three cents per treatment. Any druggist can supply powdered tarkroot in original package. So there's no excuse now for any woman looking old, haggard or careworn.

HENRY GAUMOND DIES, FOLLOWING AUTO OLLISION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 13—In front of the home of John F. Reardon, agent of the Grosvernordale company, in North Grosvernordale last night, two automobiles came together with great force. Henry Gaumond, 10, who was in one of the cars which was driven by his father, Elzear Gaumond was so seriously injured that he died at an early hour this morning, at the Day Kimball hospital. With him in the car were his brother, mother and a sister. Joseph Gagne was the owner and driver of the other car and was accompanied by his wife. There is an abrupt turn in the road where the accident occurred and neither driver saw the other car until it was too late to avoid a collision. All of the occupants were badly shaken up but no one was more than slightly hurt except the boy, who was injured internally. He was taken to the Day Kimball hospital immediately, but never regained consciousness and died about 3 o'clock this morning. Both families lived in North Grosvernordale.

The Nursing committee of the Red Cross has announced that its new nurse, Mrs. Mary Doran Torrey, will also be the nurse for the Metropolitan Insurance company for this community. This means that in case of sickness any person holding an industrial policy with this company is entitled to the service of the visiting nurse free of charge. This, however, is not to prevent anyone from calling the nurse in case of need, as the fee may be varied as circumstances warrant. The hours of the nurse are from eight in the morning until five o'clock in the evening. She is to be found at her office in the Red Cross rooms on Union street from eight to nine in the morning and between one and half past in the afternoon.

Captain John J. McGarry has been granted the privilege of signing a few more men for the Headquarters company of the 43rd division. The company offers many advantages that the ordinary military company does not, for being attached to headquarters affords a variety of service to the members who are not required to carry guns.

"Mike" Hannifan has been elected captain of Putnam High school basketball team, the vacancy being due to the resignation of Alfred St. Onge.

The Mechanicsville Athletic association basketball team is to open its season in the Putnam High School gymnasium, with the Putnam Trade school. The teams are evenly matched and good sport is anticipated by the rooters for both teams.

Mrs. Eugene Durocher entertained the members of the Friendly club at her home on Woodstock avenue at a whist party recently. Mrs. Edward Girard won first honors and Miss Irene Gagne second. The consolation award went to Mrs. Bibeault. Refreshments were served by the hostess and there was music during the evening by Mrs. Armand Magneault and Miss Pauline Duseault.

Further donations to the Thanksgiving offerings for the Day Kimball hospital have brought the money receipts up to $443. Two recent contributions are $15 from the Attawaugan company and $25 from the Assawaga company at Dayville.

At the annual meeting of Quinebaug Valley Fruit Growers' association held at the Woodstock Fair Grounds the following officers were elected: President, Henry Buell of Eastford; vice-president, Dr. George F. McClellan, Woodstock; secretary-treasurer, William T. Child, Woodstock; executive committee, Harold Esterbrook, Dudley, Mass., L. H. Lindeman, Woodstock, and the officers.

The thirty-first annual report of the Day Kimball hospital has just been published. Under the superintendent's report are the following interesting statistics: Number of patients admitted, 1,011; total number treated, 1,813; days care this year, 13,383; surgical patients, 627; medical patients, 121; obstetrical patients, 263; daily average 37.

Miss Emma J. Dutton, a teacher in the Israel Putnam school has returned from Stark, Maine, where she was called by the death of her mother.

Wappaquasset Tribe of Red Men is planning a Christmas tree on the evening of December 21 in their rooms on Front street. There will be an entertainment, refreshments and presents for all. Members and their families only will attend.

Miss Ella Boult of Pomfret is in Westfield, N. Y., where she was called by the serious illness of her brother, Benjamin Boult, who died before her arrival. Mr. Boult had been in failing health for several years. He was well known in Pomfret having often visited Misha Boult.

At the meeting of the Woman's Board of the Day Kimball hospital which was held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, $200 was appropriated for the purchase of fire hose to be used inside the hospital.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich is to hold his December clinic at the Day Kimball hospital today (Monday) instead of on Tuesday, the regular day.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wheaton of Park street have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goodale and Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Bushnell, of Leomister, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Brousseau spent the wek end with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ogden at Atlantic, Mass.

Miss Grace Dunham, assistant secretary of the House-in-the-Pines, Norton, Mass., has been the guest of Mrs Helen Willey on Oak Hill.

The meeting of the Friday afternoon bridge club was held at the home of Mrs. Nelson Lowrie on Grove street.

Mrs. A. L. Mansfield and Mrs. Ethel Mansfield were visitors in Providence this past week.

Miss Ella Farrows of Springfield, Mass., has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olin D. Farrows.

Mrs. Mortimer Kilburn of Railroad street has returned from Boston where she has been a patient at the Deaconess hospital.

Mrs. Edward H. Burt has returned from a visit with Mrs. Jeannette Freeman in Boston.

Earle Pierce has returned from Miami, where he went several weeks ago with his mother.

Mrs. Charles Belair, Miss Rose Belair, Mrs. Peter Belair and Antonio Belair were in Moosup to attend the funeral of a relative.

Mrs. Eugene Laparle is making a good recovery after a major operation at Day Kimball hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Sandarrom and little son of Aqueboque, L. I., spent the week end with relatives in Putnam and West Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bacon were in Providence Friday, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thorburn, celebrating their wedding anniversaries.

Mr. Burke, the new manager of the Woolworth store and Mrs. Burke are now occupying the house of Mrs. Randall on Grand View.

At their meeting Tuesday, members of City Court No. 116, Foresters of America, Putnam are to hold a smoke talk. Refreshments will be served.

COMMUNITY TREE PLANS LEFT TO THE ROTARY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 13—Putnam is to have a community Christmas tree. The Putnam Rotary club has the permission of the council to put up a community tree somewhere about Union Square, subject to the approval of the highway committee. The plans are in the hands of a committee from the Rotary club.

FLORIDA HOUSE BURNED BEFORE LAPSLEYS ARRIVED

PUTNAM, Dec. 13—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lapsley at Tallahasse, Florida was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday, although the fire department was able to save most of the furniture.

Mr. and Mrs. Lapsley were on their way from their home at Pomfret to Florida and arrived at Tallahassee the afternoon after the fire, and will remain there until they can make other plans for the winter. No details of the fire have been received here.

MYSTIC

The December meeting of the Parent-Teachers association was held in Mystic Academy Friday evening with an attendance of about fifty, beside the pupils who sang. Mrs. John B. Gray, the president presided. The minutes of the last meeting, were approved. The proceeds from the reading by Miss Whiting were $12. From a cake sale given by the sixth grade Miss Brown reported $15.10.

It was voted to give a cake sale in January.

Visitors at the school for October numbered 15 and for November 40. It was voted to change onen day from January to February. Miss Joanna Burnett, principal, was present and she will resume teaching in January. The business being completed, the entertainment program was taken up, the pupils singing Christmas carols. Mrs. Gray then stated that at 12.30 she received a telephone call that Robert C. Rice of New London was sick in bed and she had asked Rev. J. G. Osborn to speak in his place. Mr. Osborn gave an interesting address recalling the methods of teaching in his school days and the three holidays that are foremost, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving and Christmas. He interspersed his talk with anecdotes and proved a good substitute. The pupils sang more carols and the committee served sandwiches, cake and coffee. Dr. Wilfred Grenfell is to lecture here in April, so was suggested that people will get Dr. Grenfell's book from the library and read them, so they will enjoy the pictures he will show having familiarized themselves with his work in Labrador.

The weekly whist party, given in the K. of C. rooms, Main building, Wednesday evening, was well attended. Eleven tables were filled. The women's highest score was made by Mrs. J. Ravenelle and the men's by James Markle and Benjamean. The consolation award was given Mrs. W. Inderdohner and Mrs. S. McNeill. Dancing followed and refreshments was served.

The meeting of the Monday club is to be held with Mrs. Walter Fish on Reynolds Hill.

Five men are engaged in building an ice house and runway on the east end of Mistuset avenue, for Nathaniel Avery in his fish business. The old Gates ice house was torn down to make room for a new and larger one.

Miss Louise Paige was home from Milford for the week end.

Mrs. C. H. Eccleston of Denison avenue, spent last week with her sister Mrs. Arthur Brown in Bridgeport.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Noyes and daughter Frances of Mount Vernon, N. Y., spent the week end at their cottage on Groton Long Point.

Many friends from here attended the funeral of Capt. Jesse W. Hall, held in Stonington Saturday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. Dwight C. Stone of Hanover, a former pastor in Stonington. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery, Stonington. The bearers were Lyman Hall, a nephew, Harold Stimington, a nephew of Mrs Hall of Westerly, Thomas Wilcox and Nathaniel Culver, neighbors of Quinebaug.

A large delegation from Groton Grange was here Saturday evening and some of the members put on a comedy in three acts, entitled A Little Clodhopper. It was well given and created much merriment. The grange hall in the Main block was well filled. After the play there was dancing to Music furnished by a six-piece orchestra. Hot dogs, rolls and coffee were served and home made candy was on sale.

The December missionary meeting of the Baptist church is to be held with Mrs. John W. Phillips Library street Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The topic is Latin America. Mrs. Charles E. Wheeler and Miss Harriet Fish have the program in charge.

Miss Edith Burrows and her brother Kenneth were in New London Saturday.

Mrs. James W. Lothrop, who has been very ill was able to be dressed and sit up Saturday.

COLUMBIA

The town is saddened by the death of Miss Grace Sawyer early Friday morning after a brief illness with pneumonia. Miss Sawyer has made her home here for many years, remaining about eight months in each year. Her brother, George Sawyer, died in October and the surviving member of the family, Miss Edith Sawyer, a sister is receiving the sympathy of the entire community in her double bereavement. Miss Sawyer was a member of the local church was always ready to do her part and in many instances more than her part, in all church and community work. She will be greatly missed. Her funeral was held at the home of Mrs. R. G. Proctor Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Mrs. Mary Yeomans and son of Hartford were in town a few days ago.

The Columbia church held a meeting Thursday evening, at which a unanimous call was extended, Rev. Victor Wain, a student in the Hartford Theological Seminary, to become pastor of the church. Mr. Wain has been preaching for the last four Sundays, and is well liked by everyone. It is expected that he will accept.

NO DOCTORS AND CEMETERIES IN THIS HOME-COOKING TOWN

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 13—(AP)—Newark, a town with a population of 1,000 people, situated near here, has never had a doctor, dentist, undertaker, ambulance, drug store, or a cemetery.

Mayor Louis Ruschin, authority for the statement, attributes the health of the community to home cooking. Newark also is without a restaurant.

WESTERLY

PAWCATUCK WOOLEN CO. RESTORES 10% WAGE CUT

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 13—The strike of the employes of the Pawcatuck Woolen company with mill at Potter Hill, of which Battey & Trull company of New York are the agents, was settled Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock following a series of conferences between the management and the employes. As a result the 10 per cent cut in the scale of wages posted, following which the operatives went out, October 19th, has been restored and the 150 operatives will return to work Monday morning, under the old scale of wages.

The Pawcatuck Woolen company's mill is located about four miles up the Pawcatuck river from Westerly and manufactures woolen suitings for men and women. A conference between Donald Battey, Frank Trull, representing the management and a committee headed by Joseph Rees of the weaving department together with one member each from the dye shop, picker room, card room, twisting room, spinning room and finishing department was held until late Friday night. At the meeting held again Saturday morning the settlement was reached.

NEW THEATRE TO RISE ON DR. MORGAN HOUSE SITE

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 13—The Metropolitan Wrecking company of New Haven, which demolished the old Chapman block, corner of Main and Broad streets, to make way for the present five-story business block of the Washington Trust Co., will shortly begin the work of tearing down the old Doctor J. Howard Morgan residence, 43 High street, Westerly, which has housed until recently the Westerly Visiting Nurse association and Westerly Chapter of the American Red Cross. Following its occupancy by Dr. Morgan the Wilcox Park trustees purchased the property and continued to own the same until its purchase by Manager David Novogrod, of the Central and Lyric theatre, early in the spring and following the disastrous fire of January 3rd, which destroyed the Bliven Opera House, under his management.

On this site will be erected a theatre block by David Novogrod, to cover the entire area, and the second theatre building will be started in this section of Westerly, the first being the Westerly United Theater building on Canal street, onw in process of erection. Manager Novogrod returned last week from New York, where he has been in conference with theatrical interest and the announcement is made that an architectural firm on 5th avenue, New York is drawing plans and specifications for a theatre, which will have a seating capacity of 1400. The plans are said to provide for the theatre entrance to be between two stores on the High street front, with a side entrance towards the Westerly Furniture block. On the floor above arrangements are to include four stores for business use. The construction and workmanship, it is said, will be of the most modern type and will be the last word in the elimination of fire hazard and in speedy exit plans.

A hearing on the Union street extension from Broad street through to Main street with proposed new junction next to the property of Mrs. Orville George Barber, which includes the cutting down of Cooky Hill, will be given by the Westerly town council in the council chambers this (Monday) evening at 7:30 o'clock, when the committee named by the old Westerly town council have been called in for conference. The meeting follows the motion for the adoption of the project in the instructing of the Westerly legislative members to secure authority for the issue of serial bonds to the amount of $55,000, to finance the scheme. The council voted the resolution laid on the table until they could learn more about it. The first meeting was set for last Wednesday evening and then changed to this (Monday) evening.

At the December meeting of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce, D. Harold Rogers introduced a resolution that the Westerly Chamber go on record as favoring the construction. After a lengthy discussion an explanation by Harvey Perry of the committee on the Union street changes, the vote was passed, after Frank W. Coy had the amendment made that if it should be found for the best interests of the people of Westerly as a whole.

Saturday afternoon at Christ Episcopal church at 3 o'clock Miss Eliza Crooks and Peter Harrison both of Bradford, were united in marriage by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of the church. Miss Crooks is the daughter of Joseph and Martha Bentley Crooks of Kearley, Lancashire, England, and arrived from the homeland ten days ago. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harrison of Bowling Lane, Bradford, and is employed in the finishing department of the Bradford Dyeing Association Works.

As the "Lohengrin" wedding march was played, theb ridal party entered the church, the organist being Mrs. Annie Broadfoot and the ushers were Leverett Andrews and John Atkins.

A gown of ivory georgette with veil and wreath of orange blossoms was worn by the bride. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and swansonia.

The maid of honor wore pale blue georgette with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of pink Columbia roses. The mother of the bridegroom was dressed in rose crepe.

The bride's gift to her maid was a gold and pearl brooch and that of the groom to his attendant a green and white gold chain and white gold pocket knife. The groom's gift to his bride was a white gold wrist watch and that of the bride to her husband was gold cuff links.

Following an informal reception the wedding party went to the Martin House, where upwards of 120 guests partook of a wedding banquet. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Harrison will make their home in Bradford. They will occupy the upper part of the Cordner residence on Main street.

The bridal gifts included silver, cut glass, linen, etc.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk are the following transfers: Dec. 11. Sewer rights of way, Mary A. Carney to the town of Westerly for the laying, maintenance and operation of sewers along the west side of the premises, 15 Spring street.

For the same purpose, Bell S. P. Nichecker to the town of Westerly along the easterly side of premises and Mrs. E. D. Ryan and Augustine T. L. Ledwidge to the town of Westerly along the westerly side of the premises, 11 Spring street.

William B. Gavitt to Abbie J. and Eliza J. West, a tract of land with dwelling and other improvements on the west side of Main street, being the same as conveyed to the grantor by George S. Greenman on December 1, 1899.

Dec. 12. Susan A. Vose to Robert and Beatrice Mearns, a parcel of land on the east side of Benedit street, being lot No. 23 on the plat of the Westerly Housing Corporation, with the restriction that a residence be erected costing not less than $3,000.

During the holiday rush, fifteen minute stops for automobilists, will be in order on the principal business streets in Westerly, in those areas, and thirty minute stops in those more remote. Patrolman George Madison and Leiroy Norman, following the orders of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, were kept busy Saturday. Infractors are said to have included former councilmen, professional men and even United States who had the little yellow cards, "See the Chief" wished on them.

When the superior court opens this (Monday) morning for the consideration of the Westerly trial calendar for the November term, with Associate Justice Antonio A. Capotosto on the bench, it is expected that an attorney-general's short docket will come up. The first case to come up following the secret indictment returned when grand jurors were called to West Kingston, will be that of State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly complainant vs. Joseph Sylvestre of Pawcatuck, who on another complaint was adjudged probably not guilty before Justice Michael J. Turano, in the Third District court of Westerly.

The second case will be that of State, Thomas E. Brown, complainant vs. James P. Confoni, bound over from the Third District court on the charge of sending a threatening letter to Otto Seidner for the purpose of extorting money.

A reported settlement was made in the case of Robert Adamson, Jr., of Mystic vs. Clifton D. Hall of Westerly, in which suit was brought to cover wages alleged due. The case was set down for trial before a jury in the town court of Stonington a week ago. On presentation of a certificate of illness by Hall from Dr. Henry L. Johnson, the case was continued one week and now settlement is reported.

The Westerly Teachers' club held a social Saturday evening in a local tea room, when teachers from the Pleasant street, White Rock and Beach street school gathered for a Christmas tree observance. A program of vocal and instrumental selections added to the pleasure of the evening.

A broken rail was reported Sunday afternoon on track No. 1, or west bound track of the main line of the New Haven railroad east of the High street birdbridge. A hurry call was sent by the tower to the track repair section men and express trains were routed from Bradford to Westerly on No. 5, or the siding track, until the rail was replaced.

Charles E. Redford, of New London arrived in Westerly Sunday morning to be the guest of relatives and friends.

Pity the Weak Skinny Children

Nature's greatest health builder and strength giver is Cod Liver Oil—it's full of vitamines of the first class—everyone knows that.

But pity the poor children—how can they take this nasty, nauseating stuff that invariably upsets their small, delicate stomachs?

Most of them can't and now—thank goodness—none of them have to.

For now Cod Liver Oil comes in tasteless sugar coated tablets, that are as easy for the kids to take as candy and they sure do build up the youngsters in double quick time.

So mothers, if any one of your loved ones is frail and peaked or isn't feeling right just ask Lee & Osgood or any druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets—60 cents.

One sickly, thin child aged 9 gained 12 pounds in seven months and now plays daily with other children.

Splendid for any run down, weak, skinny, nervous man or woman—thousands of boxes are sold daily—but be sure and ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets — the original and genuine. Try them for 30 days and if you aren't delighted with the improvement your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

REV. JOHN J. KEANE IS TRANSFERRED TO N. BRITAIN

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 13—Announcement was made at the first mass in St. Michael's church Sunday by Rev. John J. Keane, that notice received by him from Rt. Rev. Bishop Nilan, of Connecticut, transferring him to the assistant pastorate of St. Joseph's church, New Britain.

Rev. Fr. Keane, a native of New Haven, was ordained at St. Joseph's cathedral in Hartford, Dec. 23, 1917. For two years he was stationed at St. Donato's church, in New Haven.

Dec. 3, 1919, he came here as curate of St. Michael's church and during his term of six years has been mainly responsible for many admirable projects in the parish.

He organized St. Michael's Boy Scouts in 1920, and two years later organized St. Michael's Girl Scouts. He also was responsible for the organization of St. Michael's Fife and Drum corps and St. Michael's Girl Scout buglers.

He took an active part in organizing the local branch of the Connecticu Council of Catholic Women in January, 1923, and was also instrumental in the formation of St. Michael's council, No. 2497, K. of C., in which organization he now holds the office of lecturer.

Another of Fr. Keane's accomplishments was the institution of the Parish News, the monthly publication of St. Michael's parish, a venture which has proved very successful. Having a pleasing personality, Fr. Keane has made many friends during his residence here. All will regret to learn of his transfer.

Fr. Keane is not unacquainted with his new parish, for his cousin, Rev. Patrick Daly, served as pastor at St. Joseph's for 18 years, before his death last February. Fr. Keane had been a frequent visitor there during his cousins pastorate, also conducted an Italian mission there during 1923.

Rev. J. F. X. Quinn, pastor of St. Michael's church, announced a farewell reception in honor of Fr. Keane Sunday evening.

Fr. Keane's transfer notice requires that he report to his new station Thursday of this week, and he will leave Westerly that morning.

Miss Agnes Austin, Miss Mildred Austin and Miss Rachel Buddington attended the Parent-Teachers' meeting at Mystic Academy, Friday evening.

VIENNESE INFLUENCE AGAIN FELT IN ROME NIGHT LIFE

ROME, Dec. 13—(AP)—The influence of Vienna, before the World war a rival of Paris as the capital of European gayety, again is making itself felt in the night life of Rome.

Vaudeville "turns" and cabaret performers from France and England are gradually are giving way to Austrians. As a result, the soft Viennese German is heard more frequently than French in places where Romans go to amuse themselves.

WORLD WIDE DISARMAMENT

With an invitation from the council of the league of nations on its way to this country to participate in a disarmament conference which would include a number of nations outside of the league, there will be need for action by congress. It is desired that this country should participate, along with Germany and Russia. There would be a preliminary conference to determine what the programme would be but the aim is general disarmament.

On the question of disarmament the United States has made it clear how it stands. It initiated the movement for the naval disarmament that was obained at the Washington conference and it has ambitions for further progress in a similar direction. On the subject of general disarmament it is none the less interested, although when it comes to reducing the armies there is little that it can offer. Its army is so small at the present time as to be negligible. We are prepared to raise a large force in case of emergencies but we maintain no huge standing army. Thus whatever reductions are made in that direction must necessarily be done by the nations of Europe, and thus it is perhaps a matter for those countries to wrestle with.

But in the furtherance of the naval reduction plan and in the lending of moral suasion to the accomplishment of a desirable object there may be an important part which this country can play without becoming involved in European affairs.

This is therefore a matter which needs to receive the careful attention of congress, since it is congress that must reach the decision as to what will be done with the invitation from Geneva. There can be no desire to throw cold water on the movement which has been stimulated by the Locarno agreement. The good and the bad features involved in our participation in such a conference deserve to be and doubtlessly will be carefully weighed. The Geneva effort is apparently another move which is intended to advance the cause of world peace through the prevention of war.

BACK TO THE TROLLEYS

Is the lack of parking space bringing about less use of the automobile? That may be a difficult question to answer correctly, for what might seem to be the logical answer in one instance would not in another. According to the statistics of the American railway association the figures from more than half the railway companies in this country and Canada show an increase in patronage of one and one half per cent in August, September and October, and this is attributed to a certain degree to the difficulty encountered in finding parking space in the cities for automobiles.

With more cars in use each year it is a steadily increasing problem to find a place to leave a car, and it would not be surprising if owners came to the conclusion that it not only meant less lost time and less expense to take the trolleys to work and back home than to drive the car, look about for a parking place, or hire parking room and meet the cost of operation.

In Philadelphia the trolley company has sought to aid in the solution of the parking trouble by opening its barns to carbarns for automobiles at 25 cents a day and providing transportation by trolleys to such car owners to and from their work. This relieves the parking problem and increases trolley patronage and appears to be a good business stroke on the part of the electric company.

Certainly with the increasing number of motor vehicles and the demand for all the highway to keep traffic moving the chance of parking in the streets in the center of large cities is growing less and less, and the difficulty seems bound to increase. Much of the parking is unnecessary. For a great number, trolley transportation really meets the requirements and, considering the jams, traffic holdups and the time spent in getting parking places and walking from and back to the parked cars affords about as much freedom as the operation of one's own car.

With a general test of such being made and it being found that results in the way of service are satisfactory the street railway companies may yet expect to experience a still greater patronage.

"LOOK AT GEORGIA"

Georgia has been referred to as a glaring example in more than one respect, but particularly in regarding to lynchings and child labor. But Georgia has apparently felt the sting of nationwide reproach in certain respects if we can judge by the steps which have been taken in that state against child labor. Georgia has apparently seen a light and is turning in another direction. It has recognized the need for reform and it is proceeding to accomplish itself. Whether this is due to the fact that there was such an agitation in behalf of a federal law and later a constitutional amendment giving congress the authority to deal with this matter, it must be given credit for what it is now doing.

With the coming of the new year it will be impossible, under the newly enacted law, for a child to enter gainful occupation in that state under the age of 14, no child can go to work unless he can read and write English and none can be employed without first undergoing a physical examination to determine fitness in that respect. No child can be employed nights under 16 years.

Perhaps Georgia has not gone as far as it might in this reform, or as far as some would have advised, but it is to be realized that Georgia has made a start in a new direction. It is doing what it has for years been pointed out the states of the south should do for the protection of their children. It is not alone in this move, but it attracts attention all the more because of he fact that Georgia has been held up to public attention as the bad example for so long.

"Look at Georgia!" has been the cry in the past when the purpose was to focus thought upon deplorable child labor conditions. "Look at Georgia!" may still be the cry, but just now it is justified because the state is making a serious effort at betterment. It is giving heed to what others have done and are doing. The better element appears to be getting into action in that state and the hope is that equally radical action may yet be taken in regard to lynchings before further moves are made necessary in behalf of a federal lynching law.

THE WORLD COURT

This week in the senate of the United States will open the debate on the question of the United States joining the world court. It isn't a new proposition for it has been considered for some time, but it is time that it was determined one way or another what this country is going to do.

President Coolidge has recommended that we join. He has urged it more than once. He would have us adhere under the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge reservations and thereby have a hand in the carrying out of an object for which this country has long stood—an international tribunal of justice for handling those many questions which in the past have led to war.

There are opponents to joining the court quite the same as there were to joining the league of nations. Opposition in fact springs from the claim that the court is the product of the league and therefore we should have nothing to do with it. Senator Borah wants it divorced completely from the league before we think of joining it. Even though the league created it the president says that it appears to be independent of the league. At any rate the reservations are intended to cover any features which might be regarded as detrimental to this country and the hopelessness of having this country start an independent international court and getting anywhere with it, or of having the other nations of the world withdraw from the international court to start one which the senator from Idaho might create can be readily appreciated.

In the debate upon the question, it is to be hoped that there will be no needless waste of time, and that it will be possible to come to a vote and a decision reached in accord with the sentiment of members of the upper house. Let it be disposed of, and in accord with sovereign sentiment.

SOLOMON B. GRIFFIN

When Solomon B. Griffin, completed his duties as managing editor of the Springfield Republican, after a period of 40 years, he was not broken in health but there were literary efforts which he desired to accomplish which the newspaper duties would not permit. Thus he has been devoting his attention for the past several years to the writing of history, newspaper history and political history, from his vast storehouse of facts.

It is in the midst of this work that death takes him away. Even there his zeal caused him to overtax his strength and though beyond the three score and ten mark his passing is untimely and deplored. He was the same type of citizen that he was a newspaperman.

During the many years that he held the position of responsibility with the Springfield Republican he brought an influence to that newspaper that helped to give it a nationwide standing. He was a brilliant, forceful and convincing writer and he presented his opinions in a style that was effective and sincere. He was able, willing and anxious to render the valuable service that he did and it is a high, but fair tribute which is paid by The Republican when it says: "The Republican's debt to Solomon Bulkley Griffin, who died on Friday, can be acknowledged, but never liquidated. It is the kind of a debt that cannot be paid."

Some declare this is going to be a business congress, while others are convinced it will be a blockading and time wasting senate. You will have a chance to judge.

Ban Johnson with his long contract and increase in salary has reason to believe that his work at the head of the American league is approved and its continuance desired.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Sour milk will take rust marks from white goods.

Shred lettuce with the scissors when it is to be used in sandwiches.

Potato peelings boiled in a blackened aluminum pan will restore the brightness.

When polishing furniture rub the same way as the grain. The furniture will get bright more quickly.

When you are coloring candy or icings at home, use beet juice for pink, orange juice or egg for yellow, spinach for green and blackberry juice for lavender.

Apples that are to be baked should be pricked with a fork before being placed in the oven. If you do this you will find they will not break while cooking.

Keep several cans of fruit on the kitchen shelf. It will come in handy for the quick dessert when you are busy.

Dishes in which flour and eggs have been mixed can be quite easily cleaned if they are allowed to stand in cold water for a few minutes before washing. Hot water only hardens the mixture and makes it difficult to remove.

To remove brown stains from china put the articles in a saucepan with cold water and a lump of soda. Put the pan on the stove and let it boil for 15 minutes. Then rinse the china well and you will find that the marks have disappeared.

Dripping used for frying which has become brown can be cleared perfectly by adding water and a pinch of bi-carbonate of soda and putting it in the oven to boil. When it is cool pour off the water and the dripping will be clean and white, ready for use.

BETTER THAN FOOD

How about the woman who has a sign in her kitchen "Show Your Good Disposition When You Come in Here." She claims it is a big help for everybody and she enjoys it especially when her dinner is a little late.

CARPET SWEEPER

The box of a carpet sweeper should be frequently opened over dampened newspaper, the dirt emptied out and hair and line cleaned from the brushes with a button-hook, coarse comb or old scissors. The mechanism should be kept properly oiled.

CLEVER PLANNING

When a busy week is expected the wise housewife will have a baked ham for Sunday dinner. It is easily sliced or prepared in different ways until the last piece is gone and marketing means very little when a ham is in the house.

THE USEFUL WINGED CHAIR

No living room is complete without its wing or fireside chair and those covered with striped velvet in taupe brown or leaf green are an excellent choice.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

So often the powder compact loses its perfume as time goes on. If you will dampen the puff with your favorite perfume and then return it to the compact you will find it will give renewed scent to it.

Once a week brittle nails should be soaked in warm olive oil for five minutes. This will make them tougher and will also soften the horny cuticle around them. Every night a little of the oil or some cold cream should be rubbed on the fingertips to remain over night.

White of egg shampoo is made as follows: Whites of two eggs (the yolks are better for brunettes rosemary water, 1 ounce. Beat together and add one pint of soft water (rain water if possible.) Use warm in the usual way. Pure white soap may be melted into a jelly and used with the egg shampoo if you wish. Many use the white of egg shampoo separately.

DECORATIVE SCREENS

One of the loveliest of present practices in home furnishing is the frequent use of folding screens. There are innumerable varieties from the simple ones covered with chints to the exquisite Japanese screens. They are a pleasing substitute for portieres between living and dining rooms, in the bedroom they serve as shelter in front of the window at night and stand at a protective angle across the door during the day.

OLD MAPS

The vogue for maps used in screens, tea trays or scrap-baskets has resulted in many being placed on sale at various shops. Extremely interesting are the old maps from Italy with their patchlines of the Italian hill towns and villages.

REMOVES BURNT MARKS

Salt, moistened with vinegar, will remove burnt marks from enameled saucepans and dishes, but they should be soaked in cold soda water for a few hours first.

WILL BE DONE SOONER

If you are in rather a hurry to cook fresh beans or peas, put a pinch of bicarbonate of soda in the pan with them. It will hasten the cooking process without injuring flavor or appearance.

CLEAN UP THE DESK

DICTATES OF FASHION

The college girl this year combines chic and service in a tweed coat lined with muskrat.

A black velvet gown that received much attention in a colorful season has huge sleeves of white lace embroidered in gold.

The twinkling heels of evening slippers are jeweled affairs with multicolored stones set into a background of enamels.

Much velvet is being used on the new felt and velour hats, not only in bows, but in twisted and braided ornaments, and stick-ups.

Leather motifs in very conventional designs are appliqued on the new serge and satin frocks as well as on the cloth coats and suits.

A very new and unusual frock is made of velvet that shades from very deep red through the orange tones to green.

Dainty and durable is lingerie made of fine white batiste edged with real valenciennes and finished with tiny bandings of color.

A well known actress has set the fashion of having a model copied in chiffon in different colors. In each case the dress is identical in every way except for the color.

A new shade of brown is featured in close-fitting velvet hats cleverly draped to fit the contours of the head and absolutely devoid of trimming other than a small band and bow of grosgrain ribbon.

SMALL HATS, HIGH COLLARS

The designer of hats, who, overlooks the utilitarianism of his products this fall is out of luck, as evidenced by the enduring vogue for small velour hats. These have the back brim either cut away entirely or turned sharply and smoothly up against the head in this way they avoid traffic jams with the big fur collars.

CUFFS AND SHOES

Kids on the range nowadays are tenderly treated so they can furnish materials for cuffs and shoes. The newest soft kid gloves are distinguished by the most extraordinary cuffs decorated with embroidery and perforations. The kid shoes are afar plainer but require the same softness and delicacy of leather.

Much emphasis is laid on color in the designing of the new afternoon frocks of satin or velvet. All shades of blue are used, according to arrivals from Paris, with hois de rose, brown, red, pink, faded cyclamen and green also popular. Often two shades of the same color are combined in the same frock.

NEW EVENING WRAPS

The reversible wrap is among the smartest of the new models and nothing could exceed in beauty a model fashioned of silver and black metallic brocade combined with black velvet and lined throughout with ermine.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Dark linens should, after washing, be carefully ironed on the wrong side. Ironing on the right side not only gives them a shiny, shabby look but also causes the color to fade.

When a liquid which evaporates quickly is used to clean any article of clothing, place a clean white blotting paper under the soiled portion to keep the liquid from spreading over too much of the article.

To dye lace the Arabian color, make a strong tea, dip laces and dry till the desired shade. The lace will be soft and the tea will not harm it.

Iodine marks may be successfully removed by using liquid ammonia, a little of the spirit being poured into a saucer, the stained garment laid across it, and the spot dabbed repeatedly with the fingers until it disappears. It should then be rinsed in tepid water and washed with strong soap suds in the usual way.

CHEST IS HANDY FOR CHILD'S ROOM

A small chest proves a very handy article in the children's room. It is especially fine as a storage for toys and trinkets for it is low and easy to use. Then, too, it is not stationary and can be moved about the room to the most convenient spot.

RECORDS PHONE CALL

If you wish to know if your telephone has rung during your absence, put a piece of paper and a bit of carbon paper between the bell and the clapper. A mark will be made on the paper if the bell has rung, but if your phone is on a party line it will not register just your phone call.

BABY'S STORK PANTIES

Mothers spend a good many dollars on rubber pants for baby's first year, but this amount can be lessened if proper care is taken of them. After washing and drying the pants, put them in a box containing a few spoonfuls of talcum powder or cornstarch and shake vigorously. Shake off surplus powder and you will find they are silky and smooth as when new. Consequently, they will not tear so readily and will last many weeks.

CARE OF BLANKETS

When blankets show signs of wear, they should be neatly darned with wool of the same color. Holes may be patched with a piece of old blanket. If the sides are ragged, trim them with a pair of scissors and work the edges over with a blanket stitch, using wool the same color as the ends of the blanket. Old blankets may be utilized in many ways. Large ones can be cut down to make coverings for smaller beds or mattress blankets. If they have become very thin, they can be folded double, and the two edges should then be buttonholed together. Several pieces of the same size, no matter how thin and worn, if tacked together, covered with cretonne and quilted, will make warm cot covers. Odd lengths are useful for washing paint and for making floor cloths, and some should be set aside for patching purposes.

CONCEERNING WOMEN

Berlin, Germany, has a regular fire department composed of women.

There are about 50 women in Italy listed as practicing attorneys.

More than 50,000 women are employed in the cigar-making industry in the United States.

More than 300 cities in the United States now have women connected with their police departments.

Mrs. Ollie Macintosh of Hillside, N. J., is an expert carpenter in spite of 58 years of age. She now is planning to build a bungalow for herself and husband and do all the carpenter work herself.

More than 15 per cent of the women workers in New York are members of organized trade unions.

From 1880 to 1925 the number of women lawyers in this country has increased from 75 to more than 5,500.

THOUGHTS FOR THE GUEST

An attractively arranged bowl of fruit on the table in the guest room will be just as welcome as an equally attractive bowl on the breakfast table.

MARMALADE JAR

An attractive little marmalade or jam pot is of pink china mounted on a nickel base. To this base is attached a handle, and on the handle is a place to hang the jam spoon.

RECIPES

Coffee Souffle: Soak two tablespoons of granulated gelatin in one-half cup of cold water twenty minutes, then add to two cups of fresh made strong hot coffee; add two-thirds cup of sugar and strain into a bowl, set in a large one containing ice water, cool slightly, then beat with a wire whip, until stiff. Fold in the white of three eggs beaten until stiff and continue beating until mixture will hold its shape. Turn into a ring mold first dipped in cold water. Chill over night, when ready to serve remove from mold to a cold platter and pile whipped cream, sweetened and delicately flavored with vanilla, grate sweet chocolate over cream in the center of the ring.

Chocolate Pie: Scald one cup of milk in the double boiler with one and one-half squares of chocolate, grated; one-half cup of sugar and one and one-half teaspoons of butter. Add two slightly beaten egg yolks, three and one-half tablespoons of cornstarch and one-eighth teaspoon of salt, dilute with one-fourth cup of cold milk and cook 20 minutes, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens, afterward occasionally. Remove from fire when cool, add three-fourths teaspoon of vanilla. Cover and set in a cold place over night.

When ready to serve turn into a baked pastry shell and pile whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla, over top of pie, using a pastry bag with rose tube attached. The pastry shell, like the filling, may be made the day before. If the custard filling seems too stiff, it may be reheated in the double boiler and diluted with a little milk, cooled and use as directed.

The filling for lemon pie may also be made the day before. The pastry shells should be kept in a cool place and slightly heated, then cooled again before filling.

The Four Loggers.

In work you'll always find that four
Do twice what two can do, and more.
—Paddy the Beaver.

Buster Bear, having decided that it was a waste of his time to tear holes in the new dam of Paddy the Beaver because Paddy and his family rebuilt as fast as Buster could destroy, paid no more attention to what the Beavers were doing. If they wanted a new pond and were willing to work so hard to get it that was their business, not his, he told Yowler the Bob Cat, and nothing that Yowler could say caused Buster to change his mind in the least.

So with Buster out of the way, Paddy and Mrs. Paddy and the two nearly grown children had only Yowler the Bob Cat and Old Man Coyote to watch out for, and this helped quite a lot. Old Man Coyote came around occasionally, but he didn't bother them much. It was much easier and required far less patience to hunt meadow and wood mice. Yowler wasted a great deal of time hiding near where the Beaver family worked, but clever and stealthy as he was a Beaver dinner remained something to dream about, not actually have.

But Yowler isn't one to give up easily. He still had hope. It was a long, long time before winter would cover that pond with ice, and those Beavers would have a lot of work to do to cut and harvest their food supply. That would be the time when his chance might come. So Yowler kept out of sight and hoped with all his might that after a while Paddy and his family would forget all about him.

Came a time at last when the pond in that swamp up the Laughing Brook was so big that the water was quite up to a certain little grove of poplar trees. Then Paddy passed the word that the dam was high enough and that the only work on that now would be to see that all breaks in it were promptly repaired. It wasn't necessary to have any part of that pond as deep as parts of their old pond, for this new pond had but one purpose and this purpose was to float logs and branches down to a point where they could be taken down the Laughing Brook to the food pile in the old pond. There would be no need for swimming under the ice in this pond, and so no need of making it deep enough for this purpose.

With the dam completed, Paddy and his family took a much needed rest, a vacation. They played about and had a good time for what remained of the summer. But with the coming of fall play days ended. It was time to begin logging. That is what Paddy told his family.

"I have a feeling," said he one afternoon, "that we are going to have an early winter."

"I have a feeling," said he one afternoon, "that we are going to have an early winter."

early winter. If this is the case we must begin logging early. We not only have to go quite a bit farther to cut our food supply this year, but we must get it down to our food pile after it is cut and this will take more time. If ice should form before we get enough food down here to last all winter we will have a hard time. There is no excuse for having a hard winter. It is wholly a matter of getting busy at once and making sure that we have plenty of food before Jack Frost arrives. Tonight we will begin cutting."

So shortly after jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had dropped from sight behind the Purple Hills four loggers started across the old pond of Paddy the Beaver. Straight to the upper end where the Laughing Brook enters it they swam with Paddy in the lead. Up the Laughing Brook they made their way. They could swim because Paddy had raised the old dam a little and this had backed the water up the Laughing Brook making it deep enough for swimming.

At the new dam they stopped just long enough for Paddy to look it over and make sure that it was quite as it should be. Then they entered the new pond and swam straight to the place where on the edge of it grew that little grove of poplar trees. They halted in the water long enough to carefully test the air with their noses, to listen for any suspicious sound, to look sharply around. Then Paddy led the way ashore.

"Each will cut one young tree," said he. "Of course we will begin with those nearest the water."

Each went to a tree, sat up and bit out a chip with those great cutting teeth. The four loggers were at work.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Colonel Merch M. Stewart, who has been designated to succeed Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen as superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point, is regarded as one of the most efficient infantry officers in the United States army. He formerly was an instructor at West Point and at Plattsburgh and at present is commandant of cadets at the military academy. Colonel Stewart is a graduate of the War college and in the early part of his military career he saw active service in Cuba and the Philippines. At the commencement of the war between the United States and Germany he won a lieutenant colonelcy by his work as chief of staff of the Seventy-Sixth division at Camp Devens. Later he became an international figure as commander of the American units of the Allied forces operating near Archangel. Colonel Stewart is a native of Virginia.

From Small Beginnings

Luther Burbank, the Wizard of Plant Life.

One of the most amazing feats in modern times has been the rich development of plant life by Luther Burbank, a development that has attracted world-wide attention. To the rider of the western desert regions it seemed nothing short of a miracle to grow cactus without spines, a cactus that was actually useful instead of being merely a picturesque bit of desert scenery, or an element of danger. The development of such a contribution to human happines as the celebrated "Burbank Potato" is a far greater miracle, even though it attracts less attention. Now on every soda fountain the thirsty passer-by may obtain a glass of loganberry juice. Only a few years ago, the so-called loganberry was not in existence. That rich and luscious combination of berries, combining at once great size, sweetness and flavor, is only one more of the hundreds of plant combinations that have been brought into being in recent years.

All this great work in developing new vegetable forms that never before were in existence has come about largely through the influence of Luther Burbank, who has given his entire life to the stury of plants and their development. The work has called for the utmost patience and care, and for months and years of experiments repeated many times.

From his boyhood Luther Burbank had been a gardener. He was born on a farm and taught to cultivate his own little garden, even when a child. When he grew older he cultivated larger and larger gardens until he was able to sell his products to advantage. At that time his home was in Massachusetts, and not in California, where so many of his recent experiments have been carried on. The market gardener saw that if he was to meet the competition of rivals he must produce more and better products than they could produce. The mere crop of plants was a joy to Luther Burbank, and the financial side of the work only an added incentive. He was unusually successful in producing plants early in the season, and in producing large growths. This turned him to experiment, and led him to a busines in selling seeds. Soon he was so completely fascinated by the experimental side of his work that he moved to California, at the age of 26, where he could work under the most favorable conditions.

Since that time he has led the world in showing what can be done with plant life if one has the patience and the skill that are needed.

The smallest Catholic church in the world is on the Old Palo Alto plantation in Louisiana. The chapel is large enough for a small altar and standing room for the priest celebrating mass. The congregation occupies benches outside the chapel.

POLICE FOUND MEN FIGHTING ON STAIRS

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13.—Heeding the screams of a woman resident in the Sadd block on Main street, here about 11 o'clock Sunday night, Officers William Hurley and Roderick Lariviere rushed into the building and found Joseph Valli and Joseph Dion, both of whom occupy rooms in the block, fighting desperately in the stairway. Valli had pulled a portion of the staircase off and was hitting Dion over the head with it when the officers arrived.

Dion was somewhat bruised and as near as could be learned the argument got its start in some kind of rivalry over a woman. Valli is married, but the opponent in the encounter is single. Both men were taken to police headquarters where Valli was charged with assault. Dion will be charged with breach of the peace and probably intoxication when the case comes up in police court Monday morning.

As every bride is beautiful, we have often wondered where all the homely married women come from.

OBITUARY.
Mrs. William Friswell.

The death of Hannah Holroyd, 81, widow of William Friswell, occurred Sunday afternoon at 2.15 o'clock, at her home, No. 37 Franklin street, following an illness of only a few hours. Mrs. Friswell had enjoyed the best of health and her death came as a shock to members of her family and to her many friends in Norwich.

She was born in Halifax, England, on January 2, 1844, the daughter of Joseph and Mary Holroyd, but came to this country when about four years old, and had made her home in Norwich for about 56 years. On December 7, 1865, in Roxbury, Mass., she was united in marriage with William Friswell, whose death occurred in Norwich in July, 1904. Following her marriage she lived for about a year in San Francisco, then came to Norwich, where she made her home for the remaining years of her life.

Mrs. Friswell was a member of Trinity Episcopal church, of Home Chapter of King's Daughters and the Woman's Relief corps of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R. in her church and in the organizations with which she was affiliated, Mrs. Friswell was always an active member. Enjoying good health until the last she had participated in activities in her church up until the last days of the week past.

A woman of lovable qualities, she had endeared herself to a host of friends in this city and her death will come as a shock to them. Those left to mourn the loss of a loved one have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

Mrs. Friswell is survived by one daughter, Mrs. George D. Johnson, of Mystic; three sons, George W., Albert J., and Frederick A. Friswell, all of Norwich, also four grandchildren.

FORMER NORWICH MAN RESIGNS HIS POSITION

The November issue of the National Business Review carried an article about the resignation of L. J. Chamansky, as department head with R. H. Macy & Co., formerly connected with the firm of Porteous & Mitchell Co. of this city.

Mr. Chamansky's resignation is to take effect on February 1, 1926, after thirty years connection with Macy & Co.

The article reads as follows:

While it has been known among Mr. Chamansky's friends and associates for the last year that he wished to be relieved of active duty that he might realize an ambition to travel, the announcement nevertheless was hailed with regret by the legion in Macy's and in the trade that have or years known and loved Mr. Chamansky. His position in the field is unique, honorable, and deservedly prominent; it was under his direction that the women's apparel and accessory department of Macy's was first rejuvenated, then expanded to its present proportions.

Three decades have unrolled in the consummation of this program and the outlay of women's departments that is now Macy's will long stand as a monument to the efforts of Mr. Chamansky, one of the true pioneers in the field of stock merchandising as it is now administered.

Mr. Chamansky affiliated with the Macy organization while it was still located on Fourteen street, in the days when stock houses were unknown.

Mr. Chamansky retired at the age of fifty-eight, having served thirty years with Macy's and having previously been associated with the firm of Porteous & Mitchell, Norwich, Conn. He started with them at the age of fifteen and came to Macy's as buyer in ready-to-wear. Mr. Chamansky will be succeeded by E. I. Marks, who for two years has been his assistant and right-hand man.

Mr. Chamansky expects to relax in Florida for some time after his actual retirement in February, then return to New York preparatory to more extensive travel.

LAW BARS THANKSGIVING CELEBRATION IN ENGLAND

OXFORD, Dec. 13—(AP)—If Oxford Americans are to be virtuous and strictly observant of the laws and ordinances which the wisdom and high morality of the University Fathers set down for their guidance, they must abstain fro mthe usual American church service on Thanksgiving day.

It is not that the turkey, the cranberry and the Pilgrim conscience are under the ban. The prohibition which applies to Thanksgiving services was enacted in the year 1350, and apparently without thought of New England. It provides that no feast or holiday of any foreign nation shall ever be celebrated solemnly in any church of Oxford under penalty of the greater excommunication.

As the Fourth of July is seldom celebrated under cover, it would seem not to come under the prohibition. Coming as it does in vacation time, the Fourth is little known in Oxford and the dignified old Rhode Islander who a few years ago on this holiday proposed as a toast to his English friends, "Here's to the day we licked you," was considered rather more eccentric than witty.

AUTO DRIVERS MUST PROVE FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY TO GET REGISTRATIONS

What will be, perhaps, the first attempt anywhere to restrict the issuance of motor vehicle registrations to financially responsible people will be undertaken in Connecticut beginning January 1. From that time on, according to the current issue of the motor vehicle bulletin, applicants for registration certificates who are convicted of reckless driving, including speeding, operating while intoxicated, or evading responsibility, or who cause the death of, injury to, any person, or cause damage to property of at least $100, will be required to produce satisfactory evidence of his or her ability to pay for damage which his car might do, up to $11,000.

Four different methods by which such applicants may qualify for registration under the new law, which was adopted in the 1925 session of the legislature, have been provided, as follows:

1—By insurance. Blanks are to be furnished to all insurance companies doing business in the state upon which they are to certify to the department that an insurance policy covering the liability under the statute has been issued to the applicant for registration. The financial responsibility required is that it must be sufficient to satisfy any claim for damages by reason of personal injury to, or death of, any person, to at least $10,000, and for property damage to the extent of $1,000.

2—By filing a bond, which, in the case of a real estate bond, may be made a lien on the property specified by the bondsman. In instances where real estate bonds are offered, the department will pass on the security and make a charge of not more than $10 for searching the title.

3—By deposit of a sum of money with the state treasurer. In such cases the state treasurer will issue a receipt for the deposit and pay interest on the deposit, if so directed by the state board of control, at a rate of not more than 5 per cent. a year.

4—By deposit of collateral with the state treasurer. The commissioner of motor vehicles is the determining authority of the state as to the amount and kind of collateral that will be accepted.

Applicants for registration certificates who have good driving records will be exempt, unless they subsequently put themselves under the requirements of the law, by their own acts. Forty-two per cent. of Connecticut motor vehicle registrants are already insured. This is evidently the biggest percentage existing in any state.

The experience of the motor vehicle department shows that about 15 per cent. of the state's registrants are involved each year in motor vehicle accidents or convictions required to be reported to the department. About half of these reports concern happenings where no particular damage has been done and no departmental decree follows. The other half, or between 5 per cent. and 6 per cent. of all persons concerned in accidents or convictions, will be required to qualify under the financial responsibility regulations. This will bring before the department approximately 16,000 persons a year whose cases must be decided.

"It will be the policy of the state to administer this law strictly," says the bulletin. "To require financial responsibility is no hardship; consequently the policy of the state will be to require qualification as invariably as possible * * * No person needs to come under it except by his own act because anyone who is arrested and charged with any one of the three offenses included under the law, may, in anticipation of the action of the department relative to financial responsibility, defend himself through a court proceeding and establish his innocense. If he is not able to establish it, then, by his own act, he has placed himself, if he is a car registrant, under the provisions of the law and will be compelled to comply before he can continue to register a car in his own name.

"It is obvious that one of the main effects of administration will be to deter any registrant from allowing any unauthorized or unqualified person to drive his automobile, because the registrant is the one who will be held responsible for financial qualification, if the car, while in authorized control is in an accident or if the driver thereof is disciplined."

In cases where the department's analysis of an accident results in a finding of personal injury which will require the car owner to qualify as to financial responsibility, hearings will be granted, if deemed necessary.

A new section of the motor vehicle department will be established for the administration of this law. One or two members of the state police will be attached to the section for investigation and detection purposes. It is an offense under the Connecticut law to fail to return the certificate of registration and number plates of any car when required by the department and any police officer can be forthwith ordered to secure possession of such and return them to the department, under such circumstances.

All applicants for registration will start off with a clean slate as the law goes into effect. The fact that there is in the driving record of an applicant no report of an accident or conviction which occurred prior to January 1 will not militate against him in getting his 1926 registration, but his previous record will be taken into consideration by the department in passing upon his case in the event of a subsequent incident sufficient to call into question his financial qualification. If, on the ground of the subsequent incident, the department should hold him liable to financial qualification, his failure so to qualify will result in the prompt suspension of his registration.

H. A. TIRRELL NAMED THAMES BANK DIRECTOR

At a meeting of the directors of the Thames National bank, Saturday, Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, was elected a director of James Hubbard who felt resignation of James L. Hubbard felt that it was necessary he resign the office owing to lack of time and his resignation was regretfully accepted. Mr. Hubbard's grandfather, James L. Hubbard was a director of the bank from its organization in 1865 until 1890. Mr. Hubbard's father was also a director of the bank from 1891 until 1918 and was president of the bank from 1913 to 1918.

DRIVER ABANDONS CAR WHEN POLICE APPROACH

A Buick seven passenger automobile with Massachusetts registration numbers was taken in charge late Sunday night by the local police on suspicion that it was stolen. The machine, with three men in it, tore along Thames Street at a fast rate of speed. Reaching Thames square the driver cut to the left of the flashing beacon and continued up the hill on West Main street.

Officer Henry Davis secured the number of the machine as it cut the beacon and the officer started after it. Near the top of the hill the machine had come to a stop. As the officer approached the machine, a man supposed to have been the driver, jumped out of the car and running down an alley disappeared. He left his two passengers in the machine.

They were taken in charge and escorted to police headquarters where they told Sergt. John Casey that they had asked for a ride in New Rochelle, N. Y., and said they were on the way to Boston. They gave their names as Earl Jacobs, 82 West Dudley, Mass., and Ralph Medhurst, 31, Rocky Hill, Ct. They were held pending further investigation. Police were scouring the city last night on the lookout for the driver of the machine. The car was placed in Bailey's garage for the night. There was nothing in the machine to give a clue as to the owner.

TWENTY MORE CANDIDATES FOR LOCAL MOOSE ORDER

Twenty applications for membership were received by Norwich Lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., during the lodge's second week's drive for 75 candidates for the New Year's Eve initiation. The charter, now open, will close at that time. During the present open charter the lodge has broken all previous records for new members.

The committee in charge of the plans for the New Year's initiation have contracted with Boston entertainers to put on a high class programme after the initiation. There will also be a supper for the lodge members after the degree work.

Political orators talk and talk, but the bright-faced girl on the silver dollar isn't saving a word.

NORWICH COUPLE MARRIED FORTY-FOUR YEARS AGO

Today marks the 44th wedding anniversary of Police Sergeant and Mrs. Myron O. Morgan of No. 13 Rogers avenue. Sergt. and Mrs. Morgan will observe the anniversary with a family reunion at their home. They were married in Old Mystic, town of Stonington, Dec. 14, 1881. They made their home in Old Mystic until March, 1882, when they came to Norwich to reside.

Sergt. Morgan is a native of Center Groton and was born August 16, 1859, the son of Captain Elijah Bailey Morgan and Jane M. Whiteman Morgan. Sergt. Morgan became affiliated with the Norwich police department as a supernumerary officer in November 1892. On July 1, 1900 he was made a regular patrolman. Since that time he has made a remarkably fine record as a police officer and a year ago was appointed police sergeant.

Before her marriage Mrs. Morgan was Jennie F. Church. She is a native of Poquonnoc, Groton, and was born January 17, 1863, the daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth Bogue Church. Sergt. and Mrs. Morgan have had three children, of whom two are living. Ripple G. Morgan, and Emma F. Morgan, both of this city. Ripple G. Morgan is an ex-service man, having served in the world war with the 102nd Division. Sergt. and Mrs. Morgan have a host of warm friends who extend them best wishes and congratulations on the anniversary of their marriage.

FUNERALS
Charles F. Ruback

The funeral of Charles F. Ruback was held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fred Maples, No. 24 Lincoln avenue, with many relatives and friends present. The service was conducted by Frank Coxeter, lay reader for the Christian Science church, and the quartette of the Central Baptist church sang two hymns.

The body will be taken to Higganum, N. Y., today (Monday) and the burial will take place Tuesday in that town. The Henry Allen & Son Company have charge of the local arrangements.

Following an illness of only one day the death of Charles F. Ruback, 78, occurred Friday at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Maples of 24 Lincoln avenue. Mr. Ruback had been troubled with a cold for several weeks but his condition had not been such as to cause alarm and he was about as usual until Thursday, when his condition suddenly became more serious.

He was born in New York, in February, 1847, the son of Frederick and Mary Wardell Ruback and practically all of his life was spent in that state. Following the death of his wife, seven years ago, he made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Frederick J. Maples, and came to this city about three years ago.

Mr. Ruback was affiliated with the Masons for more than 50 years and was a member of Ancient City lodge, F. & A. M., of Albany, N. Y. He was a member of the Methodist church in Albany, but had not affiliated with any local church. Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. L. D. Sowle, of Gloversville, N. Y.; Mrs. Charles Fink, of Galway, N. Y., and Mrs. Frederick J. Maples, of Norwich; also three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

AUTOS CRASH AT STREET INTERSECTION

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13.—A Hudson coach operated by Joseph Osso of this city and an Essex touring car driven by Hyman Sephwitz of North Windham collided with slight damage at the intersection of Ash and Natchaug street about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Officer Leahy investigated the accident and the drivers notified him that they would settle the damages between themselves.

Trans-Atlantic vessels sailing from Liverpool for the United States and Canada carried 19,000 bags of Christmas mail.

JOHN KINNEY TINGLEY PRIZE ESSAY WINNER

John Kinney Tingley, son of Dr. and Mrs. Witter E. Tingley, has been awarded first prize in the essay contest for grammar school children held by the Norwich chamber of commerce, on the subject of Reasons Why Norwich is an Attractive City in Which to Live. Fourteen grammar school children submitted essays. Second prize was awarded to Olive Rathbone, of the Elizabeth street school, and Sophie Cimikoski of the Greeneville grammar school, was awarded third prize. On the latter award the judges were three to two in favor of Sophie Cimikoski, the two judges favoring the essay written by Daniel O'Neil of St. Patrick's school. The judges finally agreed that Sophie Cimikoski's essay was worthy of the third prize, special mention being given Daniel O'Neil.

Each essay had a number and the 14 essays were given to the judges with no means of identification other than the number.

The prizes were $5, first prize; $3, second prize; and $2, third prize. In addition the chamber of commerce has secured blue ribbons, suitably inscribed for the prize winners and for those who received honorable mention. The prizes will be distributed this week by representatives of the chamber who will visit the schools to make the awards.

The judges, Mrs. James J. Donohue, Mrs. Arthur L. Peale, Andrew B. Davies, Frank H. Pullen and Lee Roy Robbins, were very much impressed with the high quality of all the essays. The fourteen writers were:

Anna Duch, West Town Street school; Sophie Cimikoski, Greeneville school; Delia Dugas, Occum school; Albert Airey, Wequonnoc school, Taftville; Dorothy Stewart, Broad Street school; Nicholas Conaty, Laurel Hill school; John Tingley, Broadway; Olive Rathbone, Elizabeth Street school; Daniel O'Neil, St. Patrick's school; Eugene Kiezuk, St. Joseph's school; Velina Ann Cyr, St. Mary's school; Catherine Swain, Sacred Heart school; Edwin Wigley, Bishop school.

Location—Rivers; rural districts; its relation to state, other cities, and the coast.

Transportation—Rail; bus; boat; inter-city.

Commerce—Business; banks.

Protection—Fire; police.

Schools—Connecticut college; Norwich Free Academy; grammar schools; other schools.

Hospitals—Backus hospital; State Hospital for Insane; Tuberculosis sanatorium.

Homes—Historical interest; rents at low prices.

Sports and Recreation—Kinds, places.

Norwich is an attractive city to live in for many good reasons.

It enjoys a very favorable position at the junction of the Yantic and Shetucket rivers, which form the Thames, making a fine river harbor. The Yantic and Shetucket furnish twelve miles of water power. In the midst of a prosperous farming and dairying region it can get these products at a moderate price. It is located in the southeastern part of the state, not far from the coast, yet it is in the center of forests, which seemingly come into the heart of the city. The large cities of Hartford and Providence are but two hours' ride distant. In twelve hours sixteen states, and all of eastern Canada can be reached, which means that products of Norwich can reach 38,000,000 people in that short time.

The industrial conditions of Norwich are excellent. A great number of articles are manufactured, including leather goods, carriages, thermos bottles, cotton and woolen goods, cutlery, firearms, boxes and bobbins. The mills are very prosperous, employing thousands, and giving adequate wages, so that there are no labor troubles.

Norwich is fortunate in having two railroads and a good river boat line, as well as several bus lines connecting it with other cities. All give fine service, and carry on a healthy competition, which tends to make them better and keeps the rates down. In the city trolley lines give transportation. The taxi rates are lower than any in the state! Trucks take a portion of the goods to be transported.

It has made an enviable reputation as a commercial city, and is the banking and business city of eastern Connecticut. It has the safest banks and the most trustworthy men as bankers who stand ready to back their banks under all conditions. The Norwich Savings society is the second largest savings bank in the state.

Excellent fire protection is given by the modern and up to date fire department. The equipment is the best to be had. The law enforcement is carried out as far as possible by the excellent police force.

Connecticut college, an institution of learning for girls, is only ten miles distant. Norwich has one of the best high schools in the country in the Norwich Free academy. Connected with the academy is the Slater Memorial hall, which contains the Peck library, a museum and an auditorium, unexcelled in the state. The grammar school system is the best possible. These are splendid parochial schools and a private school, a commercial school and a night school. Three new school buildings have been built in the past year. School doctors, nurses, and a dental hygienist take the best of care of pupils' health.

The Backus hospital is a class A general hospital, admirably located on the brow of a hill. The new nurses home is among the best in the state. Norwich has two large state institutions, the insane hospital and the Tuberculosis sanatorium, valued together at nearly $2,000,000.

Many old homes can be found in Norwich that are beautiful as well as interesting. For people who do not own their home, rents are not too high. There are no crowded tenement districts.

One may see his or her favorite sport in Norwich, be it baseball, football, tennis, golf or basketball. There is a fine 18-hole golf course. Play grounds are abundant for the children.

The traffic is regulated in an efficient and business-like way. One way streets are so placed as to cause no trouble, yet they minimize congestion. The reservoirs are wholesome. Gas and electricity are furnished at a low cost because of municipal ownership. Streets are well paved and kept in good condition. The numerous stately churches are conveniently located. In the Otis library we have a collection of books to suit any taste. The Mohegan park in which a naturelover would revel, is well kept. First class merchandise can be bought in the two fine department stores, as well as in special shops. There are two excellent newspapers, which are connected with the Associated Press. All the societies are represented, such as the Rotary, Lions, Elks. The Chamber of Commerce is striving to make the educational, social and commercial conditions the best in eastern Connecticut.

When all the attractions are considered, and compared with the detractions, which are very few, one can see that our Norwich is the most attractive city in the world for its size.

PACIFIC MAIL BOATS CLOSE HISTORIC 77-YEAR CAREER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13—(AP)—On a dull November day 77 years ago, a great side-wheel steamer, her decks teeming with humanity unkempt, but riotously joyous gold seekers, many of them haggard from tropical fever, came through the Golden Gate and anchored in the stream, the first steam vessel to enter this roadstead.

On a sparkling fall day in 1925 a trim freight craft, loaded to the Plimsoll mark with a rich cargo, was warped into a towering dock on the San Francisco water front and spun down the house flag from her main truck for the last time.

These two events marked the beginning and the end of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, oldest steam water carrier on the continent with the exception of the Cunard, and once credited with being the greatest of the world's ocean transportation companies.

From the time that the California paddled into the harbor until the trim Solano tied up and handed over her papers to her new owners, the history of this company was spiced with romance and shadowed deep by tragedy.

The California put to sea from New York on October 6, 1848 with a happy company bound for New Granada, far to the south where the Americas join, and for the Oregon wilderness. While she was on the way, word came to her that gold had been discovered in California. The news brought on a sort of treasure madness to the ship's company. She moved swiftly down the Spanish Main under throbbing boilers until she came to the Isthmus of Panama. There the treasure seekers left her in one terror horde.

Their hope was to get to Panama and catch a boat there which would get them to the Golconda before the California arrived. They drifted up the Chagres River in canoes poled along lazily by the coppery natives who would stop for rest at every shady Place. They choked the boulder lined trails that had been blazed out three centuries before by the Spanish conquerors bringing back the treasures of the Incas and the Aztecs. They fell and died of fever and exhaustion when the trails gave way to tangled jungle growth. A few pitiful hundred reached Panama at last— to find no ship there.

Many dropped from the dread Chagres fever while they waited. Other hundreds joined them from other ships there.

But 400 could get aboard and they pack in 'tween decks, sweating, swearing, but feverish with hope. The others were left behind to await other craft or to die.

A few weeks later, the California, her galley bare, her coal gone, but her devil-may-care company sustained by their great excitement, paddled into the harbor of San Francisco.

Captain John Marshall, the skipper, who curiously enough bore the name of the discoverer of gold, led one party into the hills and was lost to history. Another who fairly leaped over the California's side was William Van Voorhees, who later became Secretary of state of the United States.

The California waited and waited in the harbor, but her gold and crew never returned. Some historians say that the crew of the second ship of the line, the Oregon, was put in chains after her arrival in San Francisco, so that it could not yield to the siren call from the "Diggin's."

The history of American finance would not be complete without frequent references to the Pacific Mail. Established in 1847 in New York by William H. Aspinwall and associates on a capitalization of $400,000 and with a mail subsidy of $199,000 annually from the government, it had reached the towering capitalization of $3,000,000 by 1850.

The line was formed to institute a monthly mail service to the new territory opened up by the treaty of peace between Mexico and the United States of April 12, 1848, and vast unexplored Oregon lands made available by the Anglo-American treaty of the same period. The Western terminus was to be on Puget Sound, but the gold rush blocked that plan, and the ships tied up at the rainbow's end in California.

In the late '50s, Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt offered some lively competition with his steamer line from Nicaragua up the west coast, but trade agreements soon dulled the edge of this opposition. In 1865, the company by a master stroke broke the English and French monopoly of eastern Asiatic trade by starting a line between San Francisco and Hongkong by way of the Hawaiian Islands and Japan, and won an annual mail subsidy of $500,000. By 1867, the company had a fleet of 25 big steamers on the waters of two oceans and the commercial mastery of one of those oceans, the Pacific.

The company survived some 14 stunning disasters to its vessels, the greatest of which, perhaps was the loss of the steamer Central America off the coast of Florida in 1857.

The Central American buckled up in a storm, with the loss of 419 of her 583 passengers and crew. Captain Hernton, famed Amason explorer, who was master, went down with his ship. In the same year the steamer Columbia was lost in the China Sea.

The company's ships also made vivid history of another sort. The Mongolia, big passenger liner, was credited with being the first American vessel to sink a German submarine in the World war, this event happening, however, after she had passed out of the company's hands.

In 1916, the company, hit hard by the wage and other provisions of the Seamen's Act, sold its big trans-Pacific liners, which had held Pacific trade supremacy for a quarter of a century, and substituted three smaller boats.

Later, the company acquired five boats of the President type under charter from the government. The sale of these boats to the Dollar Steamship Company a few months ago marked the beginning of the end of the historic old carrier. The route between the Pacific and the Atlantic by way of the Panama Canal was maintained for a time, but was finally disposed of, and the company was left with but one steamer, the Solano.

ZACHARY TAYLOR'S SHRINE AT LAST TO BE ON U. S. GROUND

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 13—(AP)—The body of Zackary Taylor, hero of the Mexican war and twelfth president of the United States, is at last to rest on ground owned by the government he served.

Awarding of a contract for the construction of a mausoleum to house the bodies of the victor of Buena Vista and his wife gives last recognition to the man who defeated General Santa Anna's army of 21,000 with 5,000 volunteers and added millions of square miles to the area of his native land.

General Taylor's grave since 1850 has been marked by a granite shaft 27 feet high, erected near the spot six miles northeast of here where he opposed Clay and Webster on the question of territorial admissions.

The future shrine of General Taylor, to be near the old one will be of Indiana limestone and will enclose sarcophagi of verde antique marble to contain the bodies. Bronze doors with glazed upper panels will permit the interior, illuminated by a window in the rear wall, to be seen. The length of the mausoleum will be 16 feet.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Dec. 13—Announcement of an All-Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic League eleven will be announced here tomorrow by Roy J. Guyer, professor of physical education at the Connecticut Agricultural college and Randolph W. Whaples, a member of the junior class, and who with Mr. Guyer, officiated in many of the league games.

Their comment follows:

Centers

There were two outstanding centers in the league. One, DeRocco of Westerly, and the other, Schwarts of Norwich. DeRocco gets the call for the first eleven because we consider him a more experienced pivot man. He tips the beam at 180 pounds, and is fast, aggressive, a sure passer, and a demon on defense. He is not picked on his defensive ability alone, however, as time after time he has opened gaping holes in opponent's lines for his backs to plunge through when a first down was needed. DeRocco has a pure love for the game, and would be an asset to any high school team in the state.

Guards

For the guard positions we have selected Polski and Schwarts of Norwich. Schwartz, who played center for Coach Whitney's team, has been shifted to a guard berth because we feel we could not leave him off our all-star steam. This man was green at the beginning of the season, but developed faster than any man in the league. He is big, powerful and aggressive, and would make an ideal side partner for DeRocco. Polski, the other guard, was not out-played all year, and in fact stood out above all the other guards. Polski was equally strong on the offense and defense, and had the ability to keep the other linemen working all the time. We consider him one of the best high school linemen in the state. He would have shown up better with a stronger team.

Tackles

There were several good tackles in the league and the task of picking the best two is very difficult. After considering all the qualifications of a good tackle, we have selected Adams of Stonington, and Novogroski of Westerly. In Adams, Stonington had what we consider an ideal tackle; a big, rangy, powerful aggressive fellow with an abundance of stamina and a football heart. This man was hard to keep out, and often he slashed through to throw the ball carrier for a loss. He opened wide holes on his side of the line, was ever alert to recover fumbles, and hurried opposing kickers at all times.

Novogroski, Westerly's big captain, gets the call for the other tackle berth. He played a steady, consistant game. He was especially good on the defense, possessing the ability to use his hands well. Novogroski was not as fast as some of the other tackles, but he has played the game long enough to have the edge because of his experience and consistency.

Ends

Much to our surprise, we did not see many exceptionally good ends in the league. Fryer of Stonington and Salameno of Westerly are considered the pick of the lot. Bryer is a fast man, and one hard to take out of a play; he is a fairly good tackler, and is aggressive. Salameno, Westerly's fullback, was shifted to end because of his defensive play. This little fellow is a bearcat on the defense; tackling hard and clean. He diagnoses plays quickly and accurately, and follows the ball like a hawk. He is the type of player who never seems to get hurt, and to our minds, he is an ideal end

Quarterback

We do not hesitate when we pick Meikle of Westerly for the signal barking job. The only real triple threat in the league; a man who runs his team well, and always picks the right play at the right time. Meikle is the fastest and best open field runner in Eastern Connecticut. He kicks well, and consistantly. He throws a fast, accurate pass, and remains cool regardless of how dark the situation may look. He displayed unusual courage in the last game of the season against Stonington, when he played a hard, fast, clean game, when two of his ribs were cracked. The injury affected his playing not at all.

Halfbacks

For the halfbacks we have selected Brown of Chapman Tech and Eddie Brewer of Norwich. Brown is selected because of his exceptional speed around the ends. Once he passes the line of scrimmage he is a very hard man to stop, and he never slows up under tackling. Brown is a good defensive man against forward passes, and he is always dangerous when he gets his hands on the ball. He has been the most feared man in the league, and no team could feel safe when this dusky back started with the ball. A good receiver of passes, a fair thrower and a good kicker, this lad deserves a place without doubt.

The other halfback berth goes to Eddie Brewer, and well he deserves it. There is nothing he cannot. Eddie is a bear on the defense, and a human battering ram on the offense. Whenever Norwich needed a few yards, you could hear these words: "give Eddie the ball," and he gained the necessary yardage. This lad is big and fast, never tiring, and an asset to any team.

Fullback

The fullback assignment has been entrusted to Kennanberg of Chapman Tech. We feel he has all the necessary qualifications to hold down the job. This young man is blessed with a sturdy body and a courageous heart, and he is an inspiration at all times. He is very strong on the defense, being a hard, clean tackler, and a good man at diagnosing plays. He is a good line plunger, and runs off the tackles especially well. Along with the fullback position, we have chosen him as captain of the team. He has a thorough knowledge of the game, and has the ability to lead a team. Added to this, he is a gentleman and always accepts the decisions of officials, or if he disagrees, he asks for an explanation in a manner befitting a gentleman.

Second Team

It has been proven that a team is no stronger than its reserves, therefore we must have substitutes to fill the shoes of these men when called upon to do so.

We could shift Schwartz to center to fill that gap, if anything should happen to DeRocco. For the guards we have chosen Fiore of Westerly, and Fiedelle of Norwich. These men are both good guards and could be used to advantage.

For the tackles we have selected Duke of Stonington, and Ponjetti of Chapman Tech. Duke is a good man and could be called upon to kick if necessary. Ponjetti, Chapman Tech's star tackle would have undoubtedly showed up better except for an injury which kept him from playing his best until late in the season. After regaining his strength, he was not outplayed by anyone.

Rossie of Westerly and Marks of Norwich have been selected for the second team ends. Marks, a hard tackler, and Rossie, an excellent receiver of passes, would be good men to rush in to the game when needed.

McClaffery of Stonington gets the call for the second team quarterback berth. This little fighter is good, though lacking in weight. He is a good passer and a fast open field runner.

Clarence Brewer and Courbois of Norwich get the call for the halfback berths. They are both good offensive men, and would be a big asset to any team. Cronin of Stonington, a young husky, is the substitute fullback. This lad is inexperienced, but possesses a large amount of fight. He is good on the defense, and a hard plunging back when carrying the ball.

These men have been picked from personal observation and from information obtained fro mthe four coaches in the league.

TIGERS BEAT BATTERY IN THE OPENING GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 13—The Tigers defeated Battery E basketball team in the state armory on Dixon street, Westerly, on Saturday evening by the score of 26 to 11. The game was a preliminary one to the opening on next Saturday evening of the tournament in which six Westerly local teams will compete for the basketball championship during the coming season. Strictly amateur rules were enforced and will prevail in the coming series and although the sound of the whistle is heard more frequently, it is claimed a faster game results. There are a number of changes in the playing rules which both players and spectators would do well to look up, at this, the beginning of hte basketball season.

Monday evening at the state armory on Dixon street will be held a meeting of the directors of the basketball league: President, Paul DeFanti; vice president, Alexander Greig; and secretary, Herman F. Driggs and the prospective league members with their managers, Bradford, Ernest Stenhouse; St. Michael's Legion, Anthony Pupillo; Delta, Dominic Turco; Westerly Sanitary Corps, Alexander Greig; Magestis A. C., George Winterbottom and Battery E, Lieut. Alvin J. Andrews and it is expected that a playing schedule and dates can be discussed for adoption.

HAPPENINGS IN SPORT WORLD ON SATURDAY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13—(AP)—George C. hayer, Villanova (Pa.) star end of the University of Pennsylvania football team, today was elected captain of next year's squad. Thayer is a junior in the college department. Thayer's father was captain of the Pennsylvania football team in 1880.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 13—(AP)—Lonnie Stiner, right tackle, has been elected captain of the 1926 University of Nebraska football team. He is a junior.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Walter Spence, star swimmer of the Central Y. M. C. A., swam 150 yards with the breast stroke in an exhibition against time in Municipal Pool No. 4 in Yonkers Saturday night and clipped two full second from his former time of 1:52 4-5. The exhibition was the feature event on a program of swimming races conducted under the joint auspices of the Yonkers Aquatic club and the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A.

TROY, N. Y., Dec. 13—(AP)—James H. Spotten, 84 years old, promoter and last survivor of the Union Baseball club of Troy, famous as the Haymakers, formed in 1866, died at his home here last night. He was a retired merchant.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13—(AP)—The University of Pennsylvania will have a new gymnasium, which will include a basketball court with a seating capacity of 10,000, according to an announcement made Saturday by the athletic news department of the university.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13—(AP)—Brought together for the first time since last New Year's day, the famed "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame today played a remarkable game against the Pottsville Maroons, National league professional champions, at Shibe Park, before 10,000 persons, but lost, 9 to 7.

LIVERPOOL, England, Dec. 13—(AP)—Rudolf Frolik, who claims the title of welterweight champion ouglist of Czechoslovakia, and is said to have fifty knockouts to his credit, sailed for America on the liner Regina. He said he was going to Chicago to seek new laurels in the ring.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 13—(AP)—Owen Pool, star centre, has been elected captain of the Georgia Tech football team for 1926, and Mack Thorpe, a tackle, was chosen as alternate captain.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 13—(AP)—The Torrington High school basketball five tonight defeated the Yale Freshmen, 24-23, taking the lead in the last half-minute of play. The freshmen were in the lead, 19-9, at the intermission.

LONDON, England, Dec. 13—(AP)—Boxing fans in England are used to seeing a plentiful sprinkling of women enthusiasts at their ring shows, but Mrs. Burge, widow of Dick Burge, once lightweight champion of England, is more than a boxing fan. For the past ten years she has been owner and manager of the Ring, the famous boxing club in Blackfriars Road. During her control of the Ring, which at one time was a church, Mrs. Burge has discovered and made many champions.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13—(AP)—Plans for 1926 football were discussed and the sum of $10,000 pledged for football and athletic improvements at the annual dinner of the Board of Underwriters of the Ruteers football team held at the University club Saturday night.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 13—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, brilliant bats man and manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who recently received the National League prize as the most valuable player to his team in the entire circuit, has now been a major league player for eleven years, and during all that time he has been a member of the Mound City team.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Whitey Witt, who was recently obtained by the Robins, will be playing for his third major league club when he dons the uniform of the Brooklyn team next spring. He has already been a member of the Philadelphia Athletics and the New York Yankees.

NUTMEGS OPEN BASKETBALL SEASON THIS WEEK

With football on the shelf for another year the Nutmegs will open their regular basketball schedule this week with two home games. Tuesday evening at 8:30 the Crescents will be the opponents while Friday night at 7:30 the Vallants five will be met. Both games will be played at the Armory.

After hard drills the local quintet is fast rounding into shape and should prove dangerous to all opponents in the future. The following men will wear the Nutmeg colors this season: Burdick, Tombari, Kelly, Segal, Bergeron, Carlin, Burnes, Murphy and Couture. A captain will be elected at the next meeting which will be held before Tuesday's game.

The Nutmegs would like to hear from the Y teams for a game next week. For arrangements either answer through this paper or call 1914.

STAFFORD SPRINGS KACEYS AT TAFTVILLE TUESDAY

The basketball attraction at Parish hall, Taftville on Tuesday evening will be the Taftville five vs. the Stafford Springs Kaceys. The Kaceys always can be depended upon to bring down a fast team as in years past they have been contenders for state honors.

SPORT WORLD HAD PLENTY TO TALK ABOUT DURING THE PAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Sudden interruption of Red Grange's effort to turn fame into fortune, a boxing championship lost and another retained by a very narrow margin, the decision of Helen Wills to cross the Atlantic with the probability that she will meet Suzanne Lenglen at tennis, and the completion of Major league baseball's annual meetings without hostilities featured the past week in sport.

Track

From Europe came the word that two great stars of the track world, Olympic games heroes, would engage Americans in indoor competition on this side this winter. Charlie Hoff, Norway's pole vaulter, and Adrian Paulen, fleetest of Germans, are expected to enter the Millrose A. C. contests in New York, early in February.

Golf

While professional golfers and amateurs who could afford it drifted south and west for the cold months, links enthusiasts far up in New England continued to wield mashie and niblick. The fairway turf, even in Massachusetts, is in excellent condition for play but greens have been closed.

The absence of snow and extreme cold have given professional football in the north an unanticipated lease of life.

Grange's Troubles

Grange's troubles, both in football and finance, occupied by far the greatest amount of newspaper space. Injury, which proved rather serious and brought the return of many admission fees when he was unable to play in Detroit yesterday, came upon the "Red Comet" in Pittsburgh Thursday after a series of gridiron encounters permitted little time for rest except in sleeping cars.

From New York to Washington, to Boston, to Pittsburgh, the great Grange dashed before he was tackled by the football player's most powerful foe. He was tired; there could be no doubt of it. In Washington and Boston his inability to race scores of yards with the ball amazed the comparatively few thousands who attended. But he remained on his feet until the first period at Pittsburgh when a torn ligament and broken blood vessel in one arm took him out of play.

Meantime the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America question the check for $300,000 which Grange is said to have received in New York Monday and declares that if it proves to be "bunk publicity" any picture in which Grange appears will be barred from theatres under the organization's control.

A. P. Picks All-American

The All-American football team announced by the Associated Press, a concensus obtained from consideration of coaches' election throughout the country, had Grange as quarterback, Wilson of University of Washington and Oberlander of Dartmouth halfbacks, and Nevers of Stanford fullback.

There is dissension in the All-American backfield. While the wires hummed with the news that Nevers had joined the professionals and would play against Grange in Florida, Oberlander continued his attacks on the professional game.

Goodrich Loses Title

Jimmy Goodrich lost his lightweight boxing championship to his fellow Buffalonian, Rocky Kansas, in a fifteen-round battle at Buffalo early in the week. Paul Berlenbach barely retained his light heavyweight crown against Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., in New York Friday night. Had Delaney taken advantage of an early offensive and changed a knockout effort two titles might have fallen within a week.

Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., the featherweight king, will be the next champion to step into a ring, meeting Babe Herman, of California and New York, who has opposed him several times, in New York Friday night. Kaplan gained a doubtful draw with Herman in Waterbury, Conn., a few months ago.

Baseball

Baseball's accomplishments in the annual meetings included an earlier closing date, September 26, which required the deciding vote of Commissioner Landis; an earlier starting time for world's series games, 1:30 o'clock and the re-election of Presidents Ban Johnson of the American league and Toole of the International at increased salaries.

Tennis

Helen Wills, youthful Californian who has swept to the tennis heights in the past three years, will encounter the French marvel, Mlle. Lenglen in the Mediterranean tournaments this winter. Miss Wills will study art during a stay in France of several months. Mlle. Lenglen has been quoted as saying that the coming of Miss Wills will be a great thing for European tennis.

Hockey

Professional hockey receives its first tryout in New York on Tuesday and the meeting of the New York Americans and the Canadiens, champions of the National Hockey league will mark the formal opening of the new Madison Square Garden.

POTTSVILLE TEAM MAYBE OUTLAWED IN PRO LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The squabble between the Chicago Cardinals and the Pottsville, Pa. Maroons, for the championship of the National Professional Football League may end with hte outlawing of the Pottsville team, givnig the Cardinals a clear title, Joseph Carr, president of the league, indicated today.

With both teams claiming the title before yesterday's games, a new situation developed. The Cardinals beat Hammond, Ind., pros 13 to 0 and Pottsville trimmed a team headed by the four horsemen of Natre Dame at Philadelphia 9 to 7.

President Carr said the Pottsville team in playing the four horsemen violated two rules and may lose its franchise. The game in Philadelphia, he said, was played in the territory of the Frankford Yellow Jackets which has the Philadelphia territory and therefore the game has been ruled an outlaw contest.

Also Harry Stuhldreher, one of the four horsemen has been ruled a professional outlaw because at the beginning of the season he signed to play with the Providence, R. I., Steam Rollers of the National League but jumped the contract and played with an independent team at Hartford, Conn., in playing against him, the entire Pottsville team has laid itself liable to being outlawed.

As the league standing now is, the Cardinals have won 11 games, lost two and played one tie. Pottsville has won ten games, lost two, Cardinal officials said they are claiming the title but that the entire matter would have to be threshed out at the league meeting in January.

TAD JONES SAYS GRANGE IS AN OVERRATED PLAYER

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 13—(AP)—Red Grange is a "beautiful player," but he is not the "all around player that he is reputed to be," Tad Jones, head football coach at Yale, declared here Saturday.

Jones, who is in this section to hunt ducks, said the Wheaton iceman has become a national figure by his spectacular work on the gridiron and the ingenuity of press agents. He does not rank with players of a few years ago, the Yale mentor added, among whom he named Thorpe of Carlisle, and Heston of Michigan.

Oberlander of Dartmouth; Wilson, of Washington and Nevers of Stanford easily rank with the Illinois flash, said Jones.

"Don't think for a minute that I mean to speak disparagingly of Grange," he added. "He is a beautiful player and has run for a large number of touchdowns. He is 'wonderful' in an open field, but running under those conditions is only one of the units which make up football."

NEVERS SIGNS CONTRACT TO PLAY PRO FOOTBALL

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec 13—(AP)—Ernie Nevers, captain and star fullback of Stanford's 1925 football team has confirmed reports that he had signed a contract to play professional football with a Jacksonville (Fla.) eleven.

The blonde line-plunger who has been fullback on half a dozen All-American teams said he had closed a deal last night with a group of Jacksonville capitalists to appear in five games which will net him $25,000 in cash and 5 per cent of the gate receipts.

The $25,000 is to be placed in Nevers' name in a California bank before he leaves next Saturday. He said his agreement stipulates that after the first five games he is to draw $5,000 a game and 10 per cent of the gate receipts. If the venture is a financial success, the Stanford star will be offered a new contract next season.

Nevers said he would leave for the East on Dec. 19. By leaving the amateur field Nevers expects to profit to the extent of more than $20,000.

Trapshooting Mark Set

COLUMBIA TO INVESTIGATE ROCKNE'S APPOINTMENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—Columbia's committee on university athletics will meet tomorrow to investigate correspondence and discussions which led to the announcement last Friday night that Knute Rockne of Notre Dame would coach the Columbia football team for the next three years—a statement which drew immediate denial from Rockne and from Notre Dame officials.

On Saturday, after a meeting of the committee, a statement revoking the announcement of Rockne's appointment was issued. This statement explained that it was Columbia's understanding that Rockne was free from contract to Notre Dame—otherwise he would not have been tendered the position.

Rockne, in a statement of his own, called the Columbia assertions unfair and declared that they had been kept secret from him despite the fact that he conferred in New York Saturday with James R. Knapp, chairman of the Columbia football committee. Rockne said that while he and a Notre Dame eastern representative were discussing with Knapp the best way to word a Columbia statement to the press, he was notified by newspapermen over the telephone that a statement already had been sent out.

Much of the committee's investigation tomorrow, it is understood, will have to do with a letter which Rockne said he wrote to Knapp on December 7 explaining that he could not obtain his release from his Notre Dame contract—a contingency on which the acceptance of the Columbia proposition hinges.

The Notre Dame coach started on his return to South Bend, Ind., late today and termed Knapp a "city slicker trying to take in an Indiana country boy."

He will return east for the football meetings December 28 and then plans to have a vacation in Europe.

TWO INDOOR GAMES AT STATE ARMORY TONIGHT

This evening at the Armory the Norwich indoor league will swing into its third week. The 6.30 game this evening will be between two bitter rivals, the Nutmegs and Tigers, while at 8.30 Battery E and Faber's All Stars will come together. These games by a trick of the schedule, are a repetition of the first week's play when the Nutmegs were on the short end of a 9 to 8 score and Battery B defeated the Stars 7 to 5.

In the first game a re-informed Nutmegs team will lineup against the Tigers. Since the last tilt the Nutmegs have strengthened considerably and are out to chalk up one on the winning side of the ledger.

For the Nutmegs Jimmy Kelly will pitch with Capt. Jab Burnes or J. Tombari behind the bat. In the infield Gil Kampf, Vin Carlin, Ed Healy, Bill Burnes, Chubby Gibbs. Ellie Segal and Couture will perform, while Jim Falcone, Jackson, A. Brown, A. Armstrong, Lambert and Courbois will roam the outer pastures.

Such men as Cimikoski, Nevins, P. Labenski, B. Labenski, McGowan, Jarvis, L. Hamil, E. Hamil, Goldblatt, A. Tombari and S. Tombari will perform for the Tigers.

Little need be said of the late game as every time the Battery and Stars come together a good game is the result so that local fans will have a delectable dish served to them this evening when the four teams get started.

All game will be started promptly at the above stated hours so that a nine inning contest can be gotten in during the allotted time.

ASSOCIATED PRESS PICKS ALL-AMERICAN TEAMS

College football's outstanding stars for 1925 have taken their places in the All-American hall of fame created for them by the country-wide compilation of The Associated Press. Their recognition is the result of first-hand observations by the sports staff of The Associated Press, combined with opinions gathered from other experts and coaches who trained most of the players picked for the first, second and third elevens.

In this comprehensive consensus, representing the views of more than 100 qualified critics who witnessed the high spots and bright stars of a record-breaking season on every sector of the gridiron battlefront, Dartmouth's great team carries off principal laurels by placing three players on the first eleven.

The honor accorded these three wearers of the Green—Tully at end, Diehl at guard and Oberlander at halfback—not only testifies to the widespread recognition of Dartmouth as the country's outstanding team, but is the chief factor in giving the east the bulk of places on the three teams selected.

Six places on the first eleven go to the East, as compared with three to the Middle West and two to the Far West, while on the entire squad the East has fourteen representatives to the nine for the Middle West, six for the Far West and four for the South. Twenty-three colleges and universities are represented.

No team outside Dartmouth has more than one player on the first aggregation, although Michigan's formidable outfit, by placing four men altogether on the squad, equals the Green's total representation. The Wolverines' showing, however, does not measure up to that of their rivals with only one position on the first team, two on the second eleven and another on the third to compare with the Green's record of three on the first team and one on the second.

The makeup of the first, second and third All-American football teams for 1925, compiled by The Associated Press from country-wide opinions, is as follows:

FIRST ELEVEN

Ends—Benny Oosterbaan, Michigan; Mike Tully, Dartmouth.

Tackles—Ed. Weir, Nebraska; Ralph Chase, Pittsburgh.

UNION COLLEGE PRESIDENTS FAVORS FEWER GAMES

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 13—(A. P.)—Fewer intercollegiate football games, one of a group of recommendations put forward by a recent student conference at Wesleyan university and concurred in by Dr. Stewart Paton, psychintrist and member of the Princeton faculty, was seen as "sensible and highly desirable," by Dr. Charles Alexander Richmond, president of Union college. In a statement issued today, he further states that he had noticed numerous cases of a falling off in scholarship resulting from too many intercollegiates sports.

The objection already made that this will interfere with the gate receipts is an objection which gives away the whole contention that gate receipts are not the controlling element in college athletic policy," his statement said.

STRIBLING TO BOX AT NEW YORK IN JANUARY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Young Stribling, Georgia schoolboy who gained fame in heavyweight boxing ranks, is expected to fight his first fifteen-round bout in this state early in January.

Stribling's father, who does the managing for his husky son, is now in New York and has agreed with the management of Madison Square Garden to a match with Eddie Huffman of the Pacific coast providing Huffman shows well against Ad Stone of Philadelphia in Newark, N. J., Wednesday.

BULLDOGS BEAT BLUES AND THE "FOUR HOREMEN"

HARTFORD, Dec. 13—(AP)—The famed "Four Horsemen" backfield which made football history last year for Knute Rockne at Notre Dame failed to stay the determined assaults of the Cleveland Bulldogs, National league football champions of 1924 and the Hartford Blues were sent down to a 13 to 6 defeat here this afternoon before the largest gallery that has ever witnessed a professional football game in Connecticut.

"Doc" Miller was taken from the game in the first period with a badly wrenched leg, while Layden was also injured in the period but later resumed his place in the lineup.

CHEEK WILL NOT PLAY IN POST-SEASON GAME

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 12—(A. P.)—M. A. "Dolph" Cheek, Harvard football captain, will not play in the All-College team which is to appear in the day after Christmas game in the University of California's stadium.

Cheek announced today he had declined the invitation. He spent his schoolboy years at Berkeley, where the game is to be played and was quarterback on the High school team there. The coast game is to be an amateur one for a hospital benefit.

Horse Trotting at the Fairs

That horse trots have been featured beyond their intrinsic value at the Maine fairs is the belief of the Portland Express. Very likely this is true at some fairs, indeed we know of some that have very little to offer patrons beyond the horse trotting. Such was not the case at the Bangor Fair last week for there was a large and excellent exhibit of cattle and stock as well as of agricultural products.

On the other hand the fairs without the horse trots, would be very dull occ

NORWICH BRIDE IN BRIEF ROMANCE IS UNDER ARREST AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 13—Mrs. Mildred Wright Haines, who although married, is not living with her husband, but is the proprietress of a rooming house, 180 Green street, at which place sailors have been frequent lodgers, was taken into custody Saturday night by policewoman Jane Cassidy, charged with lascivious carriage, following complaint being made to the authorities by an officer of the United States coast guard, local section base, 1 state pier. She was released upon furnishing is Louis Elfenbein, a surety on her bond of $200 for her appearance in the police court Monday morning.

The Haines woman, who is but 27, was complained against yesterday afternoon when a chief petty officer appeared at the police station with a letter from an officer from the coast guard sectional base, stating that several of the sailors stationed at the base, had contracted disease and that they declared that the Haines woman was the person responsible for their condition. The complaint was turned over to Policewoman Cassidy and last night when Mrs. Haines was located at home she was placed under arrest. At the coast guard base this afternoon it was stated that one of the accusing sailors would be compelled to be present at the police court hearing Monday and testify against the woman.

Mrs Haines became a bride about a year ago, when John Haines, a stranger hereabouts and claiming to reside in the west, appeared in New London. To acquaintances newly formed, he declared that he had been left a fortune by a relative, but that a clause of the will that it is alleged left Haines wealthy, was that he must marry by a certain date. The date that made it compulsory for Haines to obtain the money under the provisions of the will, would lapse in three days, so a friend of Haines introduced him to the young woman and with a proposal of marriage being made and the alleged provisions of the will being related, the girl consented to marry the couple went to Norwich and were wedded, but they did not live together but a few days, for Haines left for parts unknown and has since remained away from this city.

Fred Bosworth spent money enough to pay his fine and costs for operating an automobile while he was intoxicated Saturday morning, soon after midnight Friday, to have provided a Christmas for him that would have been a pleasant one. He was with Robert Powers and both were drunk, according to the testimony given by Patrolman Laboue, who made the arrest of the young men, and Sergeant James B. Gaffney, who booked the pair when they were locked up. After midnight they rolled into Peck's restaurant where they talked about getting something to drink. Laboue took their measure then, but as they moved about he did not see fit to accuse them of intoxication. Laboue had his lunch and went away, but when he got to the police station the auto in which the ridiculous pair were riding went into North Bank street and stalled in front of the police station. There the occupants were ordered from the car. Laboue declared them to be intoxicated and said that Bosworth was not in a condition to safely drive a car. At the desk it was obvious that they both had imbibed freely of liquor and that they were intoxicated. The young fellows said they had driven up to a Bank street rooming house to get a couple of girls, but in this they failed, for there were no girls with them when the arrest was made. They denied that they were drunk and disputed what the officers said. Bosworth was inclined to appeal from the decision when Judge Prince announced his penalty, but he concluded that he would not do that and settled. Powers was fined $7 and Bosworth was given a fine of $10.

Patrick Hanley was fined $5 for intoxication, and Cathrupo Bruno was taxed $10 to pay for being found drunk and down in Atlantic street. Bruno denied that he was drunk, and claimed, as he always does, that he drank only a couple of mugs of cider.

As a matter of fact Patrolman Marvin was forced to carry the fellow bodily to the police station. Some day when Bruno admits his guilt when he is arraigned perhaps he will get a suspended sentence. Bruno will have that opportunity in the police court Monday morning, for he was arrested again Saturday afternoon on Main street by Patrolman William Graham, when the officer found Bruno lying on a sidewalk where he had fallen, almost unconscious from his ever-indulgence in drink.

James McAuley, 54, a weaver, claiming Norwich as his home, and John Kelley, 57, a boiler maker, stating Providence to be his home town, were arrested on Main street Saturday afternoon by Patrolman Clarence Martin, charged with intoxication and vagrancy. They were locked up and will be presented at the session of the police court Monday morning.

An automobile owned and operated by Harold N. Christianson, 519 Ocean avenue, and a machine owned and operated by William J. Sweezy, chief petty officer at the submarine base, and residing with his family at 5 Jay street, were in collision this afternoon and Sweezy's little son was painfully injured when thrown through the windshield of the Sweezy car, sustaining lacerations that required several stitches to close. Sweezy placed the entire responsibility for the accident upon Christianson. Neither automobile sustained damage of consequence. Sweezy was driving his car in a westerly direction on Meridian street and as he approached Church street, he declares, sounded his horn, but got no warning in reply. Just as the car was about to pass the intersecting streets, the car operated by Christianson, headed northerly on Church street, emerged from the latter street. Sweezy applied his emergency brake, causing his car to come to a sudden stop, the momentum of which caused the youngster to be thrown through the windshield. Sweezy took the child to the office of a physician, where the lacerations were stitched and then reported the accident at the police station. Christianson, who was on his way to Hartford, did not report the accident, continuing to Hartford.

Miss Ruth Gardner, of 441 Bank street, and Mrs. Isabelle Joy, of Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed Saturday.

The funeral of Mrs. Lucy Connor, colored, widow of William H. Connor and former domestic in the employ of the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Methodist Episcopal church, the services being conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding. Members of Thames lodge, I. O. O. F., acted as bearers and members of the Household of Ruth conducted committal service in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Michael J. Corcoran was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, and was attended by many mourners, included among whom was a delegation of members of Knights of Columbus. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger, with Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, deacon and Rev. Raymond O'Callahan sub-deacon. After the final absolution Edward D. Murray sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought." The bearers were Daniel Sullivan, Daniel O'Connell, James C. Sullivan, John Garvey, Matthew Rafferty and Patrick J. Daley. Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. O'Callahan.

An automobile owned and operated by John Purcell, stationed at the United States Coast Guard academy, and a machine owned and driven by L. N. Laval were in collision this morning, corner of Connecticut avenue and Broad street. Both machines were damaged.

Alfred W. Harris, a soldier, stationed at Fort Wright, and James Wilson a sailor, stationed at the submarine base, were arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Michael Corcoran and Station House Keeper Frank Corcoran charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. They will be given a hearing in the police court Monday morning. Harris and Wilson were among a score or more soldier and sailors at the Salvation Army lodging house, about 11 o'clock, when an argument arose between the pair and a fight followed. Harris and Wilson were ejected from the place and upon reaching State street renewed hostilities. While the battle was waging Patrolman Corcoran appeared being on his way to the police station to report for duty. The officer started to take the pair into custody when they resisted, but their resistance was of short duration for Station House Keeper Corcoran happened along and took a hand in the melee, with the result that Harris and Wilson were quickly landed in cells. Harris was successful in obtaining a surety this afternoon, on his bond of $50 fro his court appearance, but Wilson was not so fortunate and will occupy a cell until the convening of court.

Daniel Stahler, Jr., 5 Huntington street, and William Gallagher, 705 Bank street, were arrested late Saturday night charged with breach of the peace and both will be in the police court tomorrow morning. Stahler and Gallagher were at a pool room conducted by Nicholas Stamotos and there the accused started a fight that became so serious that Stamolos summoned the police. Sergeant Hick and Patrolman John Sullivan answered the call and on complaint of Stamotos, Stahler and Gallagher were taken into custody.

William Goode, colored, 91 Bayonet street, was arrested this evening charged with breach of the peace by William W. Sheldon, also colored of 10 New street. The accused was later released, when Goode's sister, Mrs. Rose Shankel became surety on her brother's bond of $100 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Goode and Sheldon are coal shovelers and when Goode went to his home this evening he found that his wife was absent. He surmised that Mrs. Goode was at the home of Sheldon and going there he requested information as to whether Mrs. Goode was in the house. Sheldon refused to open the door and declared that Mrs. Goode was not in his apartment. Goode however, doubted Sheldon and decided to learn the truth of the matter. He smashed in the entrance and found Mrs. Goode in the place. Harsh words followed and Sheldon lodged complaint against Goode, with the result that Patrolmen William Graham and Augustus Ray took Goode into custody.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has suspended the operators' licenses of James Nazle, 14 Connecticut Avenue and James Telford, 53 Colver street.

The Savings Bank of New London has sold the former abattoir of the Soltz company, rear of Douglass St., to Samuel Freeman, Douglass street marketman and whose establishment adjoins the Freeman market. The price paid was $10,000. The bank recently acquired the abattoir when the superior court ordered its sale at public auction and after notes and mortgages of the former Soltz company had been foreclosed.

MISSING HAZEL MARA FOUND, AFTER HIDING ON ROOF

NEW LONDON, Dec. 13—After mysteriously absenting herself from her home, 26 Woodbridge street, three days, Hazel Mara, 15, daughter of Mrs. Emily Mara, was found by the police late Friday afternoon, and in a house but a block away from the girl's home and where conditions are apparently such that several arrests of men and women will probably follow Monday. The men and women are to be charged with crimes of a serious nature for the allegations set forth in the statements made by the girl as well as Dorothy Armstrong, another Howard street girl of 15, who was committed to the House of the Good Shepherd, Hartford a week ago, are such that the place where the Mara girl was found is nothing more or less than a dive. The authorities are conducting an investigation and this, it is believed, will be concluded Monday with the arrest of three or four men and women.

Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Policewoman Jane Cassidy, who have the investigation in charge, ascertained Saturday afternoon that the Mara girl was at the home of a woman, 112 Howard street. The officers went to the house and there found the girl. She was taken to the police station where she is alleged to have told her story of what has occurred at the house since she disappeared from her home Tuesday evening. The statements the girl made are, it is understood, of practically the same character as related by the Armstrong girl, which statements resulted in the latter being committed to the Hartford institution, at least until such time as the character of the Howard street place could be positively established. The Mara girl is now in charge of the Salvation Army authorities so that she can not confer with anyone excepting the police.

The Mara girl received a sailor friend at her home, early last Tuesday evening and about 7 o'clock the couple started out, presumably to go to a motion picture house. Mrs. Mara was not satisfied that her daughter and escort would attend the picture theatre and started to investigate to verify her suspicions. Mrs. Mara followed the couple to Golden street, where she observed her daughter and the sailor enter the rooming house at 24. Mrs. Mara then hastened to the police station where she related her story. Officers were sent to the Golden street house and there located the sailor but the girl was nowhere to be found, although a search of the house was made.

It is understood that prior to the arrival of the officers the girl and a girl companion, together with another sailor, were taken to the roof of the building and remained there until after the house had been searched. After the police leaving all went to the Howard street house where the Mara girl remained until she was found and arrested by the police Saturday afternoon.

HARTFORD CHECK FRAUD ARRESTED IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 13—John V. Waldron, 32 Kimball street, Hartford, in which city he is employed by the LaSalle Correspondence school, was arrested here Saturday morning by Sergeant John Cavanaugh on a warrant issued by the Hartford authorities charging Waldron with passing worthless checks. Saturday afternoon Sergeant Michael Lowe, of the Hartford department, came to New London and escorted Waldron back to Hartford for trial. The Hartford police have been seeking the whereabouts of Waldron a fortnight and a week ago they received information that Waldron was in this city. An officer came to New London and accompanied by Sergeant Cavanaugh, a search was made for the fugitive, but without success. Friday Sergeant Cavanaugh was informed that Waldron was residing temporarily at 279 Huntington street and going to the place it was ascertained that Waldron was a roomer there, but that his visits to the house were irregular. Sergeant Cavanaugh again visited the house Saturday morning and as Waldron was about to leave the place he placed him under arrest and made him a prisoner until Officer Lowe arrived here to take charge of the fugitive.

Palace

In "Stage Struck," Gloria Swanson returns to the type of production that registered her first great popularity and which established her as one of the greatest character actresses of all time.

Gloria, in a broad comedy as a waitress in a factory town, restaurant on the Ohio River. She is smitten with a pancake artist who is fond of actresses. She is taking a correspondence course in acting. The picture opens with a gorgeous dream sequence, done in natural colors, has a series of side-splitting incidents in the restaurant and also some rich comedy stuff on one of the famous floating theatres of the Ohio River.

And it's a new kind of love story. Instead of the old stuff where the young man pursues the girl around, the girl pursues the man. Her idea of a great artist is a man who can toss flapjacks into the air and have them come down the other side up in the right place on the griddle. And his idea of a wonderful girl is an actress who wins the applause of the multitude.

Gloria mends his shirts and does his laundry, but he doesn't know it. When she shows up with the make-up on her face he bawls her out. When she tries to commit suicide he hands her another cauldown. He has a "treat-em-rough" system, but he discovers in the end that he likes her better than anything or anybody else in the world.

The Melva Sisters play many and varied kinds of instruments. It will be a rare treat to the lovers of good music to hear these talented sisters play. Hope Vernon has been aptly called the mocking bird. She has a voice as clear as crystal and her imitations of various instruments are nothing short of marvelous. Her imitation of a violin holds her audience spell bound. Stanley Jay is a nut comic. His eccentric comedy will bring tears or laughter. Murry Earl and Lady Friends are fast steppers and in addition to their wonderful dancing they can sing. The songs and dances, beautiful costumes, comedy, youth and beauty of this remarkable trio will captivate the hearts of all.

Trella and Company are sensational European cyclists. They perform death defying stunts that takes your breath away. Every precaution has been taken for the safety of the audience.

Well Child Conference

Children need plenty of sunshine and fresh air. During these late fall days when there is a suggestion of winter in the air, children should not be allowed to remain in the house by the warm fireside. The playing out of doors is conducive to health. The little children who are allowed to take their morning or afternoon nap on the porch, are likewise healthier, because they have had plenty of air and sunshine during this time.

The Moosup well child conference this month will be on Friday afternoon, December 18th, in Franco-American hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

WOULD SAVE TIME AND PRIDE BY DROPPING NAMES OF STATES

WESTERVILLE, O., Dec. 13—(AP)—Much ink, labor and local pride would be saved, in the opinion of Raymond Phelan, professor of business administration, Otterbein College, if the state designations were dropped on letters to important cities.

In a letter, Professor Prelan urges the postoffice department to take under consideration a plan of arbitrarily specifying a list of cities so well known that the state is unnecessary.

TODAY — TUESDAY

From the famous story by Peter B. Kyne.
With ANITA STEWART and BERT LYTELL

Comedy — News

WESTMINSTER

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Robinson of Attawaugan were recent guests of Deacon and Mrs. Barstow.

Mr. and Mrs. Trainor Rice and four children and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Greene and two children were guests at Mrs. Ida Shorter's on Thanksgiving, the latter returning to Flatbush, Friday.

Charles Robbins had an attack of pleurisy requiring his wife to return from Willimantic, where she is employed in the thread mills. Mrs. Robbins is now at her work again.

Mr. Leidwein recently spent several days with friends in New York.

Mrs. Jessie Meade of Sunnymeade farm and N. Y., wrote that Murray Meade and family spent Thanksgiving day with Fred Meade and family in Avernum, N. Y.

Several of the schools are busy preparing programs for Christmas.

Mrs. Marcia Warren has returned to Bridgeport where she has made her home for several years.

The W. C. T. U. of Canterbury met at the home of Mrs. Williams at the Plains on Wednesday afternoon, about two thirds of the members being present. Mrs. Bliven president was in the chair. Miss Baldwin, superintendent of evangelism conducted the devotional service. The Union decided to do some of the special work recommended by vice president, Mrs. Nelson and will individually send remembrances for Christmas to men at the submarine base, New London.

H. A. Rix recently enjoyed a short visit from his son, Leon, who was accompanied by his family.

George Barstow visited his son's family in Plainfield at Thanksgiving.

Last Sunday was observed by several families as Golden Rule Sunday, the difference between the simple dinner and that usually provided being sent to the Near East Orphans.

Mrs. L. A. Gardner and son, new owners of the Coulter place, were in town Saturday, returning the same day to their home in Washington, R. I.

PACCARAT FAVORED GAME ON EMERALD COAST; BOULE NEXT

DINARD, Dec. 13—(AP)—Baccarat was the favorite game this season on the Emerald Coast of France, with la boule running it a close second. La boule surpassed baccarat at some of the smaller casinos.

Gambling at all the resorts—Dinard, Saint-Malo, Paramhe and Saint Lunaire—netted a profit of 3,251,587 francs. Of this the state receives 1,058,100 francs. The cities in which the casinos are located also receive part of the earnings.

Gambling was slightly heavier this year on the Emerald Coast than it was last year, when the earnings of the casinos were 4,030,288 francs.

HIGHWAY HEWN OUT OF SOLID ROCK ON CALIFORNIA COAST

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13—(AP)—The rock ribbed coast of Southern California, little known because of so many sandy beaches, has been conquered by roadbuilders.

The cutting of the Ventura coast stretch of the new ocean shore highway, just completed, ranks among the outstanding highway projects of the nation in the opinion of engineers.

In a stretch of 7:4 miles, an excavation of 1,213,724 cubic yards of rock and earth was accomplished. The most expensive section was one mile through solid rock cliffs, south of Big Sycamore Canyon, where 344,085 cubic yards were moved at a cost of $238,871.20.

Men and instruments were let down with ropes over rocky cliffs and some of the work was done while the location men were dangling in midair above the foaming brakers of the Pacific.

Two years were spent in this work to complete grading and next summer the paving will be laid.

Popular with Foreign Clubs.

SEATTLE, Nov. 25 (AP)—Rowing shells used by the University of Washington have been ordered by two foreign rowing clubs and the Universities of Pennsylvania, Syracuse and Princeton.

George Pocock is the university shell builder with a shop on the school campus. His shells were used when the University of Washington became intercollegiate rowing champion in 1923 and 1924.

The first eight-oared shell for foreign waters went to the Buenos Aires Club. The Havana Rowing Club ordered a four-oared boat.

SPEAKERS FAVORED U. S. ENTRY INTO WORLD COURT

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—The demand that the senate recognize American public opinion for entry into the world court was voiced today by speakers at a Thanksgiving service in the cathedral of St. John the Divine celebrating the signing of the Locarno treaty.

Both Bishop William T. Manning and Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, declared that a small group of senate irreconcilables cannot prevent the United States from entering the court and resuming the normal leadership of the world.

The spirit of peace was typified in a procession through the unfinished nave of the cathedral which opened the service. The flags of the seven signatory nations represented in the Locarno pact were carried, including the flag of Germany, which had not been seen in the cathedral since the war.

Ambassadors and ministers to the United States, including those from the powers represented at Locarno were present at the services, which were held under the auspices of the New York council for international cooperation to prevent war.

"I have your invitation to attend the services of thanksgiving for the signing of the treaty of Locarno, and in the interest of international peace, regret that pressure of public business will prevent my acceptance. All gatherings intended to further international understanding are to be commended."

RAILROAD TRAFFIC IN OCT. GREATEST OF ANY MONTH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP)—Railroad traffic was greater in October than in any previous month in history. The Bureau of railway economics maintained here by the carriers, figured today that movement amounted to 44,061,000,000 ton miles. The previous high record, in October, 1924, was 2.2 per cent. less.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Uneven price movements characterized this week's financial and securities markets.

Stock prices gathered strength as the week progressed, but soft spots cropped out in various sections of the list as professional traders who had bought stocks "for a turn" cashed in their profits. The upward movement was accelerated by the favorable resumes of the business situation made by President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon in their communications to congress, by an unexpectedly large increase in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, by the retention of the 3 1-2 per cent. rediscount rate by the New York federal reserve bank, and by a series of favorable announcements.

Bond prices fluctuated within a narrow range, new offerings of about $126,000,000 apparently using up a large portion of surplus funds available for investment.

Cotton futures broke sharply on another upward revision of the government crop estimate, closing quotations disclosing net losses of 50 to 70 points on the week. Speculative fears that the Argentine government report next Tuesday might disclose less damage to the crop than private estimates had indicated was held to be largely responsible for the selling of wheat, which dropped 5 to 10 cents a bushel below last week's closing quotations.

Acute weakness of French francs, reflecting the financial difficulties of the French cabinet, sent the Paris rate down to a new low level for the year at 3.43 1-4 cents, or less than a quarter of a cent above the extreme low recorded.

The Bulletin.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was central over western Quebec Saturday night has advanced to the Canadian maritime provinces and it has been attended by light precipitation in the lakes region, northern New York and northern New England and by strong westerly winds in portions of the lake region and along the north Atlantic coast.

The temperature was lower Sunday in the Atlantic states, north of Virginia. There will be precipitation over all sections east of the Mississippi river within the next 48 hours.

The weather will remain fair Monday however in the northeastern states.

Winds

Sandy Hook to Hatteras—Moderate to fresh northwest and north, becoming northeast over south portion and fair weather Monday.

Forecast

For southern New England: Fair Monday, Tuesday cloudy probably rain on the coast and rain or snow in the interior. Slowly rising temperature Tuesday.

TAFTVILLE

Troop 2, Boy Scouts held its regular weekly meeting Friday evening in the recreation rooms of the Taftville Congregational church, under the direction of the scoutmaster, Harold E. Linderson.

Miss Gertrude Ladd, of Hanover, was the speaker at the meeting of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor, held Sunday evening in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church. Miss Ladd was a delegate to the Christian Endeavor convention held this year at Portland, Oregon.

Joseph Belair, Jr., of Merchants avenue, had one of his toes fractured when a heavy iron plate that he was handling fell from his hands.

James Murphy of South A street has resigned his position with the cloth department of the Ponemah company.

Quantities of Christmas cards in packages addressed to local people who are requested to send a dollar in return, are adding considerably to the volume of mail at the local postoffice.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Nafle and family have taken a house on North A street.

TO BEGIN BUILDING NEW DORMITORY AT STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Dec. 13—Construction will begin immediately on a new dormitory for men at the Connecticut Agricultural college, according to the announcement of President Charles Lewis Beach here today.

The H. Wales Lines Co. of Meriden, with the low bid of $146,437 among the ten submitted, has been awarded the contract, which provides that construction shall be completed Sept. 15, 1926.

Funds for the new dormitory were provided in the $166,000 appropriation of the legislature during its last session. This will leave a surplus over actual building costs, which will be used for dormitory furnishings, architect's fees, water and sewage connections and other incidental expenses.

Construction will be of Connecticut-Harvard brick throughout, with accommodations for eighty-four students. The erection of another dormitory here will greatly relieve the present congestion among men students. Present plans call for locating the dormitory south of the dining hall, and west of Koons Hall, forming a quadrangle.

The Alumni association has petitioned the board of trustees to name the new dormitory for the late William Henry Hall of South Willington, a former trustee of the college.

CHRISTMAS THOUGHT IN ENGLISH SERVICE SERMON

Sunday evening at the English services at the German Lutheran church on Franklin street, the pastor, Rev. H. Hunzinger, chose his sermon theme in line with the Christmas season the coming of the Son of God on that silent, holy night has blessed the world with more sunshine than all the brightest days before and since then. He urged his hearers to remember the solemn vows they had made at confirmation and to remember that they needed the help of God at all times. God's wonderful promise is one of happiness and salvation for He is the only hope of mankind. It is said that while there is life there is hope, but while there is hope in Christ there is life everlasting.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT CALLED FOR BLAZE AT TRADING COVE SUNDAY

A prompt response and efficient work on the part of the firemen of the local fire department saved from destruction by fire Sunday morning of the building in which is located the Trading Cove store near the foot of Mohegan hill. About 11:30 o'clock, Sunday morning, Alton VanDyke, who occupied the tenement over the store, discovered, as he was driving into the yard, that the roof was on fire.

A telephone message was immediately sent to the Central fire station. Although the fire was some distance outside the city limits, Engine No. 6, Thamesville station, and Squad A, from the Central station were despatched to the scene. The firemen found a lively blaze on the roof.

The occupants of the building had started to remove their furniture and belongings from the house, as the fire was a threatening one and beginning to spread. Two chemical lines were quickly run to the roof and the contents of a 40 gallon tank and a 25 gallon tank directed on the flames which were quickly extinguished. Two three gallon tanks were also used on the blaze. The damage was confined to the roof of the two story building. It is thought, that the fire was caused by sparks from the chimney.

WESLEYAN GUILD BAZAAR AND SUPPER HELD

A Christmas bazaar which was conducted with great success at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church by the Wesleyan Guild of the church had a large patronage Friday and Saturday for the sale and the supper which was given each evening. Mrs. E. M. Newbury was general chairman and the decorations were under the direction of Mrs. E. J. Jones. The various booths were in charge of the following: Dolls—Mrs. W. R. Denison, Miss Lena Haglund; candy—Mrs. Andrew Crowe, Mrs. George Greenlaw, Mrs. Krumholz; fancy work—Mrs. J. A. Ferguson, Mrs. L. H. Geer, Mrs. A. Boardman, Mrs. Maude Crowe; handkerchiefs—Mrs. Tyler D. Guy, Miss Anna Haglund, Miss Hannah Haglund, Miss Gladys Newbury; aprons—Mrs. Emma Worthington, Mrs. George Botham; canned goods—Mrs. Robert McNeely. Mrs. William Crowe was in charge of the grab bag, wearing a dress with 100 pockets, and Mrs. Alvin H. Lewis was in charge of the supper.

Saturday evening Lloyd Cochran acted as auctioneer at the conclusion of the sale, and on Friday evening an entertainment was given. This included solos by William H. Rush, Mrs. R. P. Potter, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., violin solos by Miss Janie Lambert with Miss Viola Levitsky accompanist. There was also a play, The Misses Pringle's Leap Year in which the cast was as follows: Miss Janie Leach, Miss Mary Gray, Miss Gladys Newbury, Mrs. George Greenlaw, Mrs. W. R. Denison, Mrs. L. H. Geer. Miss Gertrude Pendleton, Mrs. A. A. Gifle, Mrs. Charles Browning, Miss Isabelle Sherer and Dr. E. J. Jones.

STOLEN PROVIDENCE MACHINE FOUND IN THIS CITY

A Cadillac sedan that had been stolen in Providence Saturday night was found in this city Sunday afternoon and the driver, Carl Eaton, 15, of Woonsocket, R. I., on parole from the reform school in Howard, R. I., is back at the institution. The youth ran the machine into a fence and damaged the sedan to the extent of about $500. Tony Benard, proprietor of the ideal garage, Bogwell avenue, towed the damaged machine to his garage.

The garagemen's suspicions were aroused as the boy displayed but little knowledge of the year or model of the machine he was driving and he had no money. As the boy was hungry the garage man gave him a dollar and sent him to a restaurant on Main street to get something to eat. In the meantime a telephone call to the Providence police department, brought back the information that the car had been stolen from that city. Local police headquarters were notified and the boy taken into custody. The boy told the garage man that his father had given him the machine about six months ago. Sunday evening, Harold E. Bean, assistant superintendent of the reform school at Howard, came to Norwich and took the boy back to the institution.

ENTERTAINED BY MEMBERS OF METHODIST CHOIR

Patients and staff of the William W. Backus hospital were entertained Sunday afternoon by members of the choir of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, which rendered a most charming program of vocal and instrumental numbers. The entertainment opened Trinity Methodist Episcopal church week at the hospital, some department of that church to visit the institution each day during the present week to spread cheer among the patients.

The program, which was received with insistent applause by the delighted audience, was as follows: Piano solo, Mazurka, Mrs. Olive Roberts; duet, Whispering Hope, Miss Hazel Banfield and Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham; bass solo, Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses, William H. Rush; soprano solo, I Know a Lovely Little Garden, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham; alto solo, When Song is Sweet and Daffodils are Blowing, Miss Hazel Banfield; bass solo, A Song of the Open Sea, William H. Rush; piano solo, Chaconne, Mrs. Olive Roberts; duet, Passage Birds Farewell, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham and Miss Hazel Banfield.

Legion Auxiliary Met.

The Woman's auxiliary of Robert O. Fletcher post, American Legion, met recently at the home of Miss Evon Broadhurst, No. 135 West Thames street, with the vice president, Mrs. William I. Bogue in charge in the absence of the president, Mrs. Louis Leipold.

One application for membership was favorably voted on and the welfare committee rendered a report on progress concerning the entertainment to be given at Uncas-on-Thames during Christmas week.

Following the meeting coffee and cake were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Broadhurst.

Announcement was made that a special meeting of the auxiliary had been planned for this (Monday) evening at the home of President Mrs. Louis Leipold, No. 39 Hedge avenue, when the welfare committee would render a final report regarding the entertainment.

RIPPED FIRE ALARM BOX FROM POLE

Fire alarm box 263, located on a pole at Russell road, was torn from the pole and quite badly damaged about 5:15 o'clock Sunday afternoon by an automobile driven by a local man. The driver misjudged the distance between his machine and the pole while making the turn into Russell road from Boswell avenue, the machine striking the pole and ripping the box from its fastenings. The wires leading to the box were broken, and the front of the box was considerably damaged.

It was at 5:13 that a single blow of the fire alarm system came in, indicating trouble somewhere in the system. The trouble was checked up with the result that the smashed box was found shortly afterwards.

MEN AND WOMAN IN JAIL FOR SUPERIOR COURT

Probable cause being found John Grabowy, 22, No. 177 West Main street, was bound over to the criminal superior court Saturday morning by Judge Arthur F. Libby on a charge of rape on a 13 year old girl. Bonds were set at $2,500. The case was heard in chambers at the city court session.

Grabowy pleaded not guilty to a second charge, adultery with Mrs. Wilhemina Buley of this city. He was bound over to the criminal court on this charge also, bonds being set at $2,500. As he was unable to furnish bonds Grabowy is in jail awaiting his trial. Mrs. Ruley pleaded guilty to a statutory offense with Grabowy and was bound over to the superior court. Her bond was set at $2,500 which she was unable to provide and she went to jail. Mrs. Ruley is a white woman and is married to a colored man.

Charles Hodge, 18, was presented on a charge of attempted rape on a 13 year old girl, pleaded not guilty, and was bound over to the superior court. He was unable to furnish a $2,500 bond and went to jail.

The girl in the case whose home is in Greeneville, was presented in the juvenile court and Judge Libby committed her to the House of the Good Sheperd, in Hartford. The various arrests came about through complaints of the girl's actions which were made to Rev. W. A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, who passed the information over to the police.

Daniel Zeiszck, known as Big Dan, was bound over to the superior court on a charge of violating the liquor law. Big Dan, who conducts a restaurant at 3-1-3 Thames street, was one of those arrested in the liquor raids made last week by state and local police. Zeiszck put up his bank book as a bond for his appearance in the superior court when his case is called in January. This will make Big Dan's second appearance before the superior court.

The case against Frank McCloskey, 18, charged with receiving stolen goods, was continued until December 19th. The continuance was made owing to the fact that McCloskey's lawyer, Roderich M. Douglas was unable to be present owing to illness. McCloskey's bond, $500, remains the same, and he is at present at liberty, awaiting final disposition of his case. He is held in connection with the recent break at the Eaton-Chase Co. store on Main street.

It was Friday evening that Captain P. Murphy was notified that the girl had not been home since Wednesday afternoon. He immediately set to work on the case and Sergt. Matthew Delaney went to work to locate the girl. He, with Officer Patrick Murphy, found her on Main street. As she saw the patrol wagon drive up she started to run and Sergt. Delaney started after her, capturing her on Main street. Grabowy was later arrested by Sergt. Casey, Sergt. Delaney and Officer Patrick Murphy, Hodge being arrested by Sergt. Delaney and Officer Murphy.

SPENT WEEK-END AT CAMP TIPPECAN

A small but enthusiastic group of scout leaders went by automobile to Camp Tippecan and spent Saturday and Sunday in scoutcraft work as part of their training course which will be completed Wednesday of this week. After inspection of the camp site, supper was cooked in the fire place at Mr. Brigg's cottage which was generously loaned for the occasion.

Making fire by friction, the singing of songs and a general social time followed till a late hour when the scout leaders turned in for a good night's rest. Sunday morning dawned clear and the cooks prepared breakfast of Johnny cake, coffee, beans and eggs.

After breakfast exploring trips were then made and several Indian relics discovered. Archery, woodcraft and tracking were some of the activities of the day. After a substantial dinner, again cooked in the fire place, the men started the home trip.

Troop No. 1, Voluntown, Scout Master Charles Downing, is reported as growing rapidly. Several new scouts have been recently recruited.

THREATENED TO CARVE UP HIS FAMILY

On information that Harry Gerald, Russian, 29, of No. 66 Mt. Pleasant street has threatened the members of his family with a razor, the man was arrested by Officer Frank Guindowski Sunday evening. He was booked on a breach of the peace charge and locked up for the night. It is said that Gerald not only threatened his family but that he actually started to carve himself up with the razor but gave up the attempt when the sharp blade had inflicted a nick in his flesh. His case will be taken up in the city court this (Monday) morning.

LOCAL NEAR EAST FUND REACHES $1,000 MARK

About $1,000 has thus far been received by the local treasurer, Guy B. Dolbeare, for the Near East Relief, since Golden Rule Sunday, Dec. 6, and it is still coming in. Aside from this some contributors are sending their gifts directly to the state treasurer at the Near East ReNef headquarters at Hartford.

Burial of Infant

The funeral of the year and a half old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ferguson was held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock from his parents' home, No. 18 Tilton street. The burial, which was private, took place in Maplewood cemetery. The child died Friday after an illness with diphtheria. Undertakers Cummings and Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Unexpected Wealth

Tony Rutka, a butcher at Colchester, found it necessary to take his cash register apart in order to make it work properly. Upon taking the back off he found checks and cash amounting to over $160. The checks dated back to 1922.

WHY PRESENT CRIME WAVE? FATHER GALVIN EXPLAINS

Continuing his instructions on the ten commandments, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, preaching at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, considered together the seventh commandment, "Thou shalt not steal" and the tenth, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's goods." The latter forbids injustice against others in thought, while the former prohibits injustice in deed.

As to the seventh, it forbids robbery —taking one's neighbor's goods by force, and theft, depriving him of what is his by stealth. The former often implies the taking of life—a sin grown so common as to be appalling. By some this is attributed to the aftermath of war, when life was held so lightly; but the preacher deemed it due to other causes. It is a disgrace, that in a Christian nation, one considered the most highly civilized, as is the United States, there should be a veritable crime wave as at present.

Seeking the causes for such a deplorable effect, Father Galvin found them in the fact that so many courts of justice fail in merited treatment of criminals. Some judges, lawyers, juries, moved by venal motives, often influenced by sentiment, nullify the laws, while so-called humanitarian and philanthropic organizations, as soon as a man is proved a criminal put him on a pedestal, exploit his cause, see that his cell is made comfortable, et al., ignoring justice in over-kindness, mercy, attention to the newly created hero.

Lack of religious education, absence of parental control, contribute also to national crime. It is not enough to teach merely ethics in the schools—ethics which lack a real, true God. This is why the parish schools see to it that Catholic children are firmly grounded in a knowledge of God and of morality.

As to parental failure—Father Galvin deplored the passing of the old days, when each family had in its kitchen a strap, a cat-o'-nine-tails; in an era when the household was a little republic, with the father president, the mother vice-president and the children having no vote. The mother was the guiding spirit, until the time came when the boys and girls grew beyond her control. Then "father" was the last resort—and the family strap did effective duty.

Now, the child is not disciplined—there is weak sentiment about not breaking his will, he must be permitted to choose his own course, etc. The result is seen in the numberless instances of disobedient, disrespectful, wayward, often wicked children.

Naturally, there are cases, when even with solicitous religious teaching, with parental oversight, children bring sorrow and disgrace to their home by going wrong; the preacher declared that too often this unexpected result came from evil companionship. No criminal ever started out to be a criminal—but many have lapsed into evil and lawless lives by the example or influence of companions who, at the outset, appeared innocent enough. The sermon was a vigorous appeal to listening parents not to have upon their souls the sin of depriving their offspring of that sound religious teaching which they can receive only in the parish school, not to prove lax in their discipline of those whom God has entrusted to their care, but to teach them obedience to parents, to the laws of country, to their Creator and their eternal judge.

Later Father Galvin assisted Rev. John J. Reilly in giving communion. At the communion-time, Henry J. Fontaine, the organist played the beautiful Christmas offertory by Lemaire. It was the second Sunday in Advent, the epistle being Romans 15. 4-13 and the gospel, Matthew II. 2-10.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD DOUBLING SHOP CAPACITY

One of several major improvements on the schedule of The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company is the work of making an addition to the electrical repair shop at Van Nest, N. Y., which will eventually double its capacity. Work on this extension is now well under way, in accordance with plans prepared by the road's engineering department. Van Nest is where all the heavy repair work on the company's electrical equipment is done. All classes of such equipment are inspected and overhauled at this point, and it is there that the regular periodical inspection of freight and switcher equipment is made.

The present Van Nest shops were erected in 1913, and consist of a main building 375 feet long by 150 feet in width, together with an inspection shed of the same length and 80 feet wide, and other subsidiary buildings. When the present work is completed the main building will be just double in length. One of the end walls is to be removed, thus making a new main shop 750 feet long and 150 feet wide. When this addition is completed, it is calculated that the New Haven will have electrical repair facilities adequate for the needs of the company for a good many years to come, yet provision is made in the new building so that the shop can be still further expanded should occasion arise.

The inspection shed which forms an adjunct of the main shop building, will not be added to at this time because it is supplemented by the inspection shed which was constructed at Stamford about a year ago. Provision has been made, however, for the extension of the Van Nest inspection shed if future requirements make it necessary.

When the Van Nest extension is finished, The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company will have, without question, the largest electrical shop of any railroad in the country.

OFFERED $27,000 FOR DANIEL BOONE MILLS

An offer of $27,000, made Saturday afternoon by W. B. Dunn, of Providence, R. I., for the Daniel Boone, Woolen Mills Inc., property in Baltic, was not deemed sufficient by Agent Charles J. McLaughlin, and Receiver Thomas J. Spellacy, announced that there would be a hearing this (Monday) morning at 10 o'clock, at Hartford, before Judge Edwin S. Thomas, at which time Mr. Dunn could present his offer to the court.

The sale of the mill property was by order of the northwestern district of the Illinois federal court and Charles J. McLaughlin was appointed agent by the court, to sell the property, while the interests of the estate were looked after by Thomas J. Spellacy.

The property consists of two mill buildings connected together, four mill houses, one a single tenement, one four tenement house, one two tenement house, and one cottage, seven acres of land and water rights that develop from 50 to 75 horsepower. The property has on it a mortgage of $125,000 with accrued interest of $6,000 and was to be sold free of all incumbrances, liens, etc. The purchased was at the time of purchase to deposit a certified check of $1,000 and 10 per cent. of the purchase price. The balance of the sale price was to be paid within 60 days from the day of sale. The sale also was to be upon confirmation by the court.

The sale opened at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon after the terms of sale had been explained. The first bid was from W. B. Dunn of Providence, R. I., amounting to $25,000. It was hard work to raise the bid another thousand and as soon as this was made Mr. Dunn raised his offer to $27,000.

No more bids were heard and Receiver Spellacy stated that as receiver for the company he would not recommend a sale to the court of the property at any such price and that unless persons present were willing to make an offer of $75,000 the agent might just as well call the sale off. He would never recommend a sale for anything less than that amount. Mr. Dunn insisted, however, that his offer still held good subject to the confirmation of the court.

Receiver Spellacy, after Agent McLaughlin had declared the sale closed with the offer of Mr. Dunn for $27,000 stated that there would be a hearing before Judge Edwin S. Thomas at Hartford on Monday morning at 10 o'clock at which time Mr. Dunn could present his offer to the court. Mr. Dunn's check for $1,000 and the 10 per cent. of the purchase price was before, accepted by Agent McLaughlin on the conditions presented by Receiver Spellacy. The sale was then closed.

There was a large number of mill owners present at the sale but no one seemed ready to make a bid on the property, only one bid being heard other than the two made by Mr. Dunn. When the merger of the Donohue mills and the Boone Mills Inc., took place the late W. H. Donohue retained a mortgage on the property, thus giving the Donohue family an interest in the sale. The amount of the mortgage held by the family is not known but an endeavor is to be made to secure a bid of not less than $75,000 for the property.

COMMON PLEAS COURT HEARD SUIT OVER BILL

An alleged unpaid bill for labor and material furnished the basis for a damage suit brought by The Modern Electric company against Frits Vogt, both of New London, which was tried in the court of common pleas there Saturday. Following the conclusion of the case Judge Charles B. Waller took the papers.

In the plaintiff's bill of particulars, $442.92 was originally claimed but in summing up the case, Attorney Thomas E. Troland, counsel for the plaintiff, stated that the evidence had brought out that $61 should be credited to the defendant, making the claim $381.92.

Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, representing the defendant, claimed that certain sums should be subtracted from the bill of $381.92, a second statement rendered by the plaintiff after going over the work with the defendant's electrician.

The work, which consisted of wiring a Bank street building belonging to Mr. Vogt, was done, in 1924, the first part of which was done under contract and paid for. The work over which arose the present controversy followed when a number of additional rooms were added to the building and the wiring done on a day-work basis. N. E. and M. DiBiasi are the owners of the Modern Electric company.

Collision On Main Street.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED

Following an accident in which he figured at Bean Hill Saturday night, Albert J. Nutting, 57, of Brooklyn, this state, was arrested by Constable Fenton on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. The accident happened near the bridge at Bean Hill. It is said that Nutting drove his machine into an automobile owned by Edwin E. Lathrop of No. 4 Wauwecus street and driven by Mr. Lathrop's sister, Mrs. John J. Collins.

The left side of the Lathrop machine was quite badly damaged and Mr. Nutting's car was also damaged. Following an investigation Constable Fenton took charge of Mr. Nutting and he was brought to the police station where he was booked and locked up. He will be presented in the city courts this (Monday) morning. It is said that he was very evidently under the influence of liquor when he was arrested.

Dressed Dolls For Christmas.

The last two meetings of the Junior Guild of the United Congregational church have been held at the home of Mrs. A. C. Freeman. Both evenings have been spent in dressing dolls which are to be given to some poor children at a Christmas party December 26. After the business meetings, entertainment in the way of stories, read while the girls sewed, was furnished. The evening ended with refreshments and fun.

SYNDICATE PURCHASES HUYLER'S CANDY BUSINESS

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Announcement was made here tonight of the purchase of Huyler's candy business by a southern syndicate, headed by Rudolph S. Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust company of New Orleans.

The consideration involved was not made public, it was announced, however, that $7,500,000 has been subscribed to the syndicate with sufficient capital available after payment of the purchase price to finance a substantial development of both the retail and wholesale departments of the company.

COAST GUARD IS MAKING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13—(AP)—The coast guard is making "steady and gratifying progress" in breaking up rum running and "will drive this menace from American shores in due time," Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, coast guard commandant, declared today in his annual report but he warned that it must be prepared for a trying task "for years to come."

Although the traditional duty of conservation of life and property has been well performed and rum running has been somewhat curbed, Admiral Billard said personnel and equipment must be further augmented if the work is to continue effectively.

ANNOUNCEMENT EXPECTED OF POWER LAUNDRY MERGER

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Public announcement is expected this week of the $7,000,000 Power Laundry merger, involving some of the largest companies in New York and New Jersey. The new corporation, to be known as Consolidated Laundries, is reported to be negotiating for other companies in large eastern cities which may bring the total capitalization up to $10,000,000.

NEW OFFENSIVE BY THE FRENCH AGAINST RIFFIANS

RABAT, French Morocco, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A new French offensive against the Riffians, which began a day or two ago, has been aided by improvement in the weather conditions. Riffian forces entered in the villages of El Jadjeur, El Arbaa and Sidi Aliben Taoud, have been dislodged.

A Riffian force, which was reassembling in the Beni Ouled territory has been dispersed and many tribesmen have submitted. North of Taza the French occupied the villages of Berebbou and El Nsall.

The Bitter Sweet

The vine outside the garden
Flashes scarlet and gold,
Blazing fruit of bitter-sweet
From tiny blooms unfold,
Springing to life and wonder
As Aaron's rod of old.

We taste the leaves in springtime,
First bitter, then the sweet;
And the quaint name a lesson hints
To have our lives replete,
Ask we both shade and sunshine
The bitter with the sweet.

We all give thanks for mercies,
But yet the seeming ill,
The "glory in tribulation"
Is a thanksgiving still;
The bitter-sweet now thinking
With trust our spirits fill.

Dear Lord, when pain and sorrow
To darkness lead our feet,
May Thy strong love surround us
To make our lives complete,
And with a grateful spirit
We'll call the bitter sweet.

—By Laura C. Burroughs.

As Some Mysterious Wanderer of the Skies

As some mysterious Wanderer of the skies,
Emerging from the deeps of outer dark,
Traces for once in human ken the arc
Of its stupendous curve, then swiftly flies
Out through some orbit veiled in space, which lies
Where no imagination may embark,
Some onward-reaching track that God did mark
For all eternity beneath his eyes,
So comes the soul forth from Creation's
Vast;
So clothed with mystery moves through mortal sight;
Then sinks away into the Great Unknown.
What systems it hath seen in all the past,
What worlds shall blaze upon its future flight,
Thou knowest, eternal God, and thou alone!

—Henry Jerome Stockard.

COURT DENIES CHAPMAN WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS

Decision Adverse to the Condemned Bandit Was Rendered by Judge Edwin S. Thomas of the United States District Court For Connecticut—Writ Was Sought by Chapman's Counsel in an Endeavor to Save the Murderer's Life by His Return to Atlanta Prison—Judge Thomas Finds That None of Chapman's "Constitutional Rights" Has Been Taken From Him—Case May Be Taken to the U. S. Supreme Court.

HARTFORD, Dec. 14—(AP)—Only ... appeal to the United States ... court now stands between ... Chapman, notorious mail robber ... the gallows upon which he has been sentenced to die for the murder ... New Britain policeman.

... petition to the federal ... court for a writ of habeas ... permitting him to first serve ... sentence for robbery was ... today by Judge E. S. Thomas ... also dismissed the writ under ... he was brought here from the ... state prison.

... condemned man now under a ... expiring March 3, 1926, was ... in custody of Warden Henry ... Scott, against whom the writ ... directed.

... writ of habeas corpus sought ... Chapman was another of the legal ... he counsel took to save him. ... had forecast an appeal to the ... United States supreme court in case ... adverse decision. The decision ... Judge Thomas will be filed tomorrow ... the hearing on the writ was ... in the state prison and at it ... appeared in person and was ... for a few minutes a witness in ... behalf.

... Judge Thomas holds that Chapman ... properly brought into Connecticut, ... the state had a right to take him ... court for trial for murder, and ... the federal government gave ... claim to him when President ... Coolidge signed the commutation of ... balance of Chapman's 25-years' ... sentence for mail robbery.

The court holds that a rule of law determines that a commutation of ... need not be accepted by a ... to make it operative, in answer to Chapman's claim that he was ... a federal prisoner because he did ... accept the act of the president.

Judge Thomas says that none of Chapman's "constitutional rights" guaranteed by the constitution has been taken from him in answer to ... of counsel to this effect. The court holds that it is unable to determine what those "rights" are as set forth by counsel. "The claim that the ... of the jurisdiction to which ... which lies with the relator ... Chapman is amenable," said the court ... Chapman) is not only novel but with ... merit. x x To speak of a 'right' ... be imprisoned is to invest that word with a significance not to be found in common parlance nor in legal definition. If there is such a thing ... a right to incarceration, it is certain that it is not one of the rights ... secured by the fourteenth amendment ... the constitution of the United States nor by any other provision of that document. The whole conception involves a peculiar inversion of accepted ideas."

The court said that the United States consented that Connecticut should assume control of Chapman. When the commutation was issued by the president, it was held, all interest in the United States had in him ended. The court saw nothing in the act of the warden in changing Chapman's prison number after conviction and sentence to death for murder by state court. Although Assistant U. S. Attorney G. H. Colon appeared in the case as a friend of the court and talked with the state in asking for a dismissal of the writ, this did not make him an agent of the United States, the court said.

Remanded To Wethersfield

The court's decision was: "In view of the record and the settled legal principles applicable to it, the relator's petition is denied and the writ of habeas corpus is dismissed and the relator is remanded to the custody of the respondent (Scott)."

The court in a review of the case ... that on April 4, Chapman was convicted of murder in the superior court at Hartford and now seeks by writ of habeas corpus "to avoid sentence of death which was imposed in conformity of local law." The record upon which his prayer for relief was predicated disclosed that in August 1922 Chapman was convicted of robbery of mail matter and was sentenced to twenty-five years in the prison at Atlanta. He began serving of sentence on August 26, 1922, escaped on March 27, 1923, was recaptured the next day and confined in the prison hospital at Athens, Ga. He again escaped April 4, 1923, and was at large for one year and nine months.

On January 13, 1925, he was recaptured at Muncie, Ind., and returned to Atlanta on January 22. It was while ... after the second escape that ... committed the crime for which his life became forfeited to the people of Connecticut.

The court reviews the order of Attorney General Harlan Stone transferring Chapman to the state prison together with the writ of habeas corpus by which he was presented in superior court at Hartford on February 13, upon application of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn. Judge Thomas says the record shows that Chapman was not informed of the purpose of his transfer to Connecticut and it nowhere appears that any objection was made by Chapman or his counsel to the writ of habeas corpus, which produced him in court to be tried for murder. Reference is made to conviction of Chapman and his appeal to supreme court where conviction and sentence were affirmed.

Charge Conclusively Proven

Judge Thomas says that in his opinion Chief Justice Wheeler observed that "seldom is a charge of this character so completely and conclusively proven."

Judge Thomas says that by successive reprieves the date of Chapman's execution is deferred to March 3, next. The text of the commutation of federal sentence signed by President Coolidge is quoted, and the court says that the executive order was offered to Chapman in his cell by the warden but Chapman absolutely refused to accept the document or the commutation of his federal sentence.

Judge Thomas then taking up the legal propositions which are brought up by Chapman's petition for a writ of habeas corpus, saying it had been contented that Chapman was not properly before the superior court of Connecticut, that he was a federal prisoner and that his removal from Atlanta was without warrant in law. The court says that no plea to the jurisdiction of a state court was filed at any time and while the competency of any court to adjudicate the subject matter may always be questioned, jurisdiction of the person—if not challenged upon appearance—is equivalent to consent. The court says "I am unable to find any basis for the contention that because Chapman did not consent to his removal x x he was in a position to contest the jurisdiction of the state of Connecticut once he was physically present within the boundaries of the state. Courts of criminal jurisdiction need not inquire how the prisoner at the bar came within their mandates—for jurisdictional purposes it is sufficient that he is there."

Judge Thomas said that Chapman was legally and properly brought into the state under the law which confers authority upon the attorney general to change the place of imprisonment of a federal prisoner. "The records show that Chapman had escaped from Atlanta," said the court, "and if the attorney general thought that place insecure, he apparently had good grounds for his conclusion. In any event, this court, except possibly upon a showing of gross abuse of discretion, may not question the purely administrative act of the attorney general."

Judge Thomas says that the proposition was advanced that Chapman being a federal prisoner may not be incarcerated to the justice of Connecticut. The state's attorney in behalf of one Scott replied by producing President Coolidge's order which was claimed to be a commutation "pure and simple, but which the relator says is a pardon or conditional pardon which he refuses to accept." The court holds: "In order to endow that republication with a verile efficacy the relator appeals to the settled principal of law that a pardon is not consummated and effective until it is accepted by the convict, and so insists that the document is not a commutation of sentence but a pardon."

Power of Commutation

After quoting from a citation on this point by Chapman's counsel, Judge Thomas says, "It is urged that the exercise of the power of commutation is but the exercise of the pardoning prerogative in a lesser degree and that if the gift of a pardon is incomplete without acceptance the lesser grant is surely so.

"We may acknowledge the premise without acceding to the conclusion because the fact is that a distinction does exist between a pardon and a commutation and the legal principles applicable are no longer open to question. The rule of law is well settled that a commutation does not need acceptance by the convict in order to be operative." x x x "If it were conceded by the relator that the order issued by the president on November 23, is a commutation, further discussion would be unnecessary. Not only is it not conceded that the document is a commutation but it is asserted that it is a pardon, and as the relator did not accept it, the document is nugatory.

"There is, so far as I am able to find, no federal case in point, but I feel myself impelled to adopt the rule evolved in various state jurisdictions and all the more so as the rule commends itself to me as one founded in practical reason. The rule that a pardon requires acceptance—is after all—nothing more than an application of the old principle that a gift must be accepted in order to be effective. Every pardon involves a grant, and a grant is something which cannot be imposed against the will of the grantee. A commutation, on the other hand, is merely a withdrawal of a restraining jurisdiction—a cessation of the exercise of the confining power and authority of the sovereign, and it is not within the ability of the prisoner to compel the sovereign to continue that restraint. He may refuse to accept a gift from the state, but the state does not need his acquiescence to determinate its right to his servitude.

"It is urged that the commutation is one in name only—that in substance and law it is a pardon. x x x that support for this contention is found in the fact that the commutation, by its terms, became immediately effective, and provided no substitution of a lesser penalty for the one originally imposed. I can find no real merit in the contention. A pardon would be something essentially different from a commutation—even if the communation were issued immediately upon sentence to become immediately effective A commutation thus granted, would not obliterate the stain of guilt; nor would it restore the prisoner to his civil rights. However, in the instant case, the commutation has in fact substituted a lesser penalty for the one originally imposed. Chapman has already served a certain amount of his time on the original 25-year sentence of the court and the commutation substitutes that term for the term x x x imposed. The contention that the relator is a federal prisoner is therefore untenable."

The court holds that the claim that the choice of the jurisdiction to which Chapman is amenable is one which lies with the relator is not only novel but without merit. In the absence of the commutation and in case the federal government was demanding its right to compel the relator to serve the balance of his unexpired term, the decision says, the federal government might decline commity and refuse to permit the judgment of the state court to be carried out until after the federal sentence had expired. But "the relator," says the court, "is not the federal government nor is he authorized to move in its behalf, now will the court be keen to discover a technique for the subversion of justice. It will not interpose its arm to circumvent a lawful doom. It is a fundamental rule that our system of state and federal jurisdiction requires a spirit of reciprocal comity between courts to promote due and orderly procedure x x x We must not overlook the fact that to all the proceedings the United States x x x acquesed in those proceedings and temporarily surrendered its possession of the relator complaint as the situation is squarely within the rule stated by Chief Justice Taft in Ponzi vs. Fessenden. x x x In the case ar the United States consented that the state of Connecticut should assume control of the body of the relator. When the commutation was issued by the president all interest that the United States had in the relator ended."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Action by Italian Senate

ROME, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The senate today approved a bill already adopted by the chamber giving the government wide powers to govern by decree in matters of administrative urgency instead of having to wait for laws to be enacted by parliament. The senate also began an important discussion of the press law which has already passed the chamber. The minister of justice, Alfredo Rocco explained that one of the principal reasons the government wished decree powers was to relieve parliament of lengthy discussions over matters of an administrative nature, and therefore, matters which really did not concern it.

MAINE'S CHAMPION FIDDLER SIGHT-SEEING IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mellie Dunham came to town today, and proved that a real backwoodsman is more of a spectacle to New York than the big city is to a fiddler who has lived 73 years in the woods.

A crowd surrounded him at Grand Central station when he arrived from Detroit, where he fiddled last week for Henry Ford. Later he went to the stock exchange, and even the million-a-minute traders stopped trading for about forty-five seconds to greet him. Every time he was recognized during his sight-seeing tour, crowds gathered with all the air of a country town to see a celebrity.

And the extent of white-haired Mellie's comment on it all was:

"Well, well, so this is New York."

His hosts told him he will be taken with much ceremony tomorrow to see Mayor Hyland and Tex Rickard about playing some of his old time dance tunes in Madison Square Garden which seats 20,000 persons, and his only comment was that 20,000 "is a heap o'folks."

He and grandma, however, were loquacious enough about the farm at Norway, Me., the grandchildren, the chickens, and the fine time they had in Detroit teaching the Ford employes the old-fashioned dances.

The five or six days they are in New York they will be guests of A. F. Masury, automotive engineer, who knew Mellie intimately.

DISARMAMENT INVITATION HAS REACHED WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The invitation from the League of Nations for American participation in the preliminaries for an international conference of limitation of armaments was received by the state department late today by cable from Minister Gibson at Berne.

With Secretary Kellogg in New York, officials declined to give out any information as to its contents, or even as to its length; it could not be determined, therefore, how the invitation might fall in with the statements of President Coolidge that the Washington government was not adverse to entering into conferences for the discussion of such questions, provided there was hope that effective agreements would result.

Inclusion of other governments than those which are members of the league in the scope of the invitation, may, however, remove objection to American acceptance, the policy of the government having made it possible to participate in international conferences which though initiated by the league, included non-league members, such as the opium conference and that for control of the traffic in arms.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Senator La Follette was recognized as a republican.

The house approved the new income and surtax rates.

The state department received the league of nations armament limitation investigation.

A $9,000,000 appropriation bill for new coast guard cutters was introduced in the senate.

An unfavorable report on the seating of Senator Designate Nye was adopted by a senate committee.

MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

OWENSBORO, Ky., Dec. 14—(AP)—Mrs. Lawrence Fuqua, 38, and her children, Harry 21, and Gladys, 16, were found shot to death in their home near Whitesville, today. A shotgun lay by the mothers side.

County officers after an examination expressed the opinion that Mrs. Fuqua killed her children and then herself last night. She had been irrational at times since a nervous breakdown several years ago.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST LOWER CITY OFFICIALS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 14—(AP)—Two secret indictments against city officials of Lowell were returned today by the Middlesex county grand jury in its closing session. In an appended report the judge declared that Daniel E. Martin, city auditor, and three members of the city budget and auditing committe merited public censure for non-performance of duty.

Crook Being Taken To Sing Sing Escapes

From New York Central Train After Accomplice Had Knocked Down Guard With Iron Pipe.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP)—Aided by an accomplice who knocked down a guard with an iron pipe, John A. ("Bum") Rogers, notorious criminal, escaped from a New York Central train this afternoon as he was being taken to Auburn prison to serve a total of 36 years for robbery possession of fire arms and violation of parole.

Boarding the train at the Grand Central station, Rogers' accomplice whose identity was unknown to the police, took a seat just behind Rogers and his guard. As the train pulled into the 125th street station, the guard unlocked the handcuffs shackling him to Rogers, in order to remove his overcoat. Rogers' accomplice hit the guard a blow over the head with an iron pipe, knocking him down. The prisoner and his confederate then ran from the train and disappeared in the crowd on the station platform.

Rogers, who was known for his prison escapes, had a criminal record including robbery, extortion and lesser crimes.

EFFORTS OF PINCHOT TO SETTLE COAL CONTROVERSY

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14—(AP)—Efforts of Governor Pinchot to bring about a settlement of the anthracite mining controversy took a new turn today when he called upon the executives of cities and villages in the mining region to meet him publicly here Wednesday.

The governor sent telegrams to the mayors and burgesses of more than seventy communities in the anthracite region and asked that any who failed to receive them also come to the meeting. He told them all he wished to consult with them "as the representative of the people" regarding the situation.

The executive's latest move followed within a few hours his call for an extra session of the state legislature on January 13 at which one of the subjects which he listed for consideration is to provide for regulation and control of the industry, both by a state agency and by formation of interestate compacts. He indicated his intention of asking the legislature to declare hard coal mining a public utility, making it, as such, subject to control by the public service commission.

One purpose of the meeting next Wednesday was understood to be a desire of the governor's part to ascertain sentiment in the mining communities towards these suggestions as well as on the general effect of the suspension and the governor's previous proposals for settling the differences between operators and miners.

DEAF PUPILS ENABLED TO HEAR THE HUMAN VOICE

WEST HARTFORD, Dec. 14—(AP)—Experiments were made this morning at the American School for the Deaf with a machine which is a combination of radio and phonograph with head piece and speaking tube attachments, enabling pupils at the school, who had never before heard a human voice, or any sound, to hear not only the voice of the speaker, but their own voices as well.

The first pupil used in the test was a girl of 18, who had been considered totally deaf since she was four, with consequently no remembrance of sound. There is little demonstrativeness in the deaf children, but the light of their eyes, and the quick change of expression in their faces tells the result of the experiment. The problem, according ot Principal Frank R. Wheeler, will be to teach the children to identify the sounds they hear, with the words they speak and read. The girl who submitted to the test this morning heard and spoke her own name for the first time, knowing from signs and lip-reading that it is her name and that she had met the test.

STRUCK BY AUTO WHILE WAITING FOR TROLLEY CAR

WINDSOR, Dec. 14—(AP)—Mrs. Minnie Hille, 68, widow of Oscar Hille, of 6 Garden street, was instantly killed late today when she was struck by an automobile operated by Benjamin S. Carter, of 60 Maple street.

Mrs. Hille was standing by a trolley pole and was waiting for a trolley car when the Carter automobile approached, going north in Windsor avenue. He claims that a wagon driven by Andrew Koval, appeared in the road in front of him and that the wagon was not carrying lights. Carter turned out to avoid striking the wagon and at the same time another automobile going in the opposite direction appeared.

Carter then drove his machine across the car track. The automobile struck Mrs. Hille and she was pinned between the car and the trolley pole.

GRANTED DIVORCE AFTER FIVE MINUTE HEARING

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Maginnis Thorne was granted a divorce after a five minute hearing today from Gordon C. Thorne, son of a former millionaire vice president of a mail order house. She charged drunkenness. It was the third time that Thorne had been sued for a divorce. The latest Mrs. Thorne had once before filed a suit but withdrew it after a reconciliation. She announced that she was leaving to take up her residence in New York.

ALIEN PROPERTY CUSTODIAN F. C. HICKS DROPPED DEAD

Mr. Hick's wife and daughter were at home and he was attending a performance given by Thurston, the magician. At the point where the magician introduces his hypnotic scene, apparently making a woman float about the stage, the alien property custodian suffered a heart attack. He was carried down stairs by theatre attendants and died before a physician could come to his aid.

19TH CHILD BORN TO MAN IN HIS 70TH YEAR

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 14—(AP)—Carl Parrish, a bailiff in county district court here today became the father of a 12-pound boy, his 19th child.

Parrish, who will be 70 years old in February, has been married twice, and 16 of his 19 children are living.

LaFollette Stands as Republican in Senate

So Recognized by the Republican Senate Committee on Committees — Assigned to Committees.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Republican leaders in the senate today formally recognized Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin as a republican.

After a sharp discussion behind closed doors, the republican committee on committees decided to assign him to the standing committee of the senate under the party label instead of treating him as being without the pale, as was done a year ago in the case of his father and three other republican senators.

This action is looked upon as removing the probability of a fight on the subject in a republican conference. The report of the committee is to be submitted to the senate tomorrow and is expected to receive immediate approval.

While it was announced at the conclusion of the committee session that the action taken had been unanimous, it was learned that no less than three of the nine members had voiced vigorous protest.

The newly elected senator was placed on three of what are regarded as minor committees—mines, manufactures, and Indian affairs.

Two other senators—Williams of Missouri, and Robinson, of Indiana—were given committee assignments at the same time. Mr. Williams was placed on the commerce, public lands and privileges and election committees, taking the place of the late Senator Spencer, whom he succeeded.

The placing of these new senators resulted in considerable shifting of other committee assignments. Senator Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, who is serving his first year in the senate, was made chairman of the patents committee.

SEES NO "SOCIAL GULFS" ETWEEN RICH AND POOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Vincent Astor, one of the richest young men in the country, says "social gulfs" between rich and poor exist only in popular imagination and that he cares for wealthy only for the "maintainance of material satisfaction in life," in an interview in the current issue of Collier's Weekly.

Mr. Astor, who left college to assume control of his family's affairs after his father died on the Titanic, says he wouldn't exchange all the money in the world for the right to be an ordinary citizen.

"Rich people sometimes attempt to display their wealth in a vulgar way," he says, "but the society people I am privileged to know—I so call them because that is the popular tag—are folks with usual American appetites, usual American tastes, and usual American jobs.

"They may, it is true, have more money than the average American, but they don't eat and more meals, they don't wear any more clothes, and they can't sleep in any more beds. If there is any social gulf at all between different groups of Americans, it isn't so much to be measured by money as by newspaper headlines."

CONSIDERATION APPEAL OF OLD COLONY TRUST CO. POSTPONED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The supreme court today announced that it would postpone, until argument on the merits of the case, consideration of a motion to dismiss the appeal of the Old Colony Trust company, of Massachusetts, brought as trustee of bond holders to prevent the city of Seattle, Wash., from selling for taxes property of the Puget Sound Light and Power company, on which the trust company had a mortgage. About the time the appeal was taken according to city and state officials, the light and power company paid its taxes, thus effectively ending the grounds for appeal, they contended.

The trust company asserted the suit was brought to prevent "a collusive, fraudulent and confiscatory seizure and sale of property which it held in trust" and it charged that the city had assumed and agreed to pay taxes.

BOND BUYING BY GOV'T HIGHLY SATISFACTORY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The treasury's experiment of buying bonds direct from holders for use in the cumulative sinking fund has been highly satisfactory to Secretary Mellon, who announced tonight that subscription of $68,450,000 had been accepted.

The bonds were of the Third Liberty loan and were brought at an average price, including accrued interest, of 101 11-32s. All offers over 101 and one-fourth, plus accrued interest, were rejected, and all not exceeding that figure were accepted. Total subscriptions to the offering amounted to about $176,000,000. The average cost to the government of the bonds accepted, exclusive of accrued interest, was approximately 101 6-32. Payment will be made December 23.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS TRIPLE SLAYING IN ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.(AP)—Two men were sought today by authorities seeking to solve the mystery surrounding the slaying of Henry J. Jeske, bank cashier, his wife and their six year old son when they returned Saturday to their home near Batavia, Ills., from a shopping expedition.

The two men abandoned the blood stained automobile belonging to Jeske, in which they made their escape. They left the automobile in West Chicago and fingerprints taken from the car and at the Jeske home are expected to identify them.

The cause of the triple killings which wiped out an entire family are still unknown.

FRUSTRATE ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP COUNTESS' CHILD

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 14—(AP)—Private detectives guarding the home of the Countess Ludwig Salm Von Hoogstraeten the former Millicent Rogers, fired six shots at two men who were found on the premises early today. It is believed an attempt to kidnap the countess' child was being made. Other detectives are on the way to help guard the home, it was announced.

FINANCE COMMITTEE NOT IN ACCORD WITH LOUCHEUR

French Government Placed in a Difficult Position by the Rejection of Bills to Create a Sinking Fund Commission and For the Imposition of New Taxes—Committee is to Continue Discussion of the Bills Designed to Curb Tax Dodging and the Exodus of Capital.

PARIS, Dec. 14—(AP)—The finance committee of the chamber of deputies placed M. Loucheur, the finance minister, personally, and the government generally in a difficult situation this evening by rejecting two of the principal government measures for financial stabilization—the bill creating a sinking fund commission and that for the imposition of new taxes. The committee, however, at the same time, decided to continue the discussion of the bills designed to curb tax dodging and the exodus of capital.

This latter decision was eagerly seized upon by the government supporters as evidence that all was not yet lost, but it is extremely unusual for government measures to be thus rejected in committee before their introduction in the chamber, and the natural effect is to diminish the prestige of the cabinet, particularly of the minister of finance M. Loucheur's position which has been regarded as very shaky during the past week under persistent attacks even of the government majority's organs, is now considered well nigh hopeless, and the cabinet, which is due to meet at ten o'clock tomorrow morning, will probably take up the finance committee's decision as the first business unless M. Loucheur has forestalled any action on this by resigning.

The decision of the finance committee, taken on motion of the socialist, M. Renaudel—caused scant surprise in the chamber lobbies, because the press has been occupied the past week with speculation as to what would happen after M. Loucheur had had his chance and failed.

The general opinion is that Premier Briand must accept the inevitable and decide further to enlarge his majority in the chamber by taking in representatives of groups heretofore not possessing spokesmen in the cabinet or elect to fall with M. Loucheur.

The supposition of enlargement of the cabinet is so strong that there has been much dicussion over the names of the representatives of the national bloc—the present right centre opposition—likely to be summoned by the government, with Senator Bokanowsky, member of the Washington debt mission, most favored to succeed M. Loucheur.

Meanwhile, the franc is on a downward course, and grave anxiety is felt by the French people as it is continued fall. The "sacred union" is being invoked by the newspapers, and some new form of government, whether dictatorship, or "committee of public safety," is being advocated in various quarters.

In order to stop as far as possible speculation in the franc, a 40 per cent margin on all purchases of foreign stock quoted on the Paris bourse, will be demanded by the brokers at the request of the government.

GEN. SUMMERALL IN COL. MITCHELL TRIAL

WASHINGTON Dec. 14—(AP)—Major General Charles P. Summerall, senior officer in the army active service, defended today before the Mitchell court martial his record as former commanding general of the Hawaiian department and the part he took last summer as commander of the second corps area, in directing the anti-aircraft tests at Fort Tilden, N. Y., and the night search light demonstrations at Camp Dix, N. J.

In the first place the veteran general bared his record to disprove Colonel Mitchell's charge that he was ignorant of Hawaii's air defenses which were among his responsibilities in 1923. He next gave emphatic denial to other charges, involving statements of defense witnesses that he had ordered night formation flying at Camp Dix despite obvious dangers and over protests of flying officers, including Captain Willis Hale, commander of the 20th bombardment squadron at Langley Field, Va.

Realizing the danger of night formation flying, he testified he had personally ordered that the planes fly with sufficient distance between them to guard against any possibility of collision. He added that Camp Dix had been selected for the night tests by air officers. Throughout the Tilden and Dix tests, he declared, the recommendations of air officers were followed by him and they had expressed complete satisfaction with the arrangements at the time.

The general plainly welcomed the opportunity to appear in his own defense before the tribunal, which he conversed as its first president, a post he voluntarily relinquished after Rep. Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, chief defense counsel had attacked his personal record.

MAYOR OF STAMFORD ATTACKS LEGISLATURE

STAMFORD, Dec. 14—(AP)—In his annual message to the common council tonight, Mayor Keating attacked the general assembly for what he characterized as interference and meddling with the Stamford government. He pointed particularly to the fixing of city court salaries by the legislature.

"Disposition to meddle in matters of purely local interest," Mayor Keating said "have disagreeable possibilities. If extended, persons may easily control our local affairs to the exclusion of our own elected and therefore responsible representatives."

Mayor Keating quoted President Coolidge, who said "local self-government is one of our most precious possessions. It is a wise policy to leave localities in possession of and in control of their own obligation."

PROTEST FROM NEW ENGLAND TRAFFIC ASS'N

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 14—(AP)—A resolution will be sent the New England Traffic association, which meets tomorrow in Boston from the Bridgeport Traffic association, condemning the proposal of putting the intercoastal steamship lines under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission. The resolution was drawn up this evening when the local association met at the University club for its monthly assembly.

It is the contention of the Bridgeport traffic managers that the interstate commerce commission is a body created solely for the supervision of the railroads and that placing the steamship lines within its jurisdiction would not be conducive to the fair rates and open competition desired by freight shippers.

OBITUARY

Archibald G. Adam.

PAWTUCKETT, R. I., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A picturesque figure passed from the life of this state today when Archibald G. Adam, for the last 14 years, managing editor of the Pawtucket Times, died in his office after a sudden illness. He refused to leave the office while the paper was going to press, and died a few minutes after the edition had been "sent down."

Major General Harry L. Rogers.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Major General Harry L. Rogers, U. S. A., retired, former quartermaster general of the army, and who was appointed by General Pershing to have charge of provisions and clothing of the American expeditionary forces in France, died at his apartment here Saturday night.

DECISION FOR HOLDERS OF GERMAN TREASURY NOTES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—American holders of German treasury notes purchased before the United States entered the World War were upheld by the supreme court today in their effort to satisfy their claims out of funds belonging to the German government seized by the alien property custodian.

In an opinion delivered by Justice Holmes, covering 25 cases in which the issue was raised, the report ruled that the United States government was not entitled to priority in satisfying is claims against Germany out of these funds, which include money amounting to $2,715,571, identified as belonging to the imperial German government.

The German government, having failed to make any provision for the redemption of its treasury notes, the American holders entered suits in the federal courts, asking judgments to satisfy their claims out of the German funds. This was opposed by the government, which asserted that it had claims amounting to $600,000,000 against Germany for the payment of which Germany had made no provision and that it was entitled to supply the $2,715,571 to that amount. The lower courts decided in favor of the individual holders, and the government appealed.

Justice Holmes stated that the holders of the German treasury notes had an absolute right to satisfy their claims out of the fund, and the court issued an order giving immediate effect to its decision, waiving the customary delay in the issuance of its mandates.

TO FORM BIG COLITION GOVERNMENT IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—(AP)—In keeping with his determination to exhaust all parliamentary resources in an effort to form a big coalition government to succeed the present minority ministry, President Von Hindenburg has requested Dr. Erick Koch, chairman of the democratic party, to undertake a survey of the situation with the object of ascertaining the prospects of forming a cabinet comprisinb a majority of the reichstag parties.

Dr. Koch's assignment came after Herr Fehrenbach, veteran centre leader, had informed the president that his party preferred to leave the task of organizing a government to some other parliamentary group, although it was not opposed to the presidents pet idea of a big coalition.

Dr. Koch, who was formerly burgomaster of Cassel, as well as minister of the interior in 1919, imediately repaired to the reichstag and spent the greater part of the day in conferring with party leaders; whereupon it was announced that the social democrats would agree to a Koch cabinet on the basis of a big coalition, but demanded acceptance of their labor programme. The centrists are with Dr. Koch unconditionally, and the German people's party are in accord with him, but offer objections to the socialists' labor programme. The Bavarian people's party has decided to co-operate in the negotiations, but beyond this will promise no active political aid. The economic league has reserved the right to support Dr. Koch from step to step.

The prospective chancellor will draw up an executive programme to be presented to the party leaders tomorrow morning.

INMATE OF STATE SCHOOL KILLED BY FALLING TREE

MERIDEN, Dec. 14—(AP)—Nelson Ackerson, 15, an inmate of the Connecticut State school for boys here, who came to the institution last March from the country home, and whose father is living in the town of Columbia, died at the Meriden hospital today, from a fractured skull suffered when he was struck on the head by a falling tree in the woods on the school farm.

Akerson, with several other boys in charge of Teamster Eric Upham, was working in the woods, chopping down dead chestnut trees to be used as fuel at the school, and to clean up the woods. He failed to heed the teamster's warning cry as a tree was falling, and walked under it instead of out of the path of danger. He was rushed to the Meriden hospital, where an operation was performed in an attempt to relieve the pressure on the brain, but he died shortly afterwards without regaining consciousness.

SUNDAY EVENING SCRAP RESULTS IN COURT FINES

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 14—Joseph Valli and Joseph Dion, two roomers in the 3dd block on Main street here, who were arrested while they struggled in a hallway of the building about seven o'clock Sunday night, were brought before the police court Monday morning. Valli, who was swinging a club at Dion when the officers arrived was charged with assault. Dion was charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. Both pleaded guilty but refused to divulge the cause of the battle, although the officers who made the arrest were told that the argument originated over the favor of a young woman. Valli said that he had come here from Manchester, N. H., with his wife, some six months ago. Dion has resided here for eleven years. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $10 and costs on each and the ypaid the totals being $18.13 in each case.

The cases of Timothy McCruhan, Charles Buckingham and Theodore Ogden, charged with assault and breach of the peace, Wednesday evening, December 10, at Thread Mill Square, were again continued, to Saturday morning, December 19, to allow the first two named to secure counsel.

Isadore Pollack, twenty-one year old son of Nathan Pollack, of Gurleyville, was arrested at eleven o'clock, Sunday forenoon, by County Detective William E. Jackson as he was delivering three gallons of cider-brandy to Constable Louis H. Hodis, who was not known to be an officer by the young man. The accused asked that his case be continued to Saturday morning, December 19, that he might secure the services of an attorney, when he was presented on a charge of transporting liquor, Monday morning. Judge Foss granted the continuance and Pollack was released on a bond of $1,000.

From his home 238 South street, the funeral of John White was held Monday morning. Requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock was sung by Rev. Charles M. Kelly. Mrs. C. H. Portelance was at the organ and Mrs. Henry Mathieu was soloist. The bearers were John Moriarty, James F. Mooney, Jeremiah Murphy and John W. Moran. At the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Father Kelly read the committal prayers. Killourey Brothers had charge of the arrangements.

James N. Berard, 45, died at his home, 451 Jackson street, Sunday morning after a brief illness with pneumonia. He was born in this city, May 28, 1880, a son of Xavier and Delina Moreau Berard. Surviving him is his wife, Mrs. Minnie Colhane Berard, a son, J. Colhane Berard, his mother, Mrs. Dulice Berard and four brothers, Anselme, William, Joseph M. and Adelard E. Berard, all of this city.

The case of Arthur O. Johnson of this city, charged with reckless driving of his automobile in the town of Columbia last Thursday, which was scheduled to be heard in the Columbia town court Saturday evening, was continued by Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins, who desired to secure a material witness. Constable Harvey S. Collins, the complainant in the case, asserts that last Thursday afternoon, while he was driving his car, the local man came along from the rear and crowded him off in one side of the road. The constable gave chase and after a two mile run overtook Johnson and placed him under arrest.

South Windham's mythical adding machine clicked and added one, to the long list of automobile accidents credited to the little suburb, late Saturday night when a Ford coupe owned and driven by Frank Luthi, of South Coventry, with Miss Lillian Carpenter of that place, as a passenger, tipped over. The young woman sustained two bad cuts on the right knee and calf and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where her injuries were dressed, following which she was returned to her home The machine was bein driven from Norwich road into the village. Luthi made the sharp turn too wide with the result that the right front wheel of the machine climbed the bank of the sidewalk and the car turned over. Miss Evelyn Carpenter, sister of the injured girl, and other passenger and the driver, were uninjured. The car got a broken windshield.

BALTIC

F. B. Lafreniere, who died in Moosup and was burned here recently in St. Mary's cemetery, was bookkeeper at the Aldridge Company's store between 1875 and 1888. While here he married and brought up his family. Mr. Lafreniere was a hard worker. He favored fraternal societies and in the fall of 1883, with a few of his friends who believed as he did organized the local St. Jean Baptiste Benefit society. He was its first president and remained as such for a number of years until change of residence forced his resignation, as he was always elected unanimously. Under his guidance the society prospered and is flourishing today. He remained a faithful member and was always interested in the welfare of the society. A delegation from the society was present at the funeral. Many residents of his time were at the cemetery to pay a last tribute to their departed friend.

Saturday afternoon a truck equipped with a pipe organ, advertising a brand of mint candy played old time melodies about the streets. Some of the songs were, The Sidewalks of New York, Annie Rooney, After the Ball, Rosie O'Grady, etc., in pleasing contrast to some of the present day music.

The French drama that was to be presente in St. Jean hall Wednesday evening was postponed on account of an accident to some of the actors of the troop who belong in Fall River.

Miner, by their daughter The choir gave several musical numbers. "O, Be Joyful," was sung as an opening number and "How Amiable Are They Tabernacles," durin the dedicatory service. "Give Unto Us, was used as a response. For an offertory Mrs. A. J. Barley sang "Sometimes I Hear." The theme of the sermon by the pastor, Rev. N. E. Webb was, "The Work of the Church." This church has been re-decorated, newly furnished with cushions, carpets and draperies during the last few months the work being done by the church the Ladies' Aid society and the Young People's club.

Maytag Gyrafoam Washer

...to a Thoughtful man

WHAT more practical gift could give your wife than a shorter and easier washday?

Not only is it a means to shorter washdays and spick-span washings, but it's the way to greater ease and more complete satisfaction with the work that's done.

Because of its astonishing speed, old-fashioned thoroughness and unusual care, women have termed the Maytag "the Miracle of Monday." It washes twice as many garments per hour as other washers —so clean that even cuffs, collars and wristbands require no handrubbing—a careful that makers of dainty, filmy undergarments recommend it as superior to hand washing for such garments.

No more practical gift could a thoughtful man choose—and she needs it more than you imagine. Get her a Maytag.

9 Outstanding Maytag Features

1 Washes faster.
2 Washes cleaner.
3 Largest hourly capacity in the world.
6 Easily adjusted to your height.
8 Tub cleans itself.
9 All metal wringer. Self adjusting. Instant tension release.

DANIELSON

HIGH SCHOOL ADDITION PLANS GO TO HARTFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 14—Plans for the authorized additions to Killingly High school are in the hands of the state board of education—for inspection, suggestion or criticism as to any changes that might seem desirable.

Submission of the plans to the state board is entirely voluntary on the part of the Killingly committee that is in charge of the building operations. There is no requirement that they be submitted. But there are advantages in the move. The architect of the state board now has an opportunity to examine the plans in detail and from this examination may come some suggestions that may be adopted with benefit to Killingly, although no changes at all may be suggested. In any event, the state board of education and its technical advisers will be fully informed of what Killingly purposes to do in increasing its high school facilities, and, having approved of the plans in advance of the undertaking of actual building operations, will not be in a position to offer criticisms thereafter.

It is anticipated that bids for the construction of the addition, to cost about $150,000, will be asked for soon and may be on file with the committee by February 1. Not unlikely there will be lively competition for the contract.

With construction work undertaken early in the spring the enlarged and modernized school should be ready for occupancy when the school year opens in September, 1926.

The town has authorized a bond issue to meet the cost of the additions and alterations to be made at the school. It has been indicated that no difficulty will be experienced in placing these bonds at a very favorable rate of interest. The bonds are not be issued, it is understood, until sometime during 1926, as the money will not be needed until such times as obligations to the building contractors begin to come due.

Monday, the work of preparing sidewalks in the business center of the town to receive the metal devices that will act as holders for the staffs from which the Shenandoah flags will fly on stated occasions was undertaken. Holes are being made in the walks a few inches in from the curb and at fixed distances apart. These holes will be fitted with equipment, including metal cans that will keep out rain and waste materials. When the borough's new decorative plan is brought into service for the first time the cans will be removed and staffs and flags attached. The effect will be very beautiful, as was indicated to those who were at the Armistice day observance in Putnam, where the Shenandoah flag system for street decoration has been worked out.

Making Center street a one-way street has brought up more traffic matters for the warden and court of burgesses to consider. So has the removal of the trolley, cars from the local line. Business firms having driveways of Center street to the rear of their premises are seeking special permits to allow their trucks and other vehicles they use enter Center street from School street instead of being restricted to entrance of Center only through Main street. The request for through traffic will be formally presented to the borough officials at some meeting in the near future. On Main street between Center and the railroad crossing, especially fronting the Hotel Jette and Winkleman properties, where parking is now prohibited, parking privileges are desired. It is maintained as to this that removal of the trolley cars has done away with the chief reason for prohibiting parking opposite these particular properties, where the Danielson Center stop of the trolleys was formerly made.

At about 10:45 Monday forenoon, the fire department was called out by an alar mfrom Box 14 for a chimney fire in the large apartment house owned by William Loiselle a. the corner of Furnace and Carter streets. The blaze was extinguished without damage to the property. The alarm gave the firemen their first work out in several weeks. While the blaze did not amount to anything, it occurred with a high wind prevailing and might have developed into something serious.

Pupils in the public schools of Killingly will finish the fall term on the afternoon of December 24, and begin the Christmas vacation. This vacation will continue for a period of 10 days.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill was at Putnam and North Grosvernordale, investigating the circumstances surrounding the accident in which Henry Gaumond, 10, lost his life Saturday in a crash between automobiles at North Grosvernordale. An autopsy was performed on the boy Monday to definitely determine the nature of the injuries that caused his death.

If she continues to improve as she has for the past two or three days, Miss Beatrice Maynard will be able to leave the Rhode Island hospital in Providence in another week or ten days for her home in Danielson, though a considerably longer time must elapse before she is entirely recovered from the injuries she received in an automobile accident at Greene, R. I., a week ago Sunday. Loss of blood from a deep gash in her throat nearly cost her life. Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank, where Miss Maynard is employed, and other Danielson friends were among Miss Maynard's visitors on Sunday. Miss Maynard is now able to sit up an hour or so each day.

Edmond Vevia, 24, is dead at his home on Franklin stret after an illness with pneumonia. He was a native of Ludlow, Mass., but had been resident in Danielson for years. Mr. Vevia leaves his mother, Mrs. Josephine Vevia, his wife, five brothers, Frederick, Jerry, Louis, Eligo, Simon and three sisters, Clara, Louise and Rose.

It is reported that there is a colony of beavers living and working within the limits of Windham county. For obvious reasons, the location cannot be given here. Too many people have the tendency to destroy. The beavers are located in a wild and isolated section and have constructed a dam and colony house. No many know where they are located and they are none too willing to accurately describe the locality, but the word of peoplew ho can be believed about this matter is that they have seen the beaver colony, the first reported in this section of the state in many years.

Those who would share in the spiritually beneficial indulgence of giving to a fund for Christmas cheer for needy families of Danielson still have their opportunity. In numbers of places out town there are Santa Claus which may can be placed. Each year at coming time this effort in behalf of the poor is made, and little do those who give something to the fund realize the happiness and real comfort the gift brings into a number of homes.

That an amount of bitter is about southeast section was demonstrated day when a Northwest wind went section. From nooks and corners ched by the wind, all newspapers, lens of pasteboard boxes and cartons and a score of other things were ept into view, to be piled up on lewalks and in other conspicuous places. The wind left a clean-up job for many to do today.

There was only one case for consideration at Monday morning's session of the town court. A sentence of 10 days in jail was imposed upon a man charged with having been intoxicated.

Motorists are still battering away at the row of trees along the south side of Davis Park that the town voted, nearly two years ago, should be taken down. A car hit one of the row of trees Monday shortly after dark. Maybe the motorists will knock them all down in due course of time.

Stanley Roach, Theodore Reeved and Dana Blakeley, former Killingly High school players, will be included in the make-up of a basketball team that will be organized here.

McGregor, Woman's Relief corps, is to hold its annual Christmas party Wednesday evening. There is to be an initiation. Members of McGregor post, G. A. R., will be guests of the evening. Gifts that are brought in by the members are to be sent to the Newington home for crippled children.

More than 75 per cent of the cases treated at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam during the last fiscal year to the institution originated in the town of Killingly, which sent in 176 patients.

Though one-way signs have been erected at the entrance to Center from School street, there are drivers who head through the wrong way, regardless of signs or anything else.

Those who do not like so much darkness will be pleased over the fact that by today the afternoons will have gained one full minute in length over the shortest afternoon of the year last week. So the sun continues to rise a bit later in each and will for another week.

Several short sections of trolley line have been removed between the northerly line of the borough and the bridge at Elmville. It is unlikely that they will be replaced.

Brooklyn grange has invited Quinebaug Pomona grange to hold its April meeting in Brooklyn.

Plans for the Community Christmas on Davis park, Christmas eve, are taking very definite form and the affair promises to be a great treat for the kiddies and for grown folks, too.

WOMAN HELD BY RING THREE STORIES ABOVE GROUND

DANIELSON, Dec. 14—Mrs. John Ames of North Main stret had a most unusual experience and fortunate rescue when, suspended three stories above the ground by only a finger ring, caught in a hook on a window casing, she was hauled back to safety through the window from which she had accidentally fallen. Mrs. Ames is the mother-in-law of Arthur Barnard, who is in the employ of the Crystal Water company.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

P. M. CHAFFEE RESIGNS,— GOES TO FLORIDA OFFICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 14—Louis E. Chaffee, postmaster at Stafford Springs since June 28 1915, has resigned to become assistant postmaster at Lake City, Florida. Anders Jacobsen, who is at present first selectman, has been appointed to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Chaffee. Mr Jacobsen has already assumed his duties but Mr. Chaffee will probably remain at the local office until after Christmas. An examination will soon be held for the permanent appointments at the local office as the appointment will be made after competitive examination. Mrs. Chaffee, who is now teaching schoolo in West Stafford, will accompany her husband to Florida.

CITIZENS' TICKET ELECTED— WAS ONLY PRINTED BALLOT

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 14—The citizens' ticket was elected at the annual borough election Monday There were 298 votes cast and as the citizens was the only printed ticket it was easy sailing for those who supported it. Although several names were written in the blank column, there was not enough to elect anyone The officers elected are: Warden, Walter Scott; burgesses, Claude B Tachummi, Battisia Piccin, Wilson R. Eldredge; clerk and treasurer, Richard B. Murray; collector, Patrick J Murray; bailiff Frank H. Mason; assessors, Romildo Galotte, George R Towne, Frank A. Johnon; board of relief, Ernest K. Taft, Edward C. Deboode, George J. Frazier; registrars of voters, George Siswick and Patrick J. Murray. At the business meeting held after the polls closed the usual six mills tax was voted. It was also voted to put in an extra light on Westford avenue and to increase the salary of the street commissioner from $1.200 to $1.800 per year.

Just an even dozen cases were presented before Judge Heald in the borough court Monday morning. Eleven of them were disposed of and one was continued for further investigation.

Edward Treppler, of Indian Orchard Mass., who created a disturbance at a dance given at the Bohemian club hall in Willington, was fined $40 and costs of $15.88, and sentenced to jail for five days. Treppler was charged with resisting an officer, assault and breach of the peace. Sergeant Harmon, of the state police, was notified Saturday night of a disturbance at the hall and in company with Officer Burns went to the place. When the sergeant entered the hall a crowd gathered about him and he was handled very roughly. His tie was torn off and he was kicked in the stomach and otherwise injured.

Joseph Simons who broge a light of ett Hutchinson, Munroe Usher, Edward M. Dailey, Robert S. Hobby and Donald G. Elston, who attended a dance at this hall on the evening of Dec. 5th., were fined $2 and costs of $11.18 each, for violating the parking laws. Alexander Biaucht for illegal parking and insufficient lights paid a fine of $4. and costs of $11.18.

Louis Gerard, who has been before th court on a number of occasions and is an old offender, was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace Judge Heald imposed a sentence of 90 days in jail.

Joseph Simons who broke a lint of glass in a door at the store of Phelps & Cuningham, in Staffordville, while intoxicated Saturday was sent to jail for 30 days.

The police are receiving numerous complaints about the conduct of people attending the dances at the Bohemian club at Willington, and a determined effort is to be made to have conditions there remedied.

Swiss Cheese

That much Swiss cheese is now made in America, and that Roquefort cheese, formerly made only from the milk of sheep in the dank natural caverns of the south of France, is now made from cow's milk in sanitary, up-to-date American dairy establishments, are revealed by two of the educational films of the United States Department of Agriculture, Swiss Cheese—Made in America, and American Roquefort Cheese—Made from Cow's Milk

FINES IN CITY COURT FOR VIOLATING AUTO LAWS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 14—Henry Joy, of Woodstock, was before the city court Monday morning charged with having no registration license for the car that he was driving and for mutilating a number plate. He was fined $1 and costs of $2.

Amos Debuc was found guilty of carrying an overload on his truck; a fine of $10 and costs was assessed.

Dr. E. A. Miss Whiting was a pupil of the late Miss Eden Tatem of Grove street, a graduate and teacher of the Emerson School of Oratory, Boston.

Danielson and Willimantic have adopted the Shenandoah flag system of decoration and the work of installation is now being done. Putnam was the first in Windham county to use this method of decoration. People from other cities who saw the effectiveness of the decoration also the economical side of the plan were so much impressed that they became interested when the proposition was broached for their towns.

Mrs. Joseph Hoppman and little daughter, Alice, of Warwick, formerly of Putnam have been visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. James Blinn of Van Lear, Kentucky, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Bates of Intervale street.

NIECE IN NORWICH TO MEET TRAVELERS FROM ARMENIA

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Heath, of Walnut street, have returned from Norwich, where they went to meet Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Evans, who have just returned from Armenia where they have been doing Near East Relief work for the past four years.

Mrs. Evans is a niece of Mrs. Heath and was well known here as Miss Lorena Babbitt.

At the funeral of Mrs. Rosanna Montle, of West Gloucester, R. I., held at St. Mary's church in this city, Saturday morning, the bearers were six nephews, all residents of Putnam, Edward, Arthur, Dona and Atwood Bourgeois, and Henry J., and Fred J. Paul. The services were conducted by Rev Charles F. Bedard, pastor of the church; burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Montle was a Gold Star mother who was one of the guests of honor at the dedication exercises of the Memorial bridge here on Armistice day. On the reviewing stand she had a seat within a foot or two of Governor Trumbull and she is easily recognizable in the moving picture film of the events of that day, which were on exhibition at the Bradley theatre. She started to Putnam in an automobile driven by her son in order to see this picture. It is about a thirty-minute drive and on the way she complained of feeling ill and died in the car just as her son had driven up to a local doctor's office.

The marriage of Henry G. Brousseau, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Brousseau, of this city, and Miss Elsie Strunt, of Cambridge, took place at St. Vernon Congregational church, Boston, Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Brousseau's parents were in attendance, as were his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Brousseau, his brother, Raymond, and his grandmother, Mrs. A. M. Gilmore, all of Putnam. Mr. Brousseau was born in Putnam and spent nearly all of his life here. He was graduated from Putnam High school, was two years at the U. S. Naval academy at Annapolis, two years at Bowdoin college, and was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in 1924. Since then he has been a chemical engineer at the Hood Rubber company. Miss Brunt is the daughter of Mrs. Jennie Brunt and for several years has been secretary to Harry Hodgon, general manager of the Henshaw Motor Co., of Boston. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Brousseau will make their home at Langdon avenue, Watertown.

Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church, of this city, was one of the delegates from Putnam who attended the 225th anniversary of the founding of Windham Center Congregational church Thursday evening.

Mrs. John A. Dady, who returned a week ago from a Worcester hospital where she underwent an operation, is improving steadily and it is believed will soon regain her health.

Michael Zotto is able to be at his shop again, after months of absence on account of illness, the greater part of the time spent in the Day Kimball hospital.

Putnam High school basketball teams played their opening games Friday night against Woodstock academy teams. The academy team defeated the boys of Putnam, 35 to 6. The contest of the girls' teams was a closer affair, the Woodstock girls winning 33 to 31. Referee Makofski of Connecticut Agricultural college officiated at both games.

The Putnam delegation who attended the Shrine meeting in Hartford Friday night, say that it was one of the most successful of the kind in the history of Sphinx temple. A degree was conferred on one hundred candidates. A supper was served at the Hotel Bond and high class vaudeville features helped to make the evening an enjoyable one. Those from Putnam who attended were: Ralph E. Thurston, Allie W. Marsy, Ray E. Bosworth G. U. Miller, Edward N. Fisher, Robert Page, Harold Morrarty and Leon T. Wilson.

Dr. Susan Hammond Field, who died in Boston and whose body was brought to her birthplace, Dayville, for burial Thursday was known in Putnam where she often visited her cousin, ex-Senator George A. Hammond.

MYSTIC

Herbert Davis Gremley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Grimley and Miss Mary Evelyn Collins, daughter of Mrs. W. Everett Collins were married at the Baptist parsonage Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. J. G. Osborne. Miss Mildred Wells was maid of honor. Herman Edgcomb was best man. Only members of the family and near relatives were present. After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Gremley left on a honeymoon trip to Boston and on their return will reside on Greenmanville avenue. Both are popular young people. Friday afternoon a silver shower was given the bride at the local telephone exchange, where she has been employed about three years. She was presented 24 pieces of silver by those employed there. Later refreshments were served.

At the return game of football played Saturday morning at Grimes' field the Lions of Mystic were again victorious over the Old Mystic Boys' club. The score was 26 to 12. R. Panciera and M. Foote again starred for Mystic each making two touchdowns. Mystic boys displayed a fine attack. Panciera broke through the Old Mystic line continupally paving the way for the touchdown. The game was refereed by R. Panceirea. Time of quarters fifteen minutes.

The Boy Scouts of St. Patrick's church are to meet in Columbus hall this (Tuesday) evening. St. Patrick's parish is planning a whist at the home of H. J. Marikle.

Hessian Fly Damage

Reports received by the United States department of agriculture on damage done by the Hessian fly to the 1925 wheat crop show that in Kansas alone this insect reduced the crop by at least 40,000,000 bushels. The situation is still very alarming and there has been a determined effort on the part of farmers in many counties to follow the program recommended for Hessian fly control.

WESTERLY

NORWICH MAN FINED— USED WRONG MARKERS

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 14—John Moss, 26, 480 Boswell avenue, Norwich, was presented in the Stonington court Monday, charged with the use of an automobile registration other than the one issued to him. He pleaded guilty. The state policeman who issued the summons told the court that the markers belonged to an Oldsmobile and the discovery was made following an automobile accident investigation made by him and on which no other action was recommended. Judge Wilcox fined Moss $10 and costs of $11.38 amounting to $21.38 which he paid.

In Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox, of Pawcatuck, Monday morning, Manuel Cabral, of Boston, was arraigned on complaint of Town Solicitor George R. McKenna, the complaining witness being Town Tax Collector D. Everett Hoxie. The accused said he "wanted to pay," and a plea of not guilty was entered for him by Attorney McKenna. Collector Hoxie produced his tax books to show that on Aug. 1, 1925, a demand was made on the defendant for personal taxes due the town of Stonington for 1923 and 1924, with interest, and a registered return receipt was held for the demand. Cabral showed the court a receipt for $3 for the 1923 levy and for taxes levied Oct. 1st., in Cambridge, Mass., for 1925, and said that he had been away from Stonington 18 months previous to which he was a Stonington resident for 8 years. Attorney McKenna said that the man could not be held responsible for Stonington taxes for 1924 and that to him it appeared that only one year was due. Judge Wilcox fined him one year's taxes and costs amounting to $2.25 with a total of $18.71, which he paid. The board of equalization, Judge Wilcox said, would take one year's charge off Mr. Hoxie's books

MYSTIC MAN IN JAIL FINE AND COSTS PAID $339

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 14—Nicholas Schwartz, 14 School street, Mystic, was presented on two counts, Dec. 12th he sold one pint of whiskey contrary to law and keeping a place reported to be one where intoxicating spirits were for sale. He pleaded guilty on each count. Connecticut state police testified that in response to a telephone call on Saturday night to the Groton barracks from a parties unknown they found that the place was wide open and had been for some time and that the proprietor had never been caught. The state police with special investigator of the Groton barracks, George Sisson, and Trooper F. W. Kulowski went to Mystic; the investigator knocked at the door and being admitted made it known that he desired to purchase liquor. A pint of whiskey was produced and on request for wine it was brought up from the cellar with two or three glasses and a $5 bill tendered, $3 was paid for the whiskey and $1 for the wine, and a $1 returned in change. A signal was given and state troopers entered. In the cellar was found in a box near some potatoes an assorted lot of liquors, which produced in court as evidence filled a market basket—three quarts of gin, bottles of whiskey and jugs of win. A bond of $1,000 from the mother-in-law was obtained for defendant's appearance in court that morning.

Schwartz told the court that he had not been in the business long, that he had worked in the woolen mill and to support his family and three children aged 10, 6 and 5, and to pay bills and keep out of debt, against his wife's advice he had purchased the first lot. The purchase was made from a man on the streets of Mystic who had the appearance of a Jew and drove a Ford sedan with Rhode Island plates. He said he got afraid and did not buy the second lot until ust before Thanksgiving. He had lived in Mystic about ten years.

Attorney McKenna recommended a substantial fine on the sale complaint and a suspended sentence on the reputation coung, but Judge Wilcox said there would be no suspended sentence and finding the man guilty on the first or selling charge imposed a fine of $200 and sentence of ten days in New London county jail; on the second or reputation charge, a fine of $200 with costs. The total costs and fines paid amounted to $359.26. A waiver of claim to the liquors was signed and an order will be issued by the court for their destruction. A mittimus was issued and State Trooper F. W. Kulowski committed the man to New London county jail.

The Westerly Superior court room was crowded when it was time for court to open, Monday morning. Sheriff Mitchell and Deputy Thomas Pearce cleared the rear of the court room and insisted that no aisle be left outside in the hallway and down the stairway where there were assembled nearly a hundred spectators. Interest centered in the short tiorney general's docket which was to be given first consideration and which contained the case against James P. Cofone, alleged sender of a threatening letter to Otto Seidel, demanding $2,000 and that against Joseph Sylvestre of Pawcatuck for alleged carnal knowledge of a girl under age, for which the grand jurors were recalled to West Kingston last Wednesday to return indictments. The cases against Albert Costanzo of Providence who was alleged to have conducted a house of ill repute and harboring a female for immoral purposes as well as the cases against Jean Barrone, alleged proprietor of the "Yellow Cottage," Narragansett Pier road, created morbid interest.

Cofone was committed without bail to Washington county jail at West Kingston, where he could be examined by Dr. John E. Donley and Dr. George L. Shattuck, appointed to examine as to his sanity, also that Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony could make further investigations to see if the 17-year old boy was alone in the conspiracy. Judge Copotosto gave the added admonition that if the defendant expected any leniency and if there was anything further about the case he desired to tell, he advised him to tell it and not to shield others from a false sense of loyalty. "Continued for sentence," said the judge, "until I can get a further report during this session of the court."

Albert Costanzo of Providence, whose lawyer has been Attorney Dorney of Providence, had his case continued o Wednesday next, there being two complaints, to which he entered pleas of not guilty, that of the alleged keeping a place of ill repute and entered pleas of not guilty, that of the alleged keeping a place of ill repute and also of harboring, bail being continued in the sume of $10,000 and $5,000 respectively, with the same surety as before.

Jean Barrone entered a plea of nole, having withdrawn a previous plea of not guilty, being represented by Attorney Joseph Venezisle of Providence. He was given a jail sentence of one year in Providence county jail for a deferred sentence in the operation of an alleged house of ill fame in Kent county and at the expiration of that time a sentence of three years in Providence county jail for harboring. The judge said that but for the representation by his attorney that his family would be the sufferers he would have made it 5 years.

Joseph Sylvestre, charged with carnal knowledge, entered a plea of not guilty. Judge Copotosto released Attorney John J. Dunn from connection with the case, following his talk with him in chambers. The judge announced the appointment of Judge James O. Watts of Wakefield, R. I., to defend the accused, when through his interpreter it was learned he had no money with which to secure an attorney. His case was set down for trial on Wednesday next and he was directed to be held witho it bail at West Kingstown jail that he might be readily consulted by his attorney. There were no civil cases ready for trial Monday or Tuesday and the jurors were excused, to report Wednesday morning next.

Alexander F McDonald vs. Joseph A. Girard, alias, passed.

Oscar H. Maine vs. William Miner. Ready.

John F. vs. Ethlyn R. Rose. Ready.

In his presentation of the case of James P. Cofone, Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony told the court that on Nov. 16th, Cofone who is 17, sent a threatening letter to Otto Seidner, in which he asked that $2,000 be left in the sand box on the Westerly playground and had made threats to take the life of Seidner. So far as present investigation has gone there was nothing to show that there was anyone behind him. He requested that two doctors be appointed to examine into the sanity of the young man and that he be held under heavy bail until such time as a move was made for sentence.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown was called by the judge and said that his investigation had shown no suspicious circumstances of involving others.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 239 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

As the year draws to a close the building operations in Norwich seem likewise to show a slight slackening in the record pace that has held away during the greater part of the year. This is particularly noticeable in regards to the number of new building permits issued at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. During the past week only one or two applications were received and these were for minor alterations. Building progress in Norwich is reflected in the number of permits issued and the year has been one of remarkable record.

Never before has there been so many building permits issued although it is possible that the final accounting will show that the total valuation is somewhat lower than in past years. There have been a number of large projects that will bring up the total. These include the new Sheltering Arms, the East Side school and the Backus Hospital Nurses. There have also been other good-sized buildings that although started last year will be included in this year's business. At the Norwich State hospital there have been a number of improvements, including the ward building which is now in process of erection.

In the outlying districts there has been a remarkable increase in the number of new dwelling houses erected. The number of new dwelling houses erected during the past year will exceed all other years, both for the city and for the town.

Considerable work has been done on buildings in the city during the past week in an effort to complete the work before the extreme cold weather sets in.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There was a slight falling off in the number of real estate sales made in Norwich during the past week as compared to the same week in 1924. The number of sales last week was five while there were three more sales in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $30,900 and $103,010.

In New London during the past week there were 17 sales of real estate, exactly the same number as for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $72,000 and $52,905.

Building Outlook

Although, as has been said before by the Commercial Record there has been during the last year a certain amount of speculative building activity resulting in a condition in some localities, the correction of which must be given consideration in attempting to get an accurate idea of the building outlook for 1926, it is not likely, as has been rumored, that there will be a collapse of the building "boom."

In fact there is no building "boom" to collapse. Despite the speculative weakness which has been injected into the construction situation, the industry as a whole has expanded on the basis of an actual need for new construction. It is probable that some larger cities are, temporarily at least, over-built. But this is a purely local condition, peculiar only to scattering localities. The growing demand for a better class of dwellings and the constantly increasing need for new and modern business buildings is sufficient to keep the building industry well occupied for sometime to come. Still it is true that there must be a check to speculative building. The warning, however, is not intended for the legitimate builder, whose position is fairly secure; it is for the speculator himself, who must recognize that there is danger in a continued policy of reckless expansion.

State Building Permits

Building permits were issued this past week in the towns of the state reported in the Commercial Record for the number of 299, as compared with 228 permits issued in the like week of 1924, and 188 in 1923. The cost of new construction for this past week was $2,005,606, nearly one-half of which was in Hartford. The cost of new buildings a year ago amounted to $1,085,724, and in 1923, $894,360.

New London

Thirty-seven building permits were issued in this city during November for construction work estimated to cost $111,250. Of this number 15 permits were for dwellings to be built at a total cost of $80,500; four were for industrial and commercial buildings estimated to cost $8,600; nine garages to cost $20,400, and nine additions and alterations costing $1,750.

Garber & Cissal, Bethlehem, Pa., at $17,700 submitted the low bid for the proposed alterations to the postoffice building on State street. Other bidders were: King Lumber Co., Charlotteville, Va., $23,400; William McDonold Cons. Co., St. Louis, Mo., $22,790; Suburban Cons. Co., Morristown, N. J., $19,800, and the English Cons. Co., New York City, $21,000.

A local architect has prepared plans for a duplex garage for Sulman & Rakosky, Inc., on that section of Broad street, which has come to be known as Automobile row. The building will be 100x150 feet, of hollow tile, brick and steel construction, so divided as to provide complete quarters for two automobile agencies. It will be one story high with a tapestry brick front, plate glass show windows, tile floors and arched windows. The interior will be arranged for showrooms and offices to front and garages in the rear. Steam heat and other improvements will be provided.

Alterations to the dwelling at 155 Crystal avenue are being made for Felix Sawicki. The dwelling will be remodeled from a two-family house to a house containing three tenements. There will be a frame addition and interior changes, including new plumbing and electric wiring.

Building Permits

A. Rakosky, garage, Federal street, $5,000.

Miss M. C. Newman, twin bungalow, Broad street, $5,000.

Johnson and Leeds, garage, Maple avenue, $800.

Number of permits issued for the week, 6; estimated cost of buildings, $11,950.

Niantic

Work has been started on a large barn foundation and a cold storage building at the State Farm for Women at Niantic. The foundation, as reported before in these columns, will be 110x30 feet, and the cold storage building, which will be on one section of the foundation, 85x30 feet.

Fishers Island

Plans are being figured for a residence on Fisher's Islands, N. Y., for C. V. Ferguson. The plans for the house were prepared by Architect W. F. Brooks, of Hartford, and call for a frame and stucco building with tile baths, hot water heat, hardwood finish, fireplaces and other conveniences.

FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE

In connection with automobile accidents and reckless driving it has been urged that the proper protection of the other fellow lies in compulsory insurance. Thus every auto owner would be required to take out liability insurance through which those injured or those whose property has been damaged might recover. This would be the only chance of obtaining any redress in a great many instances since the only thing of value is in many times the automobile and that worth little or nothing. And yet such a machine is quite as capable of being operated in a manner to cause death or to smash an expensive car as any other.

In recognition of this state of affairs it is a most important announcement that is made by the motor vehicle department when it declares that registrations will be issued commencing the first of the year under the new law whereby those who are convicted of reckless driving, speeding, operating while intoxicated, evading responsibility, or who cause death or injury to the extent of $100 will be obliged to furnish evidence that he or she can pay the damages to the amount of $1,000.

There are four ways in which this can be done under the provisions of the law, but the effect of it should be to bring to greater attention the importance of increasing the safety of the highways by eliminating those conditions which are known in advance are dangerous.

This does not mean that only such persons as are included in the above classifications will protect themselves against the possibilities of accidents. There are those which happen when recklessness, speeding or intoxication are not present, but there are too many instances where those without means are involved in practices which do not contribute to safety and when cases are brought to light it means that they can get no more licenses until they have given assurance for the future that any who may suffer from their acts in the future may obtain redress. It is a good law and the determination of the motor vehicle department to strictly enforce it is a fair warning to all concerned.

UP TO CONGRESS

In his recent message President Coolidge called attention to the need of doing something about the departmental reorganization which has been before congress for a long time. It is one of the many things which it is easy for congress to neglect for it has its complications and it has its opponents. Congress finds itself between two fires when it undertakes to map out a plan of reorganization. Naturally those who are going to be injured by the changes are desirous of going along as they are and yet it is known that departments overlap and conflict and that in the interest of good business there should be a shaking up that will place them in a position to meet the demands upon them in an economical and efficient manner. There is no reason why the government should not be conducted on just as efficient a basis as a large corporation and yet it is known that it is not, and never will be until some of the present conditions are eliminated.

Whether the bill which has been presented to this session of congress gets any more consideration than others have or any better results will be known in time. For congress to take up each individual change, each consolidation, each elimination would mean going over the same practically every time a new move was made in the way of reorganization. Congress naturally wants to keep its hand on the situation and it is believed that it will under the plan proposed, whereby each house of congress would appoint two members and the president name the chairman of the board which would consider and recommend reorganization changes, transfers and consolidations to be approved and ordered by the president. This would mean that congress would be relieved of the detail in each instance but with its members on the board and in control it would be directing the work.

Congress can put this idea into operation if it will. It rests with it to adopt it and to provide the funds for carrying it out, and in the interest of economy and better service it should be eager to see something accomplished instead of sanctioning the idea of sticking to the old rut of duplication and waste.

IMMIGRANT SERVANTS

Even though the quotas from all countries are not filled each year by immigrants admitted to this country, there are nevertheless efforts being made to have the quotas increased in one way or another.

Congressman Bloom of New York has proposed the interesting plan of lifting the bars to immigrants after the quotas have been filled, if those seeking admission will come as servants. He recognizes the difficulty that is being experienced these days in getting enough servants to meet the demands and believes that there are plenty on the other side who would be anxious to enter such services in this country. Whether that is the case or not he is endeavoring to make the most of a situation which is fully recognized by the housewives.

Opening the gates to those who would work as servants might serve as a bait but the fact that such persons might come here for that purpose and might actually enter domestic service does not mean that they would remain there, and it is a question whether they could be restricted to it once they had gotten into the country and served briefly as a servant.

It is well understood that seamen are permitted to leave their vessels and remain in this country for a certain length of time regardless of their immigration quotas and that much evasion of the immigration laws of the country is being carried out in such a manner. In quite the same way the idea of admitting those willing to be servants could be abused in the same way.

Unless there was some method of restriction placed upon the Bloom idea it would be easily possible for the country to be flooded with immigrant servants in a short time. There is no question but what the idea of relieving the servant problem is one which will make a far reaching appeal, but there is doubt as to whether it would actually serve the purpose for which it is intended in the manner in which it is hoped to.

PINCHOT'S POLITICS

In the calling of a special session of the Pennsylvania legislature Governor Pinchot isn't seeking to deal with the coal situation alone. That is only one of eight matters of state interest which he believes should be tackled by the law making body of that state, any one of which he believes justifies the getting together of the legislators in special session regardless of what the cost may be.

Governor Pinchot is a politician and he has political ambitions. His eye is upon the United States senatorship now held by Senator Pepper and he has been playing his cards with such a contest in mind. He apparently thinks that this special session will give him added prestige, and yet it is the same legislature that he failed to get to do his bidding and because his aim has been so obvious many of his advisers have urged against issuing the call. It is impossible for them to see where he is going to get any better response from the legislature now than he did when it was in regular session. Certain of the reforms he seeks could have been accomplished at that time as well as next January.

Concerning the branding of his efforts as political the Philadelphia Ledger, which has been supporting his coal plan, says, "The governor has no one to blame but himself for the statewide conviction that the thought of a summons to the legislature was inspired solely by the desire to make political capital for himself," and the feeling is that he has "so inextricably entangled the subject of an extra session with his own personal ambitions that no really useful legislation could be expected at this time."

When Pennsylvania stands in the position of seeing no hope from the governor's flourish there certainly cannot be much for those who are expecting to see him end the coal strike.

GERMANY PROGRESSES

From the report of the S. Parker Gilbert, Jr., agent general for reparations payments, to the reparation commission there is cause for general satisfaction all around. This is because it shows that Germany has benefited greatly from the effects of the Dawes plan, that it is making progress already back toward normalcy and that the expense of the work done by the agent general's office is being kept at a low point.

With Germany already feeling the good effects of the policy that has been put into operation, it means that it is responding as expected, that it is meeting budgetary conditions satisfactorily and giving indications that it will show the desired capacity to pay when the big test comes during the third year. The result must cause no small amount of gratification in Germany. It had faith in the plan, was willing to adopt it and now is at the end of the first year apparently doing its part.

This means much to the other nations which are depending upon Germany to meet its obligations. For them to see it come up to requirements is the cause for much satisfaction. It furnishes the basis for a look ahead that is filled with much hope, and it jibes well with the better relationship which has been stimulated by the Locarno agreement. Let the good work go on must be the common expression.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 14.—The first state reception to be given this year by President and Mrs. Coolidge was in honor of the diplomatic corps. Wandering through the great marble corridors of the white house, and in the famous east room, one got a touch of what the league of nations or world court would bring this country in close contact with.

Men and women in foreign garb chattered loudly and with many gestures in foreign languages, if one could write in detail of a diplomatic reception "as is" many strange things would be told.

There were ambassadors in gorgeous coats of scarlet, or brilliant blue, or crimson; ministers bedecked and bejewelled with many orders, sashes and ribbons; there were knee breeches and there were long full rtousers of white, olue or scarlet; there were big brown Turks each with a ball red fez, and dangling tassels; men so brown that the term dusky hardly fits the facts; the Japanese ambassador was one mass of gold and color, his decorations blazed with jewels and there wasn't room for a pin-thrust between them. Naval attaches and their like, carried great folding hats under their arms, the hats decorated with big white feathers. There were white diplomats, yellow diplomats, and dark brown diplomats. Men who didn't just bow in greeting, as our American men are accustomed to do, but men who clicked their heels, bowed to the ground, and even kissed the hands of ladies of high diplomatic degree as they bent low in paying homage. One portly lady, the wife of an ambassador and bluzing with diamonds, sat for a long time on a crimson divan in the marble corridor, surrounded by other women of the diplomatic set. Time and again, gorgeously dressed men came to greet her, always bowing low; she extended her white gloved hand, and the men bending still lower kissed it lightly then bowed again, clicking their heels, and retired walking backwards for a respectful distance. It's the customs and dress of the men that strike an observer far more than the dress and manners of the women of the corps. A diplomatic reception shows the world in a small mirror. It's a motion picture of "diplomacy as is."

And at the head of the receiving line, in an adjacent room stood President and Mrs. Coolidge, gracious, smiling and well poised; cordial and unaffected, splendid and typical examples of American simplicity. It was a very notable presentation of the differences that exist between the United States and its foreign neighbors across the seas. In manners, customs and language. One feels like quoting Kipling's "East is east and west is west—and never the twain shall meet."

There is a wide variance of opinion here as to whether or not the time is ripe for calling another disarmament conference. When asked his opinion, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, member of the foreign relations committee replied "I shall be glad to have a disarmament conference whenever the other nations are ready to conform to its agreements. The United States has lived up to the spirit and terms of the former conference but other countries have not done so. England, Japan and France continue to construct ten thousand ton cruisers and keep a mastery of the sea while the United States has stopped in compliance with the disarmament agreement. If this keeps on where shall we be? I am in favor of such a conference no matter by what country it is called but must first be assured that the other nations will live up to the terms and the spirit of such a conference."

Congressman Merritt, a member of the interstate commerce committee, says the committee will consider a number of important bills, and hold hearings as soon as organization work is completed, after the recess. Mr. Merritt is pressing for some attention to the oyster industry of Connecticut, especially for aid in promoting that industry. He has been in conference with fishery officials here and states that they have found the regulations of Connecticut regarding pollution of streams among the best state regulations to be found in the country. Mr. Merritt is certain they would be glad to co-operate with the state in advancing and protecting oyster culture, if there was available an appropriation that would enable them to do so, but which is lacking at this time.

Mr. Merritt has notified men associated with the oyster industry in that state, that he will arrange a hearing early in January where evidence may be submitted in person or by brief, and he hopes some favorable action may be secured at this session. Another matter in which Mr. Merritt is just now interesting himself is a modification of immigration laws so a naturalized citizen may not lose his citizenship "through presumption," as is now the case. He cited as an instance a man who had returned to his former home in Europe and remained two years, then returning here found himself once more an alien, and unable to have his wife and children join him. Mr. Merritt believes some modification would be beneficial.

Senator Bingham's bill for the promotion of commercial aviation went through the commerce committee of the senate with a bound, and was favorably reported. It will undoubtedly be brought up in the senate at an early date and Mr. Bingham expects it will pass. He will be aided in its presentation to the senate by Chairman Wadsworth of the military affairs, and when it reaches the house, Chairman Parker of a similar committee will be its sponsor, if it is passed practically along its present lines.

Congressman Glynn of the 5th Connecticut district, who was re-elected after a defeat two years ago, is being warmly welcomed by his former colleagues, and will be given a good committee position as soon as the list is completed.

Congressman Tilson, now floor leader, has arranged with the democratic floor leader and senate officials, for a recess of 13 days at the holidays, in order that committee work may be completed and a program for the session arranged. The recess will run from Tuesday, Dec. 22nd to Monday January 4th.

It is notable that in the list of 29 signers of petitions to Senator Bingham urging the world court, 22 of that number were organizations composed exclusively of women, largely coming from churches or temperance organizations. Only two men's organizations were found among the signers, the others remaining being "mixed."

Congressman Tilson this week accompanied E. G. Buckland of New Haven, vice president of the N. Y. N. H. and Hartford railroad, to the white house, where he invited President Coolidge to be a guest and speaker at the annual banquet of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce and the Yale University. The president said it was impossible to make definite dates while congress is in session, although he would like to go to Connecticut.

During the meeting of The Rivers and Harbors congress this week, a nation wide waterway system was endorsed. Among the officers elected were two from Connecticut; Samuel Ferguson, a vice president and Wilson Lee, a member of the board of directors.

TO ACHIEVE ATTENTION

"What are you think about?" demanded the inquisitive person who wanted to be in on everything.

"H'm?" murmured the dreamy individual who disliked very much being disturbed at his favorite recreation of doing nothing in particular. "Oh, I was just wondering what on earth a person could do who wanted to attract a great deal of absorbed attention nowadays! Supposing you were the sort of man who yearned to have people whisper behind their hands when he appeared that he was so and so who did this and that.

"When you feel like that it really does not make much difference to you whether their curiosity is inspired by the fact that you have discovered a new planet, invented a new way to cook eggs or are on the way to be hanged—you are it and that is the main point! But the methods for obtaining this enticing prominence are growing fewer and fewer every minute and that is why I am devoting brainwork to the topic.

"Even a small child will refuse to run out into the street and stare upward when the hum of an airplane is heard these days. He has seen too many of them. In like manner folks yawn over a fresh murder headline, skip the bootlegging news, totally pass by a society elopement or bank failure, and mutter fretfully that there isn't any news in the paper.

"I will admit that if the prince of Wales cocks his hat up on the left side instead of the right it causes a momentary flurry, but what's that got to do with the rest of us unknowns?

"There isn't much of anything a girl can do in the way of startling garb that will cause anybody to turn his head. We're fed up on sartorial freedom, so to say. Knees, frizzly hair, plastered shoulder blades, nor ribs have the power to create commotion any more. So many women ar writing world's best sellers and painting prize pictures that they could eat spaghetti with a pancake turner in the middle of our best restaurants and not disturb the surrounding conversations.

"Folks just don't care what you do so long as it does not interfere with their occupation of the moment. We have grown so liberal-minded that there is no spice left in life. We aren't any more shocked than we are interested, and I'll say that this makes existence dull.

"A multimillionaire may hand over a couple of million to a worthy cause and if he gets on a street car he'll get his toes stepped on just like the rest of us, and maybe somebody will jab an elbow into his eye.

"There was a man in our town when I was a boy who always contributed $50 toward the Fourth of July fireworks and I give you my word he walked surrounded by a brilliant, sparkling halo, no matter whether he was progressing down Main street to the postoffice or cheating somebody on a horse deal. And to this day I know the numbers of hairs in his left eyebrow and the amount of gold filling in his front teeth, so intense was my observation of this hero.

"Why, the first man who rode a safety bicycle made a stir which lasted longer than the pilot of the airplane night mail does today. And when we do get excited it is over such odd things—Jack Dempsey's new nose made lots more conversation than any knockout blow he ever gave and I'll bet Einstein's brand of collars would be grabbed sobbingly with joy by any advertising agent who wouldn't walk across the street for data on the genius.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Lieut. Col. Charles W. Furlong, who sailed for South America to aid Gen. Pershing in the Tacna-Arica arbitration between Chile and Peru, is a noted Boston author, explorer, and painter, and an acknowledged authority on South American affairs. Born in Cambridge, Mass., in 1874, he attended Cornell and Harvard universities and then went to Paris to study art. Much of his time in recent years has been spent in travel and exploration. In 1904 he discovered the wreck of the U. S. frigate Philadelphia in Tripoli harbor. He explored a large part of Patagonia and was the first American to cross through the heart of Tierra del Fuego. The wilderness of Dutch Guiana, the region of the Orinoco and the Venezuelan interior also have claimed his attention. He has been an intimate student of South American conditions for many years, and enjoys the confidence and friendship of the people of both Chile and Peru.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Spanish War Pensions

Mr. Editor:—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to call the attention of all Spanish war veterans to a bill before congress introduced by Congressman Leavitt, of Montana, named H. R. 98. A bill granting pensions to Spanish war veterans, their widows and orphans?

The bill is the most reasonable measure and just one ever introduced for you, and you should just drop a line to both Senators McLean and Bingham, also Congressman Freeman, asking them to support it.

C. B. MONTGOMERY.

Oneco, Dec. 15, 1925.

Two of The Oldest Local Fanciers

Mr. Editor:—The report in Wednesday's Bulletin, of the Norwich Poultry association's exhibition is accurate but incomplete as there is missing the names of two of the oldest fanciers and poultry breeders in Norwich—Christopher Barry and the other the author of this letter. Perhaps the writer may be pardoned for saying it, but the interest in standard bred poultry in Norwich is due largely to Mr. Barry with over 50 years' rich experience as a fancier, and this writer with 30 years'. Mr. Barry and this writer having been rivals and contender for the blue ribbons for over 18 years. Another fancier was Rev. McCann, a former preacher at Sacred Heart church, but this writer does not remember meeting him in competition.

Twenty-five years ago there were few Rhode Island Reds in this section worthy of the name. True, there were red birds which more properly might be called may-lay reds, sometime in warm weather. In winter they allied with the coal operatives and made the owners do the shelling. By competing and exhibiting poultry Mr. Barry has created much of the present interest in poultry-raising in this section and is one of the founders of the association in Norwich. Mr. Barry and this writer being members of the first poultry association formed in Norwich in Steiner's hall, 18 years ago. The writer has always found Mr. Barry a good clean sport, a fair and vigorous contender, always smiling in victory or defeat, remaining all the time a true fancier and friend. "Honor to whom honor is due."

Started By Jefferson

Mr. Editor:—I note that in C. B Montgomery's letter in The Bulletin of Dec. 11, he says: "It is certainly refreshing to get back to the good old American way of a president of the United States sending his message to congress to be read, instead of the way introduced by the late President Wilson of reading his message from the throne." Did Woodrow Wilson introduce this method? I am now reading a very interesting and informing book, "The American Government," by Frederic J. Haskin, which, I believe, is being studied very carefully now by women's clubs. At the top of page 62 of this work, I read: "Thomas Jefferson delivered his message to the congress in person, but for a hundred years this practice fell into disuse, and the messages invariably were sent to the capitol by special messengers. x x x When Woodrow Wilson became president he re-established the old custom of going to the capitol to address congress in person." If this is correct and Mr. Montgomery's statement incorrect, I am sure the gentleman from Oneco, will be glad to know it.

ANNIE B. BRIGGS.

Plainfield, Dec. 14, 1925.

From Small Beginnings

Richard Allen

It is not "chance" that men need—but the spirit of work. It is not "luck" that makes men great, it is manhood. Cultivate the spirit of real manhood—the spirit that works and keeps everlastingly at it—and you will make yourself really useful. Richard Allen, the African slave, born in 1760, had no "chance." "Luck" was all against him—but in spite of "chance" and "luck" and slavery and everything else, Richard Allen educated himself, worked hard, founded a church, proved a benefactor of his race, made himself a factor in the development of the United States, and wrote himself into history. Millions, even thousands, of the slaves of his time are totally forgotten. Even their names are lost. Richard Allen is still honored—now nearly 100 years after his death in 1841 at the age of 71—and this article is a tribute to him and to his desire to be useful in the world.

"Luck," said a man to him one day, several years before the beginning of the American Revolution, "what good will it do you to try to read?" For he had found the negro boy poring over the pages of a book that he had borrowed from his master, a kindly hearted man who helped the boy all he could.

"I want to know something," answered the negro. "I want to read the Bible. I want to read good books." It was only on rare occasions in the daytime that the negro boy read. He was a worker in every sense of the word. He used his good muscles faithfully in his master's service. Then, as he grew older, he obtained permission to work out of his regular hours and to save the money he earned.

Year to year he did this—and at last he bought himself. That was a triumph! Then, still a young man—only 32 in fact—he began to preach to his people. Faithfully, earnestly, he preached. He did so well that a white bishop ordained him as a regular preacher. At 53 this man, who had bought himself free from slavery, founded the first church in the United States for colored people. When he died in 1831, a white-haired man of 71, he was a bishop of the African church. There was a life that was heroic.

There had been some complaint in a suburban village about the rate charged for transportation into the city. For four rides into the city the company had charged 50 cents and this was considered too much. A delegation visited the office of the company and urged a lower rate and talked so effectively that it was later decided to give six rides for the former price.

The delegation received the news with satisfaction, but there was one man who did not share the common view that something had been gained. "It's all foolishness," he declared. "Now we've got to walk six times to town instead of four in order to save a half dollar."

Filmed the Fire

Caught in the path of a raging prairie fire in western Nebraska, a United States department of agriculture motion-picture photographer stuck to his cranks and not only emerged unsinged by the leaping flames but with striking views of the fire which swept 200,000 acres of grazing land. The film is being distributed by the U. S. D. A. educational film service under the title of "Fire—The Prairie Demon!"

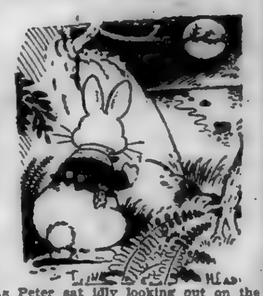
Stories That Recall Others

The Lumbermen at Work

Plenty doth reward the worker,
But it is not for the shirker.
—Paddy the Beaver.

It was Peter Rabbit's good fortune to take it into his head to have a look at the new Beaver pond deep in the Green Forest the very night that Paddy the Beaver and his family began cutting their winter supply of food. I say it was Peter's good fortune because Peter dearly love to watch others at work, and never had he seen more than two Beavers at work at one time. Now he saw four—four little lumbermen in fur.

Peter had thought a lot about those poplar trees he had led Paddy to so long ago. He had begun to think that after all Paddy wasn't going to cut them despite the work he and his family had done to build that long dam and make the new pond. But Peter never has looked and never will look very far ahead, for as you know, he is not one of those who prepare for the future. He is quite satisfied to let the future take care of itself, which may do for some folk but will not do at all for those who are in the least thrifty. So Peter couldn't understand why, having made the big pond, Paddy and his family took a vacation instead of at once cutting those poplar trees.



As Peter sat idly looking out on the water, he caught sight of a silver line moving toward him.

On this particular night he was sitting beneath one of those poplar trees. He had come over there early, just after jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had disappeared for the night and the Black Shadows were still creeping this way and that way through the Green Green Forest all day instead of at Forest. You see Peter had been in the home in the dear Old Briar patch as he should have been. Anyway, Mrs. Peter says he should have been there.

As Peter sat idly looking out on the water he caught sight of a silver line moving toward him. Back of that was another and back of that another. A fourth was back of that. Peter sat up very straight to see better. In a moment he made out four black spots moving toward him. Because there were four he guessed right away that they were the Beaver family. Peter hid in a clump of brown, dry ferns. He wanted to see without being seen for a while anyways.

Peter nodded approvingly as he noticed how careful Paddy was to make sure that the way was safe before he came ashore or allowed the others to come ashore. But once ashore those four little lumbermen wasted no time. Each selected a tree. Then each sat up, clasping the tree with the forepaws. One had his broad, flat tail bent under him and used it as a seat. The others used their tails as props. They made themselves quite comfortable and then they went to work.

The one nearest Peter was one of the young Beavers, but he was nearly full grown. He was the one who had made a seat of his tail. Peter watched him start work. He tilted his head to one side and drove his great cutting teeth into the tree. He did the same thing lower down. Then with his teeth he pried out the chip between the two bites. Peter had to admire the way in which those great orange-colored teeth cut into that wood. Then the Beaver did the same thing over again. So he kept on cutting out chips until he had a deep notch cut on that side of the tree. Then he moved around to the other side of the tree and began doing the same thing.

Peter was so intent watching this young lumberman at work that he quite forgot the others. So he was startled half out of his wits when their fore he had had time to think Peter fore he had had time to thinks Peter had jumped from his hiding place and started to run. As he ran he saw that the young Beaver he had been watching was also running, but in the opposite direction, toward the water. Then Peter heard a snapping, breaking sound and down crashed a young tree right across the very patch of dry ferns in which Peter had been hiding. So it was a lucky thing that he had jumped when he did.

The tree was the one Paddy himself had been cutting, and the thud, thud had been the sound made by Paddy's tail as he thumped the ground with it to give warning to the others to get out of the way because his tree was about to fall.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

OBITUARY.
Miss Mary Shea.

Miss Mary Shea, for many years a resident of Boxrahville, died Saturday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. Johanna Foley of 16 Milk street, Willimantic. Miss Shea was well known in Norwich although she had been a resident of Willimantic for the past 25 years.

She was born in Ireland about 87 years ago the daughter of John and Bridget Lawlor Shea and came to this country when a young girl, locating in Boxrahville with her parents. About 25 years ago she moved to Willimantic where she had since made her home.

Miss Shea was a member of St. Joseph's church, of Willimantic, and always took an interest in church activities as long as health permitted her to do so. News of her death came as a shock to her many friends in this city and those left to mourn her loss have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

Surviving is a sister, Mrs. Johanna Foley, of Willimantic, four nieces, Miss Nellie Foley and Miss Annie Foley, of Willimantic, Mrs. Mary E. Stevens, of Yantic, and Mrs. John Ward of Norwich, also a nephew, Michael F. Falvey, of Trenton, N. J.

Mrs. Charles H. Lester

Mrs. Charles H. Lester, formerly of this city, died Sunday in Providence. She was a native of Central Village and her maiden name was Ella N. Collins. During her residence in Norwich Mrs. Lester was a member of the Central Baptist church and sang in the church choir. Mrs. Lester removed to Providence about 20 years ago.

Mrs. Lester is survived by one brother, John Collins of Winthrop, Mass. An only daughter, Mrs. Alexander Frasier died about five years ago.

ALBERT NUTTING IS GIVEN HEAVY FINE

In the city court Monday morning Deputy Judge Henry H. Pettis overruled a demurrer entered by counsel for Albert Nutting, 57, of Brooklyn, Conn., charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, and fined the accused $200 and costs. A jail sentence of 10 days was suspended by the court. Nutting paid $224.03 to settle his court bill. Nutting, who is an employe of the state highway department was arrested at Bean Hill Saturday night after his car had collided with a car owned by Edwin E. Lathrop of 4 Wauwecus street and operated by his sister, Mrs. John J. Collins. Joseph Carierre, of Southbridge, Mass., a companion of Nutting, charged with intoxication paid $5 and costs amounting to $17.50.

Daniel Ziesunk, proprietor of a restaurant at 9½ Thames street, better known as "Big Dan," figured in the case of Andrew Petrowski, of Everett street, charged with intoxication and resisting an officer. Petrowski pleaded guilty to the first charge and not guilty to the charge of resisting an officer. Petrowski claimed to have purchased liquor in Ziesunk's place and his testimony was corroborated by a Polish resident who testified that Ziesunk had sold four glasses of whiskey to the accused.

The testimony resulted in the issuance of a warrant for Ziesunk's arrest on a charge of violating the liquor law, on a charge of actual sale. Ziesunk was caught in a raid conducted last week by state and local officers and on Saturday was bound over to the superior court for violating the prohibition law. He had been previously convicted for violation of the liquor law.

Harry Gerald, of 66 Mt. Pleasant street, charged with breach of the peace had his case continued for six months by the court. Previous to continuing the case Judge Pettis informed the accused that he would receive a jail sentence if he came before the court again.

Two local men charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, respectively, completed the work of the court and both paid fines and costs.

SODALITAS HOLDS SOCIAL AT UNITED CHURCH

The Sodalitas of the United Congregational church held a delightful Christmas social Monday evening at the United church parlors. JOHN DODGE GETS FRACTURED SKULL WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Knocked from his bicycle by an automobile driven by Thomas J. Driscoll of No. 45 Uncas street, on Washington street Monday evening, John Dodge, 15 year old son of Mrs. Hannah Dodge and the late Ozias Dodge, is unconscious at the W. W. Backus hospital suffering from a fractured skull. The accident happened about 6:15 o'clock near the soldiers' monument at Chelsea Parade.

It is thought that the boy was on his way to his home on Harland road. The boy evidently did not see the Ford coupe driven by Mr. Driscoll. The bicycle and boy loomed up suddenly in front of Mr. Driscoll and before he could bring his machine to a stop the crash occurred.

Mr. Driscoll took the badly injured boy to the Backus hospital in his machine and then went to the police station and made a report of the accident. He then hurried back to the hospital. At a late hour Monday night the boy was still in an unconscious condition.

DUNNE OFFER IS REJECTED BY COURT

At a hearing in Hartford Monday morning United States District Judge Edwin S. Thomas declined to accept the offer of $37,000 made by W. E. Dunne, of Providence, R. I., for the plant and equipment of the Daniel Boone Woolen Mills company at Baltic, and the sale made on Saturday by Attorney Charles J. McLaughlin, appointed by the court as a committee to sell the property, was ordered vacated. The court also ordered that a payment of $3,640 made by Mr. Dunne to bind the offer be returned.

The reason for the rejection of the offer was that Thomas J. Spellacy, ancilliary receiver of the company, reported to the court that the creditors' committee in Chicago had offered $75,000 for the property, which should be accepted. The court decided the Providence offer was too low.

The Chicago offer was made to Receiver Edward J. Brundage of that city. The Baltic mills, which manufactured worsted goods, were not particularly involved financially, when in common with the seven other factories of the company it became involved in a controversy of the stockholders for control. The company had a paid in capital stock of $2,000,000, but on petition of the United States Worsted Goods company, of Chicago, a receiver was appointed.

Thomas J. Spellacy, appointed ancillary receiver for Connecticut, continued the operation of the mills at Baltic for a period of two months after his appointment in February, and for the manufactured goods received in cash approximately three times the value of the mill itself. The sale, if consummated, will include a transfer to the creditors of all factory buildings, machinery, water rights, and tenement buildings.

INTERESTING PROGRAM AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

Practically all the chairs were occupied in the gymnasium of the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at the 4 o'clock service. The programme included the singing of hymns from the screen, accompanied by Hugh Kinder the efficient pianist. After the reading of the Scripture, Rev. C. H. Ricketts offered the prayer. The Silvertone male quartet of New London rendered several religious selections, including Look Away to Jesus, For You and for Me, Steal Away and The Old Rugged Cross. All of which were enjoyed by the large audience.

David Carlyle of the quartet, who has written several poems, recited one much to the pleasure of his hearers. Some twenty two slides of the life of Christ were shown on the screen including, Christ performing miracles, Christ walking on the water, His conversation with the rich young man, well, also His transfiguration, His reswell, also His transfiguration, His resurrection, His crucifixion and His ascension. Secretary Edwin Hill made brief remarks on the pictures shown, especially emphasizing the fact that inasmuch as Christ sacrificed so very much for us all, we certainly should show our appreciation of it all by giving our lives unreservedly to Him, to serve Him faithfully in our day and generation. Emery Davis operated the picture machine.

UNCASVILLE MAN HEADS HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

W. E. Brown of Uncasville was elected president of the New London County Horticultural society at the society's annual meeting Dec. 10 at New London. Rev. J. Beveridge Lee was the speaker at the meeting. Other officers chosen follow: First vice president, Hendrik Verkade; second vice president, Miss Elizabeth C. G. Stark; treasurer, William H. Bowker; secretary, Miss Harriet W. Allen; financial secretary, William J. Morgan; executive committee, George A. Birchell, Gustav Neumann, Hendrik Verkade, James W. Eckford, W. Steward, Miss Anna C. Learned; speakers' committee, William J. Morgan, Miss Harriet W. Allen, W. F. Brown.

The Rev. Mr. Lee pointed out that success or failure depended upon how closely laws and habits followed the laws of nature and health. The Hebrews wandered 40 years in the desert, he said; that the generation that had been slaves in an irrigated land of inexhaustible fertility had died. The next generation was ready to learn a totally different system in a different climate and soil. He showed the advantages of one day of rest in seven for man and beast and of one year of rest in seven years when the land lay fallow. The disasters that overtook the Jews, he said, were largely owing to their failure to obey these rules; that when they did not give their fields a rest voluntarily they were carried away captive for 70 years and had to do it involuntarily; that if modern man will not give himself a rest from business every few years he may have to call a doctor and rest involuntarily.

BOSTON POLICE SEND FOR MEN HELD HERE

Earl Jacobs, 22, West Dudley, Mass., and Ralph Medhurst, 21, Rocky Hill, Ct., the two men arrested late Sunday night by the local police after the seven passenger Buick in which they were riding was abandoned by the driver on West Main street were taken to Boston Monday afternoon by an officer of the Boston police department who came here for them. The machine it was learned Monday was stolen from Boston Friday night. The two men claim they asked for a ride at New Rochelle, N. Y., and were on their way to Boston.

The driver of the machine cut the beacon at Thames square and turned up the West Main street hill. He stopped the machine for some reason or other near the top of the hill and on the approach of Officer Henry Davis who had seen the machine cut the beacon, the driver fled down an alleyway leaving his two passengers in the machine.

BOSTON SPEAKER TO ADDRESS SOCIAL WORKER

The December meeting today (Tuesday) in New London counties is expected to attract a considerable percentage of the memberships for the council has been very fortunate in securing as a speaker, Dr. Thom, of Boston, a nationally known figure. Mr. Thom will make his address following the luncheon, which will be served at 1 o'clock, and the business session will be held at 2 o'clock.

UNITED BROTHERHOOD FAVORS COMMUNITY CHEST IDEA

The Brotherhood of the United Congregational church, at their monthly meeting at the Community House Monday evening, went on record as favoring the Community Chest in Norwich. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, president of the Brotherhood, was in charge of the meeting, held following a delightful supper served by the women of the church. Dr. Campbell called on Secretary J. N. Weymouth to explain the Community Chest idea. Secretary Weymouth went into detail concerning the idea and when President Campbell called for a vote, the motion was unanimously carried. President Campbell also announced that the February meeting of the Brotherhood would be one of entertainment and would be held on the second Monday in the month.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, who gave a most interesting talk on Christy Mathewson, famed throughout the world as a "clean sport and a gentleman."

Dr. Pitt, in opening his address said that there has been a great change in the attitude of the church during the past 25 years, just as people have come to realize that play or sport is not a pastime for the children and wealthy people, but is essential for people in all walks of life. The four essentials in life, he said, are work, worship, love and play.

The greatest problem of today, he said, is the problem of leisure time and how to use it properly, sometimes called the world's last great problem.

Mathewson and I entered Bucknell University in 1898 to graduate in the class of 1902, but Christy left college one year before he would have graduated in order to play professional baseball. His professional career lasted just 35 years, this being the period when a great change took place in the viewpoint of the church.

Mathewson was practically the first college man to enter professional baseball. They were hard boiled players in those days, having no use for the college man. Red Grange, with all his hard time, is having an easy time of it compared with what Mathewson faced when he went into baseball.

In the classes Mathewson, who sat near me, was always ready, always being prepared in his studies and he was as good in one study as he was in another. He endeared himself to the professors and students alike.

Mathewson was the product of a Christian home, a Christian academy and a Christian university. His mother wanted him to be a minister of the gospel, but perhaps Christy chose wisely in going into baseball, for he certainly has had an effect on the whole sporting world.

When Mathewson went into the game he took his keen mind with him and for the first time, brains and not brawn began to figure in professional baseball. Mathewson joined with the Giants under McGraw, then a man who was put out of most every game because of his abusive language. Mathewson had learned to take defeat without protesting and he did not mind the taunts of the crowd. His gentlemanly manner had its effect on McGraw and on all professional baseball players.

Early in life Mathewson united with the Presbyterian church of Louisburg and he was a Christian man. It took manliness to refuse to play baseball on the Lord's day, but Mathewson never would play on Sunday as he did not believe in commercializing the Lord's day.

Always a man, when the war came Mathewson enlisted and went to France. He was gassed and developed tubercular trouble and was sent to Saranac lake to recover. He seemingly did so and returned to baseball only to suffer a second attack from which he could not recover. Calm until the last he knew death was soon to come and he made plans for a train to take his body to Louisburg for burial near the old campus grounds.

Tributes have been paid him, among them one by Professor Rockwood, our professor in Latin, who always thought much of Christy, both as an athlete and a scholar. The Bucknell Alumni monthly, recently published, is entirely devoted to the memory of Mathewson, probably the first time this has ever been done, this to a baseball player, not a minister, a scholar or a business man, but to Christy Mathewson, who has been called by McGraw, "The first and last of his kind."

In closing, said Dr. Pitt, I would like to amend McGraw's tribute as follows, "the first, but we hope not the last of his kind."

Dr. Pitt was given a rising vote of thanks for his delightful talk, after which a motion picture, The Making of Sugar was shown by Joseph French.

"BIG DAN" FACING ANOTHER LIQUOR CHARGE

Daniel Zezunk who conducts a restaurant at 9 1-2 Thames street, and who is out on bail for his appearance in the criminal superior court to answer to a charge of violation of the liquor law, was again arrested Monday night an o warrant charging another liquor law violation. "Big Dan's" arrest Monday night came about through statements made in the city court Monday morning by Andrew Petrowski, 42, who was before the court on an intoxication charge. He claimed he bought his liquor from Big Dan. Later in the day the warrant was drawn up for Big Dan's arrest, and he will be presented before the city court this (Tuesday) morning.

FIREMEN GET MIDNIGHT CALL FOR CHIMNEY FIRE

A chimney on the Stead block used by Chelsea Lunch caught fire about 11:30, o'clock Monday night resulting in a call for Squad A and Deputy Chief H. R. Taft. The fire was quickly extinguished by the use of six gallons of chemical.

Officer Hugh McAvoy, on duty at Franklin square, discovered the fire and notified the department. The fire was around the cap-stone and sparks were flying out onto the roof of the Stead block when the firemen arrived.

The call Monday night was one of several calls for fires in this same chimney, all of which have been small fires.

Even the man who has a will of his own, never objects to being mentioned in somebody's else's.

FLAMES CAUSE LOSS OF $100,000 TO WINDHAM N'T'L BANK BUILDING

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 15—Fire of unknown origin which is believed to have started in the dining room of the Masonic hall on the third floor, caused an estimated damage of over $100,000 to the Windham National bank building on Main street here early Tuesday morning. The blaze was discovered at 11:40 o'clock by William H. Nichols and Don Smith as they were leaving the Chamber of Commerce rooms, the block next to the bank building. Mr. Nichols notified Engine Company No. 1 headquarters nearby and a double alarm was sounded from Box 32. James P. Mustard and Dr. M. D. Riordan, the latter an office holder in the burned structure, were in the chamber rooms at the time and they rushed to the scene of the fire. The flames had already penetrated the roof going through a blind attic over the dining room of the Masonic hall in the rear of the building. The two men broke through the door, but the intensity of the flames prevented them from entering this room and they returned to the second floor where they united their efforts in saving what valuables they could from the offices occupied by Donohue, Riordan and Attorney William A. King.

Upon arrival the firemen laid half a dozen lines of hose which were played on the blaze from the street and the roofs of the adjoining Hibbard block and the Chamber of Commerce building. Within half an hour the roof caved through to the floor of the Masonic hall and a myriad of sparks was sent into the air. These would have proven exceedingly dangerous but for the fact that the wind had fortunately subsided in a stubborn fight the firemen succeeded in keeping the blaze from penetrating to the lower floors although the contents of these are practically a total loss from smoke and water.

The bank quarters on the first floor which were considered as luxuriously finished and equipped as any in eastern Connecticut were flooded and suffered heavily from water damage. The bank also lost several thousands of dollars worth of stationery, calendars, etc., which were stored in a rear room on the second floor. On this floor Drs. Frederick E. Wilcox and M. D. Riordan and Attorney W. A. King occupied office suites. Willing hands saved a number of the more valuable appliances in the offices of the physicians and valuable papers were taken from the attorneys office which was badly damaged by fire when the ceiling fell through just as Mr. Mustard was leaving the room with an armful of salvaged papers.

Much of the furniture and equipment in the bank was taken out and placed in stores in the vicinity. Nothing was saved from the Masonic hall and the loss to the various Masonic bodies, which had regalia in the room was estimated at over $5,000. The meeting had been held in the hall earlier in the evening, the members leaving shortly after 10 o'clock.

Despite the fact that the fire had gained a good headway when discovered the firemen had the blaze under control one hour and a half later, the recall being called at 1.10 a. m.

The Windham National bank building is a three and one-half story brick structure and was built in 1844 by the First National and Dime Savings bank and was known as the United Bank building. Originally it cost about $50,000. In 1896 it was taken over by the Windham National bank and five years ago about $100,000 was expended in extensive alterations made throughout the building. The first story was faced with concrete and the bank quarters were rebuilt to meet modern requirements. As near as could be learned, practically all of the damage is covered by insurance.

COLLEGE CLUB HEARS REPORT ON CONFERENCE

The December meeting of the College club and the American Association of University Women was held at the Peck Library, Slater Hall, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A brief business session was followed by a report of the Conference on Modern Parenthood held in New York recently. Miss Dorothy Brinker made this report most interesting, bringing her hearers into close touch with the Child Study Association of America, which association held the conference.

This association founded by Dr. Felix Adler and organized in New York city in 1910 is doing an educational work of great value, as yet very little understood or appreciated outside the states of New York and New Jersey. Its advisory board numbers such educators as Dr. E. L. Thorndike, Prof. E. A. Kirkpatrick, Dr. John Dewey, Dr. Felix Adler and Prof. Petty Hill. At the sessions of the conference addresses were given relative to the Family of Today, The Family and the Community, Parents and the New Psychology, Teachers and the Changing Education, Leisure and Recreation and The Parents Outlook on Life.

A rising vote of thanks was extended Miss Brinker for her report. Tea and a social hour closed the session.

The Leper's Christmas

Governor General Wood's campaign for helping the lepers of the Philippines has focused the attention of the country on the fact that leprosy is not merely an ancient and oriental scourge, but a present problem, in North and South America, as well as in Asia and Africa.

While there is no desire or need for alarming people over the menace of this science-baffling disease everyone should know of its existence and of the unremitting fight that is being waged against it by the medical profession. Only a few weeks ago the Public Health Service published a testimonial from a Hawaiian leper woman who had been paroled after treatment with a combination of radium and the ethyl esters of chaulmoogra oil (which have been in use for some time)—a combination which "promises some measure of success as a cure." Her tribute, which has already been given to the public by the newspapers, was in the form of a poetic chant in praise of radium.

Of the two million lepers in the world, only a small number has the privilege of receiving treatment from the United States Public Health Service, and other agencies are at work in various fields, endeavoring to afford relief to the great numbers of the stricken who are wholly without care. The largest in scope of these agencies is The American Mission to Lepers, which, in connection with the churches, maintains or aids more than a hundred institutions in 18 different countries.

PERTUSSIN

FOR A BAD BREATH

Like the danger sign at the R. R. Crossing—Nature has provided "a bad breath" as a warning, and while we're quick to detect this embarrassing condition in others, we seldom think of ourselves.

Offensive breath and bad tasting mouth mean a sour upset stomach, clogged intestines — Constipation! Don't let this important matter go. Overcome it and guard against it by using Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills whenever needed. This old-time purely vegetable favorite is pleasant and gentle in action and will never form a habit. At all druggists 25c a box.

Attempts to conceal complexion blemishes usually fail, and only serve to draw attention to the defects.

Underneath most unattractive skins is a clear, pleasing complexion—all that is needed is the proper treatment. It is surprising how often a brief use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap will clear away blotches, redness and roughness and give the skin its natural freshness and charm.

SUSIE TAKES THE BOY FRIEND OUT CHRISTMAS SHOPPING WITH HER

Dear Sports Editor: Well, I suppose I gotta write you a letter but I guess it'll be a tough job trying to write 'bout nothin' but sports events. There wasn't much doin' in the sportin' line this week and me havin' that fierce cold I hadda get my sports through the paper so's I ain't got much to write about. The only thing that I saw that interested me was the big money that redheaded football player with the same like that farmers' society was gettin'. I'retty soft for that baby runnin' 'round playin' football and reapin' in the sheckels. Gosh, them redheaded fellers is sure lucky. I see lots o' folks thinks he's a ham an' egger but, believe me, them fellers is jealous. A nother thing I sees in where that champeen Berlinbacker wins a fight down in Noo York from a frisher by the name of Delaney. Somethin's wrong there 'cause durin' the war everybody said a Irish feller could lick ten fellers with a German name. Things is changed, I guess. Gosh, whatda you know, the boy friend just tole me the Delaney feller's French. Kin ya beat that? No wonder he got licked tryin' to make the public think he come from a fightin' race. It's so now you can't tel' what's in a package by the name.

Well, it's pretty near time for old Santa Claus to be comin' 'round agin and I bet them girls what roll their sox will unroll 'em when they hang 'em up. Speakin' o' Santa Claus and Xmas, me and the boy friend went Xmas shoppin' Saturday nite. Gosh, I gotta great kick outa the boy, draggin' him through them womin's stores and seein' him blush. Gee, it was a lotta fun and believe me there was madness in my methodz, as the poet says, if you know what I mean. The boy friend wanted to go to a show but I steered him off tellin' him we'd better go shoppin'. You know I read in one o' them editorials in The Bulletin 'bout how you should shop early and male early so's you'd get a better bunch o' things to paw over. Well the feller that wro'e that piece 'bout shoppin early must be married and new what he was talkin' 'bout and I guess I ain't the only one that took his advice. Gosh, I never saw so many people on the streets in a long time and, believe me, I wished I been shoppin' with that Grange feller, ma's he could push through the crowds.

In the first store we went inta was a sign "Visitors Welcome." I guess they left outa few words 'cause it auta read "Visitors welcome—if you got any money." Me an' the boy friend justa 'bout stuck our heads through the door when a feller says, "What can I do for you, Mrs." Gosh, he musta thought me and the boy friend was hitched. He auta know better 'cause the boy friend opened the door for me an' had holda my arm. You don't see so married bozos doin' that. Well, we looked around awhile but I didn't see nothin' there I wanted for Xmas, there bein' no jooiry department.

Just as we was goin' out a feller comes in and says to the feller that owns the store, "How's business, Abie?" "Even," says Abie. "Whada you mean, even" says the first feller. "Even voirce then last year", says Abie and they both laffed. I didn't see nothin' to laff about that.

Well, I steers the boy friend down the street inta one of them's womin stores cause I hope somebody'll give me a new coat for Xmas. Oh, no, don't think I want the boy friend to give it to me 'cause you know I ain't a girl who believes in taking high priced gifts from young fellers. Well, I got inta the store and started tryin' on coats. I put on 'bout a dozen an' every one hadda different kinda fur on it. Gosh, I didn't know they was so many kinds of animals that grew hair. Well, finally the girl brought outta peach of a coat. Lotta fur on the collar and cuffs an' some on the bottom. Gosh, I looked swell in it. The boy friend liked me in it too. But oh, boy, what a setback I got when I asked the price. One hundred an' ten berries, believe me I started to pull that wrap offen my back like it was hot. The lady says, wait a minute, and she goes back to the boss an' he says as how'e it late in the season he'll make it 79 berries. But that's too rich for my blood. He says how's its wolf fur. I guess it musta been the fur of the Lone Wolf you read about. Well, we got outa there and went to a jooiry store.

Gosh, it was funny to see the boy friend kinda slide over where the dimon's was. Course I ain't ata' suspicious what I'm goin' to get for Xmas, oh, no.

Soon's I see the boy friend eyein' them sparklers I tells the feller back of the counter I wanted to try on some rings. Not the dimon ones 'cause I was 'fraid the boy'd think I was hintin'. I tryed on some cheap ones and when I got one that fitted the ring finger on my left hand I had the boy put it on his little finger. I guess he does what else I wear now all right.

Well, we left the jooiry store and went to where they sell them toys seein' how I gotta get somethin' for my kid brother. Well, after fightin', pushin' and pullin' we got up so's we could sees the toys. They was a big crowd around an' I thought some kids musta be havin' a good time. But wouldja believe it, they was all men and women. The poor kids wan't gettin' no chance atall to look at them playthings. The men was windin' em up an' settin' 'em goin' and they was laffin' and havin' a fine time. I guess some folks never grow up. Well, gosh it wasn't long 'fore me an' the boy friend was racin' automobiles up an' down the counter 'till the clerk say "Which one of them, would you like?" Gosh, I felt cheap, but I bought one and the boy friend lugged it 'round all the rest o' the evenin'.

Gosh, some people is lazy though. I saw one woman all dressed up in furs and I guess she musta weighed 200 lbs. A heavyweight I guess you'a call 'em in boxin'. Well, she buys a jack knife for a kid and says to the clerk, "Please have it sent to 13 ——— street, I'm so tired I can't carry it." Whatda know about that? Ain't this a queer world? Then 'bout a minute or two later we lamps a nother couple doin' their Xmas shoppin' but that jane wasn't havin' nothin' sent home. She has her hubby along trailin' her to carry them bundles. The feller auta be a comedy juggler 'cause he was gettin' plenty of practice. He was 'bout the size of a half pint and he was completely surrounded by bundles. All you could see was this heap o' bundles and a pair of legs stickin' out under 'em. The boy friend says, "Gee, I hope that jane don't give somebody a kitchen range for Xmas." That little cuss was as busy tossin' them bundles 'round as a one-armed paper hanger with the itch.

Well, we goes inta a lotta more stores, some o' 'em where they sells things for us females to wear under our coat. Well, I thought the boy friend would bust a blood vessel the gets so red from blushin'. Seein' he ain't got no sisters in his family I supose he ain't use to seein' them things. The boy friend didn't linger long in them places.

Well, we got through with the shoppin' justa 'bout as the stores was closin' and the boy friend was pretty well loaded down with bundles, too. He says let's getta ice cream, so's we go inta drug store. I ain't goin' say which one 'cause I ain't goin' to give away no free advertisin', if you know what I mean. Well, we is sittin' at a table when all ofa sudden we hears a yell and everybody's hot footin' it for the door or climbin' on the counters. Well, I looks up and way up near the ceilin' on a shelf is a good sized mouse givin' the crowd the once over. Well, I ain't mucha 'fraid of mice so I says to myself "Susie, be brave this ain't no time to show your stockin's" and then beats it into the telephone booth. Gosh, I never knew them telephone boxes would hold such a crowd. When I got collected I found they was four of us in there, packed in like them fish that comes in cans and oil. There was a young girl perched on the counter and a bother kid standin' in a chair and believe me the boy friend could seen some more o' them things that make him blush if he hadn't been lookin' at the mouse. Well, that was the freshest mouse I'd seen in a long time. Nothin' phased that animal 'cause he looks around nonchasiantly like and then goes away somewhere's. Well, after everythin' was quiet agin we all comes out, everybody tellin' everybody else they ain't 'fraid. Didn't look like they were seein's how they made such a mad scramble a minute 'fore. I hear one o' the policeman shot the mouse. Gosh, you can't scare them cops.

Hopin' you got your Xmas shoppin' done I am as ever,

SUSIE.

M'EWAN TO COACH AT UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 14—(AP)—Captain John J. McEwan, football coach of the United States Military academy at West Point, has signed a five-year contract to coach football at the University of Oregon, it was announced today. Captain John J. McEwan has been head football coach at West Point for the last three years during which time his elevens have twice beaten and once tied their historic rivals, the Naval academy.

McEwan gained playing fame as a cadet, playing with the army teams of 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916, during which four-year period the West Pointers scored decisive triumphs over the Navy each season. McEwan was the center on one of the Army's greatest football combinations and was placed on Walter Camp's first all-American team in 1914. He was captain of the 1916 eleven. Among his teammates were Eugene Vidal and Elmer Oliphant, two great Cadet backfield stars.

RICE PICKS ALL-AMERICAN FOR COLLIER'S WEEKLY

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP)—Collier's weekly in its current issue, announces an all-American football team selected by Grantland Rice New York sports writer who succeeds the late Walter Camp as that publications authority.

Dartmouth which obtained three places on the all-American team selected by the Associated Press, places two of these stars, Diehl and Oberlander, on Collier's eleven. The backfields in these two selections, composed of Grange, George, Wilson, Oberlanders and Nevers are identical.

The selections for Collier's were started by Caspar Whitney, now a resident of Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., and continued by Mr. Camp until his death this year.

Ends—Thayer, Pennsylvania and Oosterbaan, Michigan.

Tackles—Chese, Pittsburgh, and Weir, Nebraska.

Guards—Hess, Ohio State, and Diehl, Dartmouth.

Center—McMillan, Princeton.

Quarterback—Grange, Illinois.

Halfbacks—Wilson, Washington and Oberlander, Dartmouth.

Fullback—Nevers, Stanford.

NUTMEGS BEAT TIGERS IN INDOOR LEAGUE GAME

Monday evening at the Armory in the 6:30 game of the Norwich Indoor League, the Nutmegs slaughtered the Tigers for a 20 to 1 win. The loser's lone tally came in the eighth inning after two were away. Kelly pitching for the Nutmegs was never in danger and was not forced to exert himself in the least at any stage of the proceedings.

For the Tigers A. Tombari made several sensational catches pulling a ball down in the sixth with the bases loaded that saved much damage. Pete Labenski and Pheno ombari also did some nice work for the losers.

For the Nutmegs there were no individual stars as every man worked hard and consequently the team was returned the victors.

The lineups were as follows:

Tigers—p. S. Labenski, c. Goldblatt, b. Burke, 1b. S. Tombari, 2b. P. Labenski, ss. Nevins, Mgr., rss, Cimikoski, Capt., lf A. Tombari, cf, L. Hamil, rf, E. Hamil.

Nutmegs—p. Kelly, c. J. Tombari, 1b. Kampf, 2. Burnes, Capt., 3b. Falcone, 3b, Segal, lss, Gibbs, rss, J. Burnes, W. Burnes, lf, Brown, cf, Lambert, Couture, rf, Couture, Nevius.

Nutmegs ..... 064 301 124—20
Tigers ..... 000 000 010—1

Umpires: Malcolm and Lemieux.

KAPLAN TAKES OFF ANOTHER POUND IN WORKOUT

MERIDEN, Dec. 14—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan the featherweight champion, who is training in his home town for his coming title bout with Babe Herman, Friday night in the new Madison Square Garden, crept one pound nearer the required weight today. The champion finished 15 rounds of training weighing 127 pounds.

Speaking of the bout Kaplan is quoted as follows: "I am feeling fine and going in to retain my title. There has been some talk of a knockout and if I can land it in the first round I will. I am going to fight my hardest in every round for I realize that Herman is the man I must defeat. This is our seventh bout and the second time I have met my greatest rival in defense of my title."

CELTICS CONFIDENT OF BEATING BANTAMS TONIGHT

Everything is all set for the series of games which is to be played between the Baltic Bantams and the fast traveling Taftville Celtics the first game to be played in Taftville on Tuesday as a preliminary game to the Stafford Springs-Taftville Five game. From all reports the Baltic fans are saying that there is nothing easier than to defeat the Celtics now that they have strengthened up their team byt the manager of the Celtics says that they are due for another trimming as they have now hit their stride as was shown in the game last week in Jewett City.

Manager Douville, of the Bantams says the following men will take the floor against the Celtics: Hines and Andrews will travel in the forward positions; Thornton, who comes from Hanover, or Provencher, of the Baltic first team, center, and Stewart, Despathy or LaCroix guards, which means that the Celtics will have to be at their best.

The Celtics will lineup: St. Germaine, Yerrington, forwards; Pingree center; Eccleston and Phaneuf guards. Lamothe and Donegan subs.

The second game is to be played in Baltic on this Friday night.

Nutmegs Five vs. Crescents

This evening at the Armory at 8:30 p. m. the Nutmegs basketball team will stack up against the Crescent five. Little is known of the visitors although it is expected that they will extend the Nutmegs. The Nutmegs lineup will be selected from the following: Segal Kelly, Tombari, Bergeron, Murphy, Burnes, Carlin, Burdick and Couture.

Tonight's game will be the first of the season for the Nutmegs and they expect to place it in the win column.

TAFTVILLE FIVE CLASHES WITH STAFFORD SPRINGS KACEYS TONIGHT

The Taftville basketball five will stack up against their old rivals when they meet the fast Stafford Springs Kaceys in the Parish hall tonight.

The boopsters from the northern part of the state, who are reputed to possess one of the leading aggregations in the state, are looked upon as being one of the oldest and keenest rivals of the local team in every branch of sport.

In the Kaceys lineup there is an array of basketball stars that needs no introduction to the greater part of the fans in this vicinity as these ball tossers from up state have represented Stafford Springs on the chalked court for the past three years and have never failed in their annual clash with the local five to give them a real battle for their money.

Pastiming in the forward berths for the Kaceys will be "Squirrel" Pallanck and "Stub" Sullivan, Bernadotte of Pittsfield A. C., will jump at center with the Caichera brothers as guards.

The local team has been put through a stiff practice last night and while they agree that a tough battle is anticipated they feel confident that they will come out on the long end of the score.

"Rabbit" Gauthier and "Mondi" Normandin will take care of the forward positions Eddie Murphy or Harris will be at center, with Tom Colemap and "Bus" Murphy guards, Bordon will be in reserve.

In the preliminary game the invincible Celtics will meet the Baltic Bantams.

WESTERLY PAPER PICKS ALL-INTERSCHOLASTIC TEAM

The Westerly evening publication announces its all-interscholastic league team as chosen by Edward J. Butler after interviews with the various coaches of the league teams. Mr. Butler has chosen a well balanced team and although his selections do not agree with some others that have been published recently it shows that he has put in considerable time and thought. No two people will pick the same players for an all-interscholastic team as various players make different impressions on different people. Mr. Butler is to be congratulated on his selections. His team follows:

Center, DeRocco, Westerly.
Right guard, Ponzetti, Chapman
Right tackle, Stefano Norwich.
Right end, Rossi, Westerly.
Quarterback, Meikle, Westerly.
Left halfback, Brown, Chapman
Right halfback, E. Brewer, Knox
Fullback, Cronin, Stonington.

DALY IS ELECTED GRID CAPTAIN AT STORRS

STORRS, Dec. 14—(AP)—John J. Daly, of Hartford, was elected captain of the 1926 Connecticut Agricultural college football team tonight. He has been regular center for two years and held down the same position on the freshman team during his first year in college. Daly is a brother of M. F. Daly, who played center on the Army team this year and who captained the 1922 Connecticut Aggie team.

The annual banquet in honor of the varsity eleven was held tonight with Head Coach Jack Rothachter, of Springfield college as the principal speaker.

DANIELSON, Dec. 14. — Killingly High School's basketball team lost a practice game, 18 to 11, to Pomfret school at Pomfret Monday afternoon. The game served as a good workout for the Killingly team, which opens its regular schedule of games here Friday evening of this week. Plankette at guard starred for Pomfret, getting five goals from the field.

The lineup:

Killingly High: Conklin, lf, Crosby, rf; Major, c; Fulton, rg; Stoddard, lg. Pomfret School: Stanwood, lf; Wheeler, rf, Bowden, c; Plankette, rg; A. Plankette, lg.

ROCKNE HAS NOTHING TO SAY ABOUT CONTRACT

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 14—(AP)—Knute K. Rockne Notre Dame mentor was safe within his own bailiwick tonight. Back from New York, the self-styled Indiana "country boy" smilingly "guessed" he still ruled as gridiron mentor of the South Bend team.

Rockne had nothing further to say regarding the New York furore occasioned by the premature announcement from Columbia university Friday that it had signed him. The Rev. Father George Finnigan, vice president, and chairman of the board of athletic control at Notre Dame, said the school had nothing to say. The Rev. Matthew Walsh, president, is in Chicago.

Rockne slipped quietly into South Bend this afternoon. No welcoming demonstration greeted "country boy" who admittedly escaped the wiles of a "city slicker."

It is understood that the college authorities here view the incident as closed. Their stand is that Rockne is under contract with Notre Dame and there is no thought of their parting with the coach. Rockne intimated tonight that he will continue as Notre Dame coach unless the Notre Dame authorities drop him.

Battery Beats Stars

In the 9:30 tilt the Battery B won a slow game from the Stars by the score of 13 to 4. The result was never in doubt after the fourth inning as the Cattery was easily the aggressor from then on. By this game the Stars are sent tumbling into the cellar while the Battery goes into undisputed possession of first place in the league standing.

For the Stars, Sawicki, Cimikoski Faber and Gilbert played best while Robertson, Goodrow, Berberich and Lemieux were the luminaries for the Battery.

The following is the score by innings:

Battery ..... 002 025 21x—12

Umpire: Malcolm.

The league standing to date follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Battery B	2	0	1.000
Nutmegs	1	1	.500
Tigers	1	1	.500
Stars	0	2	.000

MARQUARD TO PILOT PROVIDENCE EASTERN TEAM

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Richard W. Rube") Marquard, southpaw pitcher of the Boston Braves since 1922 and former hurler for the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers, has accepted the position of president-manager-player of the Providence Eastern league baseball club, it was announced tonight.

When Pal Moran was knocked out Monny Callahan, in Los Angeles the other night, it was the first time in his ring career of 1 3years that the New Orleans lightweight had been reed to take the count.

MISS ELEANOR SEARS WINS WAGER BY WALKING FROM PROVIDENCE TO BOSTON

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Miss Eleanora Sears, society woman, tennis player, horsewoman, swimmer, skater, rifle shot, and all round sports woman, won a wager today. With vigorous swinging stride, she walked from Providence, R. I., which looks out upon the waters of Narragansett Bay, to Boston, overlooking Massachusetts Bay, a distance of 44 miles, in 11 hours and seven minutes.

A year ago in Paris, she made a wager with Howard O. Sturges, of Providence, that she could walk the distance in 15 hours.

Miss Sears who for a score of years has been a leader in amateur sport, trotted the last block of the distance to her Beacon street home here. She finished evidently far fresher than her two male pacemakers, Roger Cutler, sprint and Captain of the 1911 Harvard crew, and Albert P. Hinckley, Harvard University student, both Boston residents. While her rate for the distance was almost exactly four miles an hour, Miss Sears' actual walking time was far better for she made a stop for breakfast at Dedham that consumed nearly three quarters of an hour. She actually averaged approximately 4.3 miles an hour, walking or occasionally trotting.

She was not in a mood to grant interviews either during or after her long jaunt. When the doors of her home closed behind her, she had not disclosed the complete details of her wager other than to hint that it involved money and some other consideration and that the walk was to have been made in the autumn. A previous attempt, she admitted, had to be abandoned when a blizzard intervened.

She appeared capable and efficient in the costume which she wore the greater part of the distance—a soft gray hat over her unbobbed hair, a suede blouse, short black walking skirt of ample width, and white silk stockings. Her ankles were taped and she wore stout shoes.

"They ran out on me, there was no one home there tonight, so we started from in front of the house anyway," Miss Sears remarked as she swung down Hope street, from Mr. Sturges residence. Behind trailed a "small "beach wagon" type of automobile with coffee and sandwiches.

Miss Sears set a heartbreaking pace from the outset in the cold, clear night air. In 45 minutes she had covered four miles and was in Pawtucket. Twenty-seven minutes later she and her companions had crossed the Rhode Island line and entered Massachusetts, having travelled two miles more. Alternately illuminated by the glare of headlights and plunged in darkness, they strode along their direct route, passing through Walpole, beyond the halfway mark at 6:45 a. m.

Walking conditions were excellent in the absence of heavy traffic and mile after mile had slipped by, each covered in an average of about 15 minutes when dawn broke.

With daylight came increased motor traffic and the automobiles became increasingly numerous as Norwood was passed.

Miss Sears seemed unaffected by the steady grind, but Cutler, apparently was a bit weary when Norwood was reached and Hinckley at times had to run to catch up as they approached Dedham. Occasionally all three broke into a lope.

At Dedham Inn, the halt for breakfast was made when Miss Sears was sure she was far ahead of schedule. When she started again, she had changed to a brisk walking habit. All three hikers after their rest, were lame and stiff, but they regained their stride in the first mile. Part of Boston, Newtown, and Brookline, were passed before the walkers again entered Boston. Miss Sears was fresh and strong as she ended the jaunt with a run, was snapped by a dozen photographers, and disappeared indoors.

Nutmegs Did Not Win

Through some misunderstanding it was announced in these columns that the Nutmegs won the recent game from the Battery five. This is wrong as there was no count taken and therefore no winner could be announced. These two teams will probably meet in a series of games later in the season.

A word to the wives

—not forgetting the mothers and sweethearts! Here's some honest advice on what to give the man who smokes . . . Prince Albert pipe tobacco! Nothing could make more of a hit with a smoker than good old P. A.

The handsome pound crystal-glass humidor with the sponge-moistener top will carry the joy of Christmas morning far into the new year. Every cool, fragrant pipeful will bring new pleasure—and everlasting gratitude for your excellent judgment.

Then there are the pound and half-pound tin humidors for the smoking-table at home, the desk at the office, the work-bench. More important than the containers (good-looking as they are) is the tobacco that's in them . . . Prince Albert, the most enjoyable smoke mortal man ever knew.

The pound crystal-glass humidor is especially arrayed in Christmas clothes. A space is provided for writing "To....." and "From....." No further wrapping needed. Convenient! No matter what the size or amount, give Prince Albert. You cannot do better!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Look at the U. S. revenue stamp—there are TWO full ounces in every tin.

PRINCE ALBERT

—no other tobacco is like it!

COAL SCARCER IN NEW LONDON THAN AT ANY TIME DURING STRIKE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec 14—Coal is declared to be scarcer in New London han it has been at any time since he strike in anthracite regions be-an. The price by small quantities s now at the rate of $25 a ton. Deal-rs declare that the prospect of a set-lement of the trouble at the mines is o more promising than it was at the eginning of the difficulty.

The police court had a busy ses-ion this morning in which it dealt with a lot of drunks, near-drunks and ases from indulgence in liquor, or what goes for liquor in this town. Ronald Kelly was whooping things up n Main street, when he tore along with an automobile that was doing a ort of snake dance. He was grabbed y police officers and asked to show is authority for recklessness in the peration of a car. The officers got a whiff of his breath and turned away. Then they recognized that Kelly was drunk—good and drunk, as one of the policemen expressed it. In court this accused had no excuse to offer. He simply pleaded guilty. A fine of $100 came to him as soon as the words could be spoken by Judge Prince. That means the loss of the fellow's license.

Three or four sailors were accused and pleaded guilty. They had absorbed a lot of booze during Saturday night and Sunday and finally got into the police net when it was dragged along late Saturday night and early Sunday morning. They were fined for intoxication or for breach of the peace All paid.

John Kelly, a bum who has been a familiar figure in the court in the past, was there again today. He had a wandering jag as he strolled along State street and finally braced Detective Cavanaugh for a dime. The sergeant recognized him as an old friend and just tucked him up. Kelly was ready with a story when he was presented in court and said he was on the way to Norwich where he could get work. He was deterred from going by a fine of $10, which with the costs of trial, will keep him in jail for three weeks. His companion, named McGinley, also went to jail, as he was fined and couldn't pay.

A woman taken from a Green street home was charged with being a lewd and lascivious person in speech and behavior. She resides with her mother and rents rooms. She has twice been married. Her husband has been away from her some months. Complaint was made against her by officers at the submarine base, sailors consorting with her, it was alleged. She was fined and then was placed on probation and the execution of judgment suspended.

The Salvation Army hotel asked for the arrest of two of the accused for their conduct at that place. They had liquor there and were beyond the control of the management.

Catherine Bruno, who paid $18.70 into the court Saturday for intoxication which he said came from drinking cider, was fined a double amount today for the same offense. He attributed his drunken condition Sunday to cider, but that explanation did not satisfy the court. Bruno was down and out when taken into custody. He pleaded guilty today, saying he had taken "a few drinks" of cider.

William Good was charged with be-ing too familiar with a certain Mrs. Sheldon. Accusations were made to the police by both Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon, so to get at the facts the case was continued for a month. A bond holds good for being had.

Mrs. Elizabeth Congdon, of 56 Hill-side avenue; William Sanford, 107 Bauer avenue, Groton; John McPherson, 3 Union street; Miss Cecelia Cook, 27 Nameaug street; Mrs. Ruth Grandin, Poquonoc road, Groton; Miss Alice Duboil, 25 Brainard street; Miss Georgianna Reed, Stonington; Miss Rose Kish, Westerly; Mrs. Charles Corbin and infant daughter, 36 Vallen avenue, Miss Marie Ames, 46 Summit avenue; George Prince, U. S. S. Maryland, state pier; Mrs. Helen Winsted Sanders, 45 Williams street; Mrs. James Aberdeen, 18 Lewis street, and Arthur Dunnmire, 311 Williams street, driver of the automobile that overturned at Quaker Hill, several weeks ago, resulting in the instantaneous death of Raymond Nelson, formerly of Stonington, were patients dismissed by Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospitals Sunday and today.

Selton A. Copp, president of the Na-tional Whaling bank, resumed his duties today, having been confined to his home on Thames street, Groton, for several days as the result of injuries sustained by being struck by an automobile on the Thames river highway bridge. Mr. Copp, still feels the effects of the severe bruises which he suffered.

Chief Petty Ocer Funk, stationed at the state pier, this morning informed the record at the office of the city clerk in the new school house, Mercer street, were guilty of making insulting remarks as young school girls passed through that street on their way to their studies at Nathan Hale grammar school and Chapman Technical High school.

Deeds transferring title from the Pe-quot Realty company to Janet L. Mitchell Francis Allanack were received for record at the office of the city clerk this afternoon. The tracts are a portion of the former C. S. Guthrie tract Lower Boulevard, Pequot avenue and Parkway.

Sunday night George Balassi, 16 Terrace court, complained to the police that his bicycle had been stolen from in front of his father's place of business, 81 Main street, and today Kenneth Tuckier, 71 Thames street Groton, complained that while he absented himself from his wheel a short time on State street, a thief took possession of the bicycle.

Policewoman Jane Cassidy this af-ternoon accompanied two wayward girls to Lone Lane farm, Middletown, the girls having been committed to the institution this forenoon by Judge S. Victor Prince of the juvenile court. The girls had been guilty of continuous misconduct of late and their commitment was deemed for the best interests of the two minors.

Patrolman John Clifford in making his rounds on Methodist street early this evening, discovered a youth prowling in the rear of the Thomas Express company's garage, and when a robbery was recently perpetrated. When questioned the boy was abusive and insolent. The boy, who resides at 121 Shaw street, was taken home and given some sound advice as to his conduct in the future, after which he was turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

William B. Rogers, 24 Ocean avenue, employed in the United States army engineers' office, postoffice building, received a severe beating this evening when Edward Leary, 47 Franklin street, attacked Rogers, because, it is understood, Leary is of the opinion that Rogers has been the cause of extreme humiliation to Leary. Leary was arrested at his home later by Patrolman Augustus Ray, following Rogers preferring charges of breach of the peace against Leary. Several weeks ago an affair occurred, it is alleged at the postoffice building which brought a stigma to Leary, which Leary alleges he did not deserve. Leary absented himself from the city for a time, but today returned and he then sought Rogers for the purpose of obtaining revenge. Rogers, who is well known because of being an officer of the coast artillery, state troops, was found by Leary when the latter went to the engineers' office. Leary, it is claimed, requested Rogers to come out from the former's office and as Rogers entered the corridor Leary it is claimed, set upon Rogers and administered a terrific beating. After Rogers had been left bruised and battered he visited the police station and lodged complaint against his assailant with the result that Leary was taken into custody.

Another case of Scarlet fever, making the total number of children to be afflicted with the malady 11, was reported to the health department today, when Russell Pendergrast, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pendergrast came down with the disease.

Joseph J. Shifferlein, 48, died Sat-urday at his home on Fishers Island. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at 15 Masonic street and were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Burial was in Jordan cemetery. Mr. Shifferlein was a veteran of the World War. He was formerly in the infantry and quartermaster's corps, stationed at Fort Wright and since his discharge from the regular service two years ago, had made his home on Fishers Island.

Miss Katherine Prindeville, superintendent of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, has been granted a leave of absence for six months beginning February 1st. It is the intention of Miss Prindeville to take an ocean trip, either through the Mediterranean or Caribbean sea. The leave of absence is for the purpose of enabling her to take a rest as her duties for a number of years have been most confining as supervisor of the 100 or more nurses connected with the ever-growing hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Swanson have returned having spent several days in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. James Flower have returned, concluding several days' visit with friends in New Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. James Counihan, Norwich, today moved to New London, now residing at 40 Perry street.

CITY NOT TO PAY C. J. DUCY IN FIRE TRUCK CLAIM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14—The city council this evening disposed of the claim of C. J. Ducy against the city for the purchase price of a four-wheel drive truck which Mr. Ducy purchased from the agent of the company, upon the latter's statement that the city would need the truck and that it would be purchased by the city in the course of a few months. The agent was Andrew J. Matnar, and his representation seems to have been made without the authority of anyone delegated to make such a statement. Mr. Ducy advanced the money to buy the truck and it has since been on his hands, unpaid for by the city. The matter was referred to the director of law, Charles B. Whittlesey and he in a written opinion notified the council this evening that he did not regard the city as in anyway liable for the purchase of the truck.

Councilor May, who brought the matter to the attention of the council some weeks ago, declared that while he accepted the opinion of the director at law, he still was of the opinion that the city was morally liable for the price of the truck and held that the courts must pass on the matter before it is finally disposed of. He pointed out that Mr. Ducy had acted in a similar capacity in the purchase of the Thomas company fire apparatus.

The communication of the director of law was accepted as final by the council.

ATTY. C. B. WHITTLESEY RESIGNS AS LAW DIRECTOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14—Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey, who has been director of law of the city during 1925, this evening tendered his resignation, to take effect on the 1st of January next. He told the council, in asking to be relieved of his duties, that he could not give the attention to the position which it should receive from the incumbent if he was to attend to his private practice as a lawyer. He thanked the council and all city officials with whom he had had relations of an official character for their uniform kindness and assistance. The matter was referred to the committee on administration, on suggestion of the mayor, who saw a possibility of having the attorney remain longer in the employ of the city in the event that matters with which he was directly connected should further need his services to complete them.

COUNCILOR STREETER STIRS UP MEETING

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14—The city council meeting this evening was rather tame till the close of the session, when Councilor Streeter started something by rising to a question of personal privilege and attacked a head wherever he thought he saw one. He condemned most positively the action of someone connected with the municipal building for giving out information concerning the proposed purchase of Millers pond and imparting information to a local paper that was false and its statements malicious. He took occasion to say that an article that was published recently contained falsehoods and that it was actuated by some one prejudiced against the buying of the pond referred to. He stated particular assertions were lies pure and simple and characterized the statements as attacks upon his integrity intended to misrepresent him. He spoke so insinuatingly that Mayor Fox, City Manager Holt and Councilor Scot felt him and replied to Councilor Streeter. Mr. Streeter imputed to the mayor a previous opposition to secret meetings and said he now was contenancing them. He asked, "Why the change?" Mayor Fox denied that he had ever attended a secret meeting and disclaimed any intention ever to attend one. He accused the councilor of impugning the motives of members of the council and with unjustly charging them with dishonesty of purpose.

This police investigation was referred to by Mr. Streeter as having been deferred in a report and recommendation to the council. This brought Councilor Scott to reply and to say that the matter was still in committee, that it was being considered and that when the matter was in shape to be presented, recommendations would be made to the council. He intimated that the committee was capable of handling the matter and with the city manager was giving consideration to the duties that attached to the committee. Mr. Streeter particularly referred to the proposed purchase of Miller's pond and stated some figures that a newspaper had quoted as being the price of the property. He also said the city had purchased Bolles' brook and that the watershed of the same was that of the Davis brook. City Manager Holt replied to this as false and said that the Bolles brook watershed did not touch the Davis property, but that it did touch on Kaplan's property which abutted the Davis property. The matter developed into a series of statements and denials that were interesting, and ended where it began without any action being taken. The council voted to buy cinders and sand for use on the streets the cinders from M. J. Doyle, at $1.15 a cubic yard, for 2,000 yards, and the sand from Henry Thiebault, at $1.19 a cubic yard, for 250 yards.

The council voted to extend the sewer on Ledyard street 25 feet to accommodate property of Clarence Martin. He is to pay the entire expense of the work, about $45.

It was voted to extend the sewer on Colman street westerly.

BOOTLEGGERS AGENTS HELD IN BONDS FOR SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14—Carlo May and Frank Broese, both of this city, were in the Groton town court this morning on the charge of violation of the prohibition law in transporting liquor. Judge Charles D. Willard ordered the accused held for trial at the next term of the superior court, ordered that May furnish a surety on his bond of $1,000 and that Broeze obtain a surety on his bond in the sum of $800. This they did.

May and Broeze, it is stated, are young men employed as agents by a New London bootlegger and make their headquarters in a Bank street poolroom. Last Thursday afternoon they received instructions to convey 25 gallons of alcohol to a bootlegger somewhere between New London and Providence and while carrying the alcohol in five cans of five gallons each, their automobile was held up and searched by members of the state police of Groton barracks, on the outskirts of the borough. The nature of the load the automobile carried was then revealed, and both the automobile and the alcohol was seized.

HOPKINTON

At the Breed

If life seems difficult, dull and unromantic; if you yearn for a breath of the warm south; if your heart tingles to the glow of tropical adventure; if you want youth and beauty and splendid courage; if you care to be carried out of yourself and to feel life beating tumultuously about you—See Never the Twain Shall Meet, which will be shown today at the Breed theater for the last time.

Broadway Theater

It goes without saying that there is nothing like a good show. Those who have been attending the Broadway theater, have had very few causes for complaint; that is why we advise you not to take any chances, get that Broadway going habit and be satisfied.

Fred Driscoll and Sadie Perry, the harmony fashion plates are the opening Keith Vaudeville attraction on the bill the first of this week. They presented a Song Bouquet which is a very pleasant arrangement of song attractively sung.

Norman and Gerard, thos joyful jesters, seemed to enjoy themselves as much as they pleased the capacity crowds with their clever presentations of song, comedy and dance.

Cartinell, Harris and Co., is a trio of artists offering a little comedy novelty which gave this clever trio an opportunity of showing themselves to the best advantage.

McCormack and Irving in Dishing the Dirt might be classed as singing patter artists and enormous dividends in fun is the result.

Martell and West are as clever as they are funny. It has to do with acrobatic juggling.

The photoplay feature Morals for Men is extra good and features Conway Tearle and Agnes Ayres.

Palace Theatre

All work stopped when Gloria's special train arrived and most of the town's 4,500 souls were at the station to extend a welcome to the popular star. Mayor Frank Clark and a band were there, too. Hundreds of automobiles blocked all roads, for people came from miles around. All store windows and many homes bore welcome signs and photos of Miss Swanson.

Miss Swanson was visibly affected by the wonderful welcome accorded her, being especially pleased with her temporary home, the Zoll mansion, located on the bank of the Ohio river and commanding an excellent view of the surrounding country.

During the Paramount company's stay in New Martinsville, a local printer published a four-page daily paper giving all up-to-date news of production activities.

"Stage Struck" is an original screen story by Frank R. Adams, adapted by Sylvia La Varre. Lawrence Gray is Gloria's leading man in the production. Ford Sterling has a fine comedy role. Forrest Halsey wrote the scenario.

RAILROAD TRESPASSING MUST STOP WITHOUT DELAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 14—Capt. C. A. Kelley of New London, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad police was in court and reported two cases of trespassing on New Haven railroad property. William Holden, 53, of Pawcatuck, and Samuel Mancanio, 17, of the Martin Cafe and Sea grill, of Westerly. When the cases were called Capt. Kelley announced that the "men were not present." Notice will be given them by the railroad police officers, to appear at a later session of the court.

Capt. Kelley and Sergt. Marks, of New London, arrived in Westerly early Monday morning and from 6:20 to 7:15 a. m., took their station on the Pawcatuck end of the Pawcatuck river railroad bridge, just west of the Westerly station. Two trespassers on the river bridge were summoned to make their appearance in court and a number of railroad employes received warnings that if they continued to trespass they would be discharged from the employ of the railroad. Since the railroad police were in Westerly a month ago to warn trespassers, the use of the railroad bridge has continued. As stated by the railroad police, if anyone should be caught on the bridge when two trains meet there going in opposite directions it would mean sure death. Also since their previous visit there have been complaints entered by the locomotive engineers of the use of the bridge by pedestrians.

LEGAL NOTICES

In the matter of William E. Rocheleau, a Bankrupt, in Bankruptcy No. 7808.

Notice is hereby given that on the 12th day of December, A. D. 1925, the above-named was duly adjudicated a bankrupt; and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held before the undersigned, at his office, 58 Church St., Norwich, in said District, on the 24th day of December, A. D. 1925, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which time said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint trustee, be heard as to orders of Referee for care of property of the estate and disposal thereof, at auction or private sale, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

THOMAS M. SHIELDS,
Referee in Bankruptcy.
Norwich, Conn., December 14, 1925.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 12th day of December, A. D. 1925.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The Administrator exhibited his administration account with said estate to the Court for allowance; it is therefore Ordered, That the 18th day of December, A. D. 1925, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the Probate Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, be, and the same is, appointed for hearing the same, and the said Administrator is directed to give notice thereof by publishing this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and make return to the Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 1st day of December A. D. 1925.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

It appearing to and being found by the Court that upon the settlement of the administration account with said estate there remains for distribution in the hands of the Administrator personal property, it is Ordered, That a hearing be had at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 18th day of December, A. D. 1925, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, to ascertain the heirs and distributees of said estate and that the said Administrator give notice of said hearing by publishing this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing and make return to the Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 12th day of December, A. D. 1925.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Walter G. Burdick, late of Griswold, in said District, deceased.

The Administrator appeared in Court and filed a written application alleging that said estate is now in settlement in said Court, and praying for an order to sell certain real estate belonging to said estate, fully described in said application.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 18th day of December, A. D. 1925, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said application, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to the Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
New York

Stocks strong: Chesapeake and Ohio leads rise in rails.

Foreign exchanges easy: French francs at year's lowest price.

Cotton lower; southern selling.

Sugar firmer; higher spot market.

Coffee higher; foreign buying.

Chicago

Wheat lower; weak cables.

Corn easy; larger country offerings.

Cattle irregular, better grades scarce.

Hogs lower.

RAILS FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Heavy buying of the railroad shares featured the resumption of the upward movement of prices in today's stock market. Waves of profit-taking and bear selling swept the market, at intervals, but offerings were generally well absorbed. Total sales ran over one and one half million shares.

Renewal of selling pressure against French francs forced them down several points to another new low record for the year at 3.59 1-2 cents, with selling inspired by Paris reports of a possible dictatorship as a means of extricating the country from its financial and political difficulties.

The commodity markets were reactionary, although the net declines as a rule, were small.

Persistent accumulation of the railroad shares apparently was based on reports of large current earnings, prospects of favorable dividend developments by some of the larger systems, and expectations of constructive merger legislation by congress. The demand embraced a wide list, with new peak prices for a year, or longer, being attained by Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake and Ohio, common and preferred, Erie common, Chicago and Northwestern, Peoria and Eastern, St. Louis Southwestern, New York and Harlem and Nashville, Chattanooga, and St. Louis, the net gains running as high as 7 3-4 points.

United States Steel common showed a small fractional gain at 136 1-4, but some of the independents developed outstanding strength. Gulf States Steel advanced over 3 points to 94 3-4, Crucible closed about a point higher at 78 5-8, steady accumulation of Ludlum sent that stock up to 67 3-4, duplicating the record high; Sloss-Sheffield broke 3 points on profit-taking.

American Can, which is expected to split up its common stock in the near future, jumped 5 points to a new record top at 263 1-2. About a score other industrials broke through their previous 1925 maximum prices, the list including Artloom, common and preferred, Allis Chalmers, American Beaks Shoe and Foundry; American Ice, Bush Terminal, Continental Can, Case Threshing Machine, preferred Crucible Steel preferred, Consolidated Cigar, Fleischmann, Jewel Tea, Mathieson Alkali, New York Canners, South Porto Rican Sugar, United Railways and Investment preferred and Vivadou.

Other outstanding industrial strong spots were American Linseed common and preferred, Anaconda, Davison Chemical, Chemical, Foundation company, General Electric, Marine preferred, Murray Body, Savage Arms, United Fruit and Western Union, all up 2 to 6 points. U. S. Rubber and United States Distributing common were heavy.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent., and then advanced to 5 1-2, closing at the top. The higher rate presumably reflected the increased demand for funds in connection with income tax payments and heavy government financing tomorrow. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

French francs rallied to around 3.62 cents in the late afternoon, the demand representing the covering of short commitments. Demand sterling held fairly steady at 4.84 5-8. Most of the Continental currencies showed slight recessions.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree of Goodyear were weekend visitors at the home of Mr. Pingree's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree of North Third avenue.

Mrs. Roy L. Clarke and Miss Marion Clarke have returned to their home in New London after passing several days with Mrs. Clarke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg and family of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Osten Ferguson of Holyoke Mass., were week end guests of Mrs. Ferguson's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bogle of Providence street.

Harry E. Prentice of Norwich, who accompanied Joseph D. Aiken of the Ponemah house on an automobile trip to Mr. Aiken's former home in Charleston S. C., has returned to town.

Peter Lukoff has returned to Blackstone, Mass., after a short stay this week with William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue.

Local people who are familiar with the Mohegan-Narragansett wars in this vicinity in the early days of Norwich, point out that it was 20 years ago this week when the military power of the Narragansetts was broken by troops from Eastern Connecticut and Massachusetts. At that time King Philip's war was raging, and some of the Wampanoags had taken refuge with the Narragansetts who refused to give them up. Although the Rhode Island Indians had declared themselves neutral, they were suspected of giving aid to the Wampanoags and accordingly a force of Eastern Connecticut and Massachusetts men, the colony of Rhode Island refused to join in the fight invaded the Narragansett lands and massacred hundreds of men, women and children, in what is now known as the Great Swamp fight. The tribe was never able to recover from this blow, although later some small bands attacked and burned the towns of Wickford and Providence. Miantonomo, who is buried near the Taftville-Norwich line, was a Narragansett sachem.

Curtis Hedler of Terrace avenue was in Baltic Sunday, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Hedler.

Frank Rekus of Terrace avenue has resigned his position with the mule department of the Ponemah company.

Mrs. Joseph Sydlo of Terrace avenue is a patient at the William W. Backus Hospital of Norwich, following an operation.

The committee in charge of the annual Christmas service of the Taftville Congregational church school met Saturday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis of North Third avenue. It was decided to hold the service on December 23rd, and it will be followed by a visit from Santa Claus and a Christmas tree in the church vestry.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead of Boswell avenue have returned from Westerly, R. I., where they were the guests of their son, Thomas Whitehead and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kelley and family are moving from South Third avenue to a house on South B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Souter of Lisbon have sold their residence and plan to move from it soon.

With an attendance of a thousand, Ponemah Council, No. 34, Knights of Columbus, worked the major degree on a class of 24 candidates in Parish hall Sunday afternoon. Grand Knight John J. Daley presided. Among those present were State deputy William J. Mulligan, State Secretary John M. Phillips, State Advocate Jerome Collins, State Treasurer, John Bransfield, District Deputy T. J. Sullivan and District Deputy John F. Hennon. Members of the councils, which included many of the clergy from New London, Willimantic, Baltic, Plainfield, Jewett City and Moosup were in attendance. After the work, the officers had luncheon at the Ponemah house.

CREDITORS FAVOR RE-ORGANIZATION OF UNCAS PAPER BOARD COMPANY

A plan for re-organization of the Uncas Paperboard company of this city was favorably acted upon at a meeting of the principal creditors of the concern held in New London Monday afternoon. The meeting was held at the office of Arthur T. Keefe, of the firm of Geary, Davis & Keefe, New London attorney for the receiver of the paperboard company, Frank W. Browning.

Present at the meeting were H. G. Craig & Co., Inc., by E. A. Westfall, vice president; Thames National bank, by Nathan A. Gibbs, cashier; New England Oil Refining company, by R. D. Sears, Jr., treasurer; Downingtown Manufacturing company represented by Edmund Perkins; Kelly and company, represented by F. L. McGuire, and F. W. Browning, receiver. The creditors present have claims amounting to $434,000 out of a total of $510,000 in claims presented

At the meeting it was agreed:

That the receiver be authorized to apply to the court for authority to expend the sum of $10,000 for further improvements to the machinery of the plant for the purpose of increasing and bettering the production of the plant.

That the gentlemen named above be appointed a committee on re-organization of the Uncas Paperboard company and to formulate plans and report at a later meeting.

When the plans for the re-organization are completed they will be submitted to the superior court by the receiver for court sanction. The plant is one of the largest in the city, having a pay roll of $5,000 a week. News that the creditors are co-operating in an effort to have the plant continue in operation and to increase its production will be favorably received by the citizens of Norwich.

MANY CHRISTMAS TREES ARE GROWN IN CONN.

Around the custom of the Christmas tree there is growing a brand new industry, according to Austin F. Hawes, state forester.

More than 100,000 spruce seedlings were planted last year in Connecticut to be grown for sale at the Yuletide season, Mr. Hawes said. It takes four or five years before any of these trees grow to a marketable size but even with the long time necessary to their growth, there is a good profit to be made in the business, Mr. Hawes declared.

It is estimated if the barren hillsides, rock and worn farms in Connecticut were planted with spruce trees, this state could grow ten times more trees than the number used each Christmas by it. The land used for growing the trees is land that is suitable for growing nothing else and land which now is not being used, Mr. Hawes said.

At present the greater number of trees sold in Connecticut for Christmast use are shipped from northern Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire. This entails a freight charge which increases the cost of the trees to the consumer, he said. The amount of money that would be saved Connecticut buyers of Christmas trees if the trees were grown nearby is estimated to be large.

The foresters of the country are interested in the preservation of the larger forest areas for the growing of lumber and are back of the movement to educate farmers and others in growing trees for the Christmas market, Mr. Hawes said. Some methods now used by cutters of Christmas trees are injurious to forests in that they clear out whole solid areas of forest without any effort at thinning out the forest and thereby increasing its value, he said. Efforts are being made to educate cutters as to the proper manner of marketing the trees, Mr. Hawes declared.

One of the greatest problems which the state must solve before farmers will plant trees is to stop the stealing of them, in Mr. Hawes' opinion. There are groups which make a business of stealing Christmas trees and whom it is difficult to detect he said. Heretofore the state has merely fined those who were caught stealing evergreens and have allowed them to retain the load of stolen trees but it is now planned to either return the stolen trees to the rightful owner or to destroy them, Mr. Hawes said.

NORWICH C. E. UNION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual fall meeting of the Norwich Christian Endeavor Union was held in the Preston City Congregational Church, Saturday afternoon and evening. There was an attendance of eighty in the afternoon and over one hundred at the evening service.

The afternoon service opened at three o'clock with a devotional service led by Rev. George Clark, the new pastor of the Preston City Congregational Church. Rev. Joseph C. Harrison, pastor of the Preston City Baptist Church, led in prayer. The annual business meeting was in charge of the president, Gertrude S. Ladd, of Hanover. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted. Reports from lookout, and finance committee, and junior superintendent were given and accepted. Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church and chairman of the nominating committee presented the following names for officers of the union for the coming year.

President, Gertrude S. Ladd, Hanover; vice-president, Ralph Marsh, Norwichtown; secretary, Edythe Pierce, Preston City; treasurer, Robert Schmidt, Taftville. These were unanimously elected and the secretary was requested to cast one ballot in favor of them.

After the business meeting an inspiring address was given by Herbert Hicks, retired state field secretary.

At 4.30 the executive committee held a meeting and talked over plans for the new year. At 5.30, all were invited downstairs to a banquet supper served by the Baptist and Congregational societies of Preston City. A roll call was taken by the secretary, each society responding with the number they had in attendance. Norwich Town had the largest attendance and was awarded the banner.

Rev. E. C. Dunbar, chairman of the resolutions committee submitted his report which was accepted.

The seven o'clock service was opened with a devotional period. The evening address was given by Rev. Chester Howe of New London. His subject was "The Best Day That Ever Dawned." In part he said: This is the best day for health, strength, and the enjoyment of physical life. It is the finest time for the development of the mind. We have the greatest educational advantages that have ever been offered. We have a wonderful New England heritage and are we going to lose it? There never was a generation when one could make so many friends. We really are citizens of the whole world for every morning or evening when we read the papers we read news and events of the whole world. We have never had so many study books that tell us of Jesus.

He closed his address with the poem, This is my Father's World, by Babcock. The meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction.

ESSAY WRITER WAS AWARDED SECOND PRIZE

Below is published the essay written by Olive Rathbone, of the Elizabeth Street school, who was awarded second prize in the essay contest conducted by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce on the topic, Reasons Why Norwich Is An Attractive City in Which to Live:

Introduction.

Norwich an ideal place to live.

Norwich a trading and banking center.

Norwich offers good homes to its people.

Norwich protects its people.

Norwich guards the health of its people.

Norwich provides good schools for its children.

Norwich has churches and organizations for all races and creeds.

Norwich provides amusements for its people.

Conclusion.

Cities are like people. They have striking personalities which make an impression upon the minds of those who come in contact with them. So it is interesting to consider our own city of Norwich—and note whether the impression it would make would be favorable or otherwise.

Lying among the hills of eastern Connecticut where the Yantic and Shetucket rivers join to form the Thames, its woods and broad fields its beautiful falls and clear streams, have won for it the name, "Rose of New England." For those who love beuty, then, Norwich is an ideal place in which to live, whether they choose one of the residential streets or a pleasant suburb where they will have the advantages of the country as well as of the city.

To the manufacturers the rivers give power and with the railroads provide quick transportation of their goods. The great diversity of these industries is constantly adding to our population by furnishing labor, skilled and unskilled, to the working men.

Business has increased with the population until Norwich has become the trading center not only of its own people but of sixty thousand outside its limits. Owing to its splendid banking facilities it is also the banking center of eastern Connecticut.

The average man, however, will make his home where he finds the best opportunity to earn his living and find enjoyment. To these, few cities offer more desirable building sites. Through the assistance of the Norwich Building and Loan association one of these sites may be secured and a home built on easy terms.

To all its people Norwich furnishes good water, and that there may be a sufficient supply, a new reservoir is now under construction. Gas and electricity are provided at reasonable rates. The streets are well lighted and policed, while the paid fire department is adequate for every emergency.

The streets are well-kept. In summer they are sprinkled or tarvia is used to lay the objectionable dust. Rubbish and garbage are removed regularly by the city to the great convenience of the property owner. The cleanliness of the city and watchfulness of the health department have done much to keep our city healthful.

For its children Norwich has provided a good public school system and an excellent high school. For those who are interested there are art classes, while for those who wish a business education there is a commercial school.

Every precaution is taken to guard the health of the school children who are under the constant supervision of the school nurses. In summer they are provided with playgrounds, and in winter a skating pond provides a healthful amusement.

There are churches for all creeds There are organizations and societies both for the old and the young. The Chamber of Commerce offers great opportunities to work for the improvement of the city.

While, in the winter, theatres, and music and lecture courses furnish enjoyment, in the summer, there are interesting historical places to see, beautiful drives to take, and beaches to visit not far away.

Considering all the advantages that Norwich offers to its people, is it any wonder that we echo the words of our own poet, Edmund Clarence Steadman,—

"And then confess, nor longer idly
sadly
While sinks the lingering sun.
That of all cities in the Eastern valley,
Ours is the fairest one."

Envy no man's talent. Improve your own.

Y. M. C. A. COUNTY WORK MEETING AT LEBANON

The Congregational and Baptist churches at Lebanon united in a service Sunday evening in the interests of the town and country work of the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association. The service was held in the Baptist church which was well filled with the union audience.

Rev. A. J. Littlefield made opening remarks welcoming the large audience and the Y. M. C. A. representatives and announced a hymn, after which he called on Rev. Stanley Selleck of the Congregational church, who read the scripture and offered prayer. Mr. Littlefield then announced the purpose of the union meeting was to get the people acquainted with the county work of the Y. M. C. A. He then introduced Edwin Hill, General Secretary of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. and turned the meeting over to him. Mr. Hill stated that it was a real pleasure for the Norwich Y. M. C. A. to be able to cooperate with the pastors and the parents and others of Lebanon in services in the interests of the boys and young men of the community, and it will be our privilege to do everything possible to help mould the lives of those who must assume the responsibilities of manhood in a few years.

Mr. Hill then called on the Silvertone Male Quartette for their first selection, "At Evening Time," after which he told somewhat of the work of the Y. M. C. A. in this and other lands; his remarks were interspersed with selections by the quartette including, "Oh I love to talk with Jesus, Steal away with Jesus."

The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London, who announced as his topic, "Profit on Existence." Mr. Danforth stressed the reasonableness of every boy and man returning not only as much as had been given to him but some increase. Every boy, said the speaker has much given him in the home; his father and mother give him of their love in many ways, and the boy should certainly show a profit by putting back into the home, not only as much as he has received, but also more. The same is true of school, the teacher sacrifices much for the boy, and the least the boy can do is to pay back in one way or another, as much as he has received at school, and a profit in addition. So also in his relation to the church and Sunday school they have done and are doing much for boys and men, and due appreciation means that they should return in service, etc., not only as much as the church has given him, but his is duty is to return a profit on his church existence. I want to speak of four boys who returned a real profit on their existence: Joseph, early became a servant of God, and received a rich bestowal from God, and in due time he gave to the kingdom a conserafee life, giving a very large profit on his spiritual existence; so also did Samuel, who became such a power for good in God's hands. Saul of Tarsus though at first hostile to Christianity, finally espoused it, and gave a very large measure of consecration to Christ. Then the great Christ, gave, as we know all He had received and a superb profit, finally going to the Cross that humanity might be saved. Dr. Danforth's address made a deep impression on all present. Immediately following the address the quartette sang, "The old rugged Cross," with good effect. Rev. Mr. Littlefield expressed for both pastors and their people enthusiastic appreciation of the programme of the evening. The closing hymn was "I need Thee every hour," and Dr. Danforth pronounced the benediction.

PLEASANT SUPRISE FOR EAST GREAT PLAIN COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Washburn were given a pleasant surprise housewarming at their new home at East Great Plain Saturday evening by the members of the Saturday Night Pinochle club. An enjoyable evening with cards were spent after which refreshments were served. The prizes at pinochle were won by John Titcomb Boynton and Thomas Washburn who had high and second high score respectively. Mrs. Myles E. Standish and Mrs. George A. Risley won the prizes for the women.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Washburn were presented a beautiful mirror as a gift from the members of the club.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Mr. Bailey had the honor of being invited to preach the anniversary sermon Sunday at Windham Center church, which observed the 225th anniversary of its founding Thursday, December 10th. Senior Deacon and Mrs. Dwight W. Avery were the delegates from the mother church (First Congregational of Norwich Town) to convey greetings to the entertaining church, Mrs. Charles E. Reeves was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening, when the topic assigned was, Bible Principles of Giving, Lev. 27:30; I Cor. 16:1-4,14. The Congregational mid-week service for conference and prayer, will have as its theme, The Promise of the Servant, Isaiah 53.

When the annual meeting of Norwich Christian Endeavor union, was held at the Preston City Congregational church, Saturday afternoon and evening, the Norwich Town Congregational Y. P. S. C. E., was awarded the banner for the coming year for the largest percentage of its membership in attendance. This included: Arthur Avery, Miss Louise Avery, Ralph H. Marsh, Charles Marsh, Miss Victoria St. Martin, Miss Jessie E. Hyde, George F. Hyde, Miss Ruth Barber, Miss Dorothy Waterman, Nathan Wheeler, Woodward Wheeler, Kenneth Gembel and James Kelly, etc.

Those who furnished automobiles to convey the Norwich Town party were Charles Marsh, Arthur Avery and Mr. Waterman.

Ralph H. Marsh, stewardship superintendent of the Norwich Town society was chairman of the program committee for Norwich C. E. union. The representatives from Norwich Town Methodist Christian Endeavor society in attendance at the meeting, were Lewis Aldrich and LeRoy Miner.

Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters, is to hold a meeting Wednesday evening, at the home of Miss Mary Wattles, of East Town street.

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Methodist church, the text of Rev. James B. Aldrick's sermon was, Acts 16-9. And a vision appeared to Paul in the night. There stood a man of Macedonia and prayed him, saying, come over into Macedonia, and help us. In the evening at this church, Rev. Mr. Aldrich preached from Matthew 5:48 Be ye therefore perfect, were as your Father which is in Heaven is perfect. Through error, the text of Rev. Mr. Aldrich's Sunday evening sermon, the week previous, was somewhat confused. The text Matthew 13:33 follows: Another parable spake He unto them. The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened. The theme of the Methodist Young People's Christian Endeavor service on Sunday evening, was "Bible Principles of Giving," with several Scripture references. Le Roy Miner was in charge of the meeting.

A company of twenty or more men responded to the general invitation sent out last week by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, chairman of the program committee to meet in the Norwich Town Congregational chapel Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, to rehearse Christmas carols, to be used at the Community Christmas Tree, under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association, on the Norwich Town Green, Christmas eve. Herbert L. Yerrington played the accompaniments. Rev. Mr. Bailey was in charge of the rehearsal.

James Turnbull of Wauwecus Hill, had as his guest for two days last week, a former pastor of the Leffingwell Baptist church, Rev. Peter C. Collins, of late holding a pastorate at East Lyme, Rev. Mr. Collins and family are expecting within a week or so, to move back to Leffingwell.

Christmas decorations of evergreen wreaths, holly, red bells, etc. are noticeable in windows and doors in homes about town.

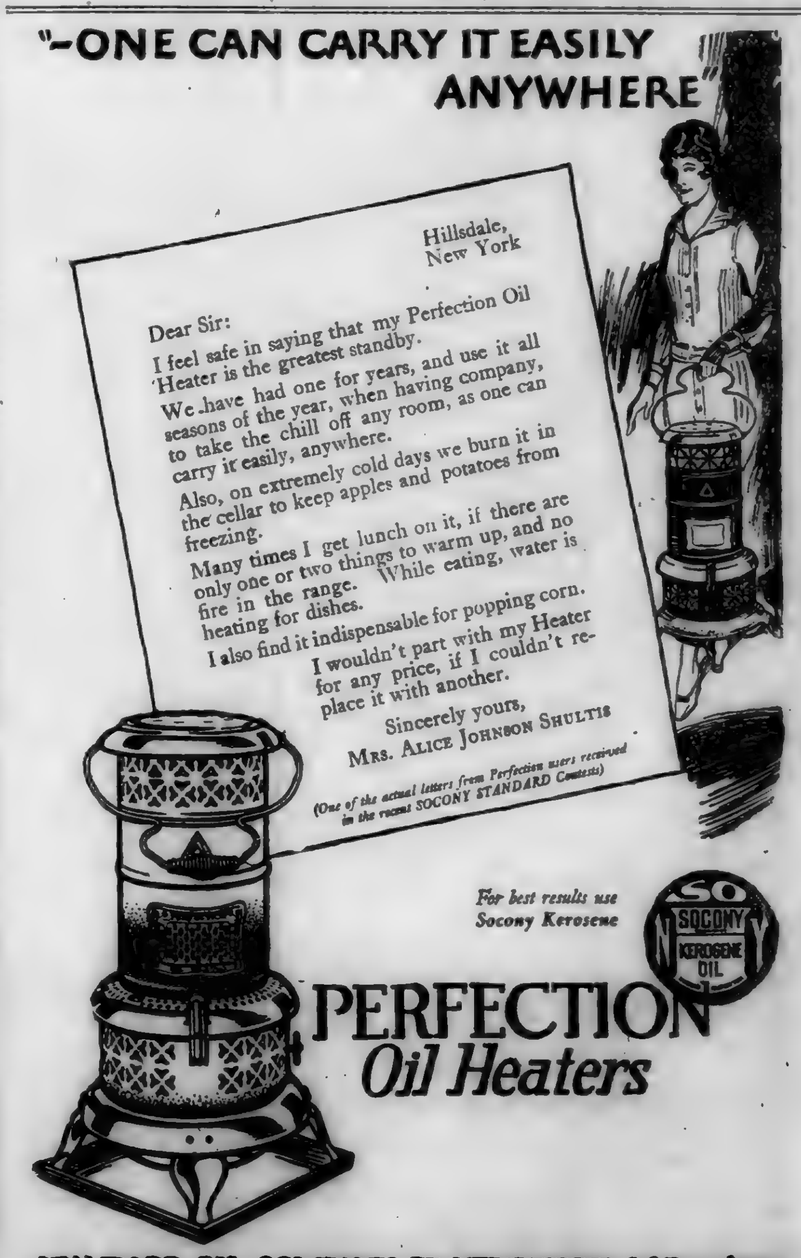
"—ONE CAN CARRY IT EASILY ANYWHERE"



Hillsdale,
New York
Dear Sir:
I feel safe in saying that my Perfection Oil Heater is the greatest standby.
We have had one for years, and use it all seasons of the year, when having company, to take the chill off any room, as one can carry it easily, anywhere.
Also, on extremely cold days we burn it in the cellar to keep apples and potatoes from freezing.
Many times I get lunch on it, if there are only one or two things to warm up, and no fire in the range. While eating, water is heating for dishes.
I also find it indispensable for popping corn.

FRENCH FINANCE MINISTER LOUCHEUR HAS RESIGNED

Action Taken After Receiving the Second Defeat in Two Days From the Finance Committee of the Chamber—The Briand Cabinet Will Endeavor to Enlarge Its Ministry by Taking in a Representative of the Moderate Groups—Paul Doumer, Former Finance Minister, Probably Will Be Selected.

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(AP)—M. Loucheur has resigned from his post as finance minister, feeling that it is impossible to carry on in the face of the determined hostility of the finance committee of the chamber of deputies and the clearly manifested dislike of his financial policy on the part of business organizations throughout the country.

Paul Doumer, radical-socialist and former finance minister, will probably take his place, Premier Briand had a long talk with Senator Doumer this morning, and is inclined to ask him to take the portfolio. Nothing however, will be decided until after the cabinet meeting which M. Briand has summoned for ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

Should the cabinet approve of the choice of M. Doumer he may be formally appointed at noon and take over the ministry at once.

The opposition to M. Loucheur came from the same groups that obliged M. Caillaux to retire, namely, the socialists and extreme radicals, while Painleve succumbed, as did De Monzie and Chautemps, to the moderate-conservative groups with a few dissenting radicals.

The socialists were the most uncompromising adversaries of the ministry, leading the fight against any consideration of the measures he proposed.

The retirement of M. Loucheur is considered as in no way affecting the position of Premier Briand, who will now be able if he sees fit, to enlarge his cabinet by taking in a representative of the moderate groups, strengthening his government toward the right and depriving the socialists of the influence they have exercised throughout the present parliament thus far.

In a letter to M. Briand, the finance minister, confirming his resignation, admits that his measures, twice rejected by the finance committee, "involved heavy sacrifices," but affirms that "they were in our opinion necessary."

By rejecting them, continues M. Loucheur, the finance committee has "really refused the government that collaboration which the government had offered to the committee in order to reach an agreement on financial projects."

M. Loucheur concludes with the statement that the re-establishment of French finances must not be delayed on account of any one person, and that therefore, "with the greatest confidence in the final achievement of this urgent work, he will resign, rather than hinder the task.

After thanking M Loucheur warmly for his "devoted collaboration in difficult circumstances, the premier received Paul Doumer, radical socialist, a former finance minister, with whom he conferred lengthily.

ANOTHER PROPOSAL FOR ENDING THE COAL STRIKE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Another proposal for ending the anthracite strike, now in its sixteenth week, has been presented to operators and miners. It comes from seven of the eight members of the Luzerne county delegation to the Pennsylvania house of representatives. Luzerne is one of the largest hard coal producing counties in the state. The proposal which includes a form of arbitration under the name of board of settlement, provides for immediate resumption of work while negotiations are under way.

Neither operators nor miners would comment on the latest peace plan. It was understood, however, that the miners have not changed their position of standing on the acceptance of Governor Pinchot's peace proposals which was rejected by the operators.

FOUR MEN BURIED WHEN WALL OF BUILDING FELL

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(AP)—A side wall of the Peerless Welding Works on Mission street near the heart of the city, a one story building, collapsed without warning late today, burying four men. They are: W. Hardwell, D. Lynch, George Alexander, the excavation crew, and Rudy Struker, proprietor.

The men were buried under tons of brick and water and an hour later one was taken, removed, apparently dead.

Fourteen men were in the excavation crew. Firemen and policemen quickly established lines and went to the rescue of the men who could be heard screaming.

In order to do rescue work it was necessary to pull down the front wall of the building which was in a dangerous condition.

GERALD CHAPMAN MADE NO COMMENT ON COURT ACTION

HARTFORD, Dec. 15—(AP)—Gerald Chapman, under sentence to be hanged at the state prison at Wethersfield on March 3, made no comment this afternoon when told by Joseph M. Freedman, one of his counsel of the decision of Federal Judge Thomas, refusing the bandit's petition for a return to the federal sentence of 25 years for robbing the mails before he can be hanged by Connecticut for the murder of a New Britain policeman. Mr. Freedman expects Judge Frederick I. Crooks of New York, senior counsel for Chapman to visit Hartford on Saturday, and at that time plans will be made for taking the case for the return of the bandit to Atlanta to the U. S. circuit court.

DANCED IN ENGLAND TO MUSIC FROM PITTSBURGH

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Several thousand persons in England danced for a quarter of an hour early this (Wednesday) morning in public halls to music broadcast from Pittsburgh. The strains were heard distinctly and the dancers enjoyed the unique experience of keeping time to music played more than 3,000 miles away.

London, Manchester, Birmingham and several other cities had arranged dance revels and shared in the enjoyment of the programmes of the evening and early morning broadcast from the United States and Berlin, Paris, madrid and Amsterdam and other continental points.

OBITUARY.

Edward Everett Arnold.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Edward Everett Arnold, former state senator from Coventry, a member of the firm of Arnold, Hoffman and Company, died at his home here today following a short illness. Had he lived until Thursday, he would have been 72 years old.

He was president of the Mathieson Alkali Works, which he founded in 1892, at Saltville, Va., president of the Castner Electrolytic Alkali Company of Niagara Falls, N. Y., president of the Nitrogen Products Company; president of the Oneonta Light and Power Company; president of the Pawtucket Valley Water Company; director of the Ponemah Mills, and director of the Industrial Trust Company.

MRS. PINCHOT ADDRESSED R. I. ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 15—(AP)—Public opinion must be "marshalled and made militant," the eyes of the bootlegger's patron must be opened and public officials who, respect the constitution must be put in office if the fight for law observance and law enforcement is to be won, said Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, here tonight. She was the last speaker at a three-day convention of the Rhode Island Anti-Saloon league and the New England Workers' conference for law observation and law enforcement.

"This fight for law observance and law enforcement will be harder, longer, fiercer, more bitter and cruel, even more dangerous than the dry fight and the suffrage fight combined," she said. "Three things we must do.

"The public opinion which we now have must be mustered, marshalled and made militant. We must open the eyes of the patron of the bootlegger until they see themselves as they are seen,—responsible for every crime committed in the service of their appetite. Third, since the question is in politics, we must organize to put into office men who respect the constitution and keep out of office at any cost men who do not. And we must apply it from president to town constable."

MISLEADING PROPAGANDA BY RUSSIAN SOVIETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—A warning that Pan-Americanism and the Monroe doctrine are facing the greatest crisis in their history because of the "sharp-shooting" tactics of European commercial and political interests was sounded today by John Barrett, former United States minister to Argentina, at the opening session of the pan-American commercial congress.

Misleading propaganda broadcast by the Russian soviets is being used in the fight on the United States' influence in South America, he told the representatives of virtually every country in the three Americas gathered for the conference. His charges, he said, were based on communications with 2,000 correspondents and on personal trips to South America and the capitals of Europe.

PAYMENTS TO THE U. S. BY SEVEN FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Payments aggregating $95,253,000 were made to the treasury today by seven foreign governments which owe money to the United States as a result of war time loans.

The largest payment $22,310,000 came from Great Britain as the third annual installment on her debt.

Belgium made the first payment of interest on her post armistice funded indebtedness to the United States amounting to $677,432 in cash.

Czecho-Slovakia made her first semi-annual payment on her funded debt, amounting to $1,500,000.

WARNS OF CRISIS IN THE BUILDING INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—A warning against a crisis on the building industry because of over-building and excessive cost was sounded today by Walter Stabler, comptroller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and Clarence H. Kelsey, president of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, two of the largest leaders on building construction in the country.

Speaking before a meeting of building trades interests, both announced that they have ceased loaning on new construction in New York. Mr. Stabler said the present crisis was the worst in his 40 years of experience in the building industry.

REASONS FOR RECORD FREIGHT CAR LOADINGS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Heavy shipments of grain and grain products, coal, merchandise, miscellaneous freight and forest products were listed by the American Railway association tonight as reasons for record freight car loadings totalling 1,030,873 cars during the week ending December 5.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Statement By Premier of Greece.

ATHENS, Greece, Dec. Dec. 15.—(AP)—Premier Pangalos made the statement to the correspondents today that the 30,000,000 liva which Greece, by the decision of the council of the league of nations, must pay to Bulgaria for the invasion of Bulgarian soil is amply covered by sums owing Greece and Bulgaria in virtue of the treaty of Neuilly. Some of the Athens papers quoted the premier as declaring that the Greek government would not countenance the payment of even one million liva, although willing to pay for the damage caused by the Greek troops. This latter was characterized as erroneous

GEN. DRUM TESTIFIES IN MITCHELL COURT MARTIAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—For nearly four hours today Brigadier General Hugh A. Drum, assistant chief of the army general staff, occupied the witness stand in the Mitchell court martial, testifying respecting war department aviation policies and striking back whenever opportunity allowed at charges that he, among other things, had given congress false and misleading information.

After Major General Frank W. Coe, chief of the artillery, had been recalled to the stand by the prosecution and briefly quizzed about his previous statements were accurate and would be could not protect a city the size of Washington from air attacks, General Drum held the center of the stage. Even then he failed to finish his testimony and was ordered to be available tomorrow for further examination.

The staff officer was accused by Representative Frank R. Reid of Illinois, chief counsel for Col. Mitchell, of giving congress incorrect information, and devoted considerable time to reading from congressional documents to dispute this charge. He told the court as the documents were explained that his statement were accurate and would be "understood by any fair minded person," when read more fully than they had been by the defense counsel. Several mistakes in his testimony before congressional committees had been made by the official stenographers, he pointed out, while others had been misinterpreted, while being true in fact.

Among these, he cited published reports which quoted him as saying that New York City could be defended from air raiders by 12 three-inch anti-aircraft guns. These he said were "foolish and absurd." In the case of reports that millions of tons of gas would be required to gas an area the size of the District of Columbia, effectively, he declared he had based his conclusions on tables laid down in a training manual approved by Major General Amos A. Fries, chief of the army, chemical warfare service.

In denying the accuracy of his data in this connection, General Drum charges General Fries himself was guilty of an error in calculation when he gave the court figures showing that the area referred to could be gassed by a greatly reduced quantity of gas. The chemical warfare head was described as "not up to date on the construction of gas bomb."

Among other of the staff officers' testimonials were these:

British unified air service units participated with French and American air forces, under General Pershing's command, in hte St. Mihiel drive.

General Pershing gave Col. Mitchell orders for the employment of American aircraft in France, in spite of the air officer's statement before the court to the contrary.

The war department "does not accept the unified air service as a sound organization for the army."

In his appearances before the various congressional committee, he had advocated war department policies, including that covering air service organization and administration.

GOV. TRUMBULL SEES GREAT FUTURE FOR THE AIRPLANE

FAIRFIELD, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The future of Connecticut's industry is linked up with the solution of the problem of quick transportation and quick deliveries, Governor John H. Trumbull declared in an address before the Fairfield Luncheon club, today in the Roger Ludlow High School cafeteria. The governor emphasized that the development of the airplane is the logical solution of this problem and urged the town of Fairfield to establish an aviation field. He asserted that one of the best investments any community can make is a suitable location for an airport, as in a very short time an airport will be as necessary for a community as a railroad station or wharfs. He said that in a very short time, it will be an ordinary thing for a business man to travel between Fairfield or other Connecticut communities and the middle west in an overnight trip.

"Traveling of this kind will be as safe as in a train and ten times safer than on the highways," Governor Trumbull said. "Facts and figures according to miles covered by airplanes and automobiles, show the factor of safety to be in favor of the airplane. And I assure you, I would rather go back to Hartford by plane than over the highway."

MURDERER O'MAHONY GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 15—(AP)—Preparing to go, within a day or two, to the state prison at Wethersfield, which under the sentence imposed upon him by Judge Edwin C. Dickenson in criminal superior court this morning, he is never to leave so long as he lives, James N. B. O'Mahony, New York, goes into perpetual banishment from the outside life of the world with no one knowing why he killed his sweetheart.

Unmoved, O'Mahony pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree today He shot and killed Beatrice Donnelly, 34, at Greenwich, last April. No effort was made by him to conceal the crime and he immediately surrendered to police. Sheriff Simeon Pease will remove him to the state prison during this week.

FIDDLER FROM MAINE SIGNS KEITH CONTRACT

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Mellie Dunham, the white haired fiddler from Maine, reaped the first cash harvest of his journey from Norway, Me., to Deetroit, with its attending publicity, when he signed a contract tonight with the Keith Albee Vaudeville circuit to tour its stages.

Volstead Act ... Of De... in Senate

Discussion Was Precipitated by Senator Edge's Bills to Legalize 2.75 Beer and Liberalize Prescription Whiskey.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Prohibition furnished the vehicle today for the first extended debate in the senate at this session.

For more than three hours the Volstead act was assailed and defended with a number of senators joining in the running fire of discussion.

A rather large number of senators and half filled galleries followed the debate, precipitated by Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, who delivered a prepared address urging his bills to legalize 2.75 per cent and remove the restriciton of prescription whiskey.

Before the senate turned to other subjects, Senator Bruce, democrat Maryland, had joined forces with the New Jersey senator and Senators Willis, republican, Ohio, and Sheppard, democrat, Texas, as vigorously attacked forces which they contended, were trying to break down constitutional law in this country.

Both Senators Edge and Bruce declared the Volstead act was a failure and that its operation had been attended by general disrespect for law.

Senators Willis and Sheppard disputed these contentions, the former declaring that Senator Edge's speech was only a grouping of views of those opposing the prohibition act.

The Texas senator served notices that the prohibitionists of the country not only would not permit of any modification of the Volstead act, but would demand that it be strengthened.

The Ohio senator, who was first to reply to Senator Edge, denied that there was a universal demand for modification of the Volstead act. He declared that the plain fact was that 'the underworld is boldly challenging the forces of law and order in this country."

A declaration by Senator Willis that prohibition had resulted in a decrease of drunkenness, brought Senator Bruce to his feet with statistics from police chiefs in important cities purporting to show that the arrests for drunkenness since 1920, the first year after ratification of the eighteenth amendment.

Senator Willis and Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, disputed that these figures indicated an increase in drunkenness. The Tenessee senator said that in the pre-prohibition days many drunken men could be seen on the streets of Washington, but that since prohibition the sight of a drunken man was rare.

Senator Bruce reported that in the old days drinking was done in the saloons, but that now it is done in the homes. Senator King, democrat, Utah, also disputed the contention of the Tennessee senator, declaring that statistics from the police here showed that arrests for drunkenness were on the increase.

Interrupting the debate at another point, Senator Blease, democrat, South Carolina, demanded to know what manner of law it was that permitted foreign diplomats to serve liquors at their dinners in Washington and at the same time made a "criminal" of the president of the United States if he served wine at a white house function

In opening a discussion of a subject which promises to occupy considerable attention in congress at this session, Senator Edge pictured what he characterised as the deplorable conditions of bootlegging and corruption under the Volstead act and declared that congress must amend the law if these conditions are to be improved.

He asserted that a large portion of the people "violate the law without the slightest compunction."

"It is indeed unusual" he added, "when a number of men and frequently women, gather together that inquiry is not made at once as to who has a supply.

The New Jersey senator said frankly that he did not know whether his proposals would remedy the situation, but that at least congress should undertake the experiment.

Senator Willis replied that if the 2.75 per cent beer bill were enacted into law, it would mean nullification of the eighteenth amendment. He argued that if such beer were produced there would have to be a place for its sale and that place would be "the old-fashioned saloon."

Senator Sheppard told the senate that after the movement for beer, there would be one for light wines, and that the whole purpose was to "break down the constitution." He said the prohibitionists of the country would meet all such assaults with "an unbroken and aggressive front."

Closing the debate, Senator Bruce said he would go even further toward modification than Senator Edge by proposing an amendment to the 18th amendment so as to give the government power to regulate the use of intoxicants and to make and sell liquors under its supervision.

Describing prohibition as a "contest against nature, against reason and against common sense," he declared that such a contest could end in only one way.

TO RAISE $100,000 FUND FOR DR. FRANCIS E. CLARK

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—As a tribute to his thirty-eight years service as active head of the Christian Endeavor movement, a recognition fund of $100,000 will be raised for Dr. Francis E. Clark, recently retired president of the Christian Endeavor, it was announced today. The income from the fund will be used as a retirement fund for Dr. Clark and his wife.

The week from January 31 to February 7 of next year, which includes the anniversary of the founding of the Christian Endeavor, has been set aside to raise the fund. Christian Endeavor committees in every state have been appointed to rise quotas of the fund.

DELAY IN FILING BRIEFS IN TROLLEY CONTROVERSY

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 15—(AP)—Transcribing of the stenographic notes taken at the arbitration hearing between the trolleymen and the Connecticut company has proven such a task that it could not be completed within the time limit expected. Therefore, the final briefs of the two sides will not be submitted to the board of arbitration until several days hence.

Protest by Turkish Foreign Minister

Made to Council of L. of N., Which Has Failed in Attempts at Mediation in the Controversy Over Mosul Oil Fields.

GENEVA, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Mysterious Mosul, where league of nations agents recently saw oil spouting from natural wells and native Arabs hastily filling buckets to sell it to owners of American made automobiles, will go to Irak, which means to Great Britain, for Great Britain has the mandate over Irak.

The council held a secret session this evening and "regretfully" voted the failure of its attempts at mediation." It is reported that the British cabinet has sent assurance to the council that it will accept prolongation of the British mandate over Irak. Such is the decision reached by the council of the league of nations, league officials declared tonight, and they added that everything would be made public tomorrow.

Turkey, it is said, will get a narrow strip to the north. In other words, the provisional frontier between Turkey and Irak laid down at Brussels will become permanent, with slight modifications. Irak, under British influence, is expected to grant favorable economic agreements to Turkey, whereby no customs barrier will exist between Turkey and Irak, and Great Britain must formally accept the mandate for twenty-five years. Pending this, the council's decision is provisional.

While the officials were making this announcement, the Turkish delegates shot a new bolt. Tewfik Rushdi Bey, the Turkish foreign minister, sent an official protest to the council accusing Great Britain of influencing the council by circulating false charges that the Turks had atrociously treated Christians. He was replying to a document published tonight from a Chaldean Catholic priest, which, like the report recently issued by General Laidoner, special league commissioner, accused by the Turkish soldiers of massacres.

The priest's report, which England gave to the council alleges that the Turks have savagely massacred men and women, sold children into slavery and have driven many mad through unspeakable hardships, and declares that if the European powers do not stop these abominations the world would learn soon that "Christianity which has flourished in this famous land for two thousand years, has been destroyed in the twentieth century by the attacks of the fanatic Turks."

Rushdi Bey charged the English with arming the Assyrian Chaldens against Turkey and asserted that England was making use of incidents which occurred before the creation of the Turkish republic to discredit Turkey. He cited the American, Major General James G. Harbord as one of the imperial foreigners, who has declared that the Turks were not only not responsible for these incidents, but actually themselves suffered because of them.

(Major General Harbord headed an American mission which investigated the situation in Armenia in 1919.)

Rushdi Bey concluded by arranging England for mixing humanitarian with political questions and hoped that the movement opposing Islamism by Christianity would come to an end.

LAFOLLETTE TO ADHERE TO "PROGRESSIVE PRINCIPLES"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Both before and after the republican senate today had accepted him into the party fold, Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, gave public notice that he would adhere to the "progressive principles" of his father who was read out of the party a year ago by the senate old guard.

His first notice went directly on committees which voted yesterday to recognize him as a republican in making committee assignments. His second took the form of an address at a banquet given in his honor tonight by the officers of labor newspaper publisher by railroad workers.

Immediately upon receipt of the young senator's letter, Chairman Watson called a hasty meeting of the committee on committees. After hearing the letter read the members held that it was not to be construed as changing Mr. LaFollette's party status and within an hour the senate approved without debate or a record vote his assignment to committees as a republican.

In his address tonight at the banquet, Senator La Follette spoke largely of his father, declaring it was fitting that he should do so, "especially in reference to political situation that confronts us when every effort is being made to discourage progressives, to cow and whip them into line."

ACTION DEFERRED ON THE BINGHAM AIRCRAFT BILL

WASHINGTON Dec. 15—(AP)—Action on the Bingham commercial aircraft bill was deferred by the senate today at the request of Senator Robinson, the democratic floor leader, after a brief discussion of its provisions.

Indications were that the final action on the bill, for which the commerce committee asked early consideration, would be considerably delayed because of the disposition of republican leaders to give the Nye case and the world court proposals the right of way.

The bill would provide for an additional assistant secretary of commerce to be in charge of commercial aircraft regulations. It was the first measure designed to carry out recommendations of the president's air board, to be taken up by the senate. Its author, Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, was a member of the board.

MIDDLETOWN MAN FELL DOWN ELEVATOR SHAFT

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 15—(AP)—Frank Yantz, 47, of 137 Main street, South Farms, a drop forger at the Wilcox Crittenden company plant, was seriously injured today, when he fell fifteen feet down an elevator shaft. He is at Middlesex hospital suffering from lacerations about the body, fractured ribs and possible internal injuries.

Yantz was on his way from the receiving room into the machine plant and leaned against a chair stretched across the elevator well. The chain broke and he fell to the bottom of the shaft, landing on a concrete floor.

HOUSE VOTES FOR REPEAL OF INCOME TAX PUBLICITY

Swept Aside an Amendment Proposing to Continue Publication of Income Tax Returns Without a Record Vote—Proponents of Amendments to Important Provisions of the Committee Bill Were Overridden in Every Case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—The tax reduction bill held straight to its course in the house again today, as proponents trampled down amendments to important provisions.

Without even a record vote, the house swept aside an amendment proposing to continue the publication of income tax returns.

Stubborn fights were made on the provisions for increasing personal exemptions, but terms of the bill as framed by the ways and means committee to relieve 2,500,000 income tax payers from federal taxation next ear were accepted.

The bill increases the exemptions from $1,000 to $1,500 for single persons and from $2,500 to $3,500 for married persons.

An amendment by Representative Mary T. Norton, democrat, New Jersey, to boost the exemptions to $2,500 for single persons and to $5,000 for married persons was defeated 207 to 84.

Representative Rainey, of Illinois, a democratic member of the ways and means committee, conducted a fight against any increase in the exemptions for married persons. This was lost without a record vote.

Later, when another of his amendments to prevent taxpayers with incomes over $20,000 from taking advantage of the exemptions, was mowed down by a vote of 103 to 30. Mr. Rainey said it was desired to show whether "the Mellon machine was as well oiled as to prevent amendment of the bill."

Not an amendment, except several advanced by committee members to clarify sections of the administrative provisions, has been accepted during the two days of reading of the non-partisan measure. Six hours of reading today brought the house half way through the bill to a point where, tomorrow, it will take up the controversial inheritance tax question.

There was little debate today and what there was centered on the personal exemption and publicity provisions. Representative La Guardia, socialist, New York, offered the amendment to continue publication of the amount of income tax paid by taxpayers, and Representative Griffin, democrat, New York, proposed an amendment to permit publication of the amount of gross income and the normal and surtax income levies paid by taxpayers. Both argued that the publicity would increase revenue and described such administration as "American and fair."

Representative Mills, republican, New York, denied that the publicity of the last two years had increased government income tax revenue and pointed out that Secretary Mellon had observed the treasury had not benefited by it. He denounced it as un-American. Both amendments were overwhelmingly defeated.

Representatives Black and Jones, democrats, Texas, sought to limit from four to two and three years, respectively, the period in which the internal revenue bureau would have to examine and decide on tax returns. Both amendments were defeated without record votes.

SAYS JAPAN'S RELATIONS WITH AMERICA ARE SOLID

BOSTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Japan's relations with America are established upon the solid foundations of mutual good will and mutual respect, Tsuen Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to the United States, said in an address tonight at a dinner given in his honor by the Japan society of Boston.

"Japan cherishes fond memory of the good offices of the late President Theodore Roosevelt in the conclusion of peace with Russia," he said. "She knows that her scientific, educational industrial and commercial development is to no small extent due to American assistance of cooperation. But perhaps the greatest of your friendly acts came when the American government and people hurried to Japan's relief two and a half years ago, after Tokyo and the neighboring regions had been visited by an unprecedented earthquake and conflagration with all their horrors and harrowing effects. The sympathy and generosity so spontaneously expressed drove home to the hearts of the Japanese more forcibly than ever that even American friendship was genuine and sincere.

"In this analysis of cordial relations between our two countries there is one chapter which is regrettable. I refer to the chapter of the immigration question. I trust however that even in regard to this question a settlement is not impossible to be reached some day to satisfy both of our nations when public sentiment on both sides of our mutual ocean becomes calm and if a conscientious study may be made as to what the American people desire to have and what the Japanese desire.

YALE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE IS REVISING ITS METHODS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Yale school of medicine is planning a complete revision of its educational methods, according to an announcement made tonight by Dean Milton C. Winternitz. Less emphasis will be placed on routine class work and more on independent thought and research.

Abolition of the year system of study and the resultant diversion of the student body into classes is being considered and the system of examination at the end of the different courses will be abolished. The student will be allowed to select the sequence of his studies in the subjects which at present comprise the first two years of the medical curriculum, and then after qualifying for the clinical subjects, he will again be allowed liberty of choice.

Admission to a course will depend on his fitness for the work as determined by the instructor in charge of it. This will be the reverse of the present practice. A teacher now has no voice in determining what students shall enter his classes, according to Dean Winternitz. He determines only whether they shall proceed into other classes.

Group examinations and the graduating thesis will serve as a check on the students' accomplishments. For the convenience of the faculty such examinations may be given at fixed times, but within reasonable limits the student may determine when he will present himself for such a test.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The treasury received debt payments from seven nations.

Meyer Lissner's resignation as a member of the shipping board was received at the white house.

Personal exemptions and the repeal of income tax publicity were approved by the house as written in the tax bill.

Senator La Follette was finally received into the republican fold, although he said he would follow an independent course.

SCHOONER CUT IN HALF IN COLLISION

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 15.—(AP)—The four-masted schooner James W. Howard, practically was cut in half in collision with the Italian steamer Livenzo last night about nine miles north of Cape Lookout. The crew of ten men was rescued and taken aboard the steamer. A radio message received here from the Livenzo telling of the accident, did not indicate that anybody was injured.

MRS. RHINELANDER HAS RETURNED TO HER HOME

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Dec. 15—(AP)—While reports from Florida said the Ku Klux Klan was out to prevent Mrs. Alice Jones Rhinelander from coming there to rest after her victory in the recent annulment suit brought by Leonard Kip Rhinelander, she reappeared today at her home.

Her attorney, Lee Parsons Davis, said Mrs. Rhinelander had never been more than 50 miles away from her home since the suit, though she disappeared two days after a jury in White Plains decided in her favor.

Almost simultaneously with her return, attorneys for her husband emphatically denied reports that he had returned to his wife, and a grand jury in White Plains decided it would take no action on alleged tampering with the jury that sat at the trial.

Denial of the rumors of a reunion of the son of the aristocratic Rhinelander family and his quadroon bride was made by Leon R. Jacobs, one of young Rhinelander's attorneys.

"I know where he is," Jacobs said "but I will not tell. The boy is entitled to a rest. You can deny as strong as you wish, and quote me to the effect that there is not the slightest truth to the rumor."

The White Plains grand jury investigating a charge that Dr. J. C. Bennett, of Yonkers, had sought to tamper with the jury in the annulment case refused to indict Dr. Bennett, and the charge against him was dismissed. District Attorney Rowland of Westchester county, said the grand jury's refusal to indict ended the investigation.

SENATOR SCHALL RBANDS STATEMENTS "DAMNED LIE"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Senator Schall, republican, Minnesota, tonight branded as a "damned lie" statements by counsel for his farmer-labor predecessor Magnus Johnson, who is contesting his election, that bootleggers had been approached for contributions to his campaign fund and that he had asked a prohibition officer not to prosecute a violator of the prohibition act.

Senator Schall, who is blind, interrupted the opening session of hearings on the contest by a senate election committee, by rising in his seat in a corner of the room and challenging the statement of Donald Hughes, St Minneapolis, one of Johnson's counsel.

Geroge J. Edgerton, of St. Paul, another attorney representing Johnson, replied that if the charges were not proved, the while case might as well be thrown out.

Chairman Beneen struck the senator's remark from the record and called the hearing to order.

WORKERS OF THE COUNTRY GENERALLY EMPLOYED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Despite seasonal recessions in building activity and the suspension of anthracite mining due to labor controversy, the United States employment service reported today that workers throughout the country generally at the end of November were fully employed.

Little if any increase in the actual number of workers on pay rolls was recorded between October and November, but both months were declared to show returns that could be considered satisfactory.

BOSTON TO HAVE BLUE AND WHITE ENAMEL STREET SIGNS

Boston, Dec. 15—(AP)—oston, with a world-wide reputation for its labrynth maze of streets, was today unofficially committed to a four-year program in which all its important thoroughfares are to be labelled with blue and white enamel signs. During a conference of various municipal and civic interests at the office of the city planning board, a $100,000 program was agreed upon. It was determined that approximately 4,000 signs would be needed.

QUAINT DOCUMENT FOUND AT HOME OF LATE WM. LORD

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 15.—Among old papers found at the home of the late William Lord is one which is probably one hundred years old. Joseph Wilbur, the clerk who signed the document, was born in 1785 and died in 1847, according to Daniel L. Phillips' records. This particular document gives directions for the school districts of the School society in Griswold. It states that each district must employ a well qualified instructor not less than three months during the winter season. Those employed as such must be persons of good moral character and if not residents of this society, must produce certificates from the school visitors in the place of their residence attesting the same. They must be such as profess to believe the divine authority of the holy Scriptures and to respect the institutions of the Gospel, and they must be of competent learning and ability, to instruct with accuracy in orthography, reading, writing and arithmetic. Each pupil must be furnished with suitable books and all who are able to read must have Bibles and the Assembly of the Catechism.

Suffered for 15 years with constipation—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings relief in 3 weeks

Constipation paves the way to many harrowing diseases. But Mr. Williams' letter carries a message of cheer:

I have been using your ALL-BRAN for the past three weeks and it has done more for me than anything I have tried in the past fifteen years. . . I was troubled with hemorrhoids for years. About 18 months ago I was operated on with very little relief. I tried everything under the sun. Then my wife suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and I say truthfully that it is the only thing that ever gave me relief.

Yours truly,
L. T. WILLIAMS.

WESTERLY

PROBATE COURT ACTS ON $375,000 ANDERSON ESTATE

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 15—In the Westerly probate court, Probate Judge Edward M. Burke Tuesday afternoon disposed of the following business:

Estate of Julia W. Anderson. Petition received from Vachel W. and William P. Anderson, executors on the will admitted to probate last April, with personal estate valuation of $375,493.06, $150,000.00 claims, state tax, etc., and $50,000 real estate for the payment of part of the legacies to the beneficiaries. Attorney John J. Dunn appeared to ask that a decree of the court be entered that day for an amount not to exceed $500,000. After discussion and consideration by the court an order was entered that the executors be authorized to pay to the general pecuniary legatees under will the sum of $500,000, proportionately according to the amount of their respective legacies and that said legatees be required to give bond severally to Vachel W. and William P. Anderson, executors, with surety or sureties to be approved by and satisfactory to the court with the amount to be refunded on condition that the amount be repaid to satisfy any demands that might be afterwards recorded against the estate.

Estate of Elexander McLauchlan. First and final account received, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of Mathey McGrath, John E. McGrath and John J. Dunn, executors Decree of the superior court confirming the probate of the will of Mathew McGrath by the Westerly probate court, read and ordered recorded.

Estate of Delia M. Burdick. Will read, proved and admitted to probate and William, H. Burdick confirmed as sole executor. Bond $1,500, with Frederick O. Lanphere surety.

The superior court for Washington county will resume session this (Wednesday) morning at 10:30 o'clock when Associate Justice Antonio A. Capotosto will be on the bench. Trial of the attorney general's docket will be taken up and the cases against Albert Costanzo, of Providence, will be tried. The petit jurors are under summons to report this morning as well as all witnesses in the two cases.

Dec. 12—James Cotter of Providence to Alexander Sleczkiewics a parcel of land, about three-quarters of an acre and four rods, on the west side of Granite street, formerly the Boston Post road.

Dec. 14. Westerly Industrial and Improvement company to Louis and Mary A. Salimeno, land on the north side of Narragansett avenue, near the extension of Summer street, Lot No. 59, with the restriction that it be used for residential purposes by the construction of a house costing not less than $3,000.

John Ojola and wife to Timothy C. Gordon et ux land along a driftway leading to the Potter Hill road.

Additional illumination is to be given Dixon square, which a consulting electrical lighting engineer has reported as deficient to the South County Public Service company. Work was begun Tuesday in the installation of two 1,000 candle-power white way lights, one on Broad street on the old steel trolley line post in front of the building of the Washington Trust company building. The second 1,000 candle power lamp is to be installed on a similar post in front of the Westerly Post Office building on High street. Besides these two new units a traffic officer spot light will be located above the point on Broad street where the traffic officer is stationed in rush hours to direct auto and pedestrian traffic. This is a dangerous place, for on dark or foggy nights it was almost impossible for a stranger to see the officer until the automobile was close upon him. The 1,000 C. P. lights were in operation for the first time on Tuesday night.

Autoists over the new Rhode Island State highway from Hopkinton to Westerly will have their attention attracted by an 1800 candle-power beam of flood light from projectors with source concealed which will illuminate the sign of the Ashaway Line and Twine company on the large tank, above their works on the old road between Potter Hill and Ashaway.

Hundreds of parishioners of St. Michael's church were present at the farewell reception tendered Rev. J. J. Keane, assistant pastor of the church for the past six years, who has received notice of his transfer to St. Joseph's Parish in New Britain, Conn. The reception was held in the church basement following the Tuesday evening services, which consisted of instruction and sermon by the pastor, Rev. J. F. X. Quinn, and benediction by Rev. J. J. Keane The hall was thronged with parishioners who took the opportunity to bid farewell to one of the most popular priests ever stationed in Westerly

At the conclusion of the joint meeting of Westerly town council with the committee named by the old Westerly town council to consider the proposition of the lowering of Union street by the cutting down of Cookie Hill and the extension of the street to swing round and come out on Main street, just north of the property of Mrs. Orville George Barber, together with the Westerly Highway commission and other town officers numbering nineteen, a committee was named to look into the matter of financing the proposition should the project be undertaken. The committee of five is Rogers E. Trainer and Isaac G. Smith, members of the Westerly Town council; Clifford W. Campbell and George B. Utter of the old committee and Harvey C. Perry of the Westerly Highway commission.

An extension was voted on the 15 minute auto parking law so that the hours in which the short time parking will be in effect will be from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Saturday nights instead of from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. as in the past.

GREECE PAYS

Now that the decision of the league of nations that Greece must pay 12,000,000 to settle its recent clash with Bulgaria has been accepted by Greece and that country is going to pay, there is bound to be interest in the effect this is going to have upon Greece and its neighbors in the future.

Greece hasn't so much money that it can afford to pass out a quarter of a million every little while to settle fights in which it becomes involved, and in which it is found to be the guilty party. It can put its money to far better use, even though it must be mindful of the fact that the amount assessed against it is much less than it would have been called upon to spend had the trouble with Bulgaria not been stopped as it was.

The action by the league serves to remind us of a notification to the plans that times and conditions have changed. It is no longer possible to become involved in a backyard scrap and let it develop into a war that will upset that whole region. There is now a monitor on guard, whose duty it is to prevent such squabbles and to spank those who are found to need it. When Greece pays over the 12,000,000 it will stand in the position of having spanked and acknowledging that it deserved it.

What has happened to Greece is no more than can be expected to happen to any of the others under like circumstances. It is an example about which the others will make a serious mistake if they do not take it to heart and resolve to be governed thereby. It means a new state of affairs in that region, but only such as has long been needed.

When it gets so that nations which are the aggressors in starting trouble which develops into war, come to a realization of the fact and acknowledge the situation that such conduct is no longer going to be tolerated and that it is possible to make them pay for all infractions of the rules for maintaining a peaceful neighborhood, civilization will advance. There are hopes that much progress has been made by the outcome of the Bulgarian and Greecian conflict.

RECOGNIZING RUSSIA

Because there has been a meeting in this country of bankers and business men with Russian trade representatives furnishes no ground for insisting that this government should extend recognition of the soviet government of Russia.

It has been persistently maintained that trade with Russia did not depend upon such recognition but that anyone was free to do business with those in that country who wanted to and who were willing to take the chances involved. There has been a large volume of business carried on and the indications are that Russia is satisfied with the goods it has been obtaining, the terms on which they were bought and the prospects are that trade relationships will continue to be maintained. There's nothing to stand in the way, so far as can be seen. Of course those who sell to Russia cannot expect this government to insure the payment of bills contracted by Russians. That hasn't been done and it doesn't appear that it has been necessary. Russia has been willing to pay in order to have its wants filled.

But because this trade has been carried on and because Russia has been selling goods here which it needs and been settling for them does not furnish any real argument that upon those grounds we should recognize the soviet government. Russia is buying here because it is to its advantage to do so. Perhaps it carries the idea that recognition might be fostered because of improved trade conditions but that was not one of the grounds set forth by this government in response to the Russian appeal for recognition.

On the other hand, if Russia is prepared and anxious to meet requirements which has been set forth there is no reason to suppose that it need wait any longer than it is necessary to determine the sincerity of such a position before getting recognition. If Russia has any intention it should make it known. It amounts to little to have someone not connected with the Russian government declare what it is ready to do. If Russia is ready to meet the Hughes terms let it proceed to do so. Many other countries than the United States would be interested in such an announcement.

FOREIGN POLICIES

There hasn't been any doubt as to where the government stood upon certain questions as the result of the statements made from time to time by the state department, but there have been those who have persisted in their endeavors to change that attitude, and to have this government show a greater interest in the schemes and activities of radicals than in the welfare of this country, to give encouragement to the military activities of other nations instead of striving for peace and prevention of war, to be forgetful of home obligations in the attempt to direct European politics.

Secretary of State, Kellogg has spoken through department announcements upon these points, but he nevertheless made the most of the opportunity in addressing the Council of Foreign Relations in New York this week to repeat and amplify his statements. He was none the less positive in his assertions but he had the opportunity to go more into detail and he did so effectively.

Anyone who questioned why this country was not represented at Locarno must know that this country makes no pretense of telling Europe how it must run its political affairs and the conference at Locarno clearly showed that it is not necessary. The secretary's praise for the spirit of that conference was proper and his statement that it was not the plan for this country was equally correct. It is better that Europe should deal with its own problems of that character quite the same as we expect to handle our own. This country has repeatedly shown that we do not stand aloof when it comes to rendering assistance but here was a case for Europe to help itself.

In the same way his statements concerning the adjustment of the war debts and the exclusion of alien agitators not only fully justified but highly commendable. He voiced the sentiment of the government and he spoke for the great majority of the people of this country.

THE AIR SERVICE.

In dealing with the question of air service congress will have before it two reports for its guidance, such reports being regard to aircraft in connection with the national defense, while other action concerning commercial aviation will also come in for attention.

The house committee has spent much more time upon the preparation of its report than did the president's aircraft board. It is made up of congressmen while the latter board is not, though it numbers congressmen in its makeup. The congressional report indicates the influence of Representative Reid, counsel in the Mitchell court martial, and favors the appropriation of $100,000,000 over a period of five years with a single department of defense.

This single department for defense is not favored by the aircraft board. Its inquiry resulted in the recommendation to strengthen the air service in the army and navy and from the facts brought forth in its investigation it took a position that looked to national welfare without favoring one thing or another because someone else did. It saw its duty to the country and it presented a report that kept to the center of the road and for that reason it made a strong impression which seems likely to be reflected in such action as congress may take.

But whether it is the air board or the house committee that is given the greater attention it is made clear that the failure of congress to provide the funds has had its effect in restricting development.

WORTHY CAUSES

This is the season of many appeals. They come from all directions and felt many times more sympathy and approval than it is possible to match with funds.

Nevertheless in connection with such discrimination as must be made there cannot wisely be overlooked the appeal that is being made in behalf of the sick, the poor and the unfortunate. Christmastide is a period when such a cause carries an added appeal. The spirit of the season makes itself felt. The opportunity to contribute through the Christmas seals to the fighting of tuberculosis, through the care of the sick and the protection of the well is one which deserves generous consideration.

Likewise there is the appeal which is being made in behalf of Christmas dinners for the poor through the agency of the Salvation Army. The work of this organization, reaching as it does many who are not served in any other way, is too well known to need more than a mention. It stands ready to render a service which is worthy and self sacrificing. Through its efforts some cheer will be carried into homes which might otherwise experience little distinction between Christmas and any other day. The organization is dependent upon the aid which it receives from the public for this work. It is ready to put the funds to the best possible use and many are eager to have it act in their behalf at this season.

Whether it is the Christmas seals or the Christmas dinners by the Salvation Army there need be no fear that there will be too many contributors or too large a fund will be raised.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

"Why are you embroidering towels?" demanded the black-headed member of the fluffy-haired blond suspiciously.

The attention of the fluffy-haired was concentrated at the moment on the staking out of a large initial but she suspended operations long enough to glance up at the speaker:

"Well, why not?" she inquired.

"It looks like trousseau linen," said the black-headed member, still suspiciously.

"Oh," said the fluffy-haired blond, with a relieved look, "is that all? I thought maybe towels were going out of vogue or something. You quite startled me. As for the trousseau idea, thank you so much, darling, for putting be in the still-hopefulclass."

"Don't be childish, Celeste," admonished the black-eyed member, measuring off a yard of lace by an outstretched arm, "we none of us know why you haven't married, but—"

"Thank you again, dear," murmured the fluffy-haired blond absently, as she adjusted her embroidery hoops. "So sweet of you to put me in the second class."

"What d'you mean, second class?" said the young matron with the auburn wave, reprovingly.

"Well," said the fluffy-haired blond, with a grin, "you know 'tis said that the life of an unmarried person, either masculine or feminine, resolves itself into three stages. During the first stage one's friends say, 'I wonder why so-and-so doesn't marry.' During the second stage they say, 'Dear me, I wonder why so-and-so hasn't married.' And in the third stage they exclaim, 'Well, well, I wonder why so-and-so never did marry.'"

"Well, then, old dear," said the blackheaded member with a twinkle, "I often wonder why you never did marry, but—"

"Your amendment is not accepted," announced the fluffy-haired blond, calmly. "You committed yourself on my status quo at the first hearing and the ruling stands. Res adpudicata is the term, I believe, or words to that effect."

"You sound awfully judicial today," remarked the young matron with the auburn wave. "How come?"

"Oh, I went to the theater last night with a legal mind," explained the fluffy haired blond. "It was a wasted evening, too. I think the play would have been distinctly interesting if I'd had a chance to give my attention to it. But the legal mind had tried an important case in the afternoon and was a hopeless bore."

"I suppose the poor man was tired," murmured the newest member.

"The poor man wasn't anything of the sort," the fluffy-haired blond assured her, coldly. "He merely had an unusually bad attack of me-itis. At the first intermission in the play he rehearsed the argument of his opposing attorney. During the second he summed up the points in his own rebuttal and on the way home in a taxi he repeated the comments of the presiding judge, who was supposed to have been thrilled to the bone by the brilliance of this performance. By the time it was over and I could get to bed and close my weary ears I could have tried that case myself. Only I'd have discharged the defendant and hanged the attorney."

"Of course," said the black-headed member, "you told him you'd had a delightful time."

"Oh, certainly," agreed the fluffy-haired blond, stifling a yawn. "I assured him it was a long time since I had spent a couple of hours so educationally. I told him his society was marvelously stimulating, because so few people one meets these days show real thoughtfulness and—er—mentality. I forget the rest, because he called up this morning and asked me to play golf with him Saturday. If he only knew what my golf is like!"

"Then he isn't an old friend?" said the newest member, brightly.

The fluffy-haired blond frowned.

"Of course he isn't," she said. "If he was one of my regular old pals I'd have read him the riot act, beginning with that first intermission, and we could have quarreled comfortably the rest of the evening."

"Well," interrupted the black-headed member, "are you going to play golf with him?"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Robert P. Bass, who has announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for United States senator from New Hampshire in opposition to the incumbent, George H. Moses, was the governor of his state in 1911-12. He was born in Chicago, but has resided in Petersboro, N. H., for many years. Mr. Bass comes of fighting stock, being the son of Perkins Bass, who was the Illinois manager of Abraham Lincoln's second campaign. While the former governor has been interested in farming and various commercial activities his chief interest has been in forestry, having been a member of the state forestry commission and president of the American Forestry association. He is a graduate of Harvard college, and attended Harvard Law school. Before his election to the governorship he had served in both branches of the New Hampshire legislature.

Stories That Recall Others

Colon Gone Wrong

A teacher of English was sorely afflicted with conditions that seemed to mean a surgical operation. One examination after another with the X-ray liberally applied, finally disclosed the source of the pain.

"You have no disease in your appendix," said her medical adviser, "nor elsewhere that I can discover except in your colon."

"Dear me!" she exclaimed. "Here I have been wrestling all my life with commas and periods and semi colons, only to be told at my age that my colon has gone wrong."

Hard on The Gun

Uncle John has always been a great hand with the rifle but had never thought much of the shotgun as a hunting weapon. However he had attended some shooting matches and his skill has been such as to cause comment. He had not lost his contempt for the shotgun and never lost an opportunity to express it.

One day as a group around the stove in the grocery store was discussing a shooting match Uncle John came in sight. Knowing that any references to shotguns would get the old man to say something, they began:

"I did pretty well at 50 yards," said one.

Another had hit the mark at 90 yards and others at various distances.

Finally Uncle John spoke up. "I tried her at 200 yards," he said, and everybody leaned forward.

"Did you hit her, uncle?" asked one young fellow.

From Small Beginnings

Joseph Von Fraunhofer, a Great Astronomer

"The poor boy! He's dead, surely! Oh, it's terrible! terrible! The house should have been looked after!" The crowd surged about the ruins over which the dust still hung. Men sprang forward to the mass of debris and began feverishly to dig. There had been a crash, a series of snapping reports, and then a low rumble as the half-undermined walls of an old house gave way and finally fell into one tumbled heap, burying under the stone and mortar and plaster and boards the few who happened to have been inside a moment before. Some of these had staggered out of the rubbish, bleeding; others had been lifted out and carried away, bleeding. There still remained a 14-year-old boy, known to have been in the place—Joseph von Fraunhofer. Fatherless and wretched, he had been obliged to take rooms in the poverty-stricken place that had tumbled in a heap while he slept. He had gone to sleep well tired after a long day spent in making looking-glasses, and now he was buried under the ruins.

A man with authority directed the digging, and soon there was a shout. The boy had been found. "He's alive!" a workman called as he rose from bending over him. The boy was carried away senseless, and well cared for. Slowly he regained consciousness, but it was some time before he could hope to go to work. In that dramatic way Joseph von Fraunhofer, whose name is written in every text book on astronomy and on the spectroscope, first came to the attention of the world. This was in Germany in 1801.

As a small boy he had helped his father, a glassmaker. Therefore when his father died he had been put to work making looking-glasses. He anticipated a life of obscurity. Instead of that he gained lasting fame. A sympathetic man, moved by the boy's misfortunes, gave him money enough to set up a little business of his own. He literally fell into fortune. He began to make various kinds of lenses. In order to do his work better he bought books and studied. In four or five years of hard work in the day and of hard study at night he mastered much of optics. His industry, energy to study and unusual ability attracted new friends who saw to it that he was well taught. He became one of the greatest German scientists, and until his death at the all-too-early age of 39 he continued to study and to experiment with regard to lenses and light. He made better telescopes and better microscopes than the world had ever had before.

Greatest of all his work, he developed the spectroscope, the wonderful combination of telescope and prisms that enables astronomers to tell the exact nature of the stars. With infinite care and patience he studied the light from the stars and the light from various chemical materials, and deduced entirely new theories. The term, "Fraunhofer's lines," given to dark lines made by the spectroscope, is now a technical term in spectroscopy.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

COLOGNE

"Cologne, the Rhineland metropolis now being evacuated by the British Army of Occupation, presents the paradox of a thoroughly German city whose best advertisers are the French," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The toilet water, named for the French translation of Cologne's original Latin name," the bulletin continues, "has become a synonym for scented liquids in both French and English. The Germans call their city Koln, and although they sometimes refer to its chief products as Kolnisches Wasser, they, too, have generally adopted the French 'eau de cologne,' as have also the English speaking peoples.

"Cologne, founded in 38 B. C., is one of the most ancient German cities. Rome made it the administrative seat of her holdings in South Germany, surrounding the city with formidable walls and embellishing it with an even more formidable name, Colonia Claudia Ara Agrippinensis. The wear and tear of the centuries, however, made short shrift of both wall and name. As the city expanded far beyond its walls, its name shrank in proportion until only 'Colonia,' meaning 'colony,' was left. Gallicized, this became 'Cologne' which has also been adopted as the English from: Germanicised it was contracted to 'Koln.'

"In its stately Gothic cathedral, one of the largest in the world, Cologne has perhaps an even greater claim for world consideration than its age-long perfume supremacy. Begun in 1248, this magnificent edifice languished for six centuries and was not completed until 1863. For a long time Cologne was referred to jestingly as 'the City of the Eternal Cathedral,' just as Washington, D. C., was once dubbed 'the City of Magnificent Distances.' As in Washington's case, time has boomeranged the taunt. Those who have beheld the wealth of detail and the harmony of its proportions, despite its immensity, agree there is something memorable about Cologne's cathedral today that can be expressed in no better fashion than with the one - time bandinage.

"Cologne's cathedral has often been compared with Milan's. Though the floor area is smaller than that of the Italian city's shrine, the German builders, more at home in the Gothic style have achieved the Gothic upward sweep to perhaps its greatest perfection in Cologne. The twin spires each nearly as tall as the Washington monument tower over the swift-flowing Rhine 'like fingers pointing the city to Heaven.' The whole enormous mass of grey-stone masonry is enlivened with a profusion of turrets spires, flying buttresses, gargoyles, galleries, elaborately carved cornices and fluted columns.

"Cologne is Germany's greatest river port and one of its major railroad centers. It is the St. Louis of Germany in this respect. In addition to being a port of registry for the Rhine-to-the-sea traffic, it has also profited through the development, in recent years, of direct lines of small cargo steamers to England, Scandinavia, and the Baltic. Under the graceful, arched iron Bridge that connects Cologne with the east bank of the Rhine pass incredibly long strings of barges, lumber rafts, barge-steamers, and black and white-funnelled passenger boats.

"As a manufacturing center Cologne has given its name, like Venice, to several articles of commerce. In addition to toilet water there is, for instance, Cologne brown, a brown coal, or lignite, used as a pigment in paints; Cologne ware, a plain, hard stoneware, mottled gray and brown which is made into ornamental tankards and jugs; Cologne spirit, a rectified liquid containing 96 per cent alcohol; Cologne thread and Cologne blades.

"The city reflects its commercial prosperity in numerous wide, tree-lined boulevards, fine shops and stores and imposing stone mansions. Most of the old, crooked, alleylike thoroughfares of 50 years ago have disappeared, although there are still a few picturesque sections, with ancient gabled house fronts and twisting gas-lighted streets. Of the old city walls only the gate towers remain.

"The toilet water, or eau de cologne, from which the city derives its international fame, is said to have been manufactured first in 1709, by an Italian, Johann Maria Farina. The industry grew slowly but steadily, and in 1819 there were 60 firms engaged in bottling this compound of alcohol and aromatic oils. It was the French, however, who commercialized the product, popularized the French translation of its name, and placed it on the market. Eau de cologne is now manufactured in many other parts of the world.

"Although the final evacuation of Cologne by the Allied Forces will doubtless bring about a restoration of its original Rhenish flavor, American and British visitors who have been long away from home will have at least one regret. For in Cologne, under British occupation, English was spoken and understood extensively. British 'Tommies' patrolling the streets could direct the hungry Anglo-Saxon to a 'Church of England Institute' where genuine ham and eggs, coffee (large cup) and bread (not rolls) could be had."

FREED FROM HAREM, WOMEN OF TURKEY SEEK HUSBANDS

ANGORA, Dec. 15—(AP)—Hundreds of beautiful women, highly trained in the social graces, arts of the toilette, dancing, music and religion, who have been freed from harems, now have the Turkish government seeking husbands for them. Most of them are wholly unfitted for the practical work of life.

Abandonment of the harem also placed on the hands of the government many eunuchs, but their disposition has not been so difficult. In the absence of regular employment in the cities, they have been sent to the provincial districts for work on the farms.

When President Mustapha Kemal assumed power in Anzora, one of his first acts was to banish the harems and slave households of Sultan Mohammed VI, the princes and members of the Royal Court.

In order to set an example, most of the Nationalist government officials have one or at the most only two wives. Indeed, Mustapha Kemal Pasha has no wife at all, having recently been granted a divorce. Economic conditions also serve to make it almost impossible for one to indulge in the old luxury of plurality of wives.

Prior to the present social revolution in Turkey, every woman was obliged to veil herself from all except her father, brother and husband. If a man, either Turk or foreigner, entered the sacred precincts of the harem, he usually paid with his life, while the master also had the right to kill his unfaithful wife or concubine.

Only three foreigners, an American, a Britisher and a Frenchman, are known to have entered a real harem when it was occupied, and they were disguished as Turks and spoke the Turkish language. By posing as government representatives, they escaped the usual penalty.

Any departure from the rules of conduct in the harems was severely punished by the eunuchs, who maintained security of the places and who were euphemistically called "Masters of the Maidens," or "Chiefs of the Abodes of Felicity."

While Sultan Mohammed VI had only four legal wives, he had at his disposal several hundred "ikbals," or favorites. Sultan Abdul Hamid was said to have had 1,000 wives in his harem.

Madam Edibe Halliday Hanoum Bey, a Turkish woman trained in the American Girls' College at Constantinople, was one of the first to agitate a change in the status of Moslem women, insisting that the system was wholly inconsistent with any high ideal of womanhood.

Abandonment of the harem has been noted as Turkey's most radical step in its transition from an Oriental state to a modern western country.

Devoid of all pomp and honors, Antonio Maura, former premier of Spain, was buried at Madrid with simple, impressive ceremonies.

WOMAN'S HAIR DRESSER GETS $4,800 A YEAR IN TIPS ALONE

PARIS, Dec. 15—(AP)—What can a woman's hair-dresser in Paris make in tips? Or rather what can he make, as none of the better class receive a fixed wage? L'Opinion says it happens by chance to be in a position to state that at least one women's hair-dresser (and it gives him name "Eugene" and says where he works) receives more than 120,000 francs a year. This represents, at a low rate of exchange, more than $4,800 a year.

"Eugene" doubtless hopes that the income tax authorities do not read L'Opinion.

ESTATES PENALIZED FOR FAILURE TO PAY TAXES

HARTFORD, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The estates of several prominent Connecticut people who died within the past two years are shown by the report of State Treasurer Ernest P. Rogers, published today to have been penalized by the state for failure to pay certain taxes during the life times of the owners. Among these are the estates of two associate justices of the supreme court of errors, the widow of a Gilrd, a justice of the state superior court, a former state senator and a former representative.

This penalty tax was laid against approximately 1,040 estates of persons who failed to pay the required tax on bonds, notes and other choses in action, commonly called intangibles. The amounts of penalties ranged from as low as $2.50 to $21,850.39, and the total for all was $216,988.41.

STARTED ON HUNTING TRIP; WOUNDED BY GUNSHOT

MERIDEN, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Thomas Corcoran, 44, of Wallingford, is on the danger list at the Meriden hospital, as the result of a gunshot wound inflicted when a gun was accidentally discharge by a person automobile in which he was riding in Wallingford this afternoon.

Corcoran and his cousin, Joseph Corcoran, had started on a hunting trip. He was riding on the rear seat of the car, when a loaded shot gun, lying against the seat, discharged. The charge tore off a portion of Corcoran's ear, and inflicted a deep wound back of the ear.

It is believed the slamming of the car door caused the gun to fire.

MORE NEW MEMBERS FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The membership committee of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce reported at a meeting held Tuesday that thirteen new members had been secured in addition to the twenty-two secured last week which makes a total of thirty-five business and professional men and firms of Norwich. This is gratifying to the directors as it shows a willingness on the part of the business men generally to support an organization whose very activity is an endeavor to promote the general welfare of the community. The new members of the chamber are: Albert Boardman, The Household; Fitzgerald, Plumbing & Heating; George O. Hathaway, Grocer; Norwich Land Title & In. Co.; Norwich Steam Laundry; A. T. Ott & Son, Grocer; Louis Pollock; J. P. Hayes, Pullman Lunch; D. A Schuite Co. Inc.; Earl G. Taggart, Gas & Electric Dept; L. M. Carpenter Ashland Cutler Co., Jewett City.

The chamber is endeavoring to increase its membership in order that it can increase its activities. In order to carry on increased activities, it is necessary to have the largest possible membership with which to promote the growth of Norwich and to foster and support those elements of community building which will make Norwich a strong competitor with other cities for business of all kinds.

The Chamber of Commerce can best kindle civic pride, solve existing problems and plan for the future through the maintenance of a strong organization, said a chamber official Tuesday. It represents all business and professional men of the community. It has greater influences through its greater number of members. It has a large democratic representative membership. It has a definite program of work for each year compiled from the suggestions of its members. It serves as the co-ordinating agency for community efforts, represents the business and professional interests of Norwich in matters affecting the community and serves as the clearing house of general information for residents and visitors. The Chamber of Commerce performs a distinct and definite duty and purpose for the building of Norwich. Because of its large membership it is particularly and peculiarly adapted to foster and promote projects of a general nature for the building of the community.

WEST ENDERS PLAN CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

At the last meeting of the West End Community association plans were formulated for the Community Christmas tree and community gathering, to be held on Christmas eve. Committees are at work on the entertainment program and school children have been practicing the Christmas carols which are to be a feature of the program.

A large tree is to be set up and attractively decorated with Christmas tinsels and electric lights, to make a most attractive appearance. Frederick M. Out was appointed chairman of the committee to secure the tree and arrange for decorations.

The committee in charge of music consists of Charles Parsons and Miss Nina Perry and they have planned for the singing of Christmas carols, by the school children, instrumental music and the community singing.

Publicity for the event is in charge of Frank I. Royce and every resident of the city is invited to join in the program for the evening, thus making it a real community Christmas Eve observance.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS AT "Y" DIRECTORS' SESSION

The December meeting of the board of directors of the local Y. M. C. A. was held in the dining room of the association building Tuesday evening at 6.15 o'clock. A delicious supper was served by the King's Daughters. President James C. Macpherson was in the chair. The reports of the following committees all indicated a healthy condition of the work:

Religious, social, physical, rental, house and membership. The attendance was the largest for many months and all present felt greatly encouraged with the outlook for the future of the local "Y", the town and county work was reported on favorably, the idea of this department being to be of service to the boys and young men in theoutlying districts in co-operation with the ministers and parents. This effort promises to be lucrative in the development of character.

The Young Men's Bible study group will hold its weekly meeting this (Wednesday) evening at the association building.

WEST END COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION HAS WHIST

At a recent whist given by the West End Community association, twelve tables were in play. Prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies' first, Miss Alice E. Wolfe, sherbet glasses; 2nd, Mrs. Herman Pukallus, sandwich plate; consolation, Mrs. John Lucia, box of candy. Gentlemens' first, Charles Parsons, silk stockings; 2nd, Royal Clough, leather key container; consolation Miss Madeline Elliott, handkerchiefs.

The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Edward Sourbier, Mrs. Irving Hankin and Mrs. Charles Parsons. Chairs for the whist were loaned by C. A. Gager and Church & Allen and a special prize by the Thames Public Market.

NORWICH WOMEN ATTEND SOCIAL WORKERS' LUNCHEON

Norwich Women were numbered among the 50 who attended the luncheon and lecture held Tuesday afternoon at New London for the social workers of New London and Windham counties. Present at the luncheon were Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson, Mrs. James N. Kelley, Col. and Mrs. Henry S. Dorsey, Richard W. Mansfield, Grace M. Sattare, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Harris, Grace B. Rockwell, Anne Brickman and Mabel Mathews of Hartford; Vina L. Snyder and Clara C. Larned of Putnam; May Ann Allin and Mary Camp of Middletown.

Following the luncheon there was an address by Dr. Douglas A. Thom, director of the division of mental hygiene in the Massachusetts department of mental diseases on the topic Health and Happiness.

BUILDING AND LOAN PLANS FOR ANNUAL ELECTION

The monthly meeting of the shareholders of the Norwich Building and Loan Association, Inc., was held in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday evening with President E. O. Rodier presiding.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented, the latter report showing disbursements of $9,910.48 during the month of November.

Two applications for mortgage loans were received and referred to the board of directors. The meeting of the board of directors followed that of the shareholders.

The secretary reported that three loans had been made since the November meeting. The new applications for loans received from the shareholders' meeting were acted upon and appraisers appointed. It was voted that a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum be declared from the earnings of the current six months. This makes a full 6 per cent. dividend for the year 1925.

Plans were considered for the annual meeting in January and President Rodier was appointed a committee to present nominations for officers and directors at that time. Plans were also considered for the opening of the 22nd series of shares in January.

WESTERLY MOOSE HAVE CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 16—Westerly lodge, No. 1212, Loyal Order of Moose, George M. Pendleton, dictator, observed its sixth annual Christmas celebration for children of the members following the regular business meting held in its rooms in the Welch block on Tuesday evening. Gifts were presented to over 100 children under ten years of age by Santa Claus impersonated by George Pendleton.

Oranges and candy were given the older children and ice cream and cake were served. The committee in charge consisted of George Pendleton, James Tefft, Albert Sylvia, James Donovan and James McCormick. Mrs. Joseph Dowd presided at the piano and Leonard Birch was the violinist. A ladies' social will feature the next Moose meeting on New Year's night.

TEACHERS' CLUB STAGES PLAY AT WESTERLY

WESTERLY, R. I. Dec. 15—"To the Ladies," presented at the high school auditorium under the auspices of the Teachers' club Tuesday evening by the Hanna Players of New York merited the cordial reception given it by the large audience.

The leading parts of young Leonard Beebe and his wife Elsie, his cheerful helpmate from the Southland were played by Richard Bowler and Dorothy Sawyer, a talented actress and graduate of the University of Chicago, Radcliffe college, also of the University of Texas.

John Kincaid and his wife, Myrtle, were acted by Charles Hanna and Mabel Dudley and Chester Mullin by William J. Hackett. The guests at the dinner were Miss Westenberg and Miss Gould, the piano accompanist was Robert Valentine.

ACCEPTS CALL TO CHURCH AT STAFFORD

Rev. Harris C. Beebe, who for the past five years has been pastor of the First Congregational church at North Parish, Greenfield, Mass., has accepted a call to the Second Congregational church at Stafford, this state. He will take up his duties there on January 1. Mr. Beebe has done much toward developing and enlarging the work among his parish at Greenfield and his departure is regretted.

SAYS OPEN WINDOWS CONDUCIVE TO HEALTH

The winter season has given, as yet, no promise of extreme weather, in spite of the predictions of those who claim to have inside knowledge of the situation, says this week's health bulletin, issued by the state department of health. This is fortunate since it enables those whose coal bins are getting low to live comfortably, and without undue mental flurry. However, one wishes to be on the safe side and feel assured that coal will be forthcoming when the occasion for comfortable warmth demands it.

According to present indications there is no real cause for alarm. Coal, or some substitute, which eventually all must learn to use, will be provided for all. And, meanwhile, coal will be used sparingly, in order to make it go as far as possible. While this may cause mental discomfort not to be able to burn as generous a supply as usual, it may prove to be a health measure after all—keeping a low fire means a lower temperature throughout the house. Now, house temperatures have been steadily increasing during the last fifty years, until, at the present time such high temperatures are maintained that many people are living under hot desert conditions. People have so adjusted themselves to excessive and unusually dry heat that when a bit of cold air strikes them it feels like a breath from the north pole. Some even have the misguided notion that this air because it is cold, brings disease germs in its wake. Although respiratory diseases often follow a sudden exposure to cold after excessive heat, disease germs are not blown in with a cold wind.

Living continuously in an ordinary dry heated room in which the temperature is above 69 degrees F. causes a drying of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat, and makes it impossible for body heat to be dispelled although heat is being manufactured in the body at a rapid rate. An excessively high temperature interferes with the heat regulating mechanism of the body by which it adjusts itself to changes of heat and cold.

Studies made by the New York Ventilating commission showed that there was more chronic nasal disease among furnace men who worked in a hot, dry atmosphere, laundrymen who worked in a hot, moist atmosphere, and truckmen who were subjected to severe outside air, than among normal subjects, among whom only 8 per cent. had chronic nasal disease, as against 19 per cent. for outside workers, 36 per cent. furnace men and 46 per cent. laundrymen. As stated in their report "all this points to the serious effect of hot air on the mucous membrane and the dangers of passing from such conditions into chill outdoor air."

In certain studies made in the schools in New York it was found that there there was less absence from school on account of respiratory diseases among children in rooms with the temperature at 66 degrees F. than in rooms where the temperature was even 2 or 3 degrees higher.

Temperatures kept below 69 degrees F., and a window opened in each room to provide gentle movement of air without drafts, are conducive to health.

SEEKING FUND TO RENOVATE C. G. ACADEMY

Funds to better physical conditions at the New London Coast Guard academy are "urgently recommended" to be made available by F. C. Billard, commandant of the coast guard, in his annual report. This recommendation was also made last year and in repeating it Admiral Billard says that "in view of the importance of this national school (Coast Guard academy), it is believed to be entirely in place to repeat here the comments made in the last annual report bearing upon the characteristics of the academy and the very unfavorable physical condition existing there."

There were, under instruction at the academy, at the end of the fiscal year 34 line cadets and 40 cadet engineers. During the year 16 line cadets, and 15 cadet engineers were appointed as the result of competitive examination held throughout the country March 16, 1925. The resignations of 10 line cadets and three cadet engineers were accepted.

Turning again to the conditions at the academy, Admiral Billard says that "while the course of instruction given and the standards of discipline maintained leave little to be desired, the lack of buildings, good roads and walkways, and a suitable space for drills and athletics is apparent to the most casual observer and a discouragement to the school. . . . It is believed that there is not throughout the length and breadth of the United States a town of 5,000 inhabitants that has not one or more school buildings of a more dignified and substantial character than any buildings at the Coast Guard academy that trains young men to be worthy to receive the president's commission as officers of one of the oldest services under the federal government."

Admiral Billard then complements the academy on its training of young men, saying: "The standards of conduct and of training that are rigidly maintained at the academy are of the highest order and the splendid accomplishments of the school in fitting officers for the service are cause of profound gratification and pride throughout the Coast Guard."

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF NARCOTIC ACT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Federal agents accompanied by local police early this morning raided the Tea and Coffee house conducted by Lee Quong, 121 Golden street, and the laundry at 197 Main street conducted by Eng Wah Young, more familiarly known as Eddie Young charged with violation of the narcotic act. Both Quong and Young were liberated on bail of $500 each for their appearance before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran at 10 o'clock this morning at the customs house here. In the raid of officers at the place of Quong but little evidence was found of a violation of law, this evidence being an opium pipe but no narcotics. At the place of Young, however, was found a considerable amount of opium and smoking paraphernalia. Young has been arrested on two previous occasions charged with violation of the narcotic act.

CHRISTMAS PARTY HELD BY CHARITABLE CIRCLE

With 22 present, Charitable circle, King's Daughters, held a delightful Christmas party Tuesday evening at the Sunday school rooms of the United Congregational church. Each member brought a gift for a grab bag. Games were played and refreshments were served. Miss Marion Beebe was in charge of the games.

The rooms were prettily decorated in the seasonable colors and there was a handsomely decorated Christmas tree.

WOMAN HURT IN FALL AT WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 15—Mrs. Mary E. Byers, wife of Capt. Elvin B. Byers, suffered painful injuries late Tuesday afternoon when on the Pawcatuck river bridge she turned to reenter the Victory bakery. Stepping on a banana skin she slipped and in falling broke the plate glass show window. She sustained numerous cuts on her arm and face. Dr. Charles P. Crandall was called and gave necessary medical attention before she was taken to her home, 30 Morgan street.

STORRS HENS SHOW GAIN IN PRODUCTION

A gain in production was recorded in the sixth week of the competition, when the 1,400 pullets came out of their last week's slump with an increase of 319 eggs, laying a total of 2,768 eggs for the week. This is a production of slightly over thirty-eight per cent., and it is 368 eggs more than for the corresponding week last year. A total of 18,703 eggs have been laid to date, which is a gain of twenty-three eggs over the total obtained for the first six weeks in 1924.

Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns repeated their performance of last week, when they monopolized all honor roll positions. A pen of Reds entered by R. D. Sargent from East Ryegate, Vermont, made the best record for the week with a lay of fifty-nine eggs. The Mount Hope Farm Leghorns from Williamstown, Mass. made the second best record for the week with a production of fifty-five eggs. Another pen of Leghorns, entered by R. W. Colman, from Medina, N. Y., placed third for the week with a lay of fifty-one eggs. A pen of Rhode Island Reds entered by John Z. LaBelle from Ballouville, Conn., and a pen of White Leghorns owned by Dudley Poultry Farm from Webster, Mass., tied for fourth place with a production of fifty eggs each. It is interesting to note that the four pens to the honor roll last week are represented again this week.

Changes in ranking of the leading pens show that in the White Wyandotte class the entry of Obed G Knight, Bridgeton, R. I., went up into second position, displacing the entry of Winlay White Wyandottes from Mystic, Conn. In the Rhode Island Red class the entry of R. D. Sargent from East Ryegate Vt., went into third position, displacing the pen entered by Hayes Hennery from Dover, N. H. In the White Leghorn class, Ruehles' Sunnyside Farm entry from Pleasant Valley, N. Y., went in fourth position, displacing the entry of W. E. Atkinson of Wallingford, Conn. Fifth position in this class is occupied by the pen entered by Tievenen Leghorn Farm from Girard, Pa.

The Mount Hope Farm White Leghorns from Williamstown, Mass., have to date made the best record of all pens entered, laying a total of 321 eggs. Their nearest competitor is the Rhode Island Red pen entered by John Z. LaBelle of Ballouville, Conn., with a record of 311 eggs.

White Wyandottes

Thomas H. Matteson, Davisville, R. I.	150
Obed G. Knight, Bridgeton, R. I.	150

Barred Rocks

W. H. B. Kent, Cazenovia, N. Y.	204

BARRYMORE THIS SEASON SUCCUMBS TO MOVIE LURE

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (AP) The movie lots of California have won a victory over Broadway for the presence of John Barrymore this season.

Following the conclusion of his successful appearance in Hamlet in New York and London, the noted actor several months ago went to the West coast to make only one photoplay for Warner Brothers. This has been completed, but now he is at work on a second, and a third remains to be made.

"Heretofore, I have worked spasmodically in the movies," Barrymore told the producers. "I have always wanted to see what I could do in pictures and now I am going to fulfill this desire by devoting a full season to the work."

The actor was dissatisfied with the first scenario selected for him to make. Again, he had been placed in the role of a great lover.

"I want to do something different," he protested. "I am tired of this polite piffling and posturing in the beau, dandy and aristocratic roles. Why can't I jump down a whale?"

The producers caught the hint, and a few weeks later the rights of "Moby Dick," Herman Melville's old story of the American whaling industry, were purchased for him. It was re-named The Sea Beast.

A love theme was added and a well-known actress obtained to play opposite Barrymore. All went well until the star saw Doroes Costello, daughter of Maurice Costello, veteran movie actor, on the lot.

"She's the girl for the role," Barrymore insisted, and as a result the prominent actress was shifted and Dolores sent onward to stardom after only three months' experience before the camera.

In making the picture, Barrymore did not jump down a whale, but in refusing the services of a "double" in dangerous scenes, he once was dragged 20 feet below the sea surface. Another time he fractured three ribs. He later suffered infected rope burns on his arms and legs.

After seeing the first print of the play, he telegraphed the company's New York offices:

"I am crazy about it. It is the only motion picture production I have ever done that I really liked."

The Sea Beast will be released in January. Barrymore now is at work on Don Juan, in which Mary Astor is the leading woman, and when this is completed, he will begin work on Sabatini's The Tavern Knight.

REINHARDT SAYS AMERICAN JAZZ IS SPIRIT OF TMES

BERLIN, Dec. 15—(AP)—America through its jazz, its rhythm, and its modern dance has found the proper expression for the spirit of modern times, better than any other nation, in the opinion of Max Reinhardt.

That John Barrymore is the greatest American actor, Jeanne Eagles and Lenore Ulrich topnotch actresses, and Bell-Geddes a veritable genius in devising stage scenery, were further opinions voiced to The Associated Press by the noted German stage director.

Hamlet in full evening dress and Shylock in bathing tights constitute so much nonsense, said Reinhardt.

"America is on the threshold of a tremendous theatrical future." Reinhardt observed. "There is a yearning, a craving among American theater goers for the best in art such as is equalled in but few countries.

"This yearning, coupled with your American temperament—pep, to use a slang expression—and with the capacity of your people to absorb new ideas, predestines America for a leading position in the theatrical art."

Elaborating his ideas concerning jazz, Reinhardt explained:

"The American feeling for rhythm, as exemplified in jazz, gives better expression to the spirit of our time than any other form of music. Jazz is literally crying for someone to do for it what, for instance, Johann Strauss did for the waltz—give it concrete expression in a manner that will endure through generations."

It is going too far, according to Reinhardt, to produce Hamlet in evening dress suit, or to lay the scene of the Merchant of Venice in the fashionable Lido on Venice, with Shylock in bathing togs, as suggested by one theater producer. At the same time he is not opposed to the idea of giving a modern setting to old dramas in which the time element is unimportant.

"Remember that the Shakespearean plays themselves were offered in Elizabethan costumes when first produced," he said, "although the scenes were often laid centuries earlier.

"In the course of my work as regisseur I have often observed that actors made a stronger impression during rehearsals, when they were dressed in their street clothing, than they did afterward during the performance, when they wore historical costumes.

"I, therefore, believe that modern costumes are often justified in old plays. But of course, everything must be done within reason. Hamlet in full dress is nonsense. Let me add, however, that I regard the whole question as secondary. The main thing is acting.

HECTIC CAREER OF BATTLING SIKI IS ENDED BY MURDERER'S BULLETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—Police were combing the cafes, cabarets and upper West Side haunts of the underworld tonight for the slayer of Battling Siki. The Senegalese pugilist never one to continue his fighting to the squared circle, fought his last fight in the hours, before dawn today in a "Hells Kitchen" sidewalk. Twelve hours after discovery of his body, with two bullet wounds in the back, the fighting child of the jungle, former bell hop and bar room boy, decorated World war veteran, prize fighter and participant in countless street and bar room brawls, lay in a morgue while police still were without an important clue as to the identity of his murderer.

The authorities were working on the theory that Siki had become involved in an argument in one of the numerous night clubs near where his body was found, and that he was followed into the street and murdered.

Siki's body was found and identified by Patrolman John J. Meehan, an acquaintance. It lay face down on the sidewalk on West 41 street. And in the gutter nearby was found a revolver with two exploded shells in the chambers. Four hours earlier, the policeman said, he had met the Senegalese a short distance from where the body was found and the two had exchanged greetings. At the time Siki had said that he was going home.

The police could find no witnesses to the shooting. Formal identification of the body was made at the morgue by Siki's widow, an octaroon, formerly Lillian Werner, whom he married a little more than a year ago. She told police that she last had seen her husband at the street door of their apartment on West 42 street, about seven o'clock last night. He told her that he was going out "to talk with some of the boys." The widow said she had gone to a movie, had returned about 11 o'clock, and finding that her husband had not returned, went to bed. She was awakened today with the news of his death.

Mrs. Phal, Siki's real name was Louis Phal, told the police she believed she knew who had shot her husband. She said Siki had eaten in a restaurant in the neighborhood the night before and his overcoat had been stolen. He had said he knew who took it and would go back at a time when he suspected the thief would be there. This, and a story that Siki had had trouble with a neighbor over a $20 liquor debt, were the only clues she had to work upon.

An autopsy performed at the morgue by Dr. Charles Norris, chief medical examiner, revealed that Siki had died of internal hemorrhage, caused by two bullet wounds in the back. One bullet lodged in the right lung and the other in the chest.

The widow attended the autopsy and fainted several times during the ordeal. "He was a good boy," she said of the fighter. "He was just mischievous. He would never harm anybody."

Siki's penchant for trouble had precipitated him into many street brawls and into unfriendly relations with the police, and the section of the city in which he met his death had been a particularly unfortunate one for him. At almost the spot where he was killed he was stabbed with a knife last summer. Only ten days ago he was knocked down in an altercation with a policeman and was charged with felonious assault. For this offense he was saved from a term in the workhouse only by a plea for leniency by his wife.

Siki's Life in Brief

"Battling" Siki, who first sprang into public notice when he won the world's light heavyweight championship from Georges Carpentier in 1922 in Paris, has had many escapades which frequently resulted in brawls. He has been injured several times in street fights in this country and spent some time recently in the French hospital here as a result of a knife wound.

Since his arrival in the United States in 1923 after losing his title at the hands of Mike McTigue in Dublin, he has engaged in many bouts but without notable success.

In July 1924 he again came into prominence when he married Lillian Werner, an octoroon although he had a definite common law wife in Holland. After his marriage he took residence in one of the negro sections of New York, but soon ran afoul of the immigration authorities who sought to have him returned to France. He was given several stays and on November 10 of this year made applications to take out his first citizenship papers.

Siki seemed to have a penchant for getting in trouble with taxicab drivers when he would go on long rides without sufficient funds to pay the fare. Frequently he was arrested for not paying his fare but always managed to find friends who would make good the amount. Once he attacked a policeman while intoxicated and was charged with felonious assault. He was fined $5 for this escapade and was only saved from a workhouse sentence by his wife who pleaded with the magistrate for leniency.

Battling Siki won the light heavyweight championship of the world, together with several French titles, when he knocked out Georges Carpentier, in the sixth round of a match in Paris September 24, 1922. His sensational rise to pugilistic fame, however, was followed by a storm which rocked French boxing circles for several months.

Siki, a picturesque figure of the Montmartre section of Paris who boasted that he trained for his bouts on wine and "high life," was in the midst of receiving a deluge of fabulous offers for fights in England, the United States and elsewhere when a fracas brawl resulted in his suspension by the French boxing federation for three months.

Subsequently he created another sensation by charging that the fight with Carpentier had been "fixed" but that he "double-crossed" Georges after undergoing a change of heart during the contest. Carpentier and his manager, Descampa, vigorously denied the charges and an official investigation failed to substantiate them, although the referee voiced his belief that the bout was a frame-up.

Meanwhile Siki had been deprived by French authorities of the titles he won from Carpentier and was in Jail here in the United States and England where projected matches in which he was to appear were barred. Carpentier's repeated efforts to obtain a return match failed until recently it was announced the pair had agreed to fight again next September in Paris.

The Senegalese was signed early last month to meet McTigue and on February 12, the French boxing federation, on the occasion of an anniversary celebration lifted his suspension but did not restore his titles.

Siki started professional boxing in 1913 but engaged in but few contests before the outbreak of the World War, in which he served with French colonial forces. After the war he boxed in various parts of Europe, attracting attention when he defeated two well-known French heavyweights. Journee and Siffra. His victory over the latter, in June, 1923, resulted in the match with Carpentier.

Before his defeat by McTigue his record showed but two defeats in 44 bouts, one setback at the hands of Jean Audouy, in 1914, and the other by Tom Berry, in 1920. He won 18 bouts by knockouts, 23 by decision and earned one draw. After coming to the United States Siki engaged in a number of bouts, in several of which the decision went against him. He was born in Senegal in 1897.

ROBIDEAU-DAY BOUT HEADS CARD AT NEW LONDON TONIGHT

Fight fans who prefer a rushing, slugging battle between an evenly matched pair of hard hitting mittmen, to a contest between two mercury footed, light tapping boxers have a treat in store for them at the Lyceum Theatre in New London tonight, when Tornado Georgie Day of New Haven who has come along in leaps and bounds the last year clashes with Bobby Robideau.

Anybody that has seen the New Havener go of late knows that he virtually fights his head off and this week will see a repetition of it.

Georgie Day has forged to the front the past year very rapidly and has crowded out all Conn. fighters for popularity including the Champion Kid Kaplan. Day always stirs up the fans with his spectacular rallies and these happen every round that he engages in.

This young Italian anticipates a hard fight from his opponent and is training his darndest boxing every day in the gymnasium with Joe Currie, Mickey Travers and the Champion Kid Kaplan. He is quite confident that he will add Robideau to his long list of victims that show Eddie Brady, Johnny Rocco, Steve Smith, Mickey Travers, Joey Kauffman, Larry Roach.

Georgie Day and Bobby Robideau are fighters who may lose a fight now and then but can always return to a town.

The world loves a fighter, therefore be it said to the credit of Georgie Day the little Italian battler from New Haven that he loses no prestige anywhere he goes as he battles. Day is a real and natural fighter, when he is out there in the ring something is liable to drop at any time. That is what Mr. Dollar at the ticket window wants and he will walk up and lay the old jack on the board when the fast cyclonic slugger type of Georgie Day is on the program.

Day has shown his stuff in every city in the state and this is his initial appearance in New London and he is leaving no stone unturned in getting into the best possible condition to gain a victory over his opponent and please the Whaling City fans that he may repeat there with more formidable opponents that Promoter Grills has promised to bring there in the event that Georgie wins.

HOCKEY PROVES ATTRACTIVE SPORT TO AMAEURS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Hockey has joined baseball and football in attracting noted players from the ranks of the amateurs.

Of the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, two-time national champions, only one player remains in the unpaid category, all others having joined the Pittsburgh Panthers in the National Hockey League. The one who stood by his amateur status was Dalton Meeking, substitute center.

Only two veterans will be ready to represent America in the 1928 Olympics: Abel of St. Paul and Lacroix of Boston. Synott, Small and McCarthy have retired from ice play.

George Geran, for years a member of the Boston Athletic Association hockey teams, is under contract to the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

NUTMEGS BEAT CRESCENTS IN OPENING GAME

Tuesday evening at the Armory the Nutmeg basketball team defeated a team representing the Crescent A. C. by score of 43 to 27. The Nutmegs piled up an early lead, the score at the end of the first quarter being 22 to 8 in their favor. At the end of the half the score read Nutmegs 31, Crescents 14, while at the close of the third period the count was 39 to 21.

For the Nutmegs Ellie Segal was the star, caging 17 baskets from the floor and one foul for practically all of his team's points. Tombari was next with 3 baskets and one foul. Bergeron completed the scoring with a basket from the floor.

The next game is scheduled for Friday evening with the fast Valiente five of this city.

LABARBA IS GRANTED LICENSE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Fidel Labarba of California, conqueror of Frankie Genaro, and recognized by the National Boxing association as the successor to the late Pancho Villa as the world's flyweight champion, today was granted a license by the state athletic commission.

This action permits Labarba to meet Joe Lazarus of Bayonne, N. J., at the Christmas fund show in Madison Square Garden, Dec. 23. Labarba has not yet reached his majority and his activities in this state will be limited to six rounds.

Smoking at fights will hereafter be banned at the new Madison Square Garden The commission permitted smoking at the Berlenbach-Delaney fight Friday night as an experiment but, in the opinion of all three members of the board, the result was not considered satisfactory.

McEwan Cables Resignation

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 15—(AP)—Captain J. J. McEwan head coach of the Army football team, today announced that he had tendered his resignation from the Army by cable to Washington. He requested that it become effective January 1, enabling him to accept an offer to coach the University of Oregon team for the next five years.

Snodgrass Becomes Pro.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Harvey Snodgrass, sixth ranking tennis player, who, with Walter Westbrook, holds the national clayeourt doubles championship, has turned professional. He announced today the acceptance of a three-year contract as net professional at the Palomar Tennis club of Culver City.

Haggerty Elected

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 15—(AP)—Ellsworth C. Haggerty of Boston, intercollegiate mile champion, today was elected captain of the Harvard cross country team.

FOUR PROMINENT EASTERN COLLEGE TEAMS ARE WITHOUT COACHES FOR 1926

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Four leading educational institutions of the east are at present without football coaches for 1926—Harvard Army, Columbia and Colgate, but Knute Rockne, back home again in Indiana, stood last night in the gleaming candlelight, shining bright through the sycamors and "guessed" that he was still mentor at Notre Dame.

Rockne, the "country boy" from South Bend, had just arrived among his "horses and mules" on the home "farm" when another football sensation rocked the east. The University of Oregon announced that Captain John J. Meewan, coach at West Point for three successful years, would resign from the Army to take charge of the gridiron sport at that institution.

Captain McEwan is now on duty with the Army establishment in Porto Rico and Army authorities were surprised when they heard the news from the Pacific Coast, for McEwan has been associated with West Point football for many years as player and instructor. He played on the team for four years, 1913, 1916 inclusive, during which period the Army thrashed its old rival, Navy, in every contest.

Columbia University is silent regarding any further developments in the inquiry into events leading to the announcement that Rockne would succeed Charley Crowley as head coach. Rockne, far from the madding argument, was almost silent. Notre Dame officials intimated that his status had not been affected by the happenings of the past few days.

Rumors have Crowley, known to have ended his regime at Columbia despite the fact that the university gained football prestige in the past season, going to Harvard to succeed Bob Fisher, who has definitely cast down the reins. But there will be no definite information from Cambridge for a month.

Another man said to be in line for consideration by the crimson is Leo Leary, end coach at Harvard for several years. He served in the Percy Haughton regime and also through that of Fisher. The name of Reggie Brown, formerly at Harvard but who has been assisting Ed Robinson at Brown University for several years, also is heard.

Colgate has not selected a successor to Dick Harlow, who recently was released from his contract.

GRANGE SHOULDER AND ARM ARE IMPROVING SLOWLY

DANVILLE, Ills., Dec. 15—(AP)—Harold "Red" Grange shoved his left arm and shoulder beneath an x-ray here today for examination by Dr. E. B. Cooley. Later Grange said it was the first time since his injury at Pittsburgh that he was able to straighten the injured member, which since has caused his absence from a number of pro-football games.

Accompanied by one of his managers, Marion Cooley, University of Illinois law student and son of the physician, Grange went to campaign to remain overnight.

Continued care and treatment of the arm will have it in shape for games to be played by the Chicago bears in Florida and elsewhere during the next few weeks.

Grange refused to discuss his $500,000 movie contract or the threat of New York theater owners to boycott his pitchers unless he reveals the facts surrounding it.

Young Cooley said at least three gridiron stars of recognized ability will be added to the personnel of the bears before they resume their barnstorming trip, he declined to reveal their identity.

SAYS ROCKNE HAD AGREED TO COACH AT UNIV. OF IOWA

IOWA City, Ia., Dec. 15—(AP)—Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame football coach, entered into two verbal agreements to become football coach at the University of Iowa, but each time, failed to carry out his pledge, Dr. Paul E. Belting, director of athletics, disclosed today.

Rockne's first agreement with Iowa officers was made in March 1924, when he accepted the Iowa terms, Dr. Belting said. He broke this agreement and the university administration, through President W. A. Jessup, took charge of the negotiations, the director said.

In a later conference in Chicago with President Jessup Rockne was said against to have agreed to come to Iowa only to decline a few days later.

HOLY CROSS ANNOUNCES 1926 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 15—(AP)—The football schedule of Holy Cross college for 1926 was announced today as follows:

October 2, St. Johns; 9, Harvard at Cambridge; 16, Rutgers at Newark; 23, Western Maryland; 30, University of Dayton; November 6, Fordham; 13, Catholic university; 20, Boston university; 27, Boston college at Boston. The season will be opened a week later than usual and Western Maryland and Day... make their first appearance on the Holy Cross schedule, taking the places of Providence and Bucknell.

CARPENTER EXPRESSES REGRET ON HEARING OF SIKI'S DEATH

PARIS, Dec. 15—(AP)—Georges Carpentier, who was toppled from his European light heavyweight championship throne in 1922 by battling Siki, expressed regret today upon learning of the tragic death of the senegalese fighter in New York.

"It seems a pity," said Carpentier, "that an athlete of such magnificent gifts should have met with this end. The time has passed when boxers can indulge in drinking and carousing, and be champions. I only hope poor Siki's fate will be a lesson to other aspiring pugilists."

DARTMOUTH DREW LARGER CROWDS THAN YALE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 15—(AP)—Dartmouth drew just 34 more football fans to the Harvard stadium than Yale this fall. Attendance figures for Harvard's eight games were made public today, showing that 51,692 persons paid their way to see Dartmouth, as against 51,658 for Yale. Total attendance for the year, exclusive of pass admissions, was 268,365, or 63,513 less than last season. The decline was attributed to several rainy Saturdays and the fact that the Brown game was played in the comparatively small Brown stadium.

PRES. COOLIDGE ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF GARISCH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—President Coolidge today accepted the resignation from the army of Lieutenant Edward W. Garbisch former all-American center and West Point football star. Garbisch, now with the fifteenth engineers at Fort Humphreys, Va., will leave tonight for California to participate in the all-star New Year's football game for charity. He expects to enter private business.

NO FEAR OF RUSH TO PRO RANKS SAYS TILDEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Professional sport, which has made great inroads upon college football and amateur hockey this season for the first time, today claimed the sixth ranking tennis player in the United States—Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles.

Officials and players in the east, however, do not feel that Snodgrass' action will lead to a general rush into the gold cups of performers by the stars of the court game. He is expected to act as an instructor as professional tennis, at the present time, can furnish no outstanding players to oppose him.

William T. Tilden, 2nd, national singles champion, was among those who asserted that few other leading players would follow the Snodgrass trial. But Tilden said that Snodgrass should bring to far west tennis "sound and valuable methods which will be beneficial in building future players."

"His case is individual—I know he has been considering this move for some time," Tilden said. "But it will not start a general movement toward professionalism by leading players. I think that if Vennie Richards, Billy Johnston or myself had taken the step it might have had a different effect, but I do not believe there will be a general movement.

"The game needs more professionals of Snodgrass' calibre. There are many young players who need proper instruction such as professionals of his ability could provide."

DENIES HE HAS SOLD CLUB TO DANNY MURPHY

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 15—(AP)—Timothy J. Sullivan, jr., of Springfield, Mass., owner of the Bridgeport Eastern league franchise, tonight denied that he had sold or entered in any negotiations to sell the club to Richard Howell, of this city, Jack Delaney, light heavyweight boxer, John Holland, of Norwich, Conn., and Danny Murphy, ex-Philadelphia Athletic outfielder and former New Haven manager.

Sullivan stated that he was awaiting a decision from Walter Hargood, of Rochester, N. Y., who held an option on the franchise last year before he places the club on the market.

Holland, who is in Bridgeport, also denied entering in any plan to purchase the franchise.

ROCKNE TO TAKE MUCH NEEDED REST

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 15—(AP)—Tired out by nearly a year of strenuous, uninterrupted work, Knute Rockne, University of Notre Dame football coach, is going to take a long rest.

Since his arrival here yesterday from the east, Rockne has had little to say regarding the premature announcement by Columbia university that he would coach football there.

However, Rockne unburdened himself today to the extent of making plans for his immediate future. "Say, I haven't had a rest in I don't know how long," he said, "and I'm all in." He plans to spend the winter either on a Kansas ranch with Jess Harper, former Notre Dame coach, or in Europe, or both.

JOE FABER PERFORMED WELL IN NEW YORK-PENNSY LEAGUE

According to the recent batting and fielding averages published by the league, Joe Faber of Jewett City played a pretty consistent game while he was with the York team. Faber went to York after being released by the Providence club of the International circuit. In York he played 69 games in which he was at bat 258 times getting 15 doubles, three triples and one home run, for a batting average of .293. He fielded for .930, making 72 putouts, 128 assists and 15 errors.

Jack Clabby of Norwich did not do so badly in the league, being with the York team and then with the Wilkesbarre in the same league. Clabby played in 43 games, batting for .230 and fielding for .966.

THREE WOMEN TENNIS PLAYERS DECLARED PROS.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Because they taught physical exercises in school for salary, three young women tennis players have been declared by the Lawn Tennis association to be professionals and disqualified forever from competing in amateur matches.

A strong fight was made in their behalf at a meeting of the association yesterday, but the rule which bars professionals in any other sport from playing as amateurs was held to apply to them. A proposal to alter the rule was defeated by a vote of 112 to 54.

SPRINGFIELD GIRL CHALLENGES MISS SEARS IN WALKING

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec 15—(AP)—Miss Lillian Connolly of this city today offered to wager $1,000 with Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston, 43 year old society sportswoman, that she can beat the record established by Miss Sears yesterday in walking the 47 miles from Providence to Boston in 11 hrs. 5 min. Miss Connolly gives odds on age to Miss Sears as she confesses to 47 years.

JUDGE RULES THAT SYNDICATE CONTROLS FIGHT

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 15—(AP)—That Floyd Fitzsimmons and the South Bend syndicate backing him still control the Jack Dempsey-Harry Wills fight and that it will be held next summer were the positive assertions today of Judge G. E. Farabaugh, a member of the financing group.

Jewett City vs. Colchester

Thursday night at Jewett City Colchester will be the opponents. Colchester brings to Jewett City the reputation of being the fastest club in eastern Conn. This does not trouble the local team the least bit for Taftville and Willimantic were considered a mite better than the usual run in semi-pro basketball and both were forced to accept defeat at the hands of the Jewett City aggregation. Colchester defeated a patched up team representing Jewett Cityy at Colchester Saturday night but Thursday evening, Jewett City will have the pick of hoopsters performing and a Jewett City victory is expected. The line-ups for both teams will be in tomorrows Bulletin.

May Bar Grange Pictures

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Action which probably will bar showings of pictures by Harold ("Red") Grange in many moving picture theaters in the United States and Canada was taken today when the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America voted to inform all its members of the "facts uncovered in this particular incident."

Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, left for Florida Tuesday with the intimation left behind that he has obtained the second baseman he desired. But he forgot to mention his name.

Whoever heard of a New Englander who preferred those pale baked beans they serve west of the Hudson? In cigars New England's distinctive taste is defined with equal sharpness. Real New England smokers call for a straight-shaped cigar with a full Havana filler and a Sumatra wrapper.

That describes Blackstone Londres to a "T." And Blackstone has been an extremely popular New England cigar since 1873. And as good as Blackstone was 52 years ago, it is even better today.

The 100% Havana filler of the present Blackstone Londres is selected from the finest filler crop that Cuba has grown in a generation. Full flavored—but extremely mild.

Blackstones are so uniformly free-drawing and even-burning that nearly half of them are bought 5 or 10 at a time in the handy pocket packs. Start with a pocket pack. The Blackstones inside the pack are foil-wrapped, factory-fresh.

TAFTVILLE FIVE NOSES OUT STAFFORD KACEYS BY MARGIN OF LONE POINT

Close games seem to be the habit of the Taftville Five for on Tuesday evening at Pudah hall the Taftville team nosed out the Stafford Springs Kaceys by one solitary point, 32 to 31, in a game that held the large crowd in tense excitement for fully 40 minutes. The game was one of those that was decided by the final whistle ending the game when the lucky team was in the lead.

The game see-sawed back and forth through both playing periods. At the end of the first half the Stafford Springs team stood out in front with the score 14 to 11. At the beginning of the second half the Taftville five took the lead but failed to hold it and with less than three minutes to play with the score 28 to 29 in favor of the Kaceys, Eddie Murphy broke loose and caged two baskets within a short time. Then the Kaceys dropped one in making the count 32 to 31 at which it stayed for the forty remaining seconds of the game.

Eddie Murphy and Rabbit Gauthier shared the scoring honors for the Taftville team while Bernardo was the high scorer for the visitors.

In the preliminary game the Celtics won easily from the Baltic Dantams, 48 to 14. The summary:

BRITISH CHAMP PREPARING FOR AMERICAN DEBUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Johnny Brown, British bantamweight champion, is now in New York, preparing for a boxing campaign in this country, according to his manager, Charley Harvey, who said today a case of mistaken identity was involved in a cable dispatch to the Associated Press last Saturday from Johannesburg, South Africa, reporting that Brown, the champion, was defeated by Ilie Smith.

The confusion over his identity, his manager explained, is partly due to the fact that another English fighter of the same name now is boxing in lightweight and welterweight ranks abroad.

Sets New World's Record

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Miss Mathilda Shudich, youngest member of the 1924 Olympic Swimming association, clipped two seconds from the world's record for women in a 50 yard breast stroke test this afternoon in the pool of the Julia Richmond High school. Her time was 37 2-5 seconds The former record was 39 3-5.

Roper Signs 1926 Contract

PRINCETON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Princeton authorities announced today that Head Football Coach Roper had signed a contract for the year 1926, and added that the contract "might be for two years." Roper announced last year that he might resign his coaching berth.

COLLEGIATE A. A. TO COMBAT PRO FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(By the Associated Press)—Agitation to "combat the tendencies to over-emphasize and professionalize" football may take concrete form when the National Collegiate Athletic association, representative of colleges and universities in all parts of the country, holds its twentieth annual conference here December 30.

Listing the signing of college undergraduates by professional football teams and the banquetting of its All-American eleven by the New York Sun as examples of developments which jeopardize the intercollegiate game, the association's executives propose five remedies to meet the existing situation. These remedies would combat professionalism by (1) Limiting pre-season training; (2) Limiting the number of intercollegiate contests; (3) Limiting the number of games played in other than college stadia; (4) Abolishing so-called athletic scholarships and improper proselyting; (5) Encouraging intra-mural and inter-class games.

The resolution embodying these changes also would provide that "educational institutions be further recommended to refuse here-after to employ or continue in employment any coach, trainer, rules official, or others who in any capacity give service to or aid in the promotion of professional football."

The resolution stresses the need for such drastic steps by maintaining that "intercollegiate football has become so popular and commercialized as seriously to affect the chief educational purposes of colleges; that history and experience teach that healthful, recreational, competitive sports die when afflicted with professionalism; that promoters of professional football have this fall for the first time induced under-graduates to leave college and join their elevens; and that the New York Sun on December 5 banquetted a group or prominent undergraduate football players and presented to each of them a present of no great value that the acceptance of it as a prize by a winning athlete would have professionalized him."

On the occasion of the Sun's dinner, at which the gifts to the players consisted of watches, E. K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee of the N. C. A. A., decried the idea of thus emphasizing any All-American selection and expressed the hope that it would be the last gathering of its kind.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

A star of golf will lead the Cornell football team next season—Emerson Carey, guard. Carey, who is the western junior links champion, is the best kicker at Ithaca.

Other football captain elected Tuesday included: Paul Vogt, center Hobart; William J. Madden, halfback, Columbia, and John J. Daly, center, Connecticut Aggies. Daly is a brother of M. F. Daly, Army center.

George R. Pfann, selected for a Rhodes scholarship, was All-American quarterback at Cornell in 1923 and was captain of the team which surprised the football world by administering a terrific drubbing to Dartmouth. He has been studying law at Cornell since graduation.

Leonard Glasbrenner, outfielder of the Springfield Western association team, who was a holdout the past season, has asked for reinstatement.

George Barr and Tod McQuillan, two veterans of the Western association, have signed contracts to umpire in the Texas league next season.

Joe Cantillon and his bride dropped off at his old home in Hickman, Ky., last week on the first leg of a honeymoon. He plans to take the new Mrs. Cantillon to California and a tour of old Mexico will follow.

Johnny Vann, who has cornered the market on pennants at Corsicana in the Texas association, has signed to again manage the team there. Vann has piloted the Oilers for two seasons, and has won the championship each year.

Al Mamaux, former New York Yankee pitcher, suspended in 1924 when he refused to report to the Minneapolis club of the American association, has been reinstated by Commissioner Landis. He pitched good ball in semi-pro circles last season.

The paths of two old-timers who won fame together on the diamond have been joined in business. Charles L. (Deacon) Phillips, former pitcher, and Honus Wagner, stars of the early day Pirates, have formed a sporting goods store partnership in Pittsburgh.

Otto Borchert, owner of the Milwaukee club, has announced that his Brewers will not return to Sanford, Fla., next spring for the conditioning period. Instead, the American association team will go to Hot Springs, Ark. It costs too much in Florida, says Borchert.

Fred Toney is still a sharpshooter, if reports from Knoxville, Tenn., mean anything. The former National league pitcher, now in retirement, was arrested last week charged with violating the game laws, when he was found with two red fox skins in his possession.

Ollie Biedenharn, owner of the Shreveport club of the Texas league, last week announced the purchase of the Texarkana club of the East Texas league. He plans to build a new grandstand and otherwise improve conditions in Texarkana. The little club will be utilized as a farm.

Walter Mails, playful left-hander of St. Louis Cardinals, suffered a bad sprain on the wrist of his pitching arm at San Quentin, Cal., recently, when he fell while playing football with a bunch of kids. The Great Walter was giving an exhibition of Red Grange making an end run when he slipped.

Portsmouth of the Virginia league, has purchased Pitcher Henry Sherry from Frederick of the Blue Ridge league. The deal is a conditional one, a certain sum having been turned over to Frederick for the trial privilege. If Sherry is retained, the remainder of the sum will be forthcoming.

Indications are that the Texas association will function the same as usual next season. At a meeting in Mexia, Tex., last week, six clubs were represented and all seemed willing to go 'er again. Another meeting will be held in Mexia, January 3, when the annual election will take place.

President Knebelkamp, of the Louisville club, while attending the American association meeting in Chicago last week, hinted that Pel Ballenger star third baseman of the Colonels, would be traded. Knebelkamp, by the way, has not gotten over the idea that he and

LACKING REGISTRATION PROVED PRETTY EXPENSIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—In the town court Tuesday afternoon, Judge W. Kerner Woodward listened to two automobile cases that were related in their development and interesting. Harold Eastham and Anthony Stedman, both of Goodyear, were accused of violation of motor vehicle regulations. Their machines were in collision Monday and Stedman alleged his vehicle is so badly damaged that it is in line to be junked.

Eastham was charged with reckless driving and with driving without having his registration. He was fined $25 on the reckless driving count and $1 on the count charging him to be without a registration, which, he said, he has kept in his car, but could not produce it upon demand of an officer who investigated the case. Of the fine imposed upon Eastham, $15 was remitted in view of the fact that Eastham sustained a painful injury to his wrist which was bandaged when he was in court, he suffered other than by paying the court assesment. His car is damaged, too.

Stedman was fined $2 and costs. He and a partner are owners of the truck. The partner and an employe have licenses to operate, but Stedman was without one.

KING GEORGE COULD BEAT OUT RED GRANGE OF DUNHAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—New York has been indulging itself the past fortnight in recreation and entertainment by what it is pleased to term "backwoods" celebrities. "Red" Grange piciked up some $375,000 down there in a 36-hour visit, and now comes "Mellie" Dunham, the Norway, Me., fiddler fresh from entertaining Henry Ford with a prospect of getting $30,000 almost over-night in the big town.

Forthwith, this column, on behalf of the town of Killingly and all of eastern Connecticut, nominates "King" George Jacques of East Killingly for a cut-in on the Christmas distribution of wealth in the modern Gomorrah. If they will spend vast sums on special attractions down there, they might as well spend it for something good.

"King" George is a bigger attraction than a whole squad of over-advertised football players and a symphony orchestra dominated by "Mellie" Dunham. Here is a modern monarch, well over 70, who can outwalk Eleanor Sears, run faster than Paavo Nurmi, out-talk Senator Borah or trail a fox-hound to the point where the dog will look up in a wistful way and say "Carry me home, old pal; I'm through!"

And that isn't all. You can transplant the King in the wilds of Nebraska any December afternoon and from any handy gravel bank he will excavate two quahaugs, the clams, the sweet corn, the melons, the sausage and all the other fixin's that go to make up a wonderful "shore" dinner and in an amazingly short time serve it piping hot and with every detail bound to win the approbation of the most exacting epicure. Coast lines mean nothing to the King. Give him the time and place and he will make good.

He can out-sing the most singenest, answer more questions on theology than any pastor in his community, orate better and longer than any contemporary and on a greater number of subjects, show more decorations, recall more honors, relate more tales, shoot more rabbits, and demonstrate more homage from his willing subjects than any monarch the world ever knew. While kings and kingdoms have been slipping by half dozens into the discard "King" George has gained in power and prestige and is now at the peak of his triumph.

And here is New York paying "Red" Grange and "Mellie" Dunham real money for small time stuff! Poor, old New York! It always was an easy mark—there are so many people down there, you know. Here, however, is a real chance for it to get its money's worth. It should offer "King" George an engagement. Maybe not until after Christmas, though, for the King would drive Santa Claus out of the headlines, and that would not please the kiddies at all—even the old kiddies with gray whiskers or short skirts; have it anyway you like!

Many a Danielson citizen has been preserved for posterity to see in action and as was in the early November days of 1925. This all came about because motion pictures of the Armistice day parade were taken at Putnam, and in that parade were scores of Danielson people and others from various parts of the town of Killingly.

A small party of home folks saw an advance showing of the picture at the Orpheum theatre Tuesday morning. Everyone here will have a chance to see it a little later and will revel it and enjoy as did those who saw it Tuesday. It's good and there is a lot of it, some 1,700 feet. It was indeed interesting to see the Service battery, St. James' band, the Elks and various other organizations including people swinging along in the parade and to pick out the individuals one knows. "There's Mayor Darbie!" and "Oh, see So and So," and other exclamations rather suggests something of the reception it got here Tuesday.

Members of the Danielson Girls' club took their men in hand, Tuesday evening, and entertained them at Pellett's hall. Having heard of all the good times the girls have, the men were not loath to be on hand and be feted according to the plans. They will tell you this morning that they had a wonderfully good time. They should have had. Members of the club spent half the afternoon at Pellettt's, preparing appetizing things to eat and seeing to it that not one detail that would tend to make a pleasant evening was overlooked. The men repaid in some measure for the privilege of being present by contributing some of the entertainment features of the evening, of which there were a number. It is not likely the Girls' club will receive any male members, but it is entirely probable that some of the boys will send in applications for honorary membership today or later. Such things have happened and may happen again

The spoofers are always with us! "You write," says one, "of W. I. Bullard making Providence from Danielson in an aeroplane in 9 minutes I made it in six the other day, but it took me twelve hours to get home; had a blowout (tire), you know. By way of explanation, I may say I was driving a Lizzie, too, but what I am telling you all happened in a dream. But it was a real natural one and it honestly seemed at the time as if I were doing it—you know how it is."

Well maybe we ought to know how it is, but we have never made Providence in six minutes or nine, either. Can't make better than Elmville in that time, in fact.

An item Tuesday morning about litter that was whirled about by Monday's wind and deposited to make a messy sight in the business section brought comment Tuesday to the effect that too much refuse is thrown out and left neglected in the central part of the borough. All kinds of pasteboard boxes, heavy wrapping paper, tin cans and other such refuse little backyards and property in the rear of business blocks. This is not only untidy, but a fire menace that would bring police action in many towns and cities in Connecticut. It is a condition that has been complained about in Danielson from time to time for the past decade, but something about which nothing is ever done.

Tuesday morning, the funeral of Edmond Trahan was held from his home, with services at St. James' church at 8 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaux was celebrant of the high mass of requiem, which many relatives and friends attended. Burial was in St. James' cemetery, the committal service being conducted by Rev. F. X. Richards. The bearers were Amadee Goulet, Louis Goulet, Ulysses Choquette, Philip Choquette, Louis Brunett and Romeo Trahan. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The skating season being at hand, as attested by the numbers of young people who were out to try the ice Tuesday afternoon, the usual worry develops over the possibility of drownings by breaking through thin ice. There is that possibility for all who venture on other than the smaller ponds and flowed places that have furnished skating areas to date this winter. The rivers and larger lakes hereabouts remain unsafe for skating.

Looking forward to the mid-winter season, the Service battery and the Women's Welfare council have made their plans for an unusually elaborate Mardi Gras party to be held at the state armory. This event will come on a date in February and will be the last big social event for many local people until after the Lenten season.

This (Wednesday) evening employes of the S. N. E. T. company in the Moosup, Danielson and Putnam divisions, will be at Putnam for the annual Christmas tree party of the three exchanges. There is to be a tree, distribution of gifts, refreshments, dancing and other entertainment.

Hampton post, American Legion, has shown its good will toward Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, by sending to Ira A. Warren a check for $10. This gift, the letter directs, is to be added to the building fund of the local post and the wish is expressed that the drive for the fund go over the top with a bang. The gift is particularly appreciated by the local post because Hampton post has a limited membership and its own funds are not too plentiful. The gift will be gratefully asknowledged.

Miss Margaret McBride will leave Friday to spend the winter at Clearwater, Fla., where she spent last winter.

Miss Gertrude Stone has returned from a visit with relatives in Boston and vicinity.

Rating with the coldest mornings of the season, Tuesday produced temperature of 8 degrees above zero.

J. Carl Witter was at Suffield Tuesday conducting an auction.

Mrs. Anna Reynolds, Miss Elizabeth Dunn, Miss Blanche Gauthier and Miss Mary Geer are spending today (Wednesday) in Providence.

Junk merchandise, sent unsolicited is coming through the mails from various parts of the country to people in Danielson—and in most instances being fired back whence it came.

Vincent Astor says there are no "social gulfs" in the United States. What he probably means is that a man with a rattley old car buys gasoline at a filling station for the same price as does the man with the luxurious limousine.

Worn places in the pavement along the trolley rails, particularly opposite the postoffice, are inviting accidents to motorists. In one place crushed rock is being kicked out of a hole worn by passing traffic.

CAUSE OF BOY'S DEATH REMAINS A MYSTERY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 16—Just what was the nature of the injuries which caused the death of 10-year-old Norman Gaumond, in an automobile accident Saturday night is the reason for Coroner Bill's visit here yesterday.

After the crash of the two cars the one in which he was riding having been driven by his father, Elzear Gaumond, the boy apparently was not much hurt. He was thrown from the car but was not rendered unconscious and cried out to his father that he was not injured. He was taken to the Day Kimball hospital about 11 o'clock and died at 1:30 Sunday morning.

His parents, brother and sister, who were in the car were not injured nor were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gagne who were in the other car that figured in the accident. All the parties were from North Grosvernordale. There is a sharp turn where the roads meet opposite the home of John F. Reardon and the cars came together in full force in a head-on collision.

The water in the Quinebaug river is now high enough to supply the power for the mills along its banks. The past summer has been very dry and the mills have had to resort to their auxiliary power a greater part of the time. It is a satisfaction to the mill men when the river is high before freezing time, otherwise there will be a shortage of water during the winter.

Cargill Council, No. 64, Knights of Columbus held an interesting meeting at its rooms on Union street. An address was made by Rev. George F. Donahue of Holy Trinity church at Pomfret and Sacred Heart church at West Thompson. Father Donohue spoke of the meaning of the Christmas season and told many interesting experiences of his priesthood.

William Anderson, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams of Killingly, who cut a finger off his left hnd with an axe Saturday is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital.

The every member canvass for the Second Congregational church was held Sunday afternoon. About forty solicitors called on the various members of the church and parish obtaining various pledges of support, and subscriptions. The budget for the coming year calls for $10,000.

Romeo Tessier aged 22, of this city was before the town court of Southbridge, Mass., Saturday, charged with drunkenness and with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was found guilty and paid $100 and costs.

The Woodstock Academy Gleaner, a yearly publication issued by the alumni of Woodstock academy, and edited by Mrs. William Gallup has just been issued. Besides the interesting features of the present Academy school it contains data of former pupils.

At a recent meeting of Conseil Dame La Vaitrie, of North Grosvernordale the following officers were elected for the year: Dotenne, Miss Sylvia Barrette; honorary president, Miss Yvonne Dion; president, Mrs. Alme Poirier vice president, Miss Aurore Loiselle secretary, Miss Annette Harpin; treasurer, Miss Yvonne Dion; mistress of ceremonies, Mrs. Ida Lafiamme; Comord., Miss M. A. Morin and Gabrielle Despetteau. The installation will be held in January.

The death of Anita Leboeuf, 11, occurred Saturday morning at her home at North Grosvernordale. Requiem high mass was celebrated at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock Monday morning at her funeral services, and burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery Webster, Mass. Miss Leboeuf for the last few years had suffered from heart trouble and had been cared for by her mother. She was the daughter of Mr and Mrs. G. Leboeuf, was born in Webster, Mass., and moved to North Grosvernordale four years ago. For some time she attended St. Joseph's parochial school until her condition compelled her to remain at home.

Frank Foisey of this city has been a visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Tetreault of Attawaugan.

Miss Hilda Saka of East Thompson is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sheldon.

Miss Helen Ingraham of Thompson who is to be married on Christmas eve was given a miscellaneous shower by friends. She received many gifts.

Misses Elsie and Pauline Sandstrom, of Thompson, are at the home of their sister, Mrs. Charles Clemens in this city. little Harry Clemens died last week following an illness of double pneumonia and an operation for appendicitis. Two of the other children are sick and Mr. Clemens is at the Day Kimball hospital ill with pneumonia.

Miss Hildegarde Haskell and her brother Ernest, who have been staying at akeside since the tragic death of their father, in Maine, a few weeks ago, have gone to New York to join their mother.

Miss Eleanor Murphy and Miss Isabel Courtney spent the week end with Miss Murphy's parents, Dr. and Mrs. B. P. Murphy of Sunnyside Heights.

Oscar Ross is ill at his home on School street.

The Social circle of the Congregational church cleared over $350 at their bazaar held at Odd Fellows' hall last week.

Alexander Blackmar of Lamont street is a patient at Day Kimball hospital.

John Fraser of Pepperill, Mass., is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Duffy of School street.

William E. Wheelock, of Oxford, and Mrs. Charles Fairbanks and daughter, Mrs. Searles of Quinebaug have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Spencer. Mr. Wheelock is to leave in a few days for Florida to spend the winter.

D. A. R. CHAPTER INAUGURATES PUBLIC LIBRARY PROJECT

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 15—At a meeting of the D. A. R. chapter yesterday afternoon the matter of having a public library building, centrally located, came up for discussion. The chapter has a fund of $1,800 from the sale of the Wolf Den property, which it plans to use as a nucleus for this purpose, it is understood that other organizations are willing to help in this work. The chapter appointed the following committee: Mrs. Newton A. Ballard, Mrs. Mary B. Bishop, Mrs Byron D. Bugbee, Mrs. George S Bradley, Mrs. J. E. Carpenter, Mrs. L. T. Champlin, Mrs. Annie C. Child, Miss Emma J Kinney, Mrs. F. L. Kelley, Miss Constance L. Russell, Mrs. C. A. Rawley, Mrs. C. L. Torrey, Mrs. W. E. Wheaton, Mrs. S. M. Wheelock, Miss Helen M. Willey and Mrs. S. Nikoloff.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Several local people were in Canterbury Saturday evening to attend a dance.

Mrs. Fred Shippe who was seriously ill last week is now improving steadily.

Mrs. A. E. Phillips spent a day in Providence last week.

The Women's Society of the North Sterling church held a bean supper and entertainment in the community house, Saturday evening.

The attendance was somewhat smaller than usual but those attending spent a most enjoyable evening. The proceeds will be used to give the North Sterling children a happy time at Christmas.

Mrs. P. H. Coffey and Mrs. A. E. Hall spent Friday in Providence.

The Sunday evening service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Gaylord: The text was Perfect love casteth out fear and the sermon was most interesting and helpful. Miss Fuller, of Danielson was organist.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tetreault made their weekly trip to Providence Friday. While making the usual deliveries of farm products an automobile came bowling along and hit Mr. Tetreault's machine causing it turn over and crushing a wheel beside doing other damage. Mr. Tetreault was not hurt but Mrs. Tetreault was bruised and received several cuts on her face, which required medical treatment. Mr Tetreault is an experienced city driver and is also a careful driver so this is one case where there is no doubt about the responsibility.

Arrangements for public Christmas exercises are well under way. They are to be held in the community house Wednesday evening Dec. 23. Anyone wishing to put gifts on the tree is free to do so.

CANTERBURY PLAINS

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Jerusha Williams, last Wednesday afternoon.

The books for the public library are expected soon.

Curtis Kinne was in Danielson last Tuesday evening, to witness the degree work of the Danielson Odd Fellows.

Several from the Plains attended the sale at the Green, last Tuesday evening.

School was closed on the Plains Friday that the teacher might visit schools at Providence. Several of the teachers in town visited the Teachers' College, Providence.

During the lecturer's hour Wednesday evening the program will be put on by the children whose parents belong to the Grange.

The Grange is to have its annual Christmas tree Wednesday evening. The members have been requested to bring a ten cent gift to exchange for another and the present is to be something useful.

It's much easier for appearances to keep a man down than it is for a man to keep up appearances.

CONQUEROR OF THE MONGOLIAN WILDS

Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, who startled the world a few years ago by discovering a nest of dinosaur eggs ten million years old, arrived in New York on November 9th from his Third Asiatic Expedition under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History.

Again he attributes much of the success of his expedition to the astounding performance of his five Dodge Brothers Motor Cars.

> The Gobi Desert in Mongolia is the most extensive undeveloped and unexplored region now left in the world. Until a few years ago it was retarded by the impossibly slow traffic of camel trains, the only means of communication.
>
> But now it is being crisscrossed in every direction by motor cars, or, more correctly by one motor car, the Dodge. Sixty or seventy Dodge Brothers cars are making regular trips far into the interior of this vast waste, bringing out loads of sables, precious furs, wool and other products.
>
> No other car except the Dodge is found there because we have tried it out on each of our three expeditions and have had it demonstrated to our satisfaction that *the Dodge is the only car that will stand up under the strain of the roadless desert and do everything we ask of it.

Few people have occasion to subject their motor cars to punishment of this severity. It is reassuring, however, to know that in emergencies Dodge Brothers Motor Car is built to meet the test.

These dependable and sturdy qualities also account for the fact that more than 90% of all the motor cars Dodge Brothers have built during the past eleven years, are still in active service.

TWO MEN HURT WHEN TRUCK KNOCKS DOWN TELEGRAPH POLE

About noon Tuesday one of the Falls company's large trucks loaded with coal went off the road on Yantic street and smashed into a telegraph pole near Uncas Leap. The truck, driven by Arthur Massau, was on the way to the mill, when a front wheel hit a stone in the road, throwing the truck into the pole. Two men riding on the running board were thrown off and were slightly injured.

The pole was broken by the impact and toppled, bringing down the wires. The Gas and Electric plant was notified and a repair crew immediately repaired the damage done.

Dr. John W. Callahan was called to attend the injured men who later went to their homes. They were Frank Dempski of No. 9 Ninth street and Joe Siniski, No. 80 Yantic street. Their injuries consisted of bruises about the body.

TRICK PHOTOGRAPHY GREAT AID TO BIZARRE MOVIES

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 15 (AP)—The movie public has many illusions that are carefully created by trick photography and the versatility of engineers.

These secrets of the trade conserve millions of dollars annually in the budgets of producers. The directors point out, however, that they are not evolved to deceive the theater-goer nor primarily with the idea of saving money, but often are necessary because it would be impossible to stage the actual scene demanded in the script.

In the photographic tricks, the most indispensable perhaps, is the "glass ceiling" illusion. This is a device of painted glass placed slightly above the camera lens. On the sheet of glass, ceilings, domes or roofs are painted to correspond with the actual set.

This glass work is necessary because of the lighting demanded by the camera. The roofs or upper parts of the set are not constructed. Instead, strong flood lights are placed there.

Wrecks of ocean liners are enacted in a small tank in the studio. Howling gales are provided by mechanical wind machines. The "ocean" is lashed to fury by paddles, and the toy liner, perhaps ten inches in length, is tossed about on the waves by wires in the hands of studio assistants.

If the story calls for an explosion to sink the boat, a dynamite cap aboard is exploded at the proper time and the miniature craft sinks beneath the waves with exciting realism.

A recent example of miniature illusion was enacted in a picture of monstrous prehistoric beasts. On the screen they appear to weigh tons, and moved with life-like ease. Before the camera they were models 18 inches high, composed of rubber and papier-mache, their movement manipulated by invisible wires.

When the movie spectator sees actors struggling perilously near the brink of a precipice or on the cornices of a tall building, he may be witnessing a scene "shot" in two different places. The fight may have taken place on the studio floor, and the cameraman may later have photographed the precipice or roof corner on the same strip of film.

Fogs are formed in the studio by a huge atomizer, which feeds cold vapor on the scene through perforated pipes concealed about the set.

Adept with high explosives, the engineers set a blast to wreck a dam, releasing a rush of logs and water to destroy a populated valley. Or they burn an actress at the stake with so little harm that she may be the belle of a party the next evening.

One engineer has patented a powder that burns furiously on the furnishings of a luxurious apartment. When the cranking stops, the furniture is found unharmed and is moved to the next "social" set.

Even Hollywood scarcely knows these technical men whose exploits make "the filming of the impossible."

Both Roman Catholics and high church Episcopalians may eat meat Christmas day, which falls on Friday this year. The Catholic church which calls upon all of its members to abstain from meat on all Fridays, grants a special dispensation if Christmas falls on that day.

BIG LEAGUES DRAW MANY BALL STARS FROM SOUTH

ATLANTA, Dec. 15 (AP)—Many former Southern Association baseball stars will be seen in action in the big leagues next year, if they make good during the spring training season.

The Washington Americans called Win Ballou, star pitcher of the Chattanooga Lookouts into their fold during the latter part of the season to make him eligible for the World series. Used as a relief hurler by Manager Harris, Ballou made a good showing.

Among the other players purchased by Washington is Charles "Buddy" Meyers, who this year came to the association from the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College.

In a game at Little Rock, he accepted 38 chances without an error, establishing a new record for the league. He also figured in a triple play. Shortly after being sold to the American League champions, Myers was injured, but recovered in time to participate in the World series.

"Stuffy" Stewart, Birmingham second baseman, who stole approximately 55 bases during the season; Tex Jeanes heavy hitting outfielder, also of Birmingham; "Cowboy" Jones, Mobile outfielder, and "Lefty" Thomas, Nashville pitcher, also were purchased by Washington.

The Pittsburgh Nationals recalled George Haas, Birmingham outfielder and brought Alvin Crowder, pitcher of the same team.

Brooklyn purchased Ray Moss and Frank Koelbecker, pitcher and catcher respectively, from Memphis. Moss was given a trial by the St. Louis Cardinals several seasons ago.

Thomas Jefferson Gulley, outfielder, who ranked second among the league's leading batters, and Eddie McBee, left-handed Indian pitcher, were sold by Little Rock to the Chicago Americans.

Dan Michalove, president of the Atlanta pennant-winning Crackers, announced he expected to see Nick Cullop, home run king of the league, and Frank Zoellers, both outfielders; Mike Gazzolla, shortstop, and Johnny Brock, catcher, in the uniforms of New York Yankees next season.

Considerable cash and promises of players for 1926 figured in the numerous transactions.

NATIONAL EISTEDDFOD TO BE HELD AT UTICA NEW YEAR'S DAY

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 15 (AP)—The Third National Eisteddfod, America's counterpart of the national bardic congress of Wales, will be held in the state armory here on New Year's day.

Many entries have been received for the competitions in music, literature, elocution and art, but interest centers in the choral contests. The list of competitors in the solo, duet and quartet numbers also is large.

Rev. Dr. T. C. Edwards of Kingston, Pa., veteran eisteddfodwr will be the conductor, and Mrs. Anna Davis Wynne of Hamilton, Ont., the official soloist.

More than 100 poems, essays and epigrams have been entered for the literary contests.

HAMLET OF PLYMOUTH ALSO A SPOT CONGENIAL TO OLD AGE

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Dec. 15 (AP)—This hamlet which is justly proud of having given a president to the country has another claim to fame.

It probably is one of the most salubrious spots in this section of the country.

"Mr. America" Perfect Model

Winford S. Turner, of Nashua, N. H., has been picked by the New York Arts Club as a perfect specimen of manhood, and called "Mr. America" in contrast to the usual feminine contests. He was chosen from among 300 contestants at a recent contest held in Manchester, N. H. He is 26 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall, and weighs 153 pounds. He is a painter by trade, and has a considerable reputation around the old home town as a basket-ball player.

Miss M. Baines Tells How Cuticura Healed Eczema

"Eczema broke out on my fingers in a rash, and on my arms, face and neck in pimples. The breaking out itched and burned causing me to scratch and scratching caused eruptions. I could not put my hands in water, and was unable to do much work. I lost my rest at night on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted about six months.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some. After using them about two weeks I got relief, and in about three months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Margaret Baines, R. 4, Box 75, Littleton, N. H., Feb. 6, 1925.

MAINE'S FIDDLER PLAYED IN N. Y. CITY HALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Fresh from his triumphs in Detroit, where he fiddled for Henry Ford, Mellie Dunham, champion fiddler and snowshoe maker of Maine, today took the city hall by storm. Mayor John F. Hylan greeted the aged minstrel and listened while old barn dance favorites such as "Turkey in The Straw" "The Devil's Dream," and others sounded through the spacious reception chamber.

Mellie recited to the mayor how he came very near losing the $3 gold piece, coined before the Civil war and given to him as a keepsake by Ford.

"A hard-boiled reporter," Mellie said, indicating to the newspaper men with a wide sweep of his hand, "tried to trade me out of this $3 gold piece. He offered to swap me a $20 gold piece for it. But after one look at his face I wouldn't even trade horses with him and I'm pretty good at that."

Mayor Hylan said that a barn dance would be the proper thing if there were not so many reporters and photographers around. Mellie set the feet of his hearers tapping as he scraped ancient dance tunes from his fiddle. He admitted frankly that he came to New York on the recommendation of Henry Ford to "make some money—enough to see us through." By "us" the champion bow wellder meant his wife and himself. "Gran'ma" Dunham accompanied her husband on the long trip west to Detroit and back to New York.

After their reception at city hall, the fiddler and his wife, accompanied by friends went on a sightseeing trip around New York. Dunham revealed that he would not take more than $3 a night to play for Henry Ford, and that he refused a gift of money from the automobile manufacturer. Ford told him, Mellie related, that there was money in New York and to go and get it.

So it was that the veteran fiddler alighted in New York hoping to make enough from his old fiddle, the music of another generation and the kindness of callous and blase New York "to see us through."

Hall's Catarrh Medicine has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over forty years. Also as a Blood Purifier it gives wonderful results. All Druggists.

AN AUSTIN PRODUCT IN MAJOR LEAGUE FOR EACH 8,000 SOULS

Austin, Tex., Dec. 15 (AP)—One Austin product in the major leagues for each 8,000 population is basis for this city's boast that it is one of the leading "home towns" of the country, as far as big league ball players are concerned.

The five Austinites who saw service in the "big show" during last season are, "Bib" Falk, Chicago White Sox outfielder; "Rip" Collins, Detroit Tiger pitcher; "Spot" Falk, youthful St. Louis Brown pitcher, who as a pinch hitter, led his league with close to a .600 average; Frank Gibson, Boston Brave catcher, and "Tink" Riviere, who pitched for a time for the St. Louis Cards but finished the season with Dallas of the Texas League.

Riviere already has been notified to report to the Cards for spring training in 1926. He was not reared here, but attended Texas University and calls Austin his home.

"Bib" Falk and Collins are the best known here of the five. Both attended Austin high school and starred in baseball and football. After graduation, Falk was an outstanding player at Texas University here, while Collin attended Texas A. & M. at College Station. He was instrumental in twice defeating Texas University, arch rival in athletics of Texas A. and M.

Cedric Durst who played with St. Paul and was one of the leading hitters of the American association, is another Austin product. For two seasons he was with the Browns and was for a time used at first base in 1922, when Manager Sisler was out of the game.

Some of the most enthusastic fans claim Rogers Hornsby as an Austin product. Hornsby was born in Runnels county, but when he was a few months old came to Travis county, in which Austin is located. He lived about 15 miles from the capital city for eight years.

Hornsby has scores of relatives living in or near Austin. Hornsby's Bend, founded by his great-grandfather, is one of the oldest settlements in the county.

VILLAGE OF 700 SENDS FOUR OF ITS YOUTH TO CONGRESS

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 15 (AP)—The "Free State Butler" gave three statesmen to the nation before she could send one to Congress in her own name and Morgantown, a village of 700 population, now has four native sons in the nation's legislative halls.

When John W. Moore took his seat as congress convened December 7, he found there three other Butler countians, only one of whom, like himself, will be "the gentleman from Kentucky." The other two represent Oklahoma.

Senator John W. Harreld of Oklahoma is the senior member of the quartette of men who were boys together around Morgantown. Congressman Maurice H. Thacher of the Fifth Kentucky District, and Everette B. Howard of Tulsa, Okla., are the others.

Moore and Howard are democrats, rarities in the "Free States," while Harreld and Thatcher, republicans, come by their political affiliations naturally. The Kentucky country from whence they came won its appelation as the "Free States of Butler" back in the days of the Missouri Compromise, when its citizens freed their slaves and permitted no others to enter despite the fact that Kentuckey was a slave state.

Moore was elected to succeed the late R. Y. Thomas, Jr., in the Third district. His success was due largely to the fact that he almost wiped out a normal republican majority of 2,500 in his home county.

Congressman Schuyler Merritt, will celebrate his 72nd birthday today. Fairfield county's congressman has served in the house since November 6, 1917.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

ADVISE ONLY THREE MONTHS' OPEN SEASON ON MUSKRATS

As a staple in the American fur market the muskrat is generally considered the most important fur animal. Since it is also used for meat, it has a claim for preservation as a natural resource. Although injurious in some localities, for the most part it inhabits places unsuited to agriculture. Muskrats increase much more rapidly than do other fur bearers, and because of their general habits and life in and near water, they are better fitted than most fur animals to maintain their numbers under the little protection now given them.

Open seasons for muskrats last more than three months in 23 states, and in 10 states this animal is still entirely unprotected. In only 11 states is the season three months or less. In two states the muskrat is protected throughout the year. In the opinion of the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, muskrats in the United States should not be taken before December 1, and although the fur is still prime when the breeding season is in progress in the latter part of March, continued trapping would greatly affect the number of young animals produced for the next year. The open season recommended by government biologists is limited to three months, December 1 to March 1, or, in the more northern states, December 15 to March 15.

EFFECT OF ROUNDWORMS ON GROWTH OF HOGS

The influence of parasites in stunting the growth of hogs is commonly recognized, but there are few instances in which the effect has been actually measured. The United States Department of Agriculture describes such a test with large round worms, or ascarids, a serious intestinal parasite. In one experiment pigs kept exclusively on clean clover pasture attained a weight of 218 pounds, while others of the same age in similar pasture with access to a wormy hog lot grew to only 162 pounds.

In another experiment pigs on pasture with access to a permanent hog lot also failed to make good gains in weight. When these pigs were slaughtered it was found that those infested with the largest numbers of worms were those that weighed the least. Thus, it seems probable that, all other things being equal, there is a more or less direct relation between the number of worms and the rate of gain.

Roundworms are readily prevented by a system of sanitation now widely used. In addition to being more healthy, hogs grown under this system develop more evenly and are ready for market from a month to six weeks earlier.

FEEDING THE LAYING FLOCK

"How much grain shall I feed my hens?" This question is often asked. It is rather difficult to answer, because food consumption varies greatly with the breed, the condition of the birds, and the production. The average amount of grain consumed by Adult Poultry club flocks during the month of November was 13.40 pounds per 100 birds per day. The mash consumption was 8.33 pounds per 100 birds per day. This may be considered reasonable for an average flock. If the birds are in heavy production, this should be increased up to 15 or 16 pounds, and, in some cases, close to 20 pounds, of grain per 100 birds per day.

As the season advances and the weather becomes colder, grain consumption can be increased until it is equal to twice the mash consumption by weight. Heavy grain feeding usualy maintains body weight and holds a high average production. With heavy grain feeding, the beef scrap content in the mash should be up to the Connecticut standard rations, which is 100 pounds, in 600—unless its equivalent is used in the form of milk or other protein feeds. Maintaining body weight is one-half the battle in obtaining high winter egg production—R. E. Jones.

COPPER SULPHATE TREATMENT FOR SHEEP STOMACH WORMS

A method of controlling stomach worms in sheep devised by scientists of the United States department of agriculture and tested on farms for the last three years has given excellent results. The treatment consists in dosing the sheep once every 25 days with a one per cent solution of copper sulphate.

Following good results at the department's experiment farm near Vienna, Virginia, the bureau of animal industry arranged with owners of 12 farm flocks in Schuyler county, Missouri, to try the method under ordinary farm conditions. At the beginning of the experiment, all owners reported they were experiencing serious losses from stomach worms. While the experiment was in progress no change was made from the former usual practice of grazing, which consists in the use of permanent pasture throughout the year, except in the fall, when the flocks are allowed to run in fields and meadows from which the crops have been removed. During the last year no sheep or lambs under treatment were seriously affected by the stomach-worm disease.

The second generation of sheep which have developed under the copper-sulphate treatment are larger than their dams, have grown better wool, and have sold without culls. Buyers of feeder lambs fro mthe dosed flocks have recognized their outstanding condition and paid top prices for them. These favorable results were observed among more than 2,000 sheep.

DEVISES COLOR GRADER FOR HONEY

In the marketing of honey the flavor and color must be described to the purchaser in terms which shall conform to the standards set up by the bureau of agricultural economics with regard to honey grades. The flavor is commonly indicated by naming the plant source, as "White Orange honey" or "Light Amber Clover honey." There has been considerable difficulty, however, in establishing standard grades corresponding to the trade color names for honey, but work on this problem by the bee culture laboratory of the United States department of agriculture has led to the perfection of a grader by means of which different persons readily assign a given sample to the same grade. The grader overcomes many of the objections to other types of graders heretofore used and, while more expensive is considered better.

The five standard grades of color are as follows: Water white, white, light amber, amber, and dark. These are the terms at present commonly used in the sale of honey. In response to the demand from western beekeepers for further subdivisions of the lighter grades, two additional grades are established as subdivisions of the white and light amber grades, these to be designated as extra white and extra light amber.

NEW ENGLAND SHEEP GROWERS TO MEET

Every farmer in New London county who keeps sheep or who might be interested in keeping them is invited to attend the New England-wide sheep growers' meeting to be held in Worcester, Mass., January 6, or, at least, to send in his name so that he will receive a report of the meeting and the important steps taken there. It is expected that a New England-wide association will be formed to look after the interests of the sheep industry and to cooperate and extend the work of the present state oranisations.

One of the chief functions of the proposed association will be to furnish members with up to date information concerning markets and prices on lamb and wool. It can assist the present state associations in pooling and marketing the wool and can bring about a better coordination among them. It is the general plan to hold two big sheep meetings each year, one at the time of the Eastern States exposition and the other meeting to be held in a different state each year. This will serve to give each state a big sheep meeting every few years with all the rest of New England as their guests.

Plans have been made for a fine program at the Worcester meeting with speakers of national reputation and practical experience. It is hoped that a large number of sheep raisers from all states in New England will be present to assist in the organization and to discuss the work to be undertaken.

Every present or prospective sheep man is urged to send in his name to J. C. Cort, Room 136, State House, Boston, secretary of the organization committee.

CROP GAINS FOR TESTED CORN

Ohio agricultural experts recently completed a 12-year test of seed corn designed to show the increase averaged by tested seed over untested. Two methods were employed, planting three kernels to a hill and planting thick and thinning to three kernels to a hill. The test showed first of all that the tested seed germinated 100 per cent planted three kernels to a hill as compared with untested seed, planted thick, five kernels to a hill, and thinned to three stalks to a hill.

The 12-year average for untested kernels shows in the three kernels per hill 54.56 bushels of grain and 2,927 pounds of stover; planted thick and thinned to three a hill, 61.89 bushels and 3,275 pounds of stover.

The tested seed three to a hill produced an average over the 12 years of 56.61 bushels and 3,022 pounds of stover and the thickly planted and thinned 62.67 bushels and 3,373 pounds of stover.

Summarized the results of the experiment over this period of years showed the following:

Gain for tested over untested seed, each planted 3 kernels	2.05 bu.
Gain for tested over untested seed, each planted 5 kernels and thinned	.78 bu.
Gain for untested seed planted thick and thinned over untested, seed planted 3 kernels to hill	7.33 bu.
Gain for tested seed, planted thick and thinned, over tested seed planted 3 kernels to hill	6.06 bu.
Gain for untested seed, planted thick and thinned, over tested seed planted 3 kernels to hill	5.28 bu.

It has now become a settled practice and a matter of professional ethics among the big seedhouses to sell nothing but tested seed, their experience coinciding with that of the experiment station experts although their experiments necessarily have not been conducted and observed over such long periods of time.

The lower figure for the three to a hill tested seed which germinated 100 per cent is explained by losses due to cutworms, mice, crows, cultivating implements and other causes, the thickly planted being thinned to three in a hill after it had germinated and attained some growth, the loss being thereby minimized.

HOUSE VENTILATION

Moisture in a poultry house in the winter lowers the temperature, makes the cold more penetrating, and invites disease. Moisture can be disposed of by making use of the sunshine and by proper ventilation. One square foot of open front to each 12 sq. ft. of floor space is standard for Connecticut condition. Doors that can be opened, thus doubling the open front (such as in the Connecticut 20'x20' laying house), are very satisfactory. Doors furnish better ventilation than windows on warm days and allow a circulation of air on the floor.

Open the front of the house when the sun shines, as sunshine is of vital importance. Cloth curtains should be provided, but should not be used except for protection against severe storms or extreme cold weather. With reasonably deep houses, there is no need of closing the curtains for protection against the cold until the temperature drops down close to zero.

All poultry houses with a double-pitched roof should have an eaves trough in the front, to catch the drip, which is frequently blown in to the house through the open front during severe storms. This often amounts to decidedly more than the wet that actually rains in. End windows may be used to advantage in ventilating and drying out poultry houses.—R. M. Jones.

WOULD CONVEY LAND TO THE CITY OF NEWPORT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Representative Bordick, republican, Rhode Island, introduced today a bill to convey from the federal government to the city of Newport, Rhode Island, land included in Fort Green. The bill specifies that the fort be used as a park or for some other public purpose. Military rights would be reserved by the government. The bill sets forth that such an act would merely carry out a previous act of congress approved February 28, 1887.

Governor Of Arizona May Call Out Troops Against Government

Governor George W. P. Hunt, of Arizona, may call out the State Troops to protect "State Rights" in the Kaibab National Forest. The announcement came as a result of the Government not permitting the hunting season to be extended, which the Governor and Forestry officials wanted done. The forest is being over-run with deer who are destroying the vegetation and the hunting season is too short to eliminate any large amount of them. Governor Hunt claims it is not the deer, but whether or not the Government may invade the sovereign State and claim ownership of its resources.

How Peter Rabbit Helped

Who helps another, it is plain,
Will something for himself attain.
—Peter Rabbit.

Paddy the Beaver had slapped the ground hard with his tail. It was a signal that the tree he was cutting was about to fall. Mrs. Paddy and the two younger Beavers understood that signal perfectly. At the very first thud of Paddy's tail they scampered for the water. The instant the tree hit the ground all four started for shore again. Paddy went straight to that fallen tree. Each of the others went back to the tree he or she had been cutting.

Peter Rabbit crept out from behind a tree. You know the tree Paddy had cut had fallen right across the patch of dry brown ferns where Peter had been hiding. Had he not been frightened into jumping by the first unexpected warning slap of Paddy's tail he might have been crushed by that tree.

"You almost got me, Paddy," said Peter.

"You mean the tree almost got you," replied Paddy. "I didn't even know you were about. It is a lucky thing you knew enough to heed my signals."

"But I didn't," replied Peter, very truthfully. "You startled me so that I jumped before I had time to think. But another time I will know just what to do when I hear you signal that way."

"All right, Peter," replied Paddy. Then he added: "But be sure you run in the right direction. You know you might run right under the falling tree. It is always well to know just where you are going."

Hardly were the words out of Paddy's mouth when there was another thud of a flat tail on the ground. It was Mrs. Paddy's tail. Paddy turned and plunged for the water. Peter wasn't startled into jumping this time. He sat still. Yes sir, he sat still. It came to him suddenly that he didn't know which way to run. Crash fell the tree Mrs. Paddy had been cutting. Fortunately for Peter, it fell in another direction. In a moment Paddy was back. "Look up at the top of a tree if you want to know which way it is going to fall," said Paddy. "Of course the safest place is the water, but I suppose you don't care for the water."

"No," said Peter, "I do not. But I will remember what you said about watching the top of a tree to find out which way it is about to fall. I feel very useless just sitting here looking on while the rest of you are working so hard. I wish I could help, but I fear my teeth wouldn't be of much use. My, I wish I could do that!"

What Peter wished he could do was what Paddy had just done. With one bite he had cut off a half-inch limb, and had done it as easily as Peter could snip off a blade of grass. "You don't have to be able to cut and trim trees in order to help," said Paddy.

"How can I help in any other way?" cried Peter eagerly.

"By keeping watch for us," replied Paddy between bites. "It is hard to keep watch and work at the same time. Keeping watch for enemies interferes with work. Now if we had some one to do nothing but keep ears and eyes and nose on guard against our enemies we could work a great deal faster. How would you like being watchman for us?"

"You almost got me, Paddy," said Peter.

"Just the thing I would like!" cried Peter, happily. "I haven't anything else to do, so I'll be watchman. Who is it you want me to watch for?"

"Old Man Coyote, Buster Bear and Yowler the Bob Cat," replied Paddy promptly. "Buster Bear isn't likely to bother us, but he is so uncertain that it is just as well to be on guard when he is about. But the other two have been trying for a long time for a Beaver dinner. I suppose neither of them would object to a Rabbit dinner, for that matter." Paddy grinned as he said this.

"You are lucky to have only three enemies to watch for," retorted Peter. "I have all those and Reddy Fox and members of the Weasel family, and members of the Owl family and members of the Hawk family. You don't know what it is to have enemies. All right, you all work and I will be watchman. When I thump with my hind feet it will have the same meaning as when you slap the ground or water with your tail."

"All right, Mr. Watchman," replied Paddy.

EASTERN THOROUGHBRED BESTS WESTERN COW PONY IN TEST

COLORADO SPRINGS, Dec.—13—The Eastern thoroughbred has bested the Western cow-pony as the "king of American horseflesh."

The annual Eastern and western 300 mile endurance rides, held respectively at Brandor, Vt., and Colorado Springs, resulted in Peggy, and Eastern thoroughbred steed of the Third Cavalry regiment coming through the gruelling race in better condition than the Western cow-pony, Ranger, who led the field in the Colorado Springs event.

Peggy's record showed a score of 98 per cent—40 for speed and 58 for condition. The Western "cow-horse," Ranger, tied the Eastern steed in speed, but was a half point, (97.5 per cent,) behind in the condition scoring.

Entering a plea of not guilty, Alfred Pultz, postmaster at Cos Cob, who is under indictment charging embezzlement of post office funds amounting to $300, had his case continued by Judge Thomas in federal court.

STREETER'S CROOKED POLITICS

HINT SETS NEW LONDON BUZZING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—It has been the claim of residents here and who have given the management of the city some thought that the council manager form of government would bring more crooked politics than was ever known under the old form of government. That element in the community were not surprised at the claim of Councilor Streeter, made at the council meeting Monday night, that rotten politics has crept into the management of the city. He accused the mayor of advocating opposition to secret meetings of the members of the council and committees appointed by that body, and then said that the mayor was now tacitly countenancing such meetings. That statement brought a hot reply from the mayor, and it is said that he will ask Mr. Streeter to retract his statements, so far as they directly were aimed at the mayor. Mr. Streeter's allusion to a smothered report on the matter of the police raids was stated as another instance of political scheming. Streeter said the committee having that matter in charge had intentionally delayed a report to the council upon what was to be recommended and intimated that there was politics in that action. These statements were resented by both the city manager and by Councilor Scott. "But why has not a report been made?" is the query that has followed the disclosure made by Mr. Streeter. It was said while the police probe was going on that attempts were being made by prejudiced members of the council to remove Captain Pinney and that these members were beaten at their own game simply because they were without justice in their effort. That opinion holds today as it did when the statement was made. To the fellow on the outside looking in, there is a row brewing in the council unless wise heads step it off. It is generally agreed that the police matter should be removed from the council for no member has anything to fear from the conclusions that may be reached by the council. It seems to be the popular conclusion that the police raids were largely made up of wind and that the balloon that held the wind has been punctured.

Judge Prince in the police court this morning handed Edward Leary a watch when he fined him $25 for an unprovoked assault upon William Rogers who has an office in the post office building. The trouble was not of immediate origin. It came from a sensational article published some time ago in which the name of Leary was connected with a girl friend. Leary has been away from town some time, but returned yesterday with the facts in mind and with the sensational article uppermost in his thoughts. So he went to the office of Rogers, called him into the corridor and proceeded to do "satisfaction" out of him. He took Rogers a blow in the teeth that caused a cut requiring five stitches to close. Other blows were in the face of Rogers, sustained badly discolored eyes.

Sailors appeared as usual on the docket of the court today. They were Edward Sousa, stationed at the state pier, who was making himself a nuisance in the street. Officer Edward Bordas walked him to the police station last night by the time after the sailor had abused with vile names the officer who was inclined to show him leniency. George Corman, also stationed at the state pier, was drunk at the Army and Navy hotel. He was put out of the place, but returned at one time and was given more abusive and annoying than when at first requested to stay away. He was fined $10. This was payday so a considerable hole was made in the amount of money these two men would have on for the spree last night.

James W. Southworth drove up Bank street in a hurry to catch the trolley that runs to Mystic Monday evening. He was in such a hurry that he bumped into the automobile of Otis Tuthill and damaged it to the extent of $45, it is claimed. There were witnesses to the accident and Southworth agreed to pay whatever the cost of repair shall amount to. With that understanding, Southworth was fined $10.

The annual meeting of Nameaug Engine Co., No. 2, assembled last evening in the quarters of the committee, Masonic street and was attended by a representative number of members for there was much business to claim the attention of the membership prior to the advent of the new year. In the election of officers, the choice of the members was as follows: Foreman, J. L. Sullivan; first assistant foreman, William Hamilton; second assistant foreman, Walter Mahoney; secretary, James Woods; treasurer, A. Fakourey; executive committee, William Nordenhold, chairman; Augustus Brewer, Frank Coombs, Ernest Saunders and Nicholas Dandona. The meeting lasted until after midnight but before adjournment was taken it was decided to hold a watch night meeting at the quarters New Year's eve.

Harry M. Rankin, 49, of 80 Lincoln avenue, for a number of years employed here as United States steamboat inspector, died at New Haven hospital, New Haven, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. He is survived by his wife. Mr. Rankin was a member of Somerset lodge of Masons, Norwich. Mr. Rankin had been under treatment at the New Haven hospital for a week. He was born in Cambridge, Mass., July 4, 1876, and about 20 years ago came to New London to act as representative of the government in the inspection of steam hulls and boilers.

Frances A. Wilson has sold to Charles J. and Lucretia E. Long a building lot on Colman street.

Helen Maynard and Frances Hurn, inmates of the State Farm for Women, Niantic, made their escape from the institution last night and today the local police were maintaining a watch for the runaways. The girls escaped about 9.30 o'clock and it was believed they would come to this city. The Maynard girl is described as being about five feet, four inches in height, weighs 130 pounds, has black bobbed hair and wore a red dress. The Hurn girl is about five feet six inches in height, weighs about 110 pounds, and has black bobbed hair. She wore a green dress.

Mrs. Honosky, 15 John street today requested the police to assist her in locating her daughter, nine, who disappeared from home yesterday. The girl attended school yesterday afternoon, but failed to return home at night.

Mrs. Norris Horen and infant son, of 15 Pequot avenue; Mrs. Earl Willis and infant son, 19 Front street; John Smith, United States Coast Guard, state pier; Miss Grandstan, Eastern Point, Groton; and Charles Street, United States Coast Guard, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

The annual banquet of Northwest Hose company took place this evening in the quarters of the company Brainard street and was attended by a large number of members as well as Chief Charles H. Rose, of the fire department, and members of the city council. Attorney Arthur B. Calkins was toastmaster and called upon Mayor Fox and other members of the city council for brief addresses. The customary Christmas tree with a Santa Claus was provided, and Santa distributed gifts to members of the fire company. A fine turkey supper was served and several hours of sociability followed.

Mrs. Josephine Stewart has returned to her home in Baltic, having spent two days with her mother, Mrs. Herbert Watson, of Main street.

Misses May and Elizabeth Donohue have moved from Easterly place, Ocean Beach, to the residence they recently had erected at 43 Lower Boulevard.

Mrs. J. L. Johnson has returned to her home, 248 Vauxhall street, having visited her mother in Blackstone, Mass.

Mrs. Maurice Spottswood, is critically ill, with pleuro-pneumonia, at her home, 54 Raymond street. Mrs. Spottswood is employed in the cost department of the Ship & Engine company.

Because of the recent resignation of Henry R. Bond as secretary and treasurer of the New London Ship & Engine Co., Elmer H. Schumacher has been elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Schumacher has been a resident of New London eleven years, the latter part of which time he has been employed by the Groton concern as cashier. Mr. Schumacher, a resident of Glenwood park during the summer, is now a resident at the Hotel Mohican.

The officers of St. Mary's Star of the Sea branch, 681, Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association were re-elected at the last meeting of the branch. The officers are: President, Mrs. Julia A. Koch; first vice president, Mrs. Conrad Stick; second vice president, Mrs. Michael Flanagan; recording secretary, Mrs. Frank E. G. Douglas; assistant recorder, Mrs. Mary Murphy; financial secretary, Mrs. Cornelius P. Heffernan; treasurer, Mrs. Mary E. Buckley; marshal, Mrs. George M. Cleary; guard, Mrs. Paul T. Stoddard; trustees, Mrs. Mary Rowley, Mrs. Catherine Foss, Mrs. Thomas Cahey, Miss Catherine Moran and Mrs. Edward E. McGrath. The officers will be installed Jan. 8.

The Order of Coast Guard Women, which was recently formed and whose membership comprises the members of families whose husbands are enlisted in the federal service, held its first meeting yesterday afternoon in the library at the Coast Guard academy. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. H. L. Pine; secretary, Mrs. L. T. Chalkers; treasurer, Mrs. George Wilcox; entertainment, Mrs. John McGourty; outside activities, Mrs. Ralph Dempwolf; membership, Mrs. Lehrman; housing, Mrs. Robert Donohue; publicity, Mrs. W. A. Munter.

At the annual meeting of Societa Tusana and Mutuo Socorso, held Sunday night in Odd Fellows' hall, Bank street, Joseph Micell, 862 Bank street, was elected president. Other officers elected are: Vice president, Frank DiMaggio; corresponding secretary, Joseph Perrone; recording secretary, Vincenzo Micell; treasurer, Frank Piscatello; trustees, Joseph Castagna, Joseph Dolce and Pasquale DiMaggio; sergeant-at-arms, Frank Ferrigno. The officers will be installed Jan. 1st.

The traffic signal corner of Montauk avenue and Lower Boulevard became out of order early this morning and a repair gang caused the signal to be illuminated, but again this evening the signal became out of order and it became necessary to make a number of repairs before the signal would operate.

Meridian street, one of the most heavily traversed streets in the city, is receiving the treatment of the new form of surfacing, which has worked well on several of the other streets used heavily by autoists.

Mr. and Mrs. Winder E. Reed, recently married in Waterford, have concluded their wedding journey and are now located on Franklin street. Mr. Reed is deputy of the New London county jail.

THREE YOUTHS ARRESTED IN ARMSTRONG-MARA CASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Late the afternoon, Thomas Muscarello, 20 Shaw street; Joseph Santangelo, 18 Shaw street, and Arthur Chase, Howard street, were taken into custody following statements having been made by Hazel Mara, 26 Woodbridge street, and Dorothy Armstrong, Howard street girl, both of whom have already been committed to state institutions for wayward girls. The arrest of the three took place when Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith rounded up the young men after having obtained affadavits from the girls. The warrants were issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollanderaky and recite in each case that the accused "did unlawfully commit an indecent assault upon the body of either the Mara or Armstrong girl, of said city a minor female under the age of 16 years."

The accused will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning, but it is not likely that the cases will be concluded Wednesday. The mother of the Mara girl has been summoned to be present at the hearing.

Both were in the limelight within a fortnight. The Armstrong girl was accused of having committed acts of immorality at Morgan park on different occasions and the Mara girl, who mysteriously disappeared from her home 19 days ago was found in a Howard street house, but a block from her home after absenting herself three days. Following the apprehension of the girls and even a third girl, the statements that each related caused the police to institute an investigation with the result that when the facts were revealed to Acting Prosecuting Attorney Hollanderaky this evening that official issued warrants for the arrest of Chase, Muscarello and Santangelo, who had been detained at the police station several hours.

Muscarello, Santangelo and Chase were admitted to bail of $50 each, but Chase was unable to obtain a surety on his bond and was remanded to a cell to await hearing. Santangelo and Muscarello obtained sureties, respectively in Tony DeLaura, Shaw street and Mrs. Santangelo became surety on her son's bond.

PEQUOT CASINO PROPERTY OWNED BY MR. AND MRS CLARK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—The deed transferring title in the former Pequot Casino property, Pequot avenue, from Robert Moore, New Orleans and New London, to Waldo E. and Daisy Clark, was received for record at the office of the city clerk this afternoon. The purchase price was $26,500. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will shortly take up their residence at the former exclusive clubhouse, which occupies a site of decided advantage, overlooking the mouth of the Thames river and Long Island sound.

TROLAND AND KEEFE EYE DIRECTOR OF LAW, PLUM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16— With the announcement last night that Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey had resigned as director of law in the employ of the city, after having held the office but a few months, it became known this afternoon that two of New London's youngest attorneys were seeking the office. These attorneys are Thomas E. Troland and Arthur T. Keefe, the latter of the law firm of Geary & Keefe. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Attorney Whittlesey will be filled by vote of the city council and not by appointment by the city manager, as the city charter is explicit in that the members of the city council cast their respective ballots to fill the office. This it is understood, will be done at the next meeting of the city council, Monday night.

DR. KOCH TO CONSTRUCT NEW GOV'T IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Dec. 15—(AP)—Dr. Erich Koch, who has been commissioned by President Von Hindenburg to construct a new government to succeed the Luther-Stresemann administration, conferred today with the leaders of the five parties which are prepared to enter the coalition cabinet—the German peoples party, Bavarian peoples centrists, democrats and social democrats.

An agreement in principle was reached respecting the government programme, but the leaders stipulated that the factions meeting tonight would be entitled to demand further additions and enlightenment. The party leaders will meet tomorrow for final decision.

The programme which Dr. Koch submitted proposes ratification of the Washington agreement simultaneously with Great Britain, France and Belgium, to insure the greatest possible reciprocity between the principal industrial countries; the guiding line is to be the materialization of the Locarno treaty and the hope is expressed that occupation will be eliminated as early as possible.

The co-operation of European countries is emphasized as indispensable, and for this purpose a world economic conference is considered an appropriate measure. The customs tariff is declared to be the instrument for insuring the most extensive international market for German trade.

SUIT OVER THE LIFE INSURANCE OF A BROKER

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—When Arthur Miller, young New Rochelle insurance broker, shot and killed himself in a hired limousine on the Boston Post road on the afternoon of March 21, he laid the foundation of a tangled life insurance problem which twelve jurymen in federal court today wrestled to unravel.

His widow brought suit to collect $129,000 in life insurance which the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company refused to pay on the ground that the policy had expired.

The premium was due at three o'clock on the afternoon of January 23. Thirty-one days of grace were provided for the policy which brought the dead line to three o'clock, March 1. March 1st., was Sunday, which brought the legal hour of expirement to three o'clock, March 2. It was within a few minutes of this hour that Miller shot himself, but whether before or after the jury must decide.

Michael Joseph McIlroy, the chauffeur who drove Miller's car at the time of his suicide, was the principal witness for the widow today. He testified that the shot was fired between 15 and 20 minutes before three o'clock. A nurse from the hospital where Miller's body was taken testified for the insurance company that it was nearly four o'clock when Miller's body was brought to the hospital although it is only a short distance from the scene of the suicide.

Huge Sign for Mormon Temple

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 15 (AP)—Money has been appropriated and Mormon church authorities have approved plans to paint gigantic letters spelling Salt Lake or Salt Lake City on the roof of the famous Mormon tabernacle. The sign was decided upon the hope that it would aid aviators passing over this section.

Popular Sheik Separates From Wife

Although Rudolph Valentino wears a slave chain bracelet he has let the world know that he is no slave. During an interview recently he declared, "I think man should be the master." The popular sheik and his wife decided on a "marital vacation" two months ago, and he is still waiting for her to decide between a career of her own and private domestic life with him.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Anniversary of the Boston Tea party.

Only one minute more decrease before the shortest day of the year.

One hundred and fifty years ago today was born Jane Austen, whose novels were the delight of our grandmothers.

Ninety years ago today New York city was visited by the worst fire in its history, nearly 700 buildings being destroyed.

The Rt. Rev. John M. Gannon today observes his fifth anniversary as bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Erie, Pa.

Members of the national affairs committee of the Woman's National Republican club are to make a pilgrimage to Washington today in support of President Coolidge's policies before the United States senate.

A special convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New Hampshire meets at Concord to elect a bishop to succeed the Rt. Rev. Edward M. Parker, who died suddenly while attending the recent general convention at New Orleans.

A conference of police justices from the larger towns of New Jersey has been called to meet in Newark today to solicit their support of the anti-drunken-driving act to be introduced at the next session of the legislature. The purpose of the measure is to prevent wholesale appeals by convicted drunken drivers on trivial technicalities.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Breed Theater

One of those ultra-modern women who hates housework and likes to preach about the freedom of her sex will be shown today and Thursday at the Breed theater when First National opens its engagement of The Talker.

She silences a "hen-pecked" husband and has her entire neighborhood thoroughly cowed but suddenly her young and unsophisticated sister disappears. It appears the child has adopted her views and eloped with one of the greatest, yet most fascinating, rogues of the community—a man who happens already to be married.

Thus the "talker" reaps her just reward and the tensely dramatic action of rescuing the girl gets under way.

It is a human story—this picture—and its characters might easily have been drawn from the life of almost any community.

Anna Q. Nilsson, as the wife, and Lewis S. Stone in the role of the husband give to their characterizations a human touch that might, indeed, be life itself. Not since Inez From Hollywood have these two done anything better, in our humble opinion.

Sam E. Rork, Inc., who produced both pictures, has given the latter an imposing supporting cast. Shirley Mason, as the runaway little sister; Ian Keith, Tully Marshall and others combine to make the acting throughout as if not better, than anything that we have witnessed on the screen in some time.

Alfred E. Green, who directed Colleen Moore in Sally and other good film entertainment, handled the megaphone in The Talker, and Arthur Edeson, responsible for the camera work in First National's great special, The Lost World, did the grinding here.

Palace Theatre

Today music critics might be commenting on the extraordinary applause that greeted Gloria Swanson, operatic star, on her rendition of the works of some great composer.

For the famous Paramount star very nearly adopted a vocal career before she decided in favor of the films.

When Gloria returned to her home in Chicago from Porto Rico, where her father, an army officer, was stationed, it was with the intention of studying singing.

Gloria's latest Paramount picture is "Stage Struck," an original story by Frank Be Adams, written especially for the star by Frank R. Adams and adapted for the screen by Sylvia La Varre. Lawrence Gray is leading man. Ford Sterling, screen comedian; Gertrude Astor, Marguerite Evans, Carrie Scott and other big names appear in the strong supporting cast.

The story is one of the down-at-the-heels young waitress in a small Ohio river town who aspires to be a great actress. According to Paramount, "Stage Struck" goes "Manhandled" one better. And you know what that one was! "Stage Struck" is playing at the Palace theatre today.

JAPANESE FARMERS REFUSE TO FERTILIZE DUE TO SUN SPOTS

TOKYO, Dec. 15. (AP)—The presence of "spots" on the sun is declared to have caused a decided slump in the sale of artificial fertilizer in Japan.

A boom trade had been expected earlier in the year, but thus far dealers have found business extremely bad. An investigation disclosed farmers feared that the presence of sun spots meant that a famine was due next year and that the purchase of fertilizers would be just so much waste of money.

FARMERS RECEIVE MEAT OUT OF BOXES JUST LIKE MAIL

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., Dec. 15 (AP)—With the installation of a lockbox cold storage system, farmers of San Luis Obispo county now obtain their daily supply of meat in the same way they get their mail.

The farmers store their meat in the boxes in proper cuts, and when they go to town they take enough out of storage to last them until their next visit.

BERLIN LIFE GUARDS MUST SWIM AS WELL AS THEY POSE

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Handsome bronzed Apollos no longer will be stationed as lifeguards at municipal bathing beaches solely for the admiration of young women. They at least must be able to swim.

Municipal authorities investigating the drownings of two boys in one of the outdoor swimming pools report that rescue of the lads was hampered by the fact that many of the lifeguards could not swim. It is charged that dry land bathing frequently indulged in by women with stunning bathing costumes also has been practised by guards whose suits probably would not stand the water.

POETRY

The Lonely Bird.

O tangled throat of whirr thy, hidden bird!
Perched in green dimness of the dewy wood,
And murmuring, in that lonely, lover mood,
Thy heartache, softly heard,
Sweetened by distance, over land and lake.

Why, like a kinsman, do I feel thy voice
Awaken voices in me free and sweet?
Was there some fane of ancestral birdhood fleet
That rose and would rejoice;
A broken cycle rounded in a song?

The lake, like steady wine in a deep cup,
Lay crystal in the curving mountain deeps;
And now the air brought that long lyric up
That sobs, then falls and weeps.
And hushes silence into listening hope.

Is it that we are sprung of one old kin,
Children of brooding earth, that feels us tell,
Then from thy rhythmic throat, I deep within,
These syllables of her spell,
This hymned wisdom of her pondering years?

For thou hast spoken song-wise in a tongue
I knew not till I heard the buried air
Burst from the boughs and bring me what thou sung.
Here where the lake lies bare
To reaching summits and the azure sky.

Thy music is a language of the trees.
The brown soil, and the never-trodden brake;
Translatress art thou of dumb mysterium
That dream through wood and lake;
And I, in thee, have uttered what I am!

—Harrison Smith Morris.

Sleep

Withdraw three, soul, from strife.
Enter thine unseen bark.
And sail across the dark,
The silent sea of life.
Leave Care and Grief, feared now no more,
To wave and beckon from the shore,

Thy tenement is bare,
Shut are the burning eyes,
Ears deaf against surprise,
Limbs in posture fair,
The body sleeps, unheeding thee.
And thou, my sailing soul, art free.

Rouse not to choose thy way;
To make it long or short,
Or seek some golden port.
In haste, ere springs the day.
Desire is naught and effort vain;
Here be who seeks shall ne'er attain.

Dream-winged, thy boat may drift
Where lands lie warm in light;
Or sail, wiht silent flight,
Oblivion cleaving swift.
Still, dusk or dawning, art thou blest,
O Fortune's darling, dowered with rest!
—Alice Brown.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Obie—I ran into a friend of yours yesterday.

Josh—Did we apologize?—University of Kentucky Cardinal.

He—Why did your father get that big bulldog?

She—Oh, just for company.

He (anxiously)—Not for your, I hope.—Boston Transcript.

"What do you think of this picture of my wife?"

"It's a speaking likeness!"

"Yes. It's wonderfully natural."—Buen Humor, Madrid.

"Now, Johnny," said the teacher, "can you name a cape in Alaska?"

"No'm," said Johnny.

"That's right! Cape Nome."—Bulletin of Pharmacy.

Jack—Professor says that we are to help others.

Jill—Yes?

Jack—And I'd like to know what the others are here for.—University of Nebraska Awgwan.

Mistress—You can have this hat, Reynolds. I shall not wear it again.

Her maid—That is kind of you, mum. It's the very one my young man likes me in best!—Pearson Magazine.

Seeley—"Did your wife vote last night?"

Reeve—"Yes. She went to the polls wearing her new fall hat that contained all the primary colors."—Twice Told Tales.

Mom—Well, that one isn't sanitary.

Johnnie—It must be—everybody uses it.—Toronto Globe.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks irregular; 20 rails at year's peak prices.

Bonds mixed; French issues react.

Cotton firm; trade buying.

Sugar higher, anticipation lower crop estimate.

Coffee lower, disappointing spot demand.

Chicago

Wheat strong bullish Argentine crop report.

Corn higher; sympathy with wheat.

Cattle strong; good demand for heavies.

Hogs firm; shipping outlet broad.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Uneven price movements characterized today's stock market, which was featured by the renewal of activity and strength in the railroad shares and the weakness of the motors and a few industrial specialties. Trading was in relatively heavy volume, the day's sales aggregating 2,021,400 shares.

Strength of the railroad shares, 30 of which attained their highest prices this year or longer, indicated the appearance of a strong investment demand, in addition to the usual speculative showing which was attracted by reports of large current earnings, possibilities of special dividend declarations and expectations of early important developments and pending mergers.

Speculative interest outside the stock market centered in the further elapse of French francs and the rally in commodity prices. Wheat moved up 4 to 5 cents a bushel on the news that the Argentine government's crop confirmed private reports of severe damage. Cotton also made substantial recovery on what appeared to be short covering.

Illinois Central, whose 1925 earnings are expected to exceed $12 a share, soared over six points to a new peak at 124 7-8, closing just below the top, and the preferred showed a net gain of 5 3-4 at 124 1-2. Other rails to break through their previous 1925 maximum prices were Pennsylvania, Atchison, New Haven, Southern, Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred, Chicago and Northwestern, "Nickel Plate", Atlantic Coast Line, Norfolk and Western and Western Pacific.

Oil shares took on a new lease of life in the late trading under the leadership of Pan-American B., which closed a point higher at 75 3-4 on buying apparently influenced by the announcement of substantially higher prices on 1926 fuel oil contracts. The new Pan-American Western B. stock advanced 2 1-2 points to a new peak price at 48 1-2.

Liquidation of the motors was due in part, to the switching of speculative accounts into other stocks on the theory that most of the motors had discounted all the "good news" in sight. Chrysler broke over nine points to 295 3-4 and then rallied to 306 1-2. Hudson showed a net loss of 3 points to 101 1-4 and General Motors, Chandler, Fisher Body, Packard, Timken Roller Bearing and White fell back 1 to 2 1-2 points.

The general industrial list was rather spotty. American Can closed 2 points lower at 261 1-2 after having closed 264 to a new record high price. United States Steel common closed fractionally higher at 135 1-2. Sudium Steel which is expected to share the declaration of stock dividends, in addition to cash payments, early next year, touched a new record high at 60. Among the score or other industrials to break through their previous 1925 maximum prices were American Ice, American Republics, Montgomery Ward, New York Canners, Standard Milling and Weber and Heilbroner.

Call money held steady at 5 per cent., all day. Time money rates were unchanged at 4 7-8 to 5 per cent., but there were fewer offerings at the lower rate. Prime commercial paper ruled firm at 4 1-4 per cent.

Renewal of selling pressure against French francs, despite the restriction imposed on the purchase of foreign securities in Paris, sent demand bills down to another new 1925 low record below 3.85 cents, or about 16 points above the extreme low record last March. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.84 5-8. Polish zloty broke 75 points to 10.25 cents, but most of the other European exchanges fluctuated within narrow and irregular limits.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(By the Associated Press)—Weakness of French bonds, which were heavily liquidated upon the resignation of the French finance minister today contrasted with the upward movement of domestic issues. A slightly firmer market for the money failed to impede constructive operations, which were carried out with conspicuous success in the railroad group, following a rise in the carrier stocks.

The aggravated political crisis at Paris itensified the uneasiness felt by French bondholders over the failure to carry out financial reforms, and many of these issues were thrown on the market in heavy volume. Losses ranging from 1 to 2 points were registered by the government railroad and municipal issues simultaneously with another break in the franc to the lowest level of the year, while American reacted four points.

Strength of the railroad shares was communicated to the bonds of the carriers several of which followed their stocks into new high ground for the year. Among these were Norfolk and Western convertible sixes which crossed 150 and Cheesapeake and Ohio convertible 5s which sold at 124 5-8, closing 21-2 points net higher. Reports of expanding earnings and other favorable developments also stimulated a demand for Pennsylvania general 4 1-2s, Atlantic Coast Line fours, Florida East Coast 5s, Western Maryland fours, Frisco adjustment sixes, Reading general 4 1-2s, Chicago Great Western 4s, Erie convertible 4s and Iowa Central issues.

Early irregularity in the oil group was overcome when a brisk remand developed for Skelly 6 1-2s and Pan American sixes, both of which rallied about a point. Bethlehem Steel sixes and Murray Body sixes were other strong features.

Public offering will be made tomorrow by Halsey, Stuart and Company of $6,000,000 consumers company, $6 bonds due in 1946 at 98, to yield over 6.15 per cent.

SHOULD MAIL CHRISTMAS PACKAGES EARLY TO INSURE DELIVERY

As there will be no delivery of ordinary mail Christmas day, Postmaster Casper K. Bailey Tuesday evening emphasized the need for early mailing of Christmas packages, etc. All Christmas mail must be in the post office sufficiently early to reach its destination and to be delivered before Christmas day, said the postmaster. Any mail, especially films, perishable parcels, etc., mailed so as to reach their destination on Christmas day, should bear a special delivery stamp in order to insure delivery that day. All special delivery mail will be handled and delivered on Christmas day, but ordinary mail will not be delivered that day.

For the convenience of the public directions for the mailing of parcel post and other mail are herewith published.

All parcels must be securely wrapped or packed. Use strong paper and heavy twine.

Umbrellas, canes, golf sticks should be reinforced their full length by strong strips of wood tightly wrapped and tied to withstand transportation.

Hats: Packed in strong corrugated or fiber boxes. Ordinary pasteboard hat boxes must be crated. Ladies' hats and stiff hats easily damaged should be marked "FRAGILE."

Shoes: Pack in strong boxes, preferably corrugated cardboard. Wrap with strong paper, securely tied with heavy twine.

Cut flowers: Place in strong suitable boxes of wood, tin, or heavy corrugated cardboard. Wrap with tissue to retain moisture.

Candies: Inclose in strong outside boxes or containers.

Drawings, paintings, unmounted maps, etc.: Pack or wrap in strong material to avoid damage. When not flat, roll around a wooden core and then wrap and tie carefully or place in strong pasteboard tube.

Sharp-pointed or sharp-edge instruments or tools must have points and edges fully guarded to prevent injury to clerks in handling or damage to other mail. Crate suitably or thoroughly wrap so that they can not cut through the wrapping.

Articles easily broken or crushed must be crated or securely wrapped. Use liberal quantities of excelsior or like material, in, around, and between the articles and the outside container.

Glassware, fragile toys, crockery must be packed so as to prevent the escape of particles or pieces if broken in transit.

Cigars: Ordinary boxes of cigars wrapped in paper only will not be accepted. Pack in a manner to prevent damage by shock or jar. Wrap in corrugated pasteboard or similar material.

All articles easily broken or damaged must be plainly marked "FRAGILE."

Articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery will not be accepted for mailing. Wrap or pack carefully, according to contents, and plainly mark all such parcels "PERISHABLE." Use special-delivery stamps to expedite delivery.

Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street, post office box or rural route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left hand corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

Postage must be fully prepaid on all mail. Affix the required amount of postage in the upper right hand corner. Full information concerning postage rates can be obtained at the parcel-post or stamp window.

No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length, and girth combined. For delivery locally and in the first, second and third zones, 70 pounds is the maximum weight; in all other zones, 50 pounds.

Uninsured parcels 8 ounces or less in weight may be mailed in street letter or package boxes, at all classified stations and branches, and at such numbered stations as are designated to receive parcels. Parcels weighing over 8 ounces can not be mailed in street boxes, but must be taken to the main post office or classified station or branch. Parcels containing meat, food products, cut flowers, or other perishable matter should be mailed only at the main post office or one of the large classified stations.

Christmas gifts and cards addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed not later than December 20; within two days' travel, not later than December 18; within three days travel, not later than December 16; for more distant points, not later than December 14. Parcels and cards for local delivery should be mailed not later than December 22.

Parcels and envelopes may be indorsed "please do not open until Christmas."

The early mailing of Christmas cards is just as important as parcels. Millions of these cards, separate and in envelopes, are mailed each Christmas. Consequently, great congestion and delay occurs in large postoffices, where they are all mailed within a day or two of Christmas. Therfore, if you want your Christmas greetings to reach your relatives and friends on or before Christmas day, follow the instructions in the preceding paragraph relative to mailing early and be certain of delivery before Christmas.

Written matter in the nature of personal correspondence can not be inclosed in parcels.

Communications attached to parcels: A letter placed in an envelope, addressed to correspond with the address on the parcel, and fully prepaid at the first-class rate, may be tied or otherwise securely attached to the outside of the parcel in such manner as to prevent separation therefrom and not obscure the address on the parcel.

Special-delivery service is obtained by affixing a special-delivery stamp of the proper denomination, or its equivalent in ordin

TAFTVILLE

The semi-annual business meeting and election of officers of the Lafayette club, took place Sunday afternoon in their rooms in the Ponemah house building. The following officers were elected to serve for the coming six months: President, Conrad Ducharme; vice president, Azarie Gauthier; recording secretary, Deneris Bibeau; financial secretary, Wilfred Gagnon; corresponding secretary, Robert Turcotte; treasurer, Marius Regnin; committee on order, Louis Bellerose, Hector Marien, Emery Bellerose, Harvey Gaya; auditors, Mendoza Morin, Cyril McClure, Alfred Labarre; janitor, Sylvia Dania. Following the election a smoker was held, and refreshments of ham sandwiches, coffee and cake were served. The members were entertained with popular French songs during the smoker.

Through a typographical error, the extermination of the Narragansett Indians was brought down to modern history in an account in the Taftville column of The Bulletin, Tuesday. The fight took place in 1675—250 years ago, not 20 years ago as stated in the paper.

Miss Olivine Guertin of Norwich avenue has resigned her position with the spooling department of the Ponemah company.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jodoin of Providence street are moving this week to one of the apartments in the house owned by their son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boldue on Boldue Lane.

Yeodokim, a handsome Samoyede puppy bred by William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue, was shipped Tuesday to one of the leading Samoyede kennels in the country. The puppy was sired by Champion Yuraks Nansen the Westminster winner for the past two years, and judged the best of the breed at the Eastern States exposition at Springfield.

The regular meeting of the A-o-we-ki-ya Camp Fire girls was held Friday evening at the home of the assistant guardian, Miss Elsie Heap of South Second avenue.

Miss Eunice Junkins of Providence street is confined to her home by an attack of tonsilitis.

Mrs. John Archibald of Providence street was in Willimantic Tuesday to visit her daughter, Miss Betty Archibald who is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital, following an automobile accident Monday evening.

JOHN DODGE STILL IN SERIOUS CONDITION

The condition of John Dodge, 15 year old son of Mrs. Hannah Dodge and the late Orrin Dodge, who was injured, Monday evening, when knocked off his bicycle by an automobile driven by Thomas J. Driscoll, of 45 Uncas street, was considered as very serious at an early hour Wednesday morning at the Backus hospital.

The boy, after remaining unconscious for over 12 hours, slowly improved and at times, late Tuesday, had moments of consciousness, only to lapse into a semi-conscious state almost immediately, these spells continuing throughout Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning.

He is suffering from a fracture of the skull, just above the base of the brain and this is said to be in his favor, but the danger point has not yet been passed.

His many friends in this city await more comforting news concerning his condition and hope for a speedy recovery.

COMMON PLEAS JURY RETURNS VERDICT FOR THE DEFENDANT

With Judge Arthur F. Libby of this city on the bench the trial of the $500 damage suit of the Flanders Garage, Inc., against Emthone Ceccarello, began last Thursday in the court of common pleas was taken up Tuesday at the court session in New London. It is a jury case, the jury late in the afternoon returning a verdict for the defendant.

The plaintiff alleged that on March 4, 1924, a truck owned by the plaintiff and operated by Arthur J. Winslow, an employe, was proceeding slowly on the Poquonnoc road, in a westerly direction, on the right hand side of the highway. According to the papers in the suit when near Trail's corner, a Buick touring car, owned and operated by the defendant approached, traveling at a high rate of speed in an easterly direction, and in a "reckless, negligent and careless manner, and on the left hand side of the highway."

The plaintiff alleged that without warning of any kind the defendant car struck the plaintiff's truck causing serious damage.

The majority of the plaintiff's allegations were denied by the defendant, who entered a counter claim for $750, later amending it to $1,000, claiming that the plaintiff's truck struck the defendant's car damaging it extensively and injuring the defendant. The injuries according to the papers in the counter claim were the loss of one tooth and injuries to the head, limbs and body.

Attorneys Thomas E. Troland and Warren C. Burrows appeared for the defendant while Attorneys Clayton B. Smith and Tracy Waller were counsel for the plaintiff.

The defendant was on the stand and following his testimony and cross examination, a long legal debate started regarding the ascertaining of the market value of the Buick car before the accident. Attorney Troland attempted to derive the information from an expert in used cars but Attorney Waller objected.

The question was aimed to ascertain, in the opinion of the expert, what the Buick touring car, driven but 5,000 miles and in good condition, was worth just previous to the crash. The defendant had, according to testimony, sold the car for $200 following the accident.

Attorney Troland maintained that his client was not obliged to have the car repaired and therefore he wished to have the jury hear what the market value of the car was before the accident.

A number of supreme court decisions were cited and arguments were presented by Attorneys Smith, Waller, Troland and Burrows, with many interruptions during their procedure. At the noon recess, Judge Libby consented to withhold his ruling on the objection until afternoon in order that in the meantime, Attorney Troland might gather several cases to substantiate his right of claim to the question.

Judge Libby ruled against the objection at the afternoon session. The case went to the jury during the late afternoon and at 5:30 o'clock the jury returned a defendant's verdict.

MONTHLY MEETING OF NORWICH ART ASSOCIATION

At the monthly meeting of the Norwich Art association held Monday evening it was voted to buy etchings of the late Ozias Dodge as selected by a committee named for that purpose. It was also voted, in view of the great interest Mr. Dodge took in trees and forestry, that a committee should be appointed to confer with the street commissioner to consider means for the preservation of the trees of Norwich.

Miss Trumbull, Miss Faith Leavens, and Miss Mary Aiken were named as the committee to select the etchings and Miss Nancy E. Lucas was appointed chairman of the committee to confer with the street commissioner.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Mrs. Alexander H. Abbott read a most instructive paper on Ghiberti and Donatello, two sculptors of the Renaissance.

Lorenzo Ghiberti was born in 1378 and brought up and trained by his stepfather and a goldsmith, named Bartolo, from whom he learned the principles of design. Ghiberti's great delicacy of style and smoothness of execution are considered among the chief merits of his work.

He was also a painter, and it was while in Rimini engaged in frescoding in the palace of Carlo Malatesta, Lord of Pesaro, that his father urged him to return to Florence. The Signory and Guild of the Merchants had decided that the remaining doors of the Baptistry should be made, and all masters of eminence throughout Italy were ordered to repair to Florence and submit a specimen of their skill.

Ghiberti won the competition and was commissioned to make the doors. The work occupied 21 years. So beautiful were they when completed that Andrea Pisano, after which those were hodged, was removed to the other side and Ghiberti's placed where Andrea's had been.

So delighted were the people of Florence that he was commissioned to make the third pair.

The second doors were his masterpiece—"worthy to be the gates of Paradise," Michael Angelo said. He labored over this work 20 years.

These doors are unique in the use of two fields of art to present pictures of very great elegance and beauty.

Donatello, who assisted Ghiberti for a short time was ten years his junior and a profound, many sided genius. He was the sculptor of masculine form, his Madonnas and the Virgin of the Annunciation being the exceptions. His energy was restless. Ghiberti worked only in marble and bronze; Donatello, expressed himself not only in these but in wood, stone and clay. Always the innovator, his subjects range from the delicacy of Young St. John basrelief to the great equestrian statue of Gatta-malata. He did not pour perfection of form into all his works, but always life. He of all sculptors of the Renaissance is the master of conveying spiritual suggestion by means of his art.

Slides were shown of the doors of the Baptistry in great detail and of Donatello's statues that fill the niches of the Campanile and for which he is famous.

SANTA WILL DISTRIBUTE EAST SIDE GIFTS

Over 1,600 invitations have been sent out for the East Side Community Christmas treat and a general invitation has been extended to all residents to attend the party, which is to be held at the new Bishop school on Tuesday, December 22nd. The committee has also requested that all school children, not attending Bishop school, but residing in the Bridge district, send their names to the Duwell club so that arrangements may be made to take care of them.

Besides the Christmas tree, which will have its fine load of Christmas presents, Santa Claus will be present to distribute the gifts. Entertainment will have its fine load of Christmas singing of Christmas carols and special numbers by the children, for whose benefit the party has been arranged.

People on the East Side have been requested to donate a gift, not to exceed 50 cents in value, to be distributed to the children. Collection stations have been selected to include the stores of William Disco, William E. Shanley, David Lyons, Preston Public Market and LaPre Bros. The committee has also asked that all gifts be turned in by Saturday night, thus allowing the committee sufficient time to prepare for the party.

Judge Brown at Rockville

The first of the jury trials at the December sitting of the Tolland County Superior court before Judge Allyn L. Brown of Norwich, began Tuesday at Rockville. Three cases were assigned for this week: Tuesday, first case, Pauline Magara against the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co., second case, Francis A. Minor against Samuel Ginsberg; Wednesday, William G. Frese, receiver, the Farmers Co-operative Dairy Co., against E. A. Raymond. Twenty-seven men have been summoned for jury duty to hear these cases.

The timekeeper is always able to attend to his duties, even though he keeps a good many late hours.

"BIG DAN'S" CASE CONTINUED TO THURSDAY

Daniel "Big Dan" Ziezunk, proprietor of a lunch room at 9 1-2 Thames street was before the police court, Tuesday morning, charged with violation of the liquor law by actual sale. The case was continued until Thursday morning by Deputy Judge H. H. Fellis, the state making no protest as one of the principal witnesses was not in court to give his testimony in the case.

This witness is Alex Leonard, a neighbor of Andrew Petrowski, of Everett street, who is to be required to furnish a bond to guarantee his appearance.

Ziezunk is out on bonds of $2,300, furnished as surety of his appearance at the next session of the New London country superior court, criminal session. The bond of $1,500 required in this last case, for a continuance, was granted.

The cases against Earl Jacobs, of West Dudley, Mass., and Ralph Medhurst, of Rocky Hill, Conn., were nolled on recommendation of City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins. Both men were charged with being fugitives from justice. They were taken to Boston, Monday afternoon, by an officer who came from that city and the stolen automobile, in which the men were riding, was also taken to Boston, the owner of the car identifying it as his property on arrival in this city with the Boston officer.

BANKERS TRUST TO PAY QUARTERLY DIVIDENDS

On January 1, 1926, the Banker's Trust Co., will start paying quarterly dividends for the first time. In the past semi-annual dividends have been paid by the bank. The Christmas club checks were mailed out Monday. The payments, amounting to many thousands of dollars, are the largest ever paid out by the bank. The 1926 Christmas club has started off larger than ever. Savings depositors' dividends and re-dividend on the capital stock will be payable January 1st.

This month, the planets Mars and Saturn are too near the sun to be seen, while Uranus and Neptune are too faint to be made out with the naked eye. At the very end of the month, Mercury will be visible in the east, in the morning twilight.

GREENEVILLE GIRL WROTE THIRD PRIZE ESSAY

Following is the essay written by Sophie Cimikoski, a pupil at the Greeneville school, which was awarded third prize in the contest conducted by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce on the topic, Why Norwich is an Attractive Place in Which to Live:

Introduction.

Location.

Advantages — Industrial; commercial; educational; social.

Work of the Chamber of Commerce.

Norwich, the Rose of New England, and one of the oldest towns, was founded in 1659 by an adventurous band of Puritans whose descendants have of Puritans whose descendants have town. Norwich is noted for its rare natural charms. It nestles among the rugged hills of eastern Connecticut and is traversed by many sparkling streams and winding valleys which are of supreme natural glory.

The town of Norwich is situated at the head of navigation on the Thames river which is the gateway to the ocean. The town is also located halfway between New York and Boston.

The exceptionally fine water power in the immediate neighborhood of the city has given an immense impetus to the development of manufacturing industries here.

Norwich has a well established business besides a great variety of industries of miscellaneous products which are shipped to all parts of the country. The Shetucket and Yantic rivers which make the Thames river turn many wheels of busy mills. The people are interested in manufacturing and thus turn out many varieties of manufactured goods such as cutlery, firearms, cotton, woolen, silk and rubber goods and others. There are several large banks within its territory which make the banking center of eastern Connecticut.

For a city devoted largely to manufacturing Norwich is also justly noted for its picturesque beauty. Its citizens have been lavish in erecting beautiful residences, churches, schools and clubs.

There are many schools located in all parts of the town because of the steady growth of the city and because the people are interested in education. More pupils enter higher classes of study each year. The philanthropic citizens who appreciated the advantages of education laid the foundations principally in the case of the Norwich Free Academy. Another aid for education are the two libraries, Otis and Peck, which add to their volumes of books each year.

Norwich hasn't forgotten the children. There are many parks and playgrounds where athletics can be enjoyed.

Homes for the poor and invalids are also established in the town. The United Workers help the poor in the County Home and Alms House.

Norwich is well protected by police and has capable fire fighters. The loss of fire in Norwich ranks lower than any other city of Connecticut.

Without a doubt the biggest factor that makes for the development of a city is its Chamber of Commerce. Such an organization, which has for its object, the betterment of the city from every viewpoint is a big asset to any community. In Norwich we are fortunate in having a Chamber of Commerce that looks out for the public welfare and makes Norwich an attractive city in which to live.

ALLYN RUBBER COMPANY GOES INTO BANKRUPTCY

Directors and largest stockholders and creditors of the H. H. Allyn Rubber Corp., of Norwich, met Friday afternoon in the county commissioner's office and voted to petition the federal courts that the company be adjudged a bankrupt concern.

Attorney John T. Berry drew up the schedule and necessary papers and they were sent to New Haven Tuesday. Referee in bankruptcy Thomas M. Shields stated that as soon as the necessary papers were in his hands he would set a date for the hearing on the petition.

The company is capitalized at $250,000 of which $130,000 is paid in. The equity of the company consists of machinery, equipment and patents, which were turned over to the company when it was organized.

The company manufactured the Allyn Self seal inner tube, and orders were heavy throughout New England and the south and west but it is alleged that the high price of crude rubber has caused the financial difficulties, rubber being estimated in the sale price as 35 cents per pound, the highest price since the war, but when it went to $1.30 a pound the business could not make a profit.

It is alleged that there is still a heavy demand for the tube and that the filling of contracts caused the company to exhaust its funds, causing the destruction which has sent several larger companies into bankruptcy.

Those representing the directors, largest stockholders, largest creditors on the notes and obligations of the company at this meeting were: H. H. Allyn, president, N. J. Ayling, George H. Bradford, James C. Mara, Norwich, Fred C. Grove, Providence, Raymond C. Vars, Westerly.

At present the machinery of the corporation is in storage in the former plant on Thames street, this city.

INSURANCE AGENTS NAME COUNTY VICE PRESIDENTS

At the 26th annual meeting of Connecticut Association of Insurance Agents at Hartford Monday Thomas D. Faulkner, of Hartford, was unanimously re-elected president of the association just previous to adjournment. Other officers elected, most of whom served in the same capacities during the year just completed, are as follows: Vice president, Louis H. Arnold, of Willimantic; honorary vice president, Donald G. North, of New Haven; honorary vice president, Charles E. Putter, of Waterbury; secretary-treasurer, Charlotte W. Rice, New Haven.

The following regional vice presidents were also elected: Fairfield county, Herbert Loewith, Bridgeport; New Haven county, Mancel Rice, New Haven; Middlesex county, A. L. Boughton, Middletown; New London county, Eben Learned, Norwich; Litchfield county, E. B. Mallette, Torrington; Hartford county, Clement Erlshum, Hartford; Tolland county, L. F. Bissell, Rockville; Windham county, James Mustard, Willimantic.

The extreme laxity of Connecticut laws which have for a number of years permitted mutual insurance companies from other states to come into Connecticut and under-sell by a wide margin Connecticut companies handling compensation insurance, and the attitude of the Connecticut companies themselves in letting all such business go to these outside companies by default were severely criticised by several members of the association.

Recovering From Accident

Friends of Mrs. L. R. Bissonette, who was injured in a fall on the veranda of her home, No. 658 North Main street, Thanksgiving eve, are pleased to learn that she is now able to sit up about an hour every day and is steadily gaining in strength.

DAIRY HEAD SPEAKS ON VALUE OF RECORDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Dec. 15—"The Value of Dairy Records," was the subject of a lecture given over the radio here last night by Professor George C. White, head of the dairy department of the Connecticut Agricultural college. It was the ninth lesson of the radio-correspondence course which is being broadcast each Monday night at 7:30 from station WCAC, the college radio station.

Outlining the reasons why records should be kept, Professor White declared milk records invariably show variations in the productivity of the several cows. The lowest producing cows are not only failing to bring satisfactory income for the feed, the labor, and the other costs invested in them, but at the same time they impose a draft upon the profits which are being derived from their higher yielding stable mates. He claimed there are many instances showing greater profits derived from a smaller herd after the removal of inferior cows.

Milk records were discussed by Professor White, and in pointing out their benefits, he said they show with certainty the inferior cows so that they can be eliminated both as producers and breeders. They make skillful and profitable feeding possible, for the poor cow gets little or no grain, and her customary share is saved or it may go to the cows that are capable of using it for even greater production. He also brought out that sickness and other disturbances can be more quickly detected and remedied by observing the daily records of a cow's flow. It also serves as a check on the effectiveness of hired labor in caring for cows, he said.

Records of feed consumed, labor and overhead costs, and butter fat tests were all discussed by Professor White, who outlined the advantages and best means of keeping each.

JUDGE RESERVES DECISION IN $200,000 LIQUOR CASE

Choice liquor to the value of $200,000 at bootleg prices, together with the French schooner Lousinac, which have been held at the Coast Guard academy at New London since their seizure July 30 by the Coast Guard cutter Red Wing from the Sub base, were involved in forfeiture proceedings Monday afternoon before Judge Edwin S. Thomas in the federal court at Hartford. The question at issue was whether the vessel had been within the three mile limit, was argued for the government by Assistant U. S. District Attorney John Danaher, and Attorney Louis Halle of New York for the owners of the ship and cargo, Mauris L. Fitte of St. Pierre, Miquelon.

Attorney Halle argued that no accurate testimony could be shown that the vessel was within three miles of the shore, since the vessel was admittedly seized at a point eight or nine miles off shore. Ensign Raymond V. Mar[illegible] of N. London, skipper of the Red Wing at the time the seizure was effected, was the only witness for the government. In his account of the chase of the Mousmee, Ensign Marron related that he had made his course to a point three miles off the south end of Nantucket Island. The French schooner, he testified, was within this course. When it sighted the cutter, he continued, the schooner changed her course and put out to sea. The cutter followed for several miles, finally sending a shot across the bows of the schooner, which caused her to stop and submit to capture.

The first hearing of the case before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran resulted in charges against the crew members being dropped but the ship and cargo has been held by the government. The question was raised that had the ship been in Massachusetts waters, it should be under the jurisdiction of that state. This question placed the forfeiture proceedings in the federal court.

DENIES HAVING PART IN MILL MERGER

An Associated Press despatch says: Negotiations for a merger of five large silk companies including Belding Brothers & Co., of Rockville, Conn., and the Hemingway Silk company of Putnam, Conn., are nearing completion and an early announcement of the combination is expected. The Belding company, whose shares were sold to the public early this year, will probably form the nucleus for the consolidation.

The Hemingway Silk company has plants in Putnam and Watertown and formerly operated a plant in New London. As the H. H. H. Silk company by which name it was known until comparatively recently, it was capitalized at $3,500,000.

Belding Brothers & Co., a Connecticut corporation, was capitalized at $8,000,000 and was sold for approximately $15,000,000 to New York interests. The capital structure was changed and the stock was declared "no par" Belding plants are located at Rockville and Winsted in Connecticut, at Northampton, Mass., Belding, Mich. and Petaluma, Cal.

MILLION IN SURPLUS WAR GOODS FOR CONN.

Surplus war material, for use in road building, delivered to Connecticut up to the end of the past fiscal year, amounted to more than $1,000,000, according to figures issued in the annual report of the chief of the bureau of public roads.

The total value of such war material sent to Connecticut amounts to $1,003,206.38. This was the eighth lowest amount received by any one state.

Surplus war material to the amount of $7,348,828.77 had been delivered for use in road building in New England up to the end of the past fiscal year. Massachusetts received the largest apportionment, $2,115,668.47, followed by Maine, with $1,800,026.44; Connecticut with $1,003,206.38; New Hampshire, $984,711.98; Vermont, $739,402.25; and Rhode Island, $655,788.25.

"The materials shipped to state highway departments have been supplied for use in highway construction, and the aid extended in this way has been in many ways as helpful as the monetary aid," the report shows. The total value of the material received by all the states up to the close of the fiscal year was more than $215,000,000.

OVER 50 DEATHS IN STATE FROM POISON GAS

Fifty-two deaths in Connecticut last year resulted from the "accidental absorption of irrespirable, irritating or poisonous gas." Figures are not available, says a bulletin issued by the state department of health to determine how many of these died of the effects of the deadly carbon monoxide, contained in automobile exhaust gases. Warning motorists to keep the garage doors open when the motor of a car is running inside, the bulletin says that an automobile run for a few minutes will discharge enough carbon monoxide to make it dangerous or even fatal for any person to breathe it.

Carbon monoxide has no color, taste or odor, and therefore may be breathed without knowing it, the bulletin says. Deaths may be prevented by not running motors when the cars are in closed garages, it added.

Burial at Saybrook

Mrs. Belinda Clark, 87, widow of Benjamin Clark of Saybrook Ferry district, died Friday at the home of her daughter in New Haven. The body was brought to Saybrook Monday, for burial in the Upper cemetery.

NORWICH TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. William E. House, accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kinney and David M. Dean, of Town street, motored to Groton and Old Mystic, Saturday afternoon, returning by way of the Center Groton road.

A large cherry tree on the premises at Mrs. Elizabeth R. Kinney's is being cut down by her son William Kinney and nephew, William E. House. One day recently all of the limbs were severed and a huge portion of the main tree has been sawed off at the top, leaving only about two-thirds its original height. When a limb near the top of the tree was being sawed off, a large spout of water gushed out of the tree and ran down the side quite freely for a few minutes, it being estimated that several pails of clear water came from the opening. The tree a number of years ago bore fine cherries, but of late years the trees have not been quite so good and as birds flocked to the tree each spring and devoured or picked what fruit there was, it seemed almost useless. The tree was so old, feeling it seemed wise, so it could not blow down or cause any damage, but when Messrs Kinney and House began their work the tree proved very hard and firm. Some of the limbs however were in a condition to warrant being removed.

Mrs. Frederick Millard (Gladys Belle Beebe,) of Philadelphia, formerly of Norwich and Hartford, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs George S. Beebe, of Scotland road.

HOME CHAPTER, K. D. PAYS TRIBUTE TO MRS. FRISWELL

When the December meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters was held at the Johnson Home Monday afternoon, there was an unusually large attendance. The leader, Mrs. William E. Manning, opened the session with Scripture reading, singing and prayer. After the minutes of the last meeting were submitted by the secretary and treasurer and were approved, two new members were received into the chapter. Mrs. Neville Bilcq chairman of the work committee reported a fine meeting held recently at the home of Mrs. William Bell of South Windham at which time the members of Home Chapter who attended worked on Christmas boxes, for the members of the Johnson Home.

These little boxes were made of red card-board and tied with red and green ribbon. To each member of the Johnson Home family, including also the matron and helpers, one of the boxes which had been filled with cup-cakes and candy, was presented by the chapter, the several dainty boxes being arranged at each member's plate at supper time. Some of the cakes were frosted in purple and silver, the colors of Home Chapter. From the Thankful fund $12.31, collected at the November meeting when a 'Thanks-Giving" programme was carried out, a Dutch oven and one and one-half dozen china cups and saucers, have been purchased for Johnson Home. The remainder of the fund was used to provide two baskets of fruit which were sent to sick members. At the meeting Monday, the chapter voted to send $5. to the Near East Relief and $23 was voted for a benevolent purpose.

During the afternoon many of the members spoke in tribute to Mrs. William Friswell, an enthusiastic member of Home Chapter, who died Sunday.

At the business session, the nominating committee, Mrs. George Kampf, Mrs. Edwin Luthrop and Mrs. John Olsen, presented the names of the following to fill offices for 1926, the election to take place at the January meeting: Leader, Mrs. William Manning; vice leader, Mrs. Charles Cross; treasurer, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche; recording secretary, Mrs. Earle Christman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Fred Clark; membership committee, Mrs. William R. Balcom; work committee, Mrs. Neville Bilcq, chairman, Mrs William H. Whitman, second; flower committee, Miss Lizzie Ortman; chairman of Silver Cross committee, Miss Maria Briggs; entertainment committee, Mrs. Arthur Fulton.

The very enthusiastic meeting closed in the usual form, after which during the social hour, Mrs. Charles H. Marsh, chairman of the entertainment committee, assisted by several members served cake and coffee.

STORM IN SENATE OVER THE ITALIAN DEBT SETTLEMENT

Senator Reed Objected to a Unanimous Consent Arrangement to Act Upon Ratification—Several Senators Have Given Notice That Considerable Discussion Would Precede a Vote—Question Was Raised of Loan of $100,000,000 to Italy by New York Bankers—Senator Smoot Declared Unless France Settles With This Country and England the Franc Would Follow the Same Course That the German Mark Did.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—A storm of protest against the Italian debt settlement broke in the senate today as Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee sought to obtain consideration of this and the other debt agreements negotiated during the congressional recess.

Finally Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, objected to a unanimous consent arrangement to take up the settlements and the bills of ratification went over. Meanwhile, notice had been served by a number of senators that considerable discussion would precede a vote.

While the running fire of debate was in progress in the senate, Chairman Green of the house ways and [redacted] committee, informed the house that, since the debt settlements were revenue legislation, they must originate in the house and that, if the senate acted first, he would ask the house to ignore such action.

Senator Smoot, who is a member of the debt commission which negotiated the agreements, bore the brunt of the senate fire, but Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, frequently came to his assistance. The Utah senator insisted that the Italian government was the best that could be obtained and that he had doubt of the ability of Italy to carry it out.

That raised the question of the $100,000,000 loan which New York bankers made to Italy immediately after the agreement negotiated here was signed. Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, called attention that the interest rate on this loan was seven per cent.

Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, asserted that Italy would pay none of the principal of its debt; that all it agreed to pay is 1.8 per cent. interest on the principal over a period of 62 years, and that this arrangement ultimately would cost American taxpayers $5,000,000,000.

The Italian settlement as well as the British settlement was characterized by Senator Reed of Missouri, as a process of "whitewashing" to enable international bankers to make loans at six and seven per cent.

The French debt was brought into the discussion, and Senator Smoot warned that unless the French government settled with this country and England, the franc would follow the same course that the German mark did. He also disclosed that when the first French commission came here, it bluntly told the American commission that France did not owe this country anything.

Senator Reed of Missouri, contrasted France's failure to settle its debt with its military operations, declaring it was conducting a war in northern Africa in an effort to "steal" land and the liberties of a free people.

Before the debate had ended, Senator Johnson, republican, California; Norris, republican, Nebraska, and McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, had joined in giving notice that there must be full and free discussion of the debt settlements.

The Missouri senator urged as one reason action should go over that he had proposed by investigation by the senate foreign relations committee of the settlements and of loans obtained by debtor nations from American bankers.

GOV. SMALL MUST ACCOUNT FOR A MILLION DOLLARS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 16—(AP)—Governor Len Small must account for about one million dollars, which, it is alleged, he withheld while state treasurer, the Illinois supreme court ruled today. The decision was made in civil suits filed against the governor on November 28, 1921, before he was acquitted of a criminal charge of embezzlement and conspiracy in 1922.

A five to two decision of the Illinois supreme court today directed Gov. Len Small to account for approximately $1,000,000 interest money alleged withheld by him while state treasurer.

Calling upon the people of Illinois to maintain their faith in him and declaring that a great mistake has been made, the governor tonight said he would petition for a rehearing, asking the court to reconsider.

"I know," he said, "and the evidence proves that I paid into the state treasury every dollar which I received while state treasurer as interest upon state funds."

Acquitted in 1922 of a criminal charge based on the same evidence used in the present chancery case, the governor ran for re-election in 1924, emphasizing his program for good roads and was re-elected by a tremendous majority.

A "secret agreement," with the fictitious "Grant Park bank," and "Small's failure as state treasurer to show the source of interest money collected on state funds, were causes which the supreme court said were each sufficient to warrant an order for accounting.

BOOTLEGGERS FREED MAN SENTENCED FOR INTOXICATION

DANBURY, Dec. 16—(AP)—Four convicted bootleggers helped Jerry Frosciantl, aged 60, of Coalpit Hill avenue, who was serving a sentence for intoxication and breach of the peace, get out of the Danbury jail today.

Jailer A. A. Baker, is making no effort to apprehend "Jerry," however, nor will he proceed against the four bootleggers, whose names he declined to give out. The release from jail was strictly accord. g to regulation. "Jerry" completed a sentence of thirty days today, which was imposed in the Danbury city court, but as he was without funds, it was required that he serve 12 days more, in lieu of paying the costs in his case.

As the prisoners at the local jail have no work to do, they spend most of the time together, playing cards, singing, receiving visitors, and in other ways to suit themselves. The four bootleggers decided to show their fondness for Frosciantl, by arranging for his release from jail, so each of the four contributed $3 each and paid his way out.

TAXICAB DRIVER CHARGED WITH CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

STAMFORD, Dec. 16—(AP)—Tony Lacerenza, a taxicab driver was arrested here today charged with cruelty to animals, the arrest being made upon complaint of former Mayor Alfred N. Phillips, jr. Mr. Phillips was riding in Lacerenza's machine when a dog broke away from a small boy on the sidewalk and was struck by the automobile. The former mayor claimed that the automobile driver deliberately ran over the dog without giving the boy an opportunity to rescue his pet.

The former mayor went to his home to get a gun to put the animal out of its misery and Constable Heintz went to his home for the same purpose. The dog had died before the men returned.

CRANBERRY POND IS CLOSED TO FISHING

HARTFORD, Dec. 16—(AP)—The state board of fisheries and game has closed Cranberry pond at Granby to winter fishing until May 1. A hearing was held relative to the closing at Granby, Tuesday night, no opposition being made and several persons appearing in favor.

PLOTTED TO ASSASSINATE GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER

BERLIN, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A plot against the life of Gustav Stresemann, the foreign minister, has been unearthed. The police have arrested two German fascists named Kalldorff and Lorenz, who will be charged with plotting the assassination of the minister. They are alleged to have perfected elaborate plans to escape, by the aid of disguises motorcars and an airplane.

Kalldorff and Lorenze sought an accomplice in a Munich attorney; they believed that he was in sympathy with their plan, but he led them into a police trap.

The Vossische Zeitung asserts that Kalldorff confessed himself an active adherent of Adolf Hitler, who was leader of the memorable "beer-gardon" revolt at Munich, while Lorenz declared that he was a member of the nationalist party.

The paper charges that "the jingo press and political parties of the right inspired the plot by repeated references to Stresemann as a criminal and a traitor, who by means of the Locarno pact was about to immortalize the disgrace of Versailles."

The foreign office minimizes the seriousness of the plot, designating it as a brainstorm of irresponsible youths.

Throughout the conference at Locarno Dr. Stresemann was accompanied by Berlin detectives, and the watchfulness has been kept up ever since he returned home.

It was the renunciation of Alsace-Lorraine that incensed the nationalists' opponents of Stresemann and made him the target of virulent attacks. In a recent debate in the Bavarian diet a deputy declared that "any foreign minister who renounced Germany's title to Alsace-Lorraine deserved to be beaten to death like a mad dog."

The Bavarian premier, Dr. Held, immediately rebuked the speaker, whose expressions were generally accepted as sentiments current among German fascists and other reactionary factions.

MARRIAGE CANCELLED ONE HOUR BEFORE TIME SET

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 16—(AP)—One hour before the time for the marriage today of Miss Mildred Dern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Dern, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and niece of Gov. Dern, of Utah, and Harold Nester, son of Mrs. N. J. Nester, prominent resident of Geneva, N. Y., the wedding was cancelled.

The affair was to have been one of the most brilliant of the San Diego and Coronado social season. Prominent guests had come from Geneva, N. Y., Boston, New York, Chicago, Salt Lake, San Francisco, Hollywood Long Beach, and Los Angeles.

"The wedding has been definitely cancelled," said Mrs. Dern. "The young people themselves agreed this morning to disagree. The wedding will not be held at any time in the future."

BUTCHER HUNG ON MEAT HOOK IN REFRIGERATOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The story of how he was russed up like a fowl, carried into a refrigerator and hung on a meat hook was told by Irving Lippman, Brooklyn butcher, when he identified Vincent Cappiello in Flatbush court today as one of two robbers who held him up and escaped with $1,200. Cappiello was held in $50,000 bail.

ULSTER CONSTABULARY ARE STAGING A REVOLT

BELFAST, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The strike of the "A Special" constabulary in Ulster took a serious turn this afternoon when all platoons of this force in County Thorne, except that of Omagh, the county capital, joined the movement. They have seized motor trucks and quantities of munitions and control the wireless facilities. The movement is spreading rapidly.

War Over Mosul is Deemed Unlikely

Neither the League of Nations Nor Great Britain Can Conceive War in the Near East.

GENEVA, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Neither the League of Nations nor Great Britain envisages war in the Near East because of the decision of the league of council in the Mosul conflict, said Colonel L. C. M. Amery, the British colonial secretary, commenting on the council's finding, which gives Mosul virtually in its entreaty to Great Britain in the form of a mandate.

his decision was announced today in the assembly hall packed with people as the last act of the 37th session of the council. It was marked by three notable declarations, the first, solemnly read by Vittorio Sclaiola, former Italian minister of foreign affairs, in the name of every member of the council, was deemed significant because it admitted that a state of tension had been created between Great Britain and Turkey over the possession of Mosul. Signor Sclaioia urgently recommended that these two nations reach an amicable arrangement of the difficulty so as to put an end to the regrettable situation and thus solidify that peace which is essential to the aims of the League of Nations.

The second was voiced by Sir Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, who declared that the British government did not wish to adopt a rigid and uncompromising attitude. Great britain desired to live on terms of peace and amity with turkey and would gladly lend itself to conversations to determine whether it would be possible to improve the relations between the two countries.

The third declaration came in a documentary form from the Turks, who refused an invitation to attend the meeting, it was a vigorous protest against the council's action, as well as a warning that Turkey absolutely refused to abandon ist sovereignty over Mosul" until you give your assent that our rights be totality in Mosul remain intact," the council's decision is contingent on Great Britain's acceptance of a twenty-five year mandate over Irak, which includes Mosul, within six months. This Great Britain has promised to do.

One point in the decision is the recommendation that the Great Britain accord the Kurds desirable local administrational rights. This Kurdish problem in Mosul is regarded as important. The Turkish spokesmen said tonight; "The council's decision is bad, don't forget that if half the Kurds in Mosul favor England, the other half are strongly for Turkey."

The Mosul report was adopted unanimously by the council, which based its decision on the report of the special Mosul commission and "other information of a political and legal nature."

HOUSE ACCEPTS MODIFIED INHERITANCE TAX RATES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The modified inheritance tax rates provided by the revenue bills were accepted today by the house. An amendment to increase the rates in the bill from a maximum of 20 per cent. to 30 per cent. was rejected 154 to 75.

Defending the inheritance tax provisions, Chairman Green said the 80 per cent. credit was a real offer to farmers and home owners of the states. By taking advantage of this provision, he declared, the states could gain sufficient revenue to cut down materially the property taxes.

An amendment proposed by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, a republican member of the committee, to exempt personal tangible property not to be used for business purposes from the inheritance tax was thrown out without a record vote.

Urging support of the proposal to increase the inheritance rates to a 30 per cent. maximum, Representative Ramseyer declared the same reasons prevailed today for a higher levy as existed two years ago when the house increased inheritance taxes to a maximum of 40 per cent.

Representative Mills argued that the high rates voted two years ago had led to the organization of a movement designed to repeal all inheritance taxes, state and federal, and that modification would half it. The house virtually completed its work today on the inheritance taxes and tomorrow will launch into consideration of the excise and tobacco levies, with a fight in prospect for repeal of the passenger automobile tax, cut from five to three per cent. in the bill.

CHILEAN APPEALS SENT TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

ARICA, Chile, Dec. 116.—(AP)—An official communique issued after the meeting of the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission this afternoon says: "The appeals of the Chilean member of the commission were certified and transmitted to the arbitrator," (President Coolidge).

The strictest reserve has been maintained thus far concerning the nature of the Chilean appeals and the transactions of the commission, but eventually, after smoothing out early difficulties, the vote recorded for certification was unanimous.

It is understood that the appeals will be transmitted to the arbitrator by cable, with the request that the arbitrator reply in he same way regarding the manner and time of taking up the appeal.

46 FINED FOR VIOLATIONS OF THE HUNTING LAWS

HARTFORD, Dec. 16—(AP)—Forty-six persons paid $868.36 in fines and court costs for violations of the hunting laws in October, State Warden A. Joseph Williamson, has reported to the state board of fisheries and game. The greatest number of arrests, twenty, was in New Haven county. There were no arrests in Windham county for hunting violations. In Hartford county there were four in New London, seven; Fairfield, six; Litchfield, four; Middlesex, four, and Tolland, one.

TO DETERMINE WHAT IS AN INTOXICATING BEVERAGE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—A commission to determine what constitutes an intoxicating beverage was asked in a resolution introduced in the house today by Representative Segar, republican, New Jersey. The commission would be composed of three senators, three representatives and three persons selected by the president.

Senate Passed the Bingham Aircraft Bill

Measure Was the First Passed at the Present Session of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—Conclusions reached by the president's air board came to early fruition in the senate today when it passed without a record vote, a bill by Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, designed to effect the board's findings with respect to commercial aviation.

Senator Bingham was a member the board and his bill was the first passed at the present session of the senate. it would authorize appointment of an additional secretary of commerce, charged with general supervision of the government's activities in connection with commercial aviation.

The measure also would provide for licensing of civilian pilots, inspection of commercial airplanes, weather bureau service for airplanes, establishment of commercial air routes lighted under direction of the light house service, and installation of radio finding devices at frequent intervals along the approved traffic lanes. Only a few minor amendments were made by the senate in acting on the bill.

A FORMER "MILLIONAIRE BOOTLEGGER" ON TRIAL

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 16—(AP)—"Big money" and the "thrill" and excitement of the game were the magnets which took George Remus of Cincinnati from the legal profession into the illicit liquor trade, the former "millionaire bootlegger" testified today in the Jack Daniel conspiracy trial in federal court. Remus was a government witness.

Although he purchased the stocks of seven distilleries and engaged in whiskey transactions, Remus declared he "never has tasted whiskey" himself.

Remus outlined the financing of the syndicate which purchased the Daniel stock at St. Louis and the subsequent illegal withdrawal of 30,000 gallons for distribution to bootleggers. Following his testimony the government rested its case against twenty six men and one woman, alleged to have participated in the conspiracy.

Remus denied that he had been offered any immunity to reveal the Daniel conspiracy or that his connection with the senatorial investigation of former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty influenced him to testify. Defense attorneys pointed out that Remus had repudiated his testimony before the Daugherty committee.

Remus implicated Nat Goldstein, republican leader; State Senator Michael J. Kinney; Fred Essen, former congressman, Arnold J. Hellmich, former collector of internal revenue; William J. Kinney, former deputy collector under Hellmich, all of St. Louis, as well as Lem Motlow, wealthy distiller of Nashville, Tenn., and more than a score of others indicted here.

Wayne Ely, a defense attorney, brought out in cross-examination that Remus handled between 700,000 and 800,000 gallons of whiskey.

As Remus took the stand today the government dismissed the conspiracy charge against Mrs. Imogene Remus, his divorced wife. This was done to protect a husband testifying against his wife.

MERGER OF TYPEWRITER CONCERNS ANNOUNCED

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 16—(AP)—Arrangements were completed here tonight for a $12,000,000 merger of the Corona Typewriter company, Inc., of Groton, N. Y., with the L. C. Smith Typewriter company of Syracuse.

Frank R. Ford, president of Ford Bacon and Davis, Inc., of New York, announced that his company, which a little more than a year ago acquired control of the L. C. Smith and Brothers Typewriter company, has contracted to purchase a controlling interest in the stock of the Corona Typewriter company.

The new company will organize before the first of the year, Mr. Ford said, under a new firm name, although the trade names of the Corona portable typewriter and the L. C. Smith standard office typewriter will be retained. Headquarters will be in Syracuse.

Mr. Maguire went to the cellar of his home to chop kindling wood and while thus engaged suffered the heart attack that proved fatal.

He was found prostrate on the cellar floor shortly after members of the family who summoned he emergency hospital ambulance. He was beyond medical aid when the ambulance surgeon arrived. Medical Examiner H. L. Peters was notified and after an autopsy pronounced death to be due to heart failure.

Thomas Blair Rea

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16—(AP)—A cablegram received here tonight announced the death in Switzerland, of Thomas Blair Rea, 78, brother of Samuel Rea, former president of the Pennsylvania railroad.

OPERATORS AND MINERS INVITED TO CONFERENCE

Action Taken by the Mayors and Burgesses From the Anthracite Coal Fields—Date Set For Next Wednesday—To Meet in Scranton on at Some Other Place Convenient to Both Sides—Would Permit Each Side to Bring Up For Discussion Its Own Plan.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 16—(AP)—The conference of mayors and burgesses from the anthracite coal fields with Gov. Pinchot here today adopted a resolution inviting operators and miners to meet at Scranton a week from today or at some other time or place convenient to both sides to resume negotiations where broken off in Atlantic City last August.

Negotiations are to be resumed with the understanding that either side may be at liberty to bring up for discussion its own plan. Gov. Pinchot's peace proposal or any other that may be offered.

COAL OPERATORS ACCEPT LUZERNE LEGISLATORS' PLAN

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16—(AP)—Anthracite operators today accepted the Luzerne county legislators' plan for ending the coal strike. Earlier in the day John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, rejected it as "simply the operators' plan wrapped in a new package."

The operators were in session here all afternoon while the mayors and burgesses from the anthracite fields were in conference at Harrisburg with Gov. Pinchot trying to devise some scheme for bringing the employers and workers together. The miners' did not meet but the latest plan offered was rejected by President Lewis after consultation with other leaders.

The situation tonight is that each side is on record as ready to resume work on the basis of a plan submitted by an outside party, but the two proposals differ.

The mayors and burgesses adopted a resolution at the state capital inviting the contending forces to meet at Scranton, Pa., next Wednesday or at some other convenient time or place to resume negotiations where they were broken off early last August in Atlantic City.

The plan accepted by the operators today was submitted by seven of the eight Luzerne county members of the Pennsylvania house of representatives. Luzerne is one of the largest hard coal producing counties in the anthracite fields. The plan provides for an immediate return to work while negotiations are in progress, a five or ten year contract, and the creation of a board of settlement to which would be referred matters not agreed to by the negotiating committee of operators and miners.

The board would be appointed by the president of the United States, or by the United States supreme court, chief justice of the Pennsylvania supreme court and the presiding judge of the circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia. Another provision is that either side would have the right to call a conference not oftener than once a year to consider modification of any element in the contract. This provision was intended to prevent strikes.

DOUMER NEW FRENCH MINISTER OF FINANCE

PARIS, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Paul Doumer, former president of the chamber of deputies and chairman of the finance committee of the senate, accepted this evening the weighty responsibility of the finance ministry in the cabinet of Premier Briand.

M. Doumer was the premier's first choice to succeed Louis Loucheur, forced our because of the rejection of his financial measures, but he was not the candidate of the leaders of the parliamentary majority on which M. Briand depends for the support of his government.

Hence difficulties arouse which during the letter part of the day seemed likely to prevent the premier from putting the man he wanted in this important post.

Delegations of the radical-socialist coalition which were in conference when M. Doumer called on the premier at the Quai D'Orsay to receive the definite offer of the portfolio showed a dispoition to propose impossible conditions to their approval of his nomination. This was sufficient to explain the deep sign with which the new minister of finance said when he left M. Briand: "Alas! Yet I have accepted the task and will do my best."

The fact that the premier forestalled final action by the left coalition by nominating M. Doumer over their objections is taken as indicating that he finally has determined to accept not further dictation and has decided to go ahead with a safe man, who, though finally has determined to accept no remarkable competence in financial matters, is expected to resolutely push sane measures prepared by capable technical authorities for the restoration of the nation's finances.

M. Doumer's plans for the solution of France's financial difficulties are based principally on increases in indirect taxation rather than on any form of capital levy or increases in the income taxes.

VERDICT AGAINST PENN. MUTUAL INSURANCE CO.

GREENWICH, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A jury in United States district court here today, finding that Arthur Miller, New York insurance broker, shot and killed himself on the afternoon of March 2, last, twenty minutes before the expiration of the time when a payment was due on his insurance policy, brought in a verdict here today in favor of his widow, Marion G. Miller, against the Penn Mutual Insurance company. Mrs. Miller, under the verdict, will receive $125,000 in insurance with interest from March 20.

Mr. Miller shot himself while riding in an automobile he had hired in New Rochelle on the afternoon of March 2 near Riverside in the town fo Greenwich. He carried an insurance policy with the Penn Mutual company payable to his widow at the time of his death. The premium on the policy became due on January 29, 1925 and Mr. Miller had 31 days of grace upon which to pay it. The period of grace ended on Sunday, March 1, and it was decided by the jury that he had until 3 o'clock Monday, March 2, to make the payment. According to testimony at the trial, Miller shot himself at 2.40 o'clock that Monday afternoon.

NEW POSITION IN THE ADULT WELFARE BUREAU

HARTFORD, Dec. 16—(AP)—The state department of public welfare has created a new position in the bureau of adult welfare, that of field agent and investigator, and Mrs. Ruth Roberts Mix, of 386 Farmington avenue, this city, has been appointed for the work. The problem of investigating cases and finding suitable homes for needy aged persons has grown to such proportions, Secretary Charles P. Kellogg said today, that the new office has become necessary.

Mrs. Mix, whose headquarters will be in the office of the department of the capitol, will begin her duties January 1. She has had long experience in welfare work. For several years she was connected with the Connecticut Children's Aid society and the Hartford dispensary, besides work with organizations in New York city, Buffalo, and Toronto, Canada. She is a graduate of Hartford High school and much of her professional training was under Miss Maude R. Miner, nationally known welfare work leader.

TESTIMONY CLOSED IN MITCHELL COURT MARTIAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Last phases of the Mitchell court-martial trial were reached ate today soon after former Secretary Weeks' letter, stating why Col Mitchell had not been re-appointed assistant chief of the army air service, was introduced in evidence.

The placing of Mr. Weeks' statement to President Coolidge in the record, after it has been read by Major General Dennis Nolan, deputy chief of staff, overshadowed all other developments, including even the announcements by prosecution and defense counsel that they had no further evidence to offer.

Only one more step, delivery of arguments by opposing counsel and a decision as to whether the evidence heard shall be used by the court as a defense, in mitigation or in extenuation, remained to be taken before the tribunal closes for findings. Arguments will be started when the court opens tomorrow, with Major Allen Gullion heading off for the prosecution.

The Weeks letter, with the testimony of General Nolan and his assistant staff aide, Brigadier General Hugh A. Drum, constituted a heavy blow at the defense case. The letter itself cited Col. Mitchell in the name of his former war chief as an officer "unfit for a high administrative position" and whose "whole course has been so lawless" despite his "excellent war record" that "he has forfeited the good opinion of those who are familiar with the facts and who desire to promote the best interests of national defense."

Further blame was attached to Col. Mitchell by Mr. Weeks for attacking not only the war but the navy department in testimony given congressional committees early this year. In one paragraph he said:

"In his testimony, General Mitchell has not only attacked the navy department and the active officers in that department, but his own department and the officers who are now largely responsible for its administrative policies. These latter officers are among those distinguished men who conducted operations on the other side which resulted in everlasting glory to American arms and to the winning of the war.

"No more unconscionable attack could have been made than the one that these officers are in any way impeding the progress of the air service, or that they are not insistent on its development to the highest efficiency."

FROSTY WEATHER IS RETARDING EGG INDUSTRY

HARTFORD, Dec. 16—(AP)—The frosty weather of the past week has caused considerable inconvenience in the egg industry according to reports made to the state department of agriculture. The eggs while being transported on trucks and wagons have in several instances been chilled to the extent that a separation of the white and the yolk has resulted, a condition that is damaging to the product in the eyes of the consumer.

The "market bulletin," issued by the department, tells of reports of frosted eggs received from handlers of Connecticut eggs. Investigation revealed that the damage occurred during the time the eggs were being transported from the farms to the wholesaler. The department advises poultrymen to exercise care in protecting the eggs from freezing during the cold months by proper packing for transportation.

PROGRAM FOR THE WOODROW WILSON DINNER

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—The program for the Woodrow Wilson dinner at the Hotel Astor on Mr. Wilson's birthday, anniversary December 28th was announced today by Norman H. Davis, president of the Woodrow Wilson foundation. The speakers will be Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams college, the Rev. Robert Norwood, rector of St. Bartholomew's church and Ignace Jan Paderewski. The dinner will be presided over by Mr. Davis.

Paderewski's appearance will be the first occasion on which he has paid formal tribute to the man with whom he worked so closely in Paris in the days when he had renounced the piano for statesmanship.

The New York celebration of Mr. Wilson's birthday is one of five hundred similar events which have been arranged throughout the country.

WINDHAM NAT'L BUILDING TO BE REBUILT TWO STORIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 16—The new quarters of the Windham National bank, which suffered the partial destruction by fire of the building it owned and occupied, Monday night and early Tuesday morning will be rebuilt into a two-story structure to be occupied solely by the bank, it was announced Wednesday. The destroyed building was a three-story affair with the bank situated on the first floor, three offices occupied by Doctors F. S. Wilcox and M. D. Riordan and Attorney W. A. King on the second floor and the Masonic hall on the third. Workmen started Wednesday to remove the ruins caused mainly by the cave-in of the metal roof. Thursday the work of taking down the ornamental brick wall and designed copice will be started. The third story will be entirely eliminated, the roof being built over the second story. The front walls of the second story will be remodeled and faced with limestone blocks to match the frontage of the first story, which was altered five years ago when the bank expended about $100,000 in remodelling the structure. The National Bank is now in the Chamber of Commerce building. It will be several days before business can be resumed at the regular banking house.

Members of Mrs. Chauncey Hinckley's family were driven into the street clad in night clothing when damage of about $1,000 was caused shortly after eleven o'clock Tuesday night, as when fire caused by a defective chimney partly destroyed the house owned by Edgar Durant, 376 Windham road. The building is located just outside the city limits and a telephone alarm was sent in to Engine Company No. 2. Twelve hundred feet of hose was laid and in addition to the water stream sixty-four gallons of chemicals were used. The building is of cement construction and was built about ten years ago by C. A. Blanchette. Mr. Durant carried insurance to the amount of $1,500, while the total value of the building is placed at $4,000. The roof will have to be entirely replaced. The fire having made its way from the first floor occupied by Mrs. Hinckley and family into the upper tenement occupied by Mr. Durant and Barcough to the roof. Mrs. Hinckley was awakened when thick smoke penetrated her bedroom and caused her to cough violently. She spread the alarm to other members of the family and all rushed out into the street. The Durant family were calling on friends in this city at the time the fire broke out.

Of interest to many people in Willimantic and vicinity is the announcement that Supt. Frank H. Beede of the New Haven public schools has signed a contract for reappointment for another five year term, beginning in September 1926. His present salary is $7,000 a year and the new contract provides for an annual increase of $250 until the maximum of the contract $8,250 has been reached. The vote to re-elect him was unanimous.

Mr. Beede has been superintendent of the public schools in New Haven for the past 25 years and has won a reputation as one of the most level-headed educators in New England. He was born in Dover, N. H., February 8, 1859 and was graduated from Yale, in 1883. He was the first principal of the consolidated Windham High school from 1893 to 1895. Mr. and Mrs. Beede are very pleasantly remembered by friends in this city and vicinity. At the celebration of Old School Week here in 1915 an organization of his former pupils was effected and they were planning a big reunion which was postponed, due to poor industrial conditions.

The Women's club met in the afternoon Tuesday and made up a large basket of gifts to be presented to the children at the Welfare Bureau Christmas tree. Resolutions of gratitude and appreciation for kindnesses by the club to the local D. A. R. were read, signed by the regent. Another resolution on the death of Henrietta McCulloch was read. A letter of thanks, signed by Miss Edith Paschall of the local Normal school, for $25 donated by the club for use in the dental work at the model school, was read by the president. Refreshments were served by the committee, of which Mrs. E. J. Tryon was chairman.

The coming new year promises to be one of outstanding success for Company C 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard, which will start off 1926 with full ranks. The vacancies were filled with the enlistment of twenty-five recruits during the recent drive and these men will be guests of honor at a social which will follow the regular drill, next Tuesday evening. They will be given the first degree in the social organization known as "The Woof Woofs," and the second degree will be held Tuesday evening December 29, when plans for a New Year's dance will be completed.

An interesting talk on the Belgian Congo was given by Mrs. Barrows at the meeting of the Woman's Mission Society of the Baptist church held at the home of Mrs. David Moxley Tuesday. Scripture was read by Mrs. Tryon and Mrs. Pearson. The safe arrival of a shipment of second-hand clothing from the Baptist church to the Mather school at Beaufort, S. C., was made known through a letter. Miss Inez Brown was chairman of the program. In talking about Belgian Congo, Mrs. Barrows pointed out that the country has an area equal to that of the United States west of the Rocky Mountains and a population of twelve million. Baptists took over the Livingstone Inland Mission in 1878. One of the afflictions in the country is sleeping sickness and medical missionaries are co-operating with the government in a campaign against this disease. Mrs. Peckham read an account of some of the pioneer work of early missionaries in the Congo. Mrs. Albert Fryer and Mrs. Gertrude Storrs told of mission work and Mrs. Tryon read an account of Dr. Catherine Mabie's experiences in training the native leaders. Miss Ada Bowen gave some humorous incidents resulting from mistakes in translating English into the native language. The meeting closed with prayer. Later there were refreshments.

The Killourey Brothers had charge of the funeral services Tuesday of James N. Berard, Ross Evanshina and Miss Mary Shea.

Among citizens who have been receiving honorable mention for practical assistance to the firemen in fighting the Windham National bank fire members of the police department Constable Alfred P. Abbe of Windham and Edmund (Speck) Peltier are in the limelight. Speck spread about thirty barrels of powdered cork on the sidewalks and streets which had become covered with a treacherous coating of ice during the fire.

One case of scarlet fever was reported to the state department of health, from this city for the week ending December 14, on the weekly morbidity report made out at the department.

The following ring committee for the Junior class at Windham High school has been appointed: Barbara Pollard, Lois Holman, Francis Ahern, Russell Beckwith and Joseph Hinds.

Since the Windham National bank fire it is the unanimous vote that the Willimantic fire department is sadly in need of additional equipment. Over a period of years dating back to the destruction of the old Jordan block and the gutting of the Hills block those interested in the preservation of life and property have been convinced that the fire department should be equipped with an aerial truck. It was brought conclusively to the minds of all others in Monday night's fire and the reaction has been such that indications point to the organization of a body of men to present a resolution before the common council asking that such equipment be purchased. The lack of enough firemen was also shown and it is understood that applications for additional men are pending. The department lost a number of its call members who moved from the city during the industrial strife in the past year. The fight for more equipment was advocated in years past by Former Chief Webster. It was carried on urgently by the late Fire Chief James J. Tighe and continued to be urged by Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley. Their plea is for the public to awaken before danger and destruction may result.

The flag staff sockets which have been inserted in the sidewalks in the business section of the city under the auspices of the local post of the American Legion in carrying out the Shenandoah uniform flag plan, are being used temporarily by many merchants to hold Christmas trees which add greatly to the decorative appearance of the streets. An effort is being made to secure the staffs and flags in time to be used during the holidays. The order calls for 165 flags.

Engine Company No. 1 answered a still alarm for a brush fire at 5:10 o'clock Wednesday afternoon on land owned by the American Thread company on the North Windham road, just over the city line. The blaze was extinguished with a forester pump.

TAFTVILLE GIRL'S NOSE BROKEN IN AUTO CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 16—George Leroy Jones, machinist's mate on the U. S. Coast Guard Destroyer Roe, stationed, at New London, failed to appear or send an excuse, when his case was called in police court Wednesday morning, the charges being for reckless driving and failure to have a driver's license and registration. Constable Alfred P. Abbe placed Jones under arrest Monday night after a Nash touring car bearing registration numbers L-409 listed under the name of Fred J. Mol Hatch of Mystic, collided with a tree in South Windham. Miss Betty Archibald of Taftville, who was seated in the front seat was thrown through the windshield, and against the tree. She sustained severe injuries to her face, including a broken nose.

JEWETT CITY

QUINEBAUG CAMPS' PLAY PLEASES BIG AUDIENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 16.—The Quinebaug Camps Association presented The Path Across The Hill, in Finn Opera House, this evening. The theatre was crowded with an enthusiastic and appreciative audience. The fame of the young people had gone abroad on account of last year's success and Jewett City was proud of their efforts this year. The entire action of the play took place in the living room of Ruth Conrad's home in an eastern village. There were three acts, all well staged. The characters were: Samuel Crawford, grandpa, William Marshall; Robert Post, the visitor, Herbert Thompson; Walter Conrad, Ruth's brother, John LeClaire; Dr. Jimmie Reed, with ambition, Tyler Gilbert; Salamander Alexander John Henry Jones, Zuzu's choice, Hector LeClaire; Mrs. Davis, grandma, Helena Griffin; Ruth Conrad, nicknamed "Bobbie", Valeda Boyle; Flo Gray, Ruth's cousin, Verna Raille; Lutie, a neighbor, Ethelle Parkhurst; Zuzu, the cook, Mrs. Prentice Chase.

Each player had evidently spent much time on his or her lines, and showed the careful coaching of Norman B. Parkhurst. Before the performance James Olson played as an overture a concert polka by Gottschalk. Between the acts, Miss Doris Myott sang three solos, Carmena by H. Lane Wilson, The World is Waiting for the Sunrise, by Ernest Feltz and The Dream, by Bartlett. Both young people are very talented, Mr. Olson being an unusually fine pianist both in expression, technique and memory. Miss Myott has a powerful, clear, melodious voice. Jewett City has ability both in acting and in music which wins commendation well deserved. The committee who arranged the evening's entertainment so successfully was Eudor LeClaire, Herbert Thompson, Fred Belisle, Tyler Gilbert and John LeClaire.

The December meeting of the Baptist Missionary society was held at the home of Mrs. A. M. Brown Tuesday afternoon. The gathering broke all records of the society for attendance, there being 42 present. It was decided at the business session to hold the meetings on the first Tuesday of each month instead of the third.

The program took the form of a Christmas party, Mrs. S. F. Brown being in charge. The opening number was a reading by Mrs. J. E. Palmer. There followed a short sketch entitled "Christmas Everywhere." Mrs. B. H. Gardner, dressed as the spirit of Christmas, introduced a number of young ladies in costume, who gave a description of Christmas in their respective countries. Miss Clara Richardson told of Christmas in the land of the Midnight Sun, Miss Emma Dearnley described the Yuletide of Old England; Miss Florence Quimby represented Germany and spoke of Christmas in that country; Miss Ellen Prior was a visitor from Holland and told of the great celebration in the land of St. Nicholas; Miss Priscilla Scates represented America and Miss Mabel McBroome as Japan and Mrs. Leonard McBroome as China, told of the utter ignorance of the great festival in their countries, as compared with America. At the conclusion of the sketch, Mrs. U. H. Prior sang a Christmas carol. Mrs. Mary Brewster read the story of the Nativity, seasonable carols being rendered by the young women present. Christmas gifts were brought by members of the circle to be sent for destribution in the Southern Mission schools. All the members viewed these gifts for a given time to see who could enumerate the largest number. Mrs. J. B. Palmer won first award and Mrs. B. R. Gardner the second. A Christmas tree was a very attractive decoration. Mrs. C. H. Butts and Mrs. Brown assisted by members of the World Wide Guild, served refreshments.

Personal taxes must be paid to tax collector Henry Vegiard before January first.—Adv.

The pupils of the Woodward school are planning a Christmas entertainment with their teacher Alice E. Mugovero. They will have a Christmas tree and will exchange gifts.

The program is to be as follows:

A New Year's song—Poem, Robert Edmond, Harvey Fontaine, Jolly Old St. Nicholas—song, Marguerite Fontaine, Lois Morgan; On Christmas Day—poem, Theodore Edmond; O Little Town of Bethlehem—poem, Joseph Minsky; O Come All Ye Faithful—song by class; A Christmas Carol—poem, Arthur Fontaine, Joseph Sorokolit; Silent Night—song by class, Christmas verses, Marguerite Fontaine. Three Cheers for Old December—song by class; Santa Claus—poem, Louis Fontaine; A Visit From St. Nicholas—poem, Lois Morgan.

LeClaire's haberdashery will be open eves, until Christmas.—Adv.

The funeral of Mrs. Bridget O. Clarke was held from her home in Ashland Wednesday morning. Solemn requiem mass was sung at St. Mary's church, with Rev. Gerald Dolan of Haverhill, Mass., celebrant, Rev. J. J. McCabe, deacon and Rev. J. J. Tyler sub-deacon. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Rev. Fathers Dolan and McCabe conducted the committal services. The bearers were John McCusker of Fall River, William McCusker, Roslindale, Mass., William Callahan, Hartford, John Dolan, John Barnett, and James McCusker of Jewett City. There were beautiful floral remembrances. Relatives were present from Haverhill, Belmont, Roslindale, Providence, Hartford, Baltic and Norwich. Hourigan Bros. were in charge of the arrangements.

Pachaug Grange is to meet this (Thursday) evening, not Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Howard and Miss Clarissa Geer are at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hurst, Saturday Mr. Howard celebrated his ninety-second birthday. His grandson, Earl Howard of Hartford, spent the week end there. John Morgan and two friends from the Submarine Base were guests Sunday.

Mrs. G. Keene Gray entertained Monday evening the girls who assisted her at a recent Hallowe'en party. Several older guests were present who spent the evening making gay postcard books which are to be sent by Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters to the Seaside Sanitorium for Christmas, along with some little gowns. Mrs. Gray was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. Abraham Zegeer and Miss Sadie Thompson

The Christmas committees at the Baptist church are, for concert: Mrs. J. B. Palmer, Priscilla Scates and Ellen Prior; procuring tree, D. L. Phillips class, Samuel Cathcart, Jr., chairman; decorating tree, Mrs. G. H. Prior and Mrs. A. M. Brown's classes. The teachers have charge of the gifts. The exercise will be held Christmas eve.

The American Legion Auxiliary has sent five Christmas boxes to the disabled soldiers at Allingtown.

The fire alarm called the firemen to a burning haystack on Oak St., Wednesday afternoon.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID HEBERT REACH DIAMOND WEDDING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 15—The 60th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs David Hebert, 80 and 77 years of age respectively, was celebrated at their home on Railroad avenue, yesterday. They were married at Port Henry, N. Y., but for the past 40 years have lived in Plainfield and vicinity. Out of ten children born to them, there are seven living. They have 39 grandchildren, and 10 great grandchildren. Peter Hebert, their oldest son is proprietor of a local store, and he has been married 35 years.

Charles Grab, a local driver, was fined $10 and costs for operating his truck with defective brakes.

The Lincoln club held its annual election Monday evening, combined with a real busy business meeting. The meeting was opened at 8:05 by the president, Walter Cleland. The first number was a piano selection by Alfred Royle. The Boy Scouts' quartet, the Smith Brothers, Raymond Roode and Ernest Royle, rendered several songs which were well received. The secretary, Ralph Hopkins, gave reports of the last meeting and the annual report of the club, as did the treasurer, Harold Lewis. It was voted that the club have a street light erected at the junction of Gallup and Plainfield streets, to be maintained by the club, as this spot is dark and at times dangerous for pedestrians. Suggestions were made to have the rocks removed from the side of the road at the foot of Hopkins hill, location of a recent accident. Franklin Sheldon, of Moosup, was the guest of the evening and delivered a very interesting speech concerning the postal service, which touched on the subject of the Christmas rush in the postoffices. Following this, nominations were made and the following officers were elected: President, Cecil L. Butler; vice president William Hall; secretary, Mr. Jeffries; treasurer, Albert Phillips; auditors, Edward Hall and Arthur Mathewson; executive board, Charles Hopkins, Frank Congdon, Harry Green and Elmer Bennett. The new officers were greeted by the retiring president, and a vote of thanks was extended the outgoing officers. Later, ice cream, cake and coffee were served.

William P. Barstow was a visitor at the home of his son, in Windham, over the week-end. Sunday he attended the 225th anniversary of the Congregational church, at Windham.

A still alarm was answered by the Lawton Fire brigade, at the home of Eugene Kelly, 224 New Village, who noticed fire at the partition behind the stove near the chimney. The fire was quickly extinguished by the chemicals and not much damage was done.

The vital statistics of the town for November, which have gone on record at the bureau at Hartford, show 18 births, 12 deaths, and 10 marriages.

The local council of Knights of Columbus is to hold a Christmas tree party for the children, at St. John's hall, Christmas Eve. Ralph Seney is chairman of the tree committee.

Alfred Ashley was in Hartford Tuesday serving at a session of the U. S district court as juror.

Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Wilson were week-end guests at the home of friends at Pawtucket.

INDIANS USE CANES PRESENTED BY LINCOLN AS CHIEF SYMBOLS

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 16—(AP)—In 1863 President Lincoln gave silver mounted canes to each of thirteen governors of pueblos among the Pueblo and Zuni Indians in New Mexico, on the occasion of their visit to Washington. Today these canes represent the emblem of authority in the pueblos. They have been handed down from governor to governor.

Lincoln's memory, through the canes, still stands as the symbol of authority—the recognition of the Great White Father for his redskin children of New Mexico.

Accounts of the visit of the Pueblo governors to Washington indicates that the president intended the canes only as a personal gift. But the Indian chieftains took them as confirmation of their authority to rule the pueblos. Thus they became sceptors of power, and now they are known as "ceremonial canes" and are carried by the governors while performing important duties of office.

A quarter of a century ago a ceremonial cane figured in a controversy between Pueblo Indians of Espanola N. M., and an Indian service official that nearly led to serious trouble. The white official took away the cane from the pueblo's governor and gave it to the man whom he desired to elevate to the office. The wrath of the Indians was aroused and the government mollified their grievance only by trying the official and giving him a suspended sentence.

The governor of a pueblo is elected at certain periods by the cacique or council of the elders.

Coue Has New Rival

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

In Jean Beziat, expert agriculturist and cattle raiser of Avignonet near Toulouse, France. Remarkable cures have been reported of afflictions, after his laying on of hands and breathing on the afflicted spot. His fame has become so great that a hotel is being built there to care for visiting invalids. Dr. Coue the medico of Nancy, when told of him, claimed he would be a welcome to the world, in having the power to alleviate suffering.

PRINCE FINED FOR SLAPPING SUSPECTED AIDE TO PRINCESS

BUDAPEST, Dec. 16 (AP)—Prince Abdul Kadir, son of the late Sultan Abdul Hamid, of Turkey, will follow the old axiom of thinking twice before acting the next time he gets in a slapping mood.

Princess Medpidie, chief wife of the prince, escaped from a villa here, and as Abdul believed Mustapha Afid, a secretary, had assisted her, he slapped his face.

The prince said he did not think this mattered much because Mustapha smacked him a blow in return, but the court imposed a fine of $35. Abdul then learned the princess was suing him for alimony.

CO-EDS USE MEN'S HOSE AS PROTECTORS—SET A NEW FAD

BLOOMINGTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—Co-eds of Indiana University have created a new fad in the feminine footgear which already is spreading throughout the state.

A group of them made their bow at a football game with men's hose pulled on over their own thin silk hosiery to protect their ankles from the blasts of autumn winds.

A few days later all the co-eds on the campus had adopted the custom, and clothing merchants reported that there was not a pair of cotton hose left in the city's stores.

The horse are pulled up as far as they will reach and give the impression of half-hose, coming a few inches below the bottom of the skirt. They threaten to supplant galoshes for mildly cold weather among the fair sex.

RESORT TOWN IN CALIFORNIA CLOSES JAIL—NO BUSINESS

LAKE ARROWHEAD, Cal., Dec. 16 (AP)—Chief of Police Tom E. Johnson has placed a padlock on the door of this mountain resort's one-cell jail. With it went this sign: "Business indefinitely suspended."

The official said the jail was not a paying proposition, since no arrests had been made in the last year and the villagers were running into debt keeping the institution.

The chief added that if any offenders were apprehended, they would be placed in the blacksmith shop for safe keeping.

Showing up Euclid

"ONE body cannot be in two places at one time", we learned in school.

But many a sales manager knows differently. For he has found out that a salesman can be in his office and at the same time make his sales talk before a customer in a distant city.

For all practical purposes, toll telephone service has disproved Euclid's theorem.

A toll telephone conversation can be used to interest the prospect; to follow up an inquiry; to close a deal and book the order; any or all of these steps—depending, of course, on the type of product sold. Whatever yours may be, a telephone sales plan can be devised to meet your requirements.

DANIELSON

CORONER QUESTIONS APHER REGARDING KUZZOLA'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—Samuel B. Apher of Worcester came here Wednesday afternoon, at the request of Coroner Arthur G. Bill, to be interviewed relative to the accident in which Phyllx Kuzzola, 14, was fatally injured by the motor vehicle that Apher was operating near Wilsonville, on the state highway leading from North Grosvernordale to Webster, at about 5:20 Tuesday evening.

Coroner Bill said after interviewing Apher that he had arranged to hold an inquest Saturday. The coroner fixed Apher's bond at $500 to insure his appearance at that time.

Apher it is claimed did not know his machine had struck the Kuzzola boy, who was riding a bicycle along the highway, until he had driven some distance past where the accident occurred. Stopping his light truck and returning, Apher found the boy lying on the ground. Apher saw to it that the injured boy reached the office of a physician in Webster, from where he was ordered to a hospital in Worcester, where he died. A fractured skull is given as the cause of death.

Apher operates a truck owned by a sausage company having headquarters in Worcester and doing business throughout northeastern Connecticut. The truck that figured in the accident is understood to have been equipped with gas lights, instead of the electric headlights in such general use on motor vehicles today. The gas lights do not furnish the same amount of illumination as is supplied by electric headlights and this may have had something to do with Apher not seeing the Kuzzola boy riding along the highway on his bicycle. It is likely that this phase of the case will be inquired into carefully at the inquest. Should Apher be found to have been negligent, the probability is he will be charged with manslaughter.

An organization that dates back to 1847—to December of that year—held its annual meeting here Wednesday afternoon and elected officers. This is the Killingly Theft Detecting society. For many years its activities were concerned in giving general assistance to constituted authority in searching out thieves of every species and particularly in aiding in apprehending horse thieves, who were, it appears, the predecessors of that cult which today makes an easy living by stealing automobiles.

The society is not as active as of yore, but its organization is maintained, officers elected once a year and its affairs kept in approved order. It has a membership of 43, and though little is heard of it through the year still is a potent agency for good in certain emergencies.

The officers elected Wednesday are: President, A. E. Simmons; vice-president, Robert Smith; clerk and treasurer, John Z. LaBelle; executive committee, A. P. Woodward, L. S. Barstow, Arthur Aldrich, Charles E. Ayer, Martin Fitzsimmons, Robert Smith, Charles Young, Jr.; auditors, Ray Whipple, L. S. Barstow, Hiram S. Franklin; pursuers, Arthur Aldrich, Clarence Smith, Charles Young, Jr., F. S. Kennedy, W. D. Cogswell, C. E. Ayer, Fred C. Bellows, John Z. LaBelle, John F. Chase, L. S. Barstow, Martin Fitzsimmons, Hiram S. Franklin; collectors, North district, Ray Whipple; East district, Arthur Aldrich; South district, Arthur W. Day.

Mrs. Marie Millette, 82, died during Tuesday night at her home in Connecticut Village after having been in her usual health up to within a short time before she passed away. She had spent Tuesday evening playing checkers as a member of a family gathering, and there was no hint of the approaching end. Mrs. Millette was a native of Canada.

During Tuesday night Joseph D. La-Roche, 58, died at his home in Attawaugan, where he had been a resident practically all his life. He had been in poor health for a number of years. During his active lifetime Mr. LaRoche had been a mill worker and had been engaged in other occupations in and near Attawaugan. He leaves his wife and a daughter.

Enthusiasm for an amateur basket-ball league, having probably two teams from Danielson and others from surrounding towns in its lineup appears to be growing. The Service battery will have a good team and there will also be a Danielson team made up of players who have made fine records on local courts within the past half dozen years. With the high school games and the games in the prospective amateur league, there should be plenty of the sport to please the fans during the winter and early spring season.

Next Saturday afternoon the giant Christmas tree planned for the American legion's community party will be erected on Davis park. It will be wired for lighting, but will not be illuminated until Christmas eve, when the big affair is to be held.

In the meantime the committees in charge of the many details of the arrangements are busy. Among other things, a rehearsal of the choir singers and all others who desire to assist in presenting the Christmas carols will be held at American legion hall next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A special invitation is issued to all singers to come to the rehearsal.

The auxiliary of the legion co-operating with church guilds of the borough, will have charge of preparing the lunch that is to be served in the vestry of the Westfield Congregational church after the Christmas tree party and the singing of carols throughout the borough. Arrangements are being made to serve 200 people.

There was a fleeting promise of a white Christmas season early Wednesday morning when a snowstorm developed, but amounted to little. Practically all of the snow had disappeared at the noon hour.

Fortunate radio fans who did the trick are delighted over having brought in San Jose, Costa Rica. It was a very early morning stunt.

These are harvest days for trappers and hunters of fur bearing animals not protected by game laws at this season of the year. It is estimated that the total value of pelts taken in territory hereabouts during the present season will be several thousand dollars. Fox, mink, coon, muskrat and other furs enter into the collection being made.

More insistent becomes the call to "Mail your Christmas packages early". Indications are that the holiday mail will be greater this year than ever before. If delays in delivery are to be avoided, prompt mailing must be done

Heavy shipments of cotton for the Quinebaug mills are being received here this month. Employes of the big concern were engaged Wednesday unloading a shipment just received here.

MANAGER HENRY LYON IS PRESENTED A WATCH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—Employes of the S. N. E. T. company in the Danielson and Moosup exchanges shared in raising the fund for the purchase of a watch presented Manager Henry Lyon at the Christmas tree party in Putnam Wednesday evening. Manager Lyon is to be transferred from this territory to Norwich. He has made an excellent record here and the employes are a unit in their regret that he is going away.

ORION BENTLEY STRICKEN— HAS KIN IN NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—Orion Bentley, who lives alones just over the Connecticut line in Rhode Island, about two miles east of East Killingly, was reported in critical condition Wednesday following a shock sustained early Tuesday evening while calling at the home of a neighbor. He had been sitting talking and was about to start for home when an axe he was carrying fell to the floor and he collapsed beside it. Mr. Bentley is owner of some 1100 acres of land in Rhode Island just over the Connecticut border. He has lived alone for years, with only cats for company. A familiar figure about East Killingly, where he did his trading, he is said to have relatives living in the vicinity of Norwich, but none in this vicinity.

PUTNAM

KEEN LOCAL INTEREST IN RUMORED SILK MERGER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 16—Although local officials of the H. K. H. branch of the Hemingway Silk company were not inclined to comment on the announcement that they are one of the five silk companies in a merger which is practically consummated, it is believed that the plans have been approved, as far as they affect this plant. Two years ago the Heminway company bought the Morse-Nightingale mills here and moved into them from a leased property. They have been improved and modernized and are considered to be on a high plane of efficiency.

The H. K. H. company is capitalized at $3,500,000. This does not include the plant at Watertown, but with the possible exception of Belding Bros. of Rockville, the Heminway company will probably be the highest valued of the five companies in the proposed combine.

"Negotiations for a merger of five large silk companies, including Belding Bros. of Rockville, Conn., and the Heminway Silg company, of Putnam, Conn., are nearing completion and an early announcement of the combination is expected. The Belding company, whose shares were sold to the public early this year, will probably form the nucleus for the combination.

"Belding Brothers and company, a Connecticut corporation, was capitalized at $8,000,000 and was sold for approximately $15,000,000 to New York interests. The capital structure was changed and the stock was declared 'no par.' Belding plants are located at Rockville and Winsted, in Connecticut at Northampton, Mass., Belding, Mich., and Petaluma, Cal.

"The Heminway Silk company has plants in Putnam and Watertown and formerly operated a plant in New London. As the H. K. H. Silk company, by which name it was known until comparatively recently, it was capitalized at $3,500,000.

"The Cortecelli Silk company has been mentioned as a company in the merger. This is also a Connecticut corporation, with about $6,000,000 capital outstanding. Plants are located in Florence, Leeds and Haydenville in Massachusetts, and in New London and Norwich in this state.

"A rumor also linked the name of Cheney Brothers in the proposed merger. This, however, is without foundation.

"Partial confirmation of the merger talk was obtained last night."

At the annual meeting of Putnam chapter, American Red Cross, held in the Red Cross room, the secretary, Miss Bowen, gave the report of the year's work. The treasurer, Miss Roberts, reported a balance of $1,574.40 on hand most of which being in the First National bank is not at present available.

Miss Wheelock, as chairman of the production committee reported fifty-one comfort bags sent to Washington in October, which were to be forwarded to men of the regular army, navy and marine corps stationed in different parts as Christmas gifts. She also stated that the knitting of sweaters had met with a ready response seven already being completed and others being knitted.

Mrs. E. C. Morse, chairman of the nursing committee, gave a comprehensive report of that committee.

The following officers and committees were elected: Chairman, George W. Baker; vice chairman, Alexander Grimm; secretary, Miss Edith C. Bowen; treasurer, Miss Emma Roberts; executive committee, Miss Katherine Byrne, Mrs. J. A. P. Gagne, J. J. Dupre, Miss Ellen M. Wheelock, Mrs. E. C. Morse, Mrs. C. E. Richardson, of Putnam, Mrs. Dyer S. Elliott, of North Grosvernordale, Mrs. S. B. Overlock of Pomfret, Mrs. George M. Sampson, of Woodstock, Rev. A. C. Downe, of Dayville; production committee, Miss Ellen Wheelock, Mrs. S. M. Wheelock, Mrs. A. V. Frost, Miss Jennie Willis, Mrs. George M. Sampson; nursing committee, Mrs. E. C. Morse, Miss Ellen W. Wheelock, Miss Clara Larned, Miss Elizabeth Child, Miss Jennie Willis, Mrs. A. V. Frost, Mrs. N. B. Burton, Arthur Macdonald was appointed publicity agent.

George Baker, who directed the roll call, reported the appointment of the following workers, and receipts to date in Putnam of $416. District No. 1, Mrs. E. C. Morse, captain, Constance Russell, Mrs. Shirriffs, Mrs. Omar Milot, Mrs. George Twig, Miss Marjorie Strahan, Mrs. Allen Bowen, Mrs. Pearl Queston, Miss Marjorie Bradford, Miss Woznicki; district no. 2, to Farrows street, Mrs. S. Nikoloff, captain; Miss Wilbur, Miss Elizabeth Child, Mrs. Alice Carpenter, Mrs. Mary Keane, Mrs. Irving Miron; district no 2, North of Farrow street, Miss Jennie Willis captain; Mrs. W. H. Tyler, Mrs. E. S. Duffy, Mrs. Josephine Greene, Miss Gertrude Perry; district no. 3, Mrs. Mignault, Mrs. Robillard; business section, Miss Edith C. Bowen, captain; district no. 4, Mrs. A. V. Frost, captain; Miss Winifred Mellor, Mrs. S. M. Wheelock, Mrs. H. J. Smith, Miss Alice McAvoy, Mrs. R. W. Spencer, Miss Nowers; Putnam Heights, Mrs. Broussard, captain; Mrs. Arthur Tourtelotte; Sawyer district, Mrs. Thaddeus Pitkin, captain.

Doc Riley, who has been a patien: at Memorial hospital, in Worcester, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis, is now at his home at North Grosvernordale and is making a good recovery.

Earl Smithson, of Hartford, has been spending a few days with his parents Mr. and Mrs. William A. Smithson, on Grove street.

Mrs. C. Killian and little daughter, Ruth, of North School street, have been guests of friends in Worcester.

Miss Viola Snyder, school nurse and Miss Clara Larned attended the luncheon and meeting held Tuesday afternoon at New London, for the social workers of New London and Windham counties.

SOUTH WINDHAM

Two automobile accidents in three days at the same place here in South Windham again remind people of the need of some change in Backus corner, and the greater need of care of autoists in turning corners.

In both cases the cars were damaged and in each car a young lady was badly hurt.

Charles Maynard, formerly of Norwich now in the employ of the Smith and Winchester Mfg. Co., is as comfortable as can be expected following an operation at St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic.

SIDNEY ALLING PRESIDES AT MEN'S CLUB MEETING

Monday evening The Windham Community Men's club of Windham and South Windham met in the school house at Windham Center, passing a very pleasant evening. Sidney Alling formerly of Norwich, presided. The meeting opened by singing America, and after grace was said by Rev. Joseph F. Cobb of South Windham the 67 men present enjoyed a delicious and bountiful dinner of beef loaf, macaroni, potato chips, rolls, cake and coffee, served by The Parent-Teachers' association.

The waiters were Everett Potter, chairman, Harold Hopkins, Andrew Anderson of Windham Center, Henry Safranek, Joseph F. Cobb, Harry Ericson in place of Charles Maynard, of South Windham. The orchestra furnished popular music. Valentine Anderson was song leader. There was a report of progress by the committee on Good Roads. After regular business, the following were drawn for the arrangement of the January meeting: Alfred Card, Frank Murdock, Charles Crandall of South Windham, James Potter, Orrin Rathbone, Clarence Eldridge of Windham. Three new members were voted in. Gustave T. Bochman of Hartford gave an interesting practical instructive, appealing address on "Prohibition, Its Relation to Industry." After singing a number of songs, the meeting closed by singing The Star Spangled Banner.

POMFRET

NATIVITY PLAY DATE SUNDAY EVENING, DEC. 20TH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

POMFRET, Dec. 16—Pomfret's nativity play is to have its fourteenth annual presentation Sunday evening, Dec. 20th, at Pomfret hall, beginning at 8 o'clock. This drama of The Holy Night has become famous, and is attended by people from all parts of the country. It is the creation of the Pomfret Neighborhood association, which organization bears any expense attendant upon it. It is enacted by the same players year after year, and is a Christms celebration of great beauty and feeling.

Crop of Chicken Feathers

A Russian savant, M. Zavadackt, who has done a great deal of investigation of the thyroid gland, recently tried the experiment of feeding some dried and pulverized thyroid to the chickens and the result was to induce an almost immediate moulting, a new crop of finer feathers following rapidly, but strangely still, the new feathers that came in were invariably white without regard to the previous color of the bird. If anyone had occasion to want plenty of chicken feathers he thinks the practice would be a commercial success. He found that large doses of thyroid were more effective in this respect than smaller and more frequent doses. The quickness with which the fowl shed the old feathers and put on the new depended on the size of the dose. The largest dose that could be given without affecting the bird's physical condition brought on moulting in six days and the new white feathers in 17.

Certain species of frogs in the Philippines have remarkably large fully-webbed hands and feet which they use as parachutes in jumping from trees.

Little Brockton Girl Had Stubborn Cough

that Kept Her Awake at Night

"Some time ago my little girl, who had had influenza and whooping cough, was suffering from an obstinate, deep-seated cough that nothing that we tried seemed to have any effect upon. Syrupy mixtures, cod liver oil and other remedies didn't help her one bit. One day my wife got a bottle of Allen's Mulsicof and began to give it to the girl. She began to improve very soon—her coughing at night, which had been almost incessant, was wonderfully relieved. She began to pick up in health and we could see an improvement every week. The Mulsicof accomplished wonders in her case and we wouldn't be without it in the house."

This remarkable experience of E. C. Holmes of 18 No. Belcher Ave., Brockton, is only one of hundreds of grateful, enthusiastic letters that have been written by users of

STREET AND ROAD SIGNS

A job that is well begun is said to be half done. Perhaps Boston does not consider that the marking of its streets is half done just because the highly commendable decision has been reached by the municipal and civic interests of that city to erect something like 6,000 street signs, but very often it is the case that the hardest part of such an undertaking is in reaching a decision.

Boston is setting a fine example to all other cities, or it may be said that it is following in the footsteps of a few communities which have given recognition to the need of just such action.

At the present time Boston is suffering from the effects of steadily increasing traffic. Streets are jammed with cars and efforts are being made to open up new lines of travel in order to better accommodate travel in the streets and relieve the danger. The lack of street signs is not the whole cause for this situation for Boston is notorious for its narrow and crooked streets. But the marking of the streets is going to be of great assistance to those who are looking for certain streets and where there are no signs are obliged to stop every now and then to inquire.

Cities which have the streets properly and prominently marked are making big contributions to the convenience of that large number which is not familiar with street names, the visitors and the automobilists who are merely passing through a city but in doing so are obliged to follow described routes. All is well when street signs exist from which help can be obtained for traffic can move along smoothly and the strangers be informed.

Not only the cities but the country towns may well give more attention to the need of such signs. The heavy travel on the highways emphasizes the importance of indicating the destination of the various cross roads and the branch roads that those who ride may read and those seeking such roads may know where to turn off in order to reach their proper destination without loss of time and unnecessary mileage. These are certainly the days for increased street and road signs.

RECOGNIZING LAFOLLETTE

The standing of Robert LaFollette in the United States senate has apparently been determined on the technicality that he was nominated and elected as a republican in the state of Wisconsin and therefore he ought to be given recognition as such in the United States until such a time as there is definite reason for rating him otherwise. Technically he is a republican, however much that may be doubted as an actual fact and however much it may be demonstrated to the contrary in the days that are to come.

LaFollette is being accepted as a republican and being assigned on the committees as such is under test. There is no question what his father was and there was no difficulty in rating him. There are good reasons for believing that the son is going to be like the father, and yet that does not necessarily follow.

In this respect, however, there are his own statements which indicate what course he intends to follow. He has approved the action of the insurgents in the house and he had declared that it is his intention to follow his father's policies. There seems to be no reason for believing that he will do anything else, and yet he has not been given the added excuse for going off at a tangent through being thrown out of the republican party before he has been given a trial as a republican.

No one will have any faith in LaFollette's intention of being a republican. If on the other hand through the disposition of the republicans to strive for peace instead of creating additional trouble the antagonism of the new and young senator is prevented it may prove to be good party politics. At any rate it is considered wise to try out the reasoning. Some may have faith in it but others will have none. By the results the move can be judged.

At any rate the democrats haven't been given the satisfaction of having the new senator driven into what would be an equivalent of an addition to their ranks though such would have been pleasing to them. They do not like to see any move made toward healing a breach in republican ranks. Many republicans are likewise not elated over the move but they are willing to see it work out, if possible, that discretion is the better part of valor.

STOP THE WASTE

One matter which bids fair to receive attention at this session of congress, or which at least is deserving of attention, is that concerning the appropriation for government buildings at the national capital.

Added reasons for action looking to the relief of this situation are furnished by the report of the commissioner of internal revenue who refers to the difficulties encountered by his department and the time lost or wasted because of the fact that the bureau is obliged to do business in ten different buildings, some of them being two miles apart.

This reveals a situation which does not operate for efficiency. No bureau can do business with satisfactory results, or with as satisfactory results as are possible, under such conditions. It wouldn't be expected to do any better or as well under circucstances of that kind.

This is not the only bureau, or department that is handicapped by being obliged to carry on its work in separate buildings. Under emergencies such an arrangement might be tolerated for a time but it is unbusinesslike and costly. In Washington this situation prevails to too great a degree. Rents are not only high but are being jacked up on the government quite the same as on other tenants. Not only for the purpose of eliminating the waste of lost time but of cutting down the high rentals are new government buildings being urged.

Through the plan which has received the endorsement of the president for authorizing a building programme that would be carried out over a term of years the situation which now prevails at Washington could be greatly relieved. In the interest of economic and efficient government it would appear to be the logical thing to do. It is one of the ways in which a dissatisfactory state of affairs can be eliminated to the credit of the country and in the interest of a better administration of government business.

BEATEN AT HIS GAME

"All is not gold that glitters." Many times it seems so and many times efforts have been made under such a belief to prove it with varying results.

When the effects of the dry law in this country were disclosed Sir Broderick Hartwell of London figured it out that there was a glittering chance to get liquor into this country and dispose of it at a handsome profit. It will have to be admitted that the chances seemed good. He was not concerned with the fact that there would be a violation of the laws of this country somehow or somewhere. He was interested in getting the dollars that would seemingly be returned to him, and he set out in their behalf and promised investors big profits within a few months. It was a get rich quick undertaking which attracted many, and he shipped much liquor to these shores. Some was disposed of even as he had intended, but there came a time when the enforcement authorities opened an active campaign against rum row, shipments which his corporation had made were among those seized and the enterprise went on the rocks. Sir Broderick finds himself in the bankruptcy court as the result. It is one of the failures resulting from the intentional violation of this country's laws which furnishes an interesting sidelight on the effects of the activities against the rum smugglers by the coast guard.

When Sir Broderick launched his effort he did not contemplate that he would encounter any such opposition as he has experienced. When he began the business everything looked bright and attractive. It was under the changed conditions that he slipped up. The undertaking didn't pan out as expected.

FRANCE'S PROBLEM

That Finance Minister Loucheur should resign from the French cabinet after his plans for meeting the fiscal problems of his country had failed of approval among the deputies was inevitable. Loucher is a man of wealth, a big financier of France, and he takes the view that personality has played no little part in the defeat of his plan. Well does he say that personality should not be allowed to affect the adjustment of France's financial troubles, and with that spirit he resigns his job to another.

It is not what can be termed an enviable task. Whether Doumer can bring forth a plan that will both meet the situation and get approval is the important question for the present. For the good of France it is to be hoped taht he can command sufficient confidence and support to relieve the present tense situation.

It is unfortunate if the people of that country, or its legislators, have gotten the idea that the needed solution can be drafted from the air and that there is some mystical method by which the situation can be met without further sacrifice. Sooner or later they must come to face the facts and recognize the importance of meeting them. Because taxation is unpopular does not mean that it can forever be avoided. There may be methods which are more just and more satisfactory than others, but the need of France today is to get back of the soundest possible plan whereby it can restore the franc and French credit and help to aid themselves in meeting something which cannot be dodged. It is a time for the lawmakers of France to tackle the problem as Frenchmen instead of political partisans.

AT THE CLUB

"When I was young and indiscreet," said the sandy-haired member to his amiable friend, "there was a girl with blue eyes in our town—china-blue eyes, you understand—who was almost clever enough to ensnare my youthful affections."

"Pity about you," snorted the large and amiable man, pulling his waistcoat more smoothly down over his stomach and crossing his well-tailored legs.

"Yes, wasn't it?" agreed the sandy-haired person. "But you see I escaped after all. The girl was one of our village belles. Report had it that she had turned down the banker's son and our leading hardware merchant, besides coming so near upsetting my own placid equilibrium. She finally married the janitor of the Presbyterian church, who had lost two front teeth at the Donegal fair. I always thought it was the missing teeth that turned the trick, women are so susceptible to picturesque detail. They tell me she has ten children and addresses her husband as 'Mr. Burke.'"

"Your own sense of detail is acute enough," commented the amiable member, "but your attitude toward matrimony is unpardonable. Now I——"

"Yes, sir, I know all about you," said the sandy-haired person, testily. "My sister is wearing your bouquets with increasing frequency, I notice. At least I hope they are yours rather than Addie's——"

"Whose?" snapped the large member. "Oh, Addison or Adsit or something like that. I can't remember. Silly little ass with a soulful gaze. She met him at the Art league or somewhere."

The sandy-haired person removed his spectacles and began to polish them vigorously. "He's always sending flowers, too," he added with gloom, "sloppy poetic things with short stems that sit around in bowls and dribble over. Yours have stem enough, at least——"

"They ought to," observed the amiable man, grimly.

"Ha!" remarked the sandy-haired member, and was silent.

"Say, old man," he inquired finally with sudden frankness, "have you any idea you can put this thing over?"

"It looks deuced doubtful," said the large man with equally astonishing candor, "but at least I'm not going to be a sour grape about it, like you. What became of your friend who married the two missing teeth?"

"Oh, she lived happily ever after," said the sandy-haired person cheerfully. "Her husband was of an uneven disposition, I'm told, and beat her up pretty regularly. But he was a handsome cuss, barring the teeth, and I suppose she thought, as the actress lady once said, that she couldn't have everything. Why are you so interested in her, anyway?"

"Oh, nothing," said the large member, glumly.

The sandy-haired person regarded him intently a moment, with the light of inspiration dawning in his eyes.

"Say," he inquired, finally, "will you listen to a sensible proposition?"

"I will," agreed the amiable man.

"I have another sister back home in Ohio," explained the sandy-haired person cheerfully, "who looks a lot like sis. Eyes, hair, teeth, complexion, etc. The usual selection of features complete and up to specifications on every point, she is five years younger than sis. Of course, I don't know how she would feel about it, but I'm bound to admit that I shouldn't object to her receiving the attentions of a well-conditioned bachelor like yourself with the same acuteness of objections that I should offer in reference to your present aspirations. Plain?"

"Absolutely," said the amiable man, calmly, "but I am bound to point out the weakness of your argument. First, the lady you have the honor to represent might, as you suggest in passing, have other views on the subject. Second, your salesmanship is leaky. You are not catering to an established market, but to a local and highly specialized individual taste. Is it likely that I should accept your valuation of a substitute sight unseen?"

"In other words, as it were, and to put it thus there is no sale," said the sandy-haired person gloomily. "Sis or nobody, eh?"

"You get me," agreed the large member, with undiminished cheer. "Let us now repair toward that odor of frying ham and apply a few club sandwiches to the sustenance of the inner man."—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Ephraim Chambers, the Encyclopedist

Who made the first wagon wheel? That man was one of the world's greatest men of genius, one of the men who contributed most to the development of civilization. Nevertheless, in spite of his great gift to the world, the maker of the first wheel is utterly unknown. So it is with many other of the useful things that we employ in our complex modern life. Who, for example, made the first dictionary? The first encyclopedia? No one can say definitely. Books of reference of this sort were in use by the Greeks and Romans before the Christian era. It is, however, possible to tell the story of one of the men who did much to make the present type of encyclopedia a possibility. That man was Ephraim Chambers, a man who rose from being a poor London apprentice to become the prosperous and honored maker of a great encyclopedia that did much to influence literature in many lands.

Ephraim worked for a map maker. One day the young man came to his employer and said: "Sir, every year we have made more and larger and better maps than ever before. The better we make them the more we sell. Do you notice that people who use maps like also to learn about the peoples and the places all over the world? There is no book where they can find all that. Let us make a great book, one that will tell all that they wish to know."

The idea pleased the map maker, who thought of carrying it out. This was in the early years of the 18th Century. It took a long time to make the "book," after it had been planned. Years and years after that first proposition Ephraim Chambers, then 43 years old, looked upon the completed volumes of his encyclopedia. He lived to see it so successful that three editions were printed before his death in 1740 at the age of 60. Naturally, the great work affected human thought where ever English was read, and it reached beyond England and brought on in France the work of the so-called encyclopedists. The patient, saving hard-working apprentice had moved himself upward into the company of the great.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, on whose resolution the United States senate today takes up the great question of American entry into the World Court, first came into the upper branch of the national lawmaking body in 1911 to fill out the term of John W. Daniel. Later he was chosen by the legislature for a full term, and has since been re-elected by the people, thus maintaining the southern tradition that it pays to retain the man who has accumulated experience. His early career was not one of affluence or of easy conquest of an education, and he worked for what he got. After graduating from the University of Virginia law school he settled down to practice, until he was elected to congress. He served creditably in the house for six terms, and from 1906 to 1910 he held the governorship. Then he returned to Washington as a senator.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE HOME TOWNS OF FAMOUS CHEESES

The memorial tablet which has been erected to Mme. Marie Harel, creator of camembert cheese, on her Brittany cottage in Camembert, France, recalls that the United States department of agriculture was surprised to find a large increase in the imports of camembert cheese from France immediately after the World war. Investigation showed that the A. E. F., like the old Crusaders returning from Palestine with a new-found love for the spices and silks of the east, came back from France with a relish for camembert.

"Bully beef" was drab fare to the American doughboy. He craved a substitute for the pies and all the rest that mother made. So he sought out French farmhouses where he begged or bought food that knew not tins. Usually his search was rewarded with cheese. What could banish camp rations monotony easier than spicy-odored and spicy-flavored camembert? With a bit of camembert wrapped in tin-foil there must be purchased in many American delicatessens today memories of friendly folk in deep-roofed Norman cottages.

"What Mme. Harel discovered in Camembert 30 miles south of the resort of Deauville, was the way to control a certain mold," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C. headquarters, on the well-known foreign and domestic cheese. "The camembert culture can now be secured from concerns who make it a business to grow it. Camembert and allied varieties like Brie are cured widely throughout northern France. American production now shares the United States market. Camembert differs from most cheeses in that the mold forming on the exterior mellows the core. When the cheese is ripe the interior is a creamy blob enclosed in a stiff, discolored sheath.

"So slender is the path the world makes to the historic homes of famous cheeses that one often must go to Baedeker for the sign posts. Camembert is on few maps; Cheddar, which supplies the technical title for American or 'rat trap' cheese, is 15 miles southeast of Bristol, England; Stilton is 65 miles directly north of London; Gorgonzola is in Italy, close to Milan; Parma, one of the largest of the cheese towns, is the city in south Lombardy that gives its name to Parmesan; Swiss cheese is more properly Emmental, for the Valley of Emmen Thal near Bern; Munster in Germany saw the birth of Munster cheese; red and yellow Edam cheese balls are still colorful ornaments to the Edam market near Amsterdam; Neufchatel on the Dieppe-Paris rail line, was the object of German drives for far other purposes than to get soft cream cheese; Limbourg, the town made famous by an odor, lies near Liege where Belgium halted the invaders; and finally there is Roquefort, in the Auvergne Plateau of Central France.

"Could a senator of ancient Rome shop with his wife in a modern metropolitan delicatessen, he would certainly come out the door with a package of Roquefort, for two reasons: first, because it would be one of the few comestibles with which he was familiar; second, because Roquefort was prized beyond all cheeses in Rome.

"For more than two thousand years the caverns of Roquefort have cured cheeses. Roquefort has a natural monopoly because nowhere else do nature and man combine the same elements. In the limestone rock are numerous linked caves in which there is much water. Nature maintains in these caverns a constant temperature which hovers above freezing and an atmosphere saturated with moisture; perfect conditions to favor the Roquefort mold and discourage growth of other molds.

"On the rocks above hillsmen tend 450,000 sheep, a special breed in which the requirements for wool and for meat have been sacrificed for the maximum supply of milk.

"Roquefort culture spores are propagated in special bread which is dried, ground and mixed into the sheep-milk cheese. Before the cheese goes to the caverns the makers perforate the cylinders with a skewer to admit air. Skewer marks may be traced in the slender lines of green mold found in all Roquefort cheese.

"America's contributions to the cheese industry have been chiefly scientific production, large scale output, and improved styles of marketing.

"Philadelphia cream cheese and some other cream cheeses are new in that fresh curd is used, but the texture links them to the Neufchatel group.

"Wisconsin in one year produces more than twice as much cheese as Switzerland. Yet Wisconsin owes an eternal debt to Switzerland because her cheese industry was built up in part by Swiss immigrants. Still earlier, Amsterdam's knowledge of cheese making was transplanted to New Amsterdam and cheese making centers still mark the westward march of Dutch pioneers in New York, Michigan and parts of Wisconsin.

"Loaf cheese, wrapped in tin-foil, is strictly a Yankee invention and a good one because a slice is the size of a piece of bread and because drying cannot exact losses in money and quality.

"Not many months ago a man who is a big figure in American politics and industry arrived in Washington. Employes in this man's Washington office stood ready to do his bidding. His first question on this trip made their heads whirl.

"'How can one put holes in Swiss cheese?' he asked.

"His employes soon found this was no joking matter. This famous man, it appears, when he can forget affairs of the United States, the World and business, is absorbed in his big farm. A problem had arisen in the dairy. The Swiss cheese had no holes. Since the presence or absence of holes affect the flavor, this was important. He had come to Washington in search of holes. Next day a four-page report on holes for Swiss cheese was on his desk. It said in part that bacteria known as Swiss cultures were the excavators, or more properly, the bellows. Gas generated by the bacteria expands the rubbery, raw cheese as yeast does bread. Further, that the organisms can be had from the department of agriculture and certain state universities.

"The department of agriculture not only knows Swiss cheese, but also makes it in their experimental dairy. A visitor to the dairy division can see most any day a pint bottle with enough bacteria to inflate a cheese the size of the 'Los Angeles.'"

CHILD TRAINING

Settling Big Questions

Margaret Conn Rhodes

Often we hear people say that some measure that comes up is a big question, that the solution of some social problem will take self-sacrificing effort and patience, or that times are changing and, with the times, ideas of right and wrong.

We acquiesce, yet seldom realize how close a connection there is between these weighty subjects and the training of the little ones in our homes.

No matter how the times change, honesty, judgment, loyalty, zeal, steadfastness, reverence, courtesy and thrift do not change in their import. And really if we are honest with ourselves the big questions all dissolve quickly upon close examination.

Good citizenship may seem a subject too big to apply to the child, yet the training during the child's first few years largely determines the quality of his future citizenship. If you teach the tiny toddler his right relationship with the members of his own family, his part in co-operative home happiness, his rights and the rights of others, you have the beginning of a good citizen right then. It may be you deplore the tendency of people toward thoughtless expenditure, then begin teaching your baby boy or girl to get the most from the pennies and dimes that come into his possession; if you regret the lack of reverence you note in the masses, simmer the question down to your own little flock and teach respect and awe for the things that are sacred.

Back of all the so-called "big questions" that your child or any child will have to meet is an unvarying principle. When you make the Golden Rule a vital thing to live by, doubts disappear, wrong is righted, perplexities clear up and the little child who has been taught to conform to this Rule begins his public career in school, in life, in society with a guide that will carry him through and be a surety for peace and contentment.

Stories That Recall Others

Evidences of Santa Claus

"Well, I know there is a Santa because oh Christmas morning I saw his footprints in the ashes in our fireplace," one held forth as sure proof.

"Huh, I know Santa Claus came to our house 'cause I saw a toy he dropped in our fireplace just as he started to go up the chimney," said another.

"There is, too, a Santa Claus 'cause last Christmas he ate a banana at our house and I saw the peeling on the library table when I got up," piped a future president.

Memories Recalled, But—

A curio of no little interest is a quaint old glass jug of whiskey which for more than ten years has stood hidden away in a basement. It was dug up the other day and the inscription showed that it was bought in 1914. Clear and sparkling as the liquor appears, no one has ever been tempted to break the seal, for, and here's the rub, a small snake is coiled in the bottom of the bottle with its head raised as if ready to strike, prophetic, perhaps, of the danger and the evil that may follow who has disturbed his preservation.

A Successful Merchants Business Code

Fred Anderson, miracle merchant of Ozad Nebraska, is credited with doing more business per capita than any other known business institution. Last year his business ran considerably over a quarter of a million dollars.

How does he do it, how does he turn his stock three and one-half times each season, in a village of 1300 people, in a county which barely boasts of 8,000 inhabitants?

Here is Fred Anderson's code for the merchant?

Your face is the mirror of your soul. Keep it trimmed with sunshine and radiance. Your store window is the mirror of your store. Keep it trimmed—tied up with your advertising.

Goodwill is more than a spoken word. It implies the Golden rule theme of business. Get it and keep it.

Be a part of your community, energetic in its activities.

Boost your competitors. Perhaps some day they'll become customers.

Talk to folks in your advertising: not at them. Advertise, not only your store, but every local association and interest that is worth while.

Keep a mailing list and keep mailing to your mailing list; then your mailing list will soon keep you.

Advertise, Advertise! If your business isn't good enouch to advertise, why not advertise it for sale.—Frank R. Otte, in Forbes Magazine.

It is better to appear ungallant than to give the impression that you love to hear yourself talk.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

ARRESTED ON CHARGES OF THEFTS OF CHICKENS

WATERBURY, Dec. 16—(AP)—Charles Jouozaitis, of Davi astreet, Oakville, and Julius Wilkus, of 1634 Baldwin street, were arrested today on charges of thefts of chickens. State Policeman Donald Geddes and Lieutenant Chris Harmon followed these two men and their wives through Watertown, Bethlehem, South Britain and Roxbury, today and then arrested them as they came back to Watertown.

The two men, accompanied by their wives, set out from Jouozaitis' home on Davis street in two automobiles. One car broke down in Watertown and was taken to a garage. Garage men noticed what seemed to be chicken feathers in one of the cars. State Policeman Geddes and Lieutenant Harmon were notified and when they came up a few minutes later, Jouozaitis and his wife climbed into Wilkus' car and all four drove off, leaving the other machine.

Then began the long tour of the country. The foursome stopped at a farm house in Roxbury for some time and then started back. Arriving in Watertown, the two men were placed under arrest.

In the back of one car, were found stray feathers, several bags, a light summer blanket and a dog. It is believed that this dog was called into service to draw the attention of other dogs which might be met on farms at night.

A SIGN OF IMPROVING ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Marked increase during the present year of American exports and imports of raw materials is cited as a sign of the improving economic conditions of the world, and one of Europe particularly, by the national foreign trade council in a statement issued today. During the first ten months of this year the United States exported $1,089,000,000 in raw materials, an increase over last year of more than 15 per cent. Exports this year promise to exceed $1,500,000,000, the statement says.

SECOND GROUP TO MEET AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Thursday evening at the Central Baptist church the second group under the leadership of Deacons Gallup and Holloway will have charge. Every member of the church whose name begins with C (beginning with Chappell), D, E, and F belongs to this group and those of the group present will be counted. It is hoped a very large percentage of the group can be there.

A complete report of the financial canvass up to date will be given at the meeting. A total of $10,800 for current expenses and $5,809 for benevolent work has been pledged, the pledges having been laid on the communion table following the Lord's Supper Sunday morning.

Following the observance of the Lord's Supper the boys and girls came forward and laid their pledges on the communion table, and were led in a prayer of consecration by the pastor. Similarly the young people presented their pledges and consecrated them to the work both at home and abroad. The pledges of the adult members were carried forward by the deacons, the cards being heaped high. The service was deeply impressive.

YANTIC FIRE COMPANY HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

The Yantic Fire Engine company held their annual banquet Wednesday evening. At eight o'clock the members of the company and twenty invited guests sat down to a turkey supper served by Mr. Reed of the Yantic boarding house. It was the unanimous opinion of those privileged to enjoy this feast that for variety, quantity and all around excellence it surpassed even the supremely high standard for which Mr. Reed is noted. The dinner was followed by an evening of entertainment at which Foreman Eugene A. Manning presided. Extremely felicitous speeches were made by James M. Morton, agent of the American Woolen Mill in Thamesville and by Charles F. Molter, agent of the company's mill in Yantic. Their remarks stressed the spirit of goodfellowship and co-operation existing between the American Woolen Co. and the Yantic Fire Engine Co. Other speakers were Nathan Whitely of Yantic, and John Weiler of Norwich, whose remarks were very happily chosen and met with thundering applause. Entertainment was provided by Messrs. Hooker and Toussano, who gave clever dancing and musical numbers; by Messrs Molter and Lyon, whose singing was roundly applauded; by Edward Flynn, who set all feet a dancing with his very able harmonica selections; and by Mr. Carberry, whose extremely clever clog dancing was of professional calibre. During the evening Shelby's orchestra furnished music to complete the success of a very enjoyable evening.

The menu was as follows: Cocktails, grapefruit, soup, celery, olives, roast turkey, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, turnips, onions, escalloped oysters, mince pie, apple pie, squash pie, charlotte russe, coffee, cigars and cigarettes.

FLAMES DESTROY LARGE BARN AT TAFTVILLE

The large barn owned by Edmund Proulx, of Hunters avenue, Taftville, was totally destroyed by a fire, of unknown origin, which broke out, shortly before 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. A call was sent to Central fire station in Norwich, asking for aid to combat the fire, which threatened several buildings nearby and Chief Howard L. Stanton sent Engine No. 2, of Greeneville station and Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft to assist the Taftville Fire companies.

By the time the local apparatus had reached the fire the roof of the barn had fallen in and there was little or no chance to save the burning structure. The barn is practically a total loss, only the side walls standing. Two horses, which were kept in the barn, were saved soon after the fire was discovered, but materials valued at about $50 were lost by fire.

Mr. Proulx stated that the loss on the barn, which was of frame structure, 30x40 feet, was fully covered by insurance and that the loss was about $3,500.

The city apparatus remained at the fire until there was no danger of a further spread. During the absence of the Greeneville company apparatus from Central fire station stood by to protect Greeneville against fire.

FIVE AUTO DRIVERS PRESENTED RED TAGS

Five automobile drivers were "red-tagged" Wednesday by the local police. Their cases will be disposed of in the city court this (Thursday) morning, with the usual $5 fine.

ARREST PROMINENT WOMAN ON CHARGE OF THEFT

Alleged to have been shoplifting in the store of Sage-Allen & Co., in Hartford, Mrs. Ellen B. Hull, of New London, widow of C. Hadlai Hull, state's attorney of New London county, was arrested Tuesday by Detective Sergeant N. R. Gallicchio, charged with theft, says the Hartford Courant. She was accused of stealing four women's undergarments, four articles of jewelry, and a woman's handbag, all valued at $8.16.

Immediately after her arrest, Mrs. Hull asked Captain John F. Butler to notify County Detective Edward P. Hickey of her plight. The latter arrived at once. Shortly afterwards arrangements were made for Mrs. Hull's release under a bond of $100 furnished by Anthony Clementino of No. 67 Edgewood street, an investigator for the state department of agencies and institutions.

According to the police, Miss Florence Kenefick, a private detective employed by Sage-Allen & Co., observed Mrs. Hull take the articles which she is accused of stealing and upon her complaint the arrest was made. In his report to the prosecuting attorney Sergeant Gallicchio said, "the woman admitted the theft."

Mr. Clementino said he was convinced a mistake had been made as Mrs. Hull was a woman of means who would have no motive for taking the articles. She had a charge account at the store and had traded there for some time he added, and advanced the theory she had taken the articles from one counter to another in order to get waited upon more quickly. Mrs. Hull's son, C. Hadlai Hull of New London went to Hartford Tuesday night.

Commenting upon the arrest, Mr. Hull said:

"There's absolutely nothing to it. It's another one of those blunders. I believe a jury recently returned a verdict against someone connected with an arrest of this kind. I shall certainly demand an apology and there may be a civil suit. Mrs. Hull has traded at this particular store for years and has a charge account there."

Mr. Hull said that his mother had returned to New London Tuesday in a state of collapse as a result of the affair. He branded as false the "admission" alleged to have been obtained by the police.

The case came before Judge Schatz in Hartford police court Wednesday morning and was continued for two weeks.

FALL RIVER RABBI ADDRESSES LOCAL MEETING

Several hundred members of the Young Men's Hebrew association and the Young Women's Hebrew association, with members of Rose of New England lodge, I. O. B. B., and members of the auxiliary of that lodge as their guests, celebrated the Jewish holiday "Chanukah", at the Y. M. H. A. rooms in Olympic hall, Tuesday evening, the affair taking the form of a social and dance.

The program was arranged by Dr. S. M. Goldberg, president of the Y. M. H. A., Miss Jennie Lowenberger, president of the Y. W. H. A., and Miss Marcia Bruckner, a member of the last named association, being one of the best held by the associations, in joint meeting, in many months.

The opening number on the program was the singing of Hatikvah, the Jewish national anthem, by the entire assembly, after which the seven candles, representative of this holiday, were lighted by George Greenberger, with appropriate Hebrew blessings.

Following the address of welcome, by President Goldberg, two pleasing recitations were given by Miss Mildred Weisinger, 11 years, the first being in Hebrew, the second, Barbara Fritchie, being in English.

The address of the evening was delivered by Rabbi Morton Goldberg, of Fall River, Mass., head of Temple Beth El, who is also spiritual director of the associated Y. M. H. A.'s and Y. W. H. A.'s, of New England, and the youngest ordained rabbi in the country.

This was followed by a piano solo by Miss Celia Silverman, 13 years, who was called upon for an encore, as was Miss Ruth Brown, who favored with Gypsy dances. The program was concluded with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner. Mrs. Alexander Manes was accompanist for the soloists and assembly singing.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served by members of the Young Women's Hebrew association. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight, a delightful musical program being rendered by Zimm's orchestra.

The meeting was one of the first of a series of lectures and addresses to be given by prominent people from various cities during the year and the attendance was most gratifying to the two associations under whose auspices the celebration was held.

New Library at Holy Cross

Local alumni learn from Worcester, Mass., that construction above ground has begun on the new library at Holy Cross college and it is expected that the building will be ready for use next fall. The cost will be a half million dollars. The two-story brick structure has a site on the highest part of the campus with an approach through a driveway leading to terraces and steps. On the lower floor will be a handsome foyer, a reading room and stacks with space for 200,000 volumes. The librarian's office will be on the second floor of the building, which also will contain a shipping room, cataloging room, faculty reading room and quarters for the college debating clubs.

ADDRESSED ROTARY CLUB ON FAITH AND KINDNESS

The members of the Norwich Rotary club were treated to an exceptionally fine talk by Rev. John J. Reilly at the noonday luncheon at the Wauregan hotel on Wednesday. Rev. Fr. Reilly's topic was Faith and Kindness as an Important Step in the Progress of Civilization. Rev. Fr. Reilly was introduced by J. Lincoln Crawford, who had charge of the programme for the meeting.

After a few introductory remarks in which the speaker expressed his pleasure at being a guest of the club he said in part:

Time and tide which according to the old adage set the pace for man are no longer respected by man's descendants, and man refusing to wait for the tide now skims over it as lightly as ever the flight of the swallow. Distance which once dictated to man no longer holds away over his affairs for man has taken it into his own hands and almost annihilated distance with the rapid transit and the radio. So numerous have been the discoveries and so rapid the discovery man's progress in all things, be it social, economic or intellectual and so quickly has change succeeded change that each generation has hardly had time to accustom itself to one before another presses forward for consideration. In some cases progress has so intoxicated them with success that they have lost sight of God entirely. Witness the burlesque at Dayton, Tennessee, where some of our twentieth century intellectual court jesters tried to stage an exhibition fight between faith and science. For all our betterment and progress and for all our boasting and self assurance we might come to be looked upon by succeeding generations as mere beginners instead of the finished product we are inclined to think we are or as ones who hindered civilization instead of helpers as ones who offset all the material benefits we accomplished for humanity by the harmed intellectual moral and spiritual that we did to it. And it's true that though we have gone ahead in leaps and bounds in some things the time in which we live is going back to pagan practices throwing aside the fruit for two thousand years of Christian training and experience. Time of course rolls on. Other generations have flourished and gone, gone the way of everything else created; ours will too; man's most lasting monuments in the past have come to ruin.

The years are so many hours, all things change and pass and we are hurrying on to eternity as fast as time will take us, but out of the wreck which time makes of everything human there stand out a few things of a more lasting nature which do not perish with other more fragile things but pass along with man to spend eternity with him, they are the things which if we practice and preserve and pass on to future ages will bring us their everlasting gratitude and appreciation, and what is more the appreciation of our God, these are: Our faith, our belief in God and our charity, our love, our kindness to our fellow man.

"I believe in God." This is the most far-reaching phrase that can fall from the lips of man. It may be merely lisped by you as an infant or it may be stuttered over by you a little later and it may be rolled out along with many other things less spiritual with all the indifference that youth brings or you may gasp it out between your painful breath in your latter days but whether it is as a child or grown up or a person more mature and whether you profess it in the quiet of your room or shout it from the housetops there's a recording angel near at hand that has made a note of it and it has gone with the swiftness of an angel's wings to the throne of God in heaven.

Faith is a gift and a wonderful gift at that. It takes us, poor weaklings that we are and shows us God. It bridges between the tiny thing called the mind of man and the immensity of man. It comes to the aid of reason and teaches us the things that science and reasoning knows little of. Faith takes us and speaks to us of God. It tells us of His beauty, His infinite power never ending, bounty and boundless love.

Only the fool says in his heart, I'll reject faith. And who wants to fall into this class? It would take a fool to arrive at such a conclusion with such an array of things around him to increase his faith. Who but a fool can look around this world and make an act of deep faith in God and all His works? Whether it is the delicately arranged thing, the beautiful order of things, whether you are a doctor or a surgeon probing into the secret mechanisms of the human body or a scientist delving into nature's secret things, or a theologian, a priest interested more in the things of the soul or if you are only an ordinary individual possessed of the usual allotment of common sense all must arrive at the one inevitable conclusion How wonderful in depth and height thou art, Oh, God. And inthe common things around us our faith is increased.

Along with faith goes love. Faith in God and love of those around us. The cruelest and most heartless generations were those in which there was little faith. Love then the first commandment shown by friendliness, peace and kindness toward our fellowmen will have to be our contribution to the world if we will be looked upon as great. That terrible catastrophe of the World War, an exhibition of hate on the grandest scale yet known will have to be effaced by a little more of that kindness, ordinary kindness to each other. Human nature was given a twist two thousand years ago and has never fully straightened itself. But if you wish to give an offering to this work and humanity, do not give it in gold and silver but offer what money cannot buy, kindness. Kindness in your actions toward it, kindness in your treatment, We are ready to lie down at the feet of greatness. Kindness is easy to them.

In your relations with your fellow man follow out religiously the example that Christ has given—kindness to your fellow man. Kindness should flow forth from you as natural as speech. Our Saviour's golden rule gives a short cut to it, "Whatsoever you would that men do to you, do you also to them."

If people could inject a little more of simple kindness in their lives this world would undergo a change such as has not been seen since the coming of Christ. And remember this, I think you will find it true if you do a little experimenting by yourself, there are well springs in the human heart that are never touched or bored through unless by acts of kindness done by us to those we apparently care little for. No one knows the secret of hearts for people do not carry their hearts upon their sleeves but if we could get a glimpse into the darkroom of the hearts of men we would find the only thing they respond to generally is kindness.

Let your offering to this world then be faith and kindness and just as these are the contributions the heritages that make a generation, that make a great or little, generation to be praised and thanked and looked upon as a benefactor so the individual who has faith and love, faith in his God and kindness toward those about him is truly great. He may not have a bronze reminder and you may die comparatively unknown but the reality is that faith in you found fertile ground and by your life of faith [illegible]

tered in the heart of Christ, and Christ whom you so eagerly followed and imitated in this life will come to seek you when the hour of faith is over.

Rev. Fr. Reilly was given a hearty vote of appreciation for his inspiring talk.

At the business session President J. Nelson Weymouth presided and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell acted as song leader. There were numerous guests at the meeting. One of the features of the musical program was the duet number by Edwin A. Harris and Joseph C. Worth and in the opinion of the members of the club both are better singers than boxers.

Matters of club policy were discussed and a report from Dr. Agnew of the Boy's Work committee was received.

DR. BOYNTON LEADS WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

E. C. Underwood moved into first place, Wednesday night, in the West Side Pinochle club, when the leaders had low scores for the play of the evening. Dr. J. T. Boynton went from fourth place to second place and the two leaders dropped back to third and fourth place respectively. A Jordan, with high score of 7,270, went from eighth place into fifth place in the standing.

The individual scores for the play of the evening were as follows:

H. H. Pettis, 5,870; C. S. Peckham, 5,905; E. C. Underwood, 9,880; Dr. J. T. Boynton, 6,720; Dr. N. B. Lewis, 6,200; C. V. Pendleton, 7, 015; A. J. Bafley, 5,825; A. Jordan, 7,270; E. Peckham, 6,320; C. Schuler, 6,645; J. Jordan, 6,875; J. A. Parker, 6,475.

Standings to date in order of scoring are as follows: E. C. Underwood, 27,910; Dr. J. T. Boynton, 27,540; H. H. Pettis, 27,370; C. S. Peckham, 27,305; A. Jordan, 26,795; C. V. Pendleton, 26, 715; Dr. N. B. Lewis, 26,605; J. Jordan, 25,970; C. Schuler, 25,905; E. Peckham, 25,820; A. J. Bafley, 25,445; J. A. Parker, 25,435.

WOMAN WAS KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR IN MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER, Dec. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Thomas Crocket, mother of Fire Commissioner William Crockett, was killed here tonight when she was struck by a one-man trolley car in charge of her nephew, William Tedford. Mrs. Crockett was crossing Main street, when hit by the car and was thrown under the wheels. Two years ago, her husband and three other men were killed by a trolley car at Millidale. Mrs. Crockett is survived by three sons and a daughter.

RUMOR OF VESSEL AFIRE OFF CAPE MAY

BOSTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—A fragment of a message picked up by the Tropical Radi company here tonight, said that the United States revenue cutter Modoc was "standing by off Cape May." Rumors that one or more vessels were afire there could not be verified.

MARTIN FLAHERTY KAYOES SAILOR CROSS IN FEATURE BOUT AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Those who saw Young Martin Flaherty, of Norwich, stage a sensational rally in the second round of the scheduled eight round semi-final bout here tonight and knock out Sailor Cross of the Coast Guard force, were reminded that Young Flaherty's dad, one time lightweight champion of the world. Young Flaherty showed that he had inherited the fighting spirit of the old champion who never knew when he was beaten. Those who remember the father when he was at the peak of his career could visualize the old champion in the actions and gameness of the son. Floored five times during the two rounds, Young Flaherty came back with dogged determination and a spirit that knew no defeat.

The fight, although a semi-final and in short one at that, proved to be the sensation of the evening. In the first few minutes of the opening round both Flaherty and the Sailor sparred cautiously but as the round was closing the Coast Guard boy opened with a fierce attack. Just as the bell sounded Cross caught Flaherty with a wicked left to the jaw and Flaherty sank to the floor.

When the second round opened Flaherty was still a little dazed and Cross endeavored to follow up his advantage. Four times did the Sailor drop Flaherty to the canvas but the fighting Irishman refused to stay put. Taking the count of seven and eight each time Flaherty came up for more. On the fourth knock-down of the round it looked rather dubious for the Norwich lad but when he came up he shook the cobwebs from his head and he was a changed boy. He tore into the Sailor and a second later it was the sea-going fighter that was hearing the referee count. Cross came up on the ninth count but Flaherty gave him no chance to recover and crashed in with a smashing punch that sent Cross down to stay. Cross was so much out that he had to be assisted from the ring. Flaherty's comeback after being apparently on the verge of a knockout was a sensation that will long be remembered.

In the main bout of the evening Georgie Day, of New Haven, was given the decision over Bobby Robideau, of New York, at the end of ten rounds. The fight was fairly fast and clever and in the opinion of the majority at the ringside it was a fairly good draw.

Scotty Carroll, of New London, and Young Cross, of New London, boxed a six round draw.

Young Flaherty, who originally came from Lowell, Mass., is making his home in Norwich and hereafter will claim Norwich as his residence.

AGGIE FIVE IS FAST ROUNDING INTO SHAPE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Dec. 16—Following two weeks of intensive drill, Coach Sumner Dole's Connecticut Aggie five is fast rounding into form. With the exception of Schofield's injured knee, and Daly's sprained wrist, both hangover injuries from the football season, Connecticut's squad is in tip top condition and progress made to date has been pleasing to Coach Dol

Although the Storrs team does not get under way until January 8, when Norwich is met on the home court, a tentative lineup from work display thus far can be announced.

Billy Schofield all-New England forward is certain to hold down one of the forward berths. Two sophomores, Willard Eddy of Simsbury and Harold Watson of Hartford, are staging a strong battle for the other forward berth, and they seem to have an edge on other candidates for the position. Both played on the freshman team a year ago, when they turned in some fine work. They will have plenty of competition, from Seymour, however, a senior who has made two letters in basketball. Donovan is another candidate who looks good in the forecourt.

Captain Makofski will jump center as the situation shapes up now. He can play either center, guard or forward with equal skill. He is a member of the All-New England team also, and much is expected of him from the Aggie followers. Greer looks like the next best bet for the center berth.

There is little question but what Allard and Bigwood, both lettermen, will play the backcourt. They are consistent performers, and the Connecticut defense will be built around them. Daly newly elected football captain, is expected to report before the week is over, and he is a strong contender for a guard position.

STATE GOLF TOURNEY AWARDED TO SHENECOSSETT

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 16—(AP)—Almost before Connecticut golfers have brightened up their old clubs after a long and successful season on links in the state, with many very closely competed tournaments, and before Santa Claus has dropped new clubs into their stockings, Robert B. Pryde, secretary of the Connecticut Golf association is out with next season's schedule.

The 37th annual championship tournament will again go to Shanecossett Country club at Groton, on June 28, 29, 30, and July 1. The conditions adhere to those of previous tournaments with a 36 hole qualifying round, and various prizes.

There will be nine one-day tournaments, the dates to be arranged later. The clubs which will have dates will be the New Haven Country, Highland of Meriden, Shorehaven of South Norwalk, Sequin of New Britain, Brooklawn of Bridgeport, Race Brook of Orange, Hartford, Shuttle Meadow of New Britain, and Country of Farmington.

There will be a juniors' tournament.

Team matches will be played as heretofore, and medal play team championship will be decided in the qualifying round of the championship.

BALTIC TO PLAY MANCHESTER TEAM FRIDAY EVENING

The Cheney Bros. A. A. of South Manchester will be the attraction at the Baltic basketball court on Friday evening. This game bids fair to be one of the fastest of the early season games in Eastern Conn. The two teams have met for the last three years and each game has been a very close contest. The Silk City are noted for their clean sportsmanlike playing and are a nice an aggregation as the Baltic team has ever played.

The Cheney Bros. A. A. will be represented by B. Mullen, Pentland, Smith, Kerr, P. Cervani, R. Cervani, McDonald and Wiley. Those men have seen the last Colchester and Poquonoc teams to defeat this season and hope to add the Baltic five to their lists. Baltic, naturally is of a different opinion and hopes to win by as easy a margin as in their two previous encounters with New London and Jewett City.

The same team starts for Baltic Friday as started last week, Coady and W. Robitaille, for yards; Charron, center; Swanson and Capt. R. Robertaille, guards, with Provenche in reserve. A fast preliminary will be put on between the Baltic Bantams and the Taftville Celtics.

COLLEGE CHESS LEAGUE GETS UNDER WAY DEC. 19TH

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—The intercollegiate chess league today announced an entry of six teams from Cornell, Pennsylvania, New York university, College of the City of New York, Rutgers and Columbia for its twenty-seventh annual tournament here, Dec. 19 to January 2.

The initial match on December 19 will bring together Rutgers, a new member of the league, and Columbia, which will compete by invitation.

Plans also have been made for a quadrangular tournament here from December 28 to December 30, with Yale, Harvard, Princeton and West Point as contestants.

OLD CENTRAL BASEBALL LEAGUE IS RE-ORGANIZED

MUSKEGON, Michigan, Dec. 16—(AP)—Revival of the Old Central Baseball League with four clubs, Muskegon, Ludington, Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo, is announced by Russel H. Gallagher, Chicago real estate dealer, who will operate the Muskegon club.

Emerson W. Dickerson, sports writer of the Grand Rapids Herald, will be president of the league.

JEWETT CITY AND COLCHESTER IN FAST GAME TONIGHT

Tonight at Bijou hall, Jewett City, the Colchester Whirlwinds will attempt to wrest the highly prized bacon from the larder of the local hoopsters. Colchester is undoubtably the fastest team Jewett City has ever met but there is no grass growing under the pedal extremities of such boys as Mondy Normandin and Capt. Bub Benjamin, who will traverse the court as forwards; Happy Harry Mills at center, a boy noted for his unerring aim; Porky Blake and Valentino Barry, local products with an enviable reputation as hard working fast performers at guards. Joe Faber the Providence sensation will not play unless needed due to an old arm injury that is causing him some trouble.

Colchester with Haggerty and McDowd at forwards, both former University of Washington luminaries. Sweet, from Alabama, at centre, a big boy whose average of ten baskets per game has yet to be equalled. Gregory and Pickett, two guards from New Hampshire are quite as fast as the forwards and just as good shots. Morse and Slavkin two all round utility men round out a team that is far above the ordinary. All who find it possible to attend had better take advantage of the fact and see a battle that should be worth coming miles to see. There will be a fast preliminary.

HUGGINS LOOSENS PURSE STRINGS AND BUYS THOMAS

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—Myles Thomas, star right-handed twirler of the Toronto Internationals last season, has been purchased by the New York Yankees Manager Huggins announced today.

He declined to disclose the purchase price.

Thomas, since first coming to the Yankees for a trial in 1921, has developed rapidly in minor league ranks. After finishing the 1921 season with Hartford, Conn., in the Eastern league he went to the Reading Internationals in 1922 and has starred with Toronto for the past three years, winning 37 games and ranking among the most effective twirlers of the circuit this year.

In the shake-up of Yankee forces for 1926, which already has involved the departure to other fields of Al Mamaux and Ernie Johnson, veteran pitcher and infielder, Manager Huggins also has sent Paul Wanninger, shortstop, to St. Paul in the deal which brings Catcher Pat Collins here and gives Howard Sharks, veteran infielder, his unconditional release. Sharks came to the Yankees last season from the Red Sox.

NEW YORK CLUB TO FOSTER MANY SPORTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Directors of the newly organized National Town and Country club today called a national conference here on January 21, for the purpose of co-ordinating such sports within its plan of activity as polo, golf, tennis, shooting and yachting.

Plans for the conference are an outgrowth of the establishment of committees of 1,000 business and professional men in New York, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago.

Sponsors of the movement, as announced by J. G. Loomis, president of the National Town and Country club, are Louis E. Stoddard, president of the United States Polo association; Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., Devereux Milburn, representing polo; Jess Sweetser and Jerome D. Travers, golf; Frank and Jo G. Loomis, amateur athletics; William H. Edwards and Edward H. Coy, college athletics; Julian Curtis, Rex Beach and Elmer F. Warner.

GRANGE REJOINS TEAM FEELING MUCH IMPROVED

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(AP) — "Red" Grange returned from Danville today to his teammates, the Chicago Bears, with his injured arm improved. He plans to leave with the Bears on Monday for their first game in Florida on Christmas day at Coral Gables. The bruise on Grange's left arm will receive further treatment here.

The drawn, haggard look of last week was replaced by a chereful smile today and Grange admitted thkat for the first time since his Thanksgiving day debut as a professional he was feeling fresh and rested.

The end of Grange's first road trip after eight games finds him more than $100,000 ahead for three weeks' work. He did not share in the gate receipts last Saturday at Detroit or Sunday at Chicago.

WESTERN ALL-COLLEGIAN TEAM IS ANNOUNCED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16—(AP)—The line-up of the western team which is to meet an all-eastern football eleven here December 20 in a benefit game for the Shriners' crippled children's hospital was announced today.

It includes many former college stars who won places on mythical All-American elevens.

Ends: Muller, California; Vesser, Idaho; Hickey, Washington State college; Brown, Olympia club; Avery, Olympic club.

Tackles: Locey, Oregon Agricultural college; Anderson, University of Southern California.

Guards: Bailey, Texas A. and M.; Brown, Washington; Minnick, Iowa.

Center: Horrell, California.

Quarterback: Carlson and Erb, California.

Halfbacks: Imlay, California; Bradshaw, Nevada; Cleveland, Stanford; Needles, Santa Clara.

Fullback: Patrick, Stanford; Nisbet, California.

KAPLAN IS DOWN TO THE FEATHERWEIGHT LIMIT

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, training at his Meriden, Conn., home for the defense of his world's feather-weight title Friday night against Babe Herman, is already down to 126 pounds, the feather limit, according to word received by Tex Rickard today.

Pointing to his information as dispelling doubts expressed in boxing circles as to Kaplan's ability to make the required weight for the title fight, the promoter said he had been advised of the champion's condition by Edward Curry, chief deputy of the New York Athletic commission.

Curry, who paid an official visit to Kaplan's camp at Meriden today, telephoned Rickard that the champion scaled at 126 before going through a 12-round workout and appeared to be in excellent condition for his seventh encounter with his rugged rival from California. Kaplan will come to New York tomorrow.

BRAVES TO TAKE RECORD SQUAD TO THE SOUTH

BOSTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—The Boston Braves will take south on the spring training trip what probably will be the largest aggregation of players ever brought from the north by a big league club.

Seventy men including many regulars and recruits of the Providence club, controlled by the Boston management, will make the trip.

The Braves will be captained by Dick Rudolph, who has been coach at third base. Manager Dave Bancroft will continue to be the actual field captain but Rudolph will be able to relieve him of many details.

News of the Braves' plans was forthcoming last night from Judge Fuchs and Albert H. Powell, president and vice president of the club, respectively and Manager Bancroft. They arrived here last night to make plans for the spring trip.

TWO FOOTBALL PLAYERS CHARGED WITH THEFT

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 16—(AP)—Paul W. Mohardt, Amherst college backfield star, and his brother Michael T. Mohardt, of Gary, Ind., sophomores at Amherst, were arraigned in district court this morning, charged with the larceny of fur coats. Paul was accused of stealing a $500 fur coat the property of Jesse Hemley, a student and Michael of stealing a $450 coat from Donald W. Phillips on Dec. 12, during a freshman sophomore fight in one of the college buildings.

The Mohardts pleaded not guilty and were held in $200 bail for hearing January 7. Being unable to furnish the bonds they were committed to jail.

GOLFERS DONATE FOR REPAIR OF CHURCH CLOCK

RYE, England, Dec. 16—(AP)—Golfers from all over Great Britain have sent donations to the vicar of the parish church of Rye to be used in repairing the church clock. The clock for more than 400 years has told time for the inhabitants of the town and the thousands of golfers who annually visit the famous links nearby.

Donations were sent by Abe Mitchell, George Duncan, Archie Compston and many other stars of the hickory shafts. The 125 pounds necessary for the work was received in less than a week, thus insuring an accurate timepiece in the spring for the golfers who have a nineteenth hole appointment.

RICKARD MATCHES PERFETTI WITH FLYWEIGHT CHAMP

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—Promoter Tex Rickard announced today he had signed Lew Perfetti of Long Island City as an opponent for Fedel Labarba of Los Angeles, recognized world's flyweight champion, in the semi-final bout of the Christmas fund card at Madison Square Garden December 23.

Perfetti substitutes for Joe Lazarus, of Bayonne, N. J., former amateur, who was forced by illness to cancel his engagement. The match is for six rounds because Labarba is under 21 and cannot fight over any longer route in this state.

LEARY HAS NOT BEEN APPROACHED REGARDING COACH

BOSTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—Leo Leary, whom the Harvard football advisory committee have recommended as successor to Robert Fisher as head coach of that sport, declared today on his return to town that it was all new to him and that he did not know what he would say if the committee approached him. I prefer not to say anything he said. It is all new to me. I have just got back to my desk from New York. The committee has not come to me and if they should come I hardly know what answer I would make.

SOCCER PLAYER IS SOLD FOR RECORD PRICE

LONDON, Dec. 16—(AP)—Patsy Gallacher, noted Scottish international forward, has been sold by the Newcastle United Soccer team to the Scottish Addrioeonian team for £10,000 (about $50,000). This is a new record purchase price in British professional soccer.

Gallacher, sometimes referred to as the "Babe Ruth of soccer," is well known in the United States, where he is regarded by expert observers as the greatest forward in the game. While on a visit to this country last spring, Gallacher played with the Brooklyn Wanderers in a special match.

FIRPO WILL SIGN FOR BOUT WITH SPALLA

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 16—It was announced today that Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, will sign articles next Saturday with the representative of Ermino Spalla, the Italian boxer, for a bout to be held here next March.

Devos Beats Molina

PARIS, Dec. 16—(AP)—Rene Devos, the Belgian middleweight tonight defeated Bert Molina on points in a ten round bout. Under a decision of the International Boxing union, Devos now becomes the "official challenger" of Bruno Frattini of Italy for the title of middleweight champion of Europe.

Dixon, Brown Baseball Captain

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 16—(AP)—Charles B. Dixon of Rutherford, N. J., was elected captain of the Brown baseball team for 1926 at a special meeting tonight. Captain Dixon succeeds Judson J. Cutler of Lynn, Mass., who recently withdraw from college. The new captain is a senior, playing third base and was one of the football team's star halfbacks for three seasons.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Babe Herman, challenger, has trained himself down to 127 pounds and expects to have little trouble registering the featherweight limit in his championship 16-round clash in New York Friday night with Louis (Kid) Kaplan.

Fidel LaBarba, conqueror of the American flyweight champion, Frankie Genaro, will not face Joe Lazarus of New York in the Christmas fund bouts December 23. Lazarus has reported ill.

William T. Tilden, 2nd, national tennis champion, and Vincent Richards, will enter the indoor title play this season if Jean Borotra of France appears to defend his title which he won in New York last season.

Jess McMahon, Madison Square Garden promoter, has wired Tod Morgan, who recently lifted the junior lightweight title from Mike Ballerino offering him a bout with Joe Glick of New York. Morgan lives on the Pacific coast and is managed by Frank Churchill, who plans to take him to the Philippines.

Two scouts were added to the New York Yankees' roster Tuesday, Ed Herr and "Vinegar Bill" Essick, the latter former manager of the Vernon club on the Pacific coast. The Yankees now have nine scouts and coaches.

Tentative dates, the weeks of September 23 and 30, have been named by the women's committee of the United States Golf association for the women's championship next year.

James R. Knapp, chairman of the Columbia university football committee, presented letters to the football players Tuesday and commended them for their good showing. He failed to mention the coaching situation.

Art Griggs, manager of the Omaha team of the Western league, for two years, is said to be nibbling for a managerial berth in the Pacific Coast league. Some think he will get the Sacramento berth. Griggs told Barney Burch at Omaha, that he did not care to return there in 1926, preferring the West coast.

President Harry Williams indicates that he is going to have a number of new faces on the Coast league umpiring staff next year. Another one to be added to the staff is Augie (Pat) Moran, who has been serving in the Three-I league. Moran was in the National league at one time. He makes the third new man to be signed by Williams.

Elmira did not have a representative at the meeting of the New York-Pennsylvania league in York, Pa., last week, but President J. H. Farrell announced that the club would be in the circuit again next season. Camden, N. J., and Hazelton, Pa., put in bids for franchises but there was no room for them. Officials of the Harrisburg club announced that they would have a new park next season. Williamsport is also building a park.

John F. Nugent, of Pittsburgh, who claims to possess the ball which Kiki Cuyler hit for two bases to cinch the final game of the world's series, has taken its place as a real treasure. It was loaned to a New York jewelry firm recently and the latter had it insured for $250 in the name of its owner. Nugent received a gold watch for permitting the "apple" to become part of a window display. Nugent says he has more applications for the loan of the ball.

Vean Gregge, veteran southpaw, who was sent to New Orleans of the Southern league, by the Washington Senators, and recalled at the end of the season, has now been turned over to Birmingham of the same league. Vean's release is outright in connection with the purchase of Tex Jeanes from Birmingham by the Senators late last season. Gregg was obtained by Washington from Seattle of the Pacific Coast league, but the 40-year-old heaver could not make good his comeback.

Fritz Maisel, captain of the Baltimore team, who suffered a broken nose during the little world's series when Joe Guyon of the Louisville team, collided with him, must undergo an operation as the result of the injury. For several weeks he suffered from pains in his head and under his eyes. More recently he supposed the effects to have completely left him, but he again suffered from pains when he went on a hunting trip and caught cold in his head. It is believed a piece of bone is lodged against a nerve and a surgeon is going after it.

Tom Watkins, who runs the Memphis club and also has an interest in the Knoxville club of the South Atlantic league, was in Charlotte, last wee ktrying to interest Dick Hobitzel in the management of the latter team. Watty, it would seem, made Duck a rather enticing offer in the hope of luring him out of retirement. Hobitzel gave no decision, but, it is understood, might consider the proposition if he can purchase a block of stock in the Knoxville club. Of course, he'll have to see what's what first and will probably look over things there before long.

BIG MUNN DESERTS WRESTLING MAT TO DON THE PADDED MITTS ONCE MORE

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(AP)—"Big Munn", the Nebraska heavyweight, who for a time last winter held the wrestling championship, plans to return to the boxing game and will meet Andre Andersen at Kansas City soon, it was announced today by Munn's new manager, Ed White of Chicago.

Munn took up wrestling about two years ago after three appearances with the gloves had left him on the losing end. In one of his first matches as a wrestler he threw Strangler Lewis out of the ring at Kansas City and so injured him that Munn won a second fall and the world's championship in a few minutes.

In their return match, Lewis was easily victorious. Claiming a foul, Lewis had refused to give up the diamond studded belt after the Kansas City match, but it was a stake in the second contest, at Michigan City, and Lewis won it back again.

To complicate the title situation, Stanislaus Zbyszko tossed Munn for a defeat in Philadelphia while Munn was still claiming the title. Lewis apparantly ignored this flaw in Munn's title claims, and resumed the title of world's champion when he defeated Munn.

The elder Zbyszko belonged to the eastern wrestling trust and after his victory over Munn, the eastern stable of wrestlers billed their matches as contests for the world's heavyweight championship. Munn joined the western trust based upon Chicago, and when he started his country-wide tour after the Kansas City victory, agreed not to bill himself as the champion in a Chicago match. He was uniformly successful on his tour until he took on Zbyszko at Philadelphia while out of condition and sick with a heavy cold.

The argument between the eastern and western trusts over that Zbyszko victory and the title never has been cleared away. As soon as the winter wrestling season opened up, Munn resumed wrestling and has had several matches already this winter against Toots Mondt and others of the western wrestling trust.

When Ed White of Chicago bought Munn's contract from Gabe Kaufmann, White decided to turn the big Nebraskan into a boxer. His new pilot intimates that no wrestling offers will be turned down, but in future it will be boxing matches which have first call.

Munn's first opponent, Andersen, is regarded as one of the best heavyweight boxing teachers in the country. He has headed the squad of sparring partners of some of the best boxers in the country but has been bothered some with his hands. How long Munn will last against a boxer of Andersen's skill and strength may indicate what measure of success he can expect in his return to the mitt game. Since his loss of the wrestling championship twice, first to Zbyszko and then to Lewis, he has been just one of the trust's trial horses, with the big purses going elsewhere.

Despite the pessimistic predictions emanating from many quarters at the time of its enactment, the California boxing law, after one year of operation, has proved reasonably satisfactory to all concerned.

Henry V., was the first English monarch to enjoy himself at tennis. Henry VII., and Henry VIII., were both players of the game and the latter added a tennis court to the palace at Whitehall. Queen Elizabeth though not an active enthusiast, enjoyed watching the game.

The minor leagues will await with considerable interest the success of the plan adopted by the Virginia league to play double-headers every Saturday during the coming season. The plan will give the Old Dominion circuit a schedule of nearly 150 games the season to open April 12, and continue to September 15.

Commissioner Landis held court in Atlanta last week, and handed down a ruling which makes Pitcher Harry Smythe $3,500 richer, and the Augusta club of the South Atlantic league, $3,500 poorer. It seems that Smythe had expected to be a free agent at the close of the Sally season, and had filed request for such a status with Landis. At about the same time, the Philadelphia Nationals purchased him from Augusta, agreeing to pay $3,500 for his release. Landis, in effect, ruled that the pitcher was a free agent, and ordered the purchase money to be paid the payer.

President Lee Keyser of the Des Moines club, has expressed himself as being disappointed at Al Tearney's action in withdrawing his resignation as president of the Western league. Keyser says that in view of the fact Tearney admitted he did not have time enough to look after the affairs of the league, he was going to ask Mike Sexton, president of the National association, to review the situation. Keyser said that several cities in the league are in need of attention and that something must be done to get a man who will be able to put a shoulder to the wheel.

The making of the rubber cushions of billiard tables is a matter of the most skilled workmanship. Reaching the factory from the Amazon in large blocks, the rubber is first cut open and soaked in water, before going through a washing mill that at the same time grinds out all the impurities—such as sand and bits of bark—and whirls them away. The pure rubber is then vulcanized, pressed into sheets of the right thickness, and cut up into strips of the size required for the table. When finally put into place the rubber is covered with the familiar green cloth, for which the pick of the world's wool is used to produce a fabric that will stand up to its work. No fewer than twenty-two fleeces are required to cover a single table.

LUMBER DEALERS' ASS'N MEETS IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 16—(AP)—The Lumber Dealers' Association of Connecticut meeting at the Stratfield hotel today for the 34th annual convention, accepted the advice of E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association, who spoke at the afternoon business session, and voted affiliations with the state chamber of commerce and manufacturers' association. Mr. Hubbard talked in the interests of New England as a unit, and the recent steps which have been taken to let down all barriers and boundary lines between the states in accord with the plan to promote sectional welfare. He advised as the first step the joining of all business interest with the state manufacturers' association and the chamber of commerce.

Albert Selbold of New Haven, formerly second vice president of the organization, was elected president for the coming year, replacing John G Schwarz, Jr., of this city.

E. E. Thompson, of Watertown, was re-elected first vice president; Richard Warren of New London, was elected second vice president; Carlton E. Underwood, of Norwalk, secretary and Frederick B. Grant fo New Haven, treasurer. C. C. Bidwell of Windsor Locks, was elected a member of the board of directors to replace F. S. Bidwell, Jr., his brother.

In addition to the vote of the association to join the state chamber a motion was passed for the appointment of committee to cooperate with that body in the consideration of matters for the common good. The question of reforestation was strongly emphasized throughout the convention proceedings. The assembly was impressed with the need of revision of the lien laws, in an address by Albert Selbold, newly elected president and chairman of the legislative committee. Walter R. Pettit, president of the Northeastern Lumbermens' association, spoke on the "value of group meetings."

LOS ANGELES CHINATOWN TO GIVE WAY TO NEW BUILDINGS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16—(AP)—Los Angeles' Chinatown and celebrated Plaza, each rich in colorful history of the early days, are facing destruction as the hand of progress moves onward.

The two are within the 40 blocks where $50,000,000 will be spent on a civic center and union railroad terminal, the plains for which call for demolition of virtually all buildings now standing and reconstruction so as to conform in architectural design.

It was on the Plaza that the Mexican governor, Felipe De Neve, founded "El Puebla De Neustra Senora De Reyno De Los Angeles," September 4, 1781. It was the scene of the marriage of Pio Pico, California's famous Mexican governor.

Here it was that the official document was read making Los Angeles, instead of Monterey, the capital of the state. In 1849 a road-weary courier shouted from the Plaza that gold had been discovered in Northern California. Two days later, the dusty throat of Cahuenga Pass was choked with wealth seekers and only 12 persons were left here.

Chinatown, adjoining the Plaza, contains Peregrina Alley, Ancidasa and Marchessault streets, where young Chinese trade with tourists and old men sit silently puffing at long-stemmed pipes.

Prairie Dogs For Food

Indians of the Navajo reservation in Arizona use prairie dogs for food, and consequently object to the usual methods of killing these pests by the distribution of poison baits. They are willing, however, to cooperate with government and state officials in eradication campaigns carried on by running water down the prairie dog burrows after a heavy rain, forcing the rodents into the open, where they can be caught or killed.

Kind words never die—and the other kind live forever.

WESTERLY

ANGUILLA GUN CLUB FEATS ON RABBIT PIE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 16—Nearly one hundred, members and guests, of the Anguilla Gun club of the town of Stonington sat down Wednesday evening to the fifth annual rabbit pie supper, in the dining room of the Elm Tree Inn. Secretary James McGarvie was in charge of the arrangements.

Following is the menu:
Vegetable Soup
Rabbit Pie
Potatoes, Carrots, Turnips, Onions
Fruit Salad
Assorted Cake
Ice Cream
Coffe

The Gun club is composed of ..se residents of Stonington and Westerly who tote guns and cast fish-lines in the pursuit of game on land and water. Through their efforts streams are stocked with fish and game birds are liberated in the wood sections of the town of Stonington, especially along the confines of Anquilla brook, from which stream the club takes its name.

COSTANO'S BAIL RAISED BY AN ADDITIONAL $10,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 16—Consideration was given Wednesday morning in the Superior court room before Associate Justice Antonio A. Coposto to the attorney general's docket. The session opened with a crowded court room at 11:20, following a lengthy conference in chambers between the judge and Attorneys Thomas J. Dorney of Providence who had associated with him Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge of Westerly and Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony.

Alberto Costanzo of Providence who had previously entered pleas of not guilty on charges of keeping a house of ill repute, known as the "Yellow House," in South Kingston and for harboring females, when reading of the complaint was waived, through Attorney Dorney, changed his plea to one of nolo. Assistant Attorney General Jackvony said that after a conference he would move that te case be continued for sentence to Dec. 28th as Costanzo had business matters he wished disposed of before then. In reply to the judge's question, it was learned that an automobile business with a number of outstanding accounts was referred to. "Make sure it's automobile business," said the judge and on the first complaint he had the bail raised from $10,000 to $15,000 and on the second count from $5,000 to $10,000. Mariano Montella of Providence became surety for the additional $10,000 required. "One thing in the defendant's favor," said the judge, "was that he hasn't gone to trial and subjected the state to expense and himself to possible perjury." To make sure that business was attended to, the judge said that if officers found him loitering about streets at night, the agreement with the court would be vacated and that he would be picked up and sentenced.

Joseph Sylvestre, was called to answer to the complaint of carnal knowledge of Hattie Elizabeth Handy, 14 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Handy, of 131 Canal street, Westerly. Through his lawyer, Judge James O. Watts of Narragansett, R. I., a plea of not-guilty, was entered. Assistant Attorney General Jackvony asked that fifteen minutes be given him to confer with his witnesses and the permission was granted.

Clerk W. Herbert Caswell began the polling of the jury which was completed at 11:40. Spare jurors were excused at 11:45 to report again this (Thursday) morning at 10:30 o'clock.

This jury was empaneled: South Kingstown, Thos. E. Wilson, auto dealer, George A. Shortell, flagman, Clifton P. Partelow, mason; No. Kingston, James D. O'Hara, clerk, Michael Tuley, painter.

Hopkinton, George E. Charnley, chauffeur, George E. Crandall, laborer; Exeter, Thomas F. Tefft; Charlestown, Herbert A. Gates, carpenter, John F. Frye, weaver; Narragansett, Harry L. Whaley, chauffeur, Isaac A. Allen, contractor.

Herbert A. Gates of Charlestown was appointed foreman. Challenged and excused from this panel as drawn were Thomas Poisilio, of South Kingstown and William R. Chapman and Herbert Greenman, both of Westerly.

After a recess, the court resumed its session at 12:15, when Assistant Attorney General Jackvony moved that all persons not directly interested in the case be excused. Judge Watts thought this was good public policy and that women should be excluded, in view of the testimony which was to be offered.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell and Deputy Sheriff Bull, accordingly, on direction of the judge, cleared the court room and trial proceeded behind closed doors. Outside a morbid throng waited.

The first witness called was Hattie Elizabeth Handy, now 15, who had moved to Westerly from Ashaway and who had been a member of a lower class of the Westerly High school.

She testified that she first knew Sylvestre Sept. 25, 1924, and had met him in a candy store at the junction of Canal and Pleasant streets. The first assault was committed on the Riverside Park baseball field.

At the rectory of Christ Episcopal church on Elm street, Wednesday morning Miss Phyllis Mary Matthews, daughter of the late William T. and Mary Sarah Matthews was united in marriage with Curtis Floyd Autry, of Stone Mountain, Ga., who was born in Atlanta, Ga., the son of Thomas A. and Mary E. Rhyder. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ church and attended by a few intimate friends.

The bride's gown was of salmon brocaded chiffon, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Lucille Clarke, the bridesmaid, wore honey dew brocaded chiffon. Carl A. Hendrickson of Concord, N. H., was best man. Following the wedding ceremony a reception was held and a luncheon was served to about thirty relatives and friends at the bride's home, 24 Hobart street. Mr. and Mrs. Autry are on a wedding trip to New York and Philadelphia. The bride's going away dress was of dark blue. They will be at home after Jan. 1 at 24 Hobart street. Mr. Autry, who has recently come to Westerly is employed as a granite cutter.

LOUIS SLAVKIN BURNED WHEN OIL EXPLODES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

COLCHESTER, Dec. 16.—The meeting of Oliver Woodhouse lodge, No. 51, last evening in Pythian-hall, ended in a very sad manner. Louis Slavkin was working on the oil stove in the ante-room, when suddenly the oil exploded and Mr. Slavkin, who was bending over the stove, got the full force of the explosion. He rushed into the lodge room, his clothing all ablaze. The rug on the lodge room floor was thrown about him and the flames extinguished, but not until he was seriously burned about the face, hands and arms. Dr. Howland, a member of the lodge was present and rendered first aid. It was thought that the man was burned internally. He was taken home at once, the work of the evening was abandoned and the members left for their homes. Mr. Slavkin is one of the active members of the lodge, always ready to work for its good, in session and out. He is a member of Sumner Co., Uniform Rank of Hartford. It is sincerely hoped by all that he may recover.

The meeting was called to order with a large attendance, the date being an official visit from the grand chancellor, Arthur Mitchell. He was accompanied by the grand master at arms, David Sloan of Elm lodge, East Hartford, and some of the members of John Hay lodge of Hartford. JUDGE AVERY OVERRULES DEMURRER OF UNCAS PAPER BOARD RECEIVER

In a decision handed down by Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court the demurrer of Frank W. Browning, receiver of the Uncas Paper Board company of this city in the case of the Norwich Savings Society vs James E. Smith, et al., is overruled. In his decision Judge Avery says:

The personal property described in schedule "Exhibit A" is subject to the lien of the mortgage, together with after acquired property forming a part of the establishment and connected with or situated and used therein on any after acquired substituted machinery or personal property of like nature to the property included in the mortgage.

The fact that the property was sold after the mortgage was made does not alter the situation as the purchaser took the property subject to the provisions of the mortgage and could gain no greater right against the mortgagee than the mortgagor had.

If there is any property at the plant not comprehended, the receiver may make claim to it by answer or otherwise.

Following are the reasons for the demurrer by Receiver Browning:

Because the mortgage sought to be foreclosed is a mortgage of James E. Smith and cannot be construed to embrace within its terms property subsequently acquired and owned by the Uncas Paperboard Co.

Because it appears from the complaint that the plaintiff's right to foreclose is limited to the real estate and the personal property described in Exhibit A.

Because that part of the mortgage set out in paragraph 2 of the complaint alleging: "Together with all other machinery, shafting, counter-shafting, belting, pulleys, etc., appliances and spare parts in or upon said premises and all property thereafter acquired forming a part of this establishment and connected with or situated and used therein, or any acquired, substituted machinery or personal property of like nature to the property above described," is valid and void as not meeting the requirements of Sections 5206 and 5208 of the General Statutes (Rev. 1918) of this state.

Because it appears from the complaint that some of the property sought to be foreclosed was acquired by the Uncas Paperboard Co. subsequent to Jan 10, 1923, was acquired by and owned by the mortgager, James E. Smith.

MISSISSIPPI STATE BUSINESS HALTS FOR HALF HOUR PRAYER

JACKSON, Dec. 16 (AP)—All state business in the Old Capitol Building here ceases for one half hour every Monday morning while the heads of state departments and clerks engage in prayer.

The history of this singular service goes back to the time the Billy Sunday and Gypsy Smith revival meetings in Jackson brought a wide-spread religious awakening to the community. Miss May Sandlin, private secretary to W. F. Bond, state superintendent of education, and a zealous church worker in the local Baptist church, was the first to conceive the idea. It was approved by Mr. Bond.

At first only the employes of the department of education participated, but so popular did the weekly hours of devotion become that all in the Old Capitol began to come. For a long while the services were conducted by various members of the group and then ministers and religious leaders in Jackson outside of the official family were invited to speak. And now this half hour from 10 o'clock to 10:30 every Monday morning is set aside for this purpose.

The meetings are held in one of the long corridors. Those in attendance represent virtually all the state departments.

Posters on display in the building call attention to the service and invite all to be present. "Uncle Joe," the operator of the elevator, and a former inmate of the state penitentiary invites and reminds all his passengers that "Today is prayer meeting day."

WOODEN VESSEL CALLED BEST FOR RESISTING ARCTIC ICE

SEATTLE, Dec. 16 (AP)—Whether it is possible to build a steel vessel that can withstand the pressure of ice packs in the Arctic Ocean sufficiently to replace the cutter Bear is a lively topic among the Coast Guard men on the Pacific this winter.

The Bear, wintering in San Francisco after her 37th summer cruise into the Alaskan Arctic in the Coast Guard, was constructed of thick oak in Greenock, Scotland, in 1874.

With $25,000 appropriated by Congress, it has been proposed to replace the Bear, following next summer's cruise with a twin-propelled steel vessel.

The doubters declare no steel vessel can stand heavy ice pressure, because the metal will first bend and then break. They also predict that the ice will quickly rip off one or both of the exposed twin propellors.

FOREIGN STUDENTS TO CARRY HOME U. S. DENTAL METHODS

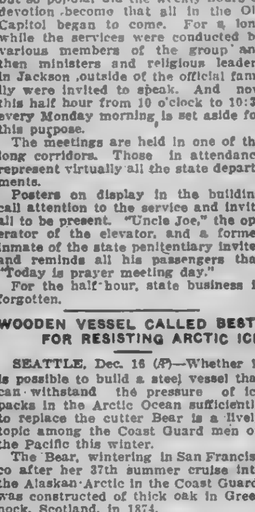
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 16 (AP)—Nine of 13 students from foreign countries attending Loyola University, New Orleans, are preparing to take American dental methods back to their homes. The university has 13 students from ten countries other than the United States nine are enrolled in the school of dentistry, the prospective dentists including Rafael Benitez, leader of the band.

Three are studying pharmacy and one is applying himself to the schools of arts and sciences.

Guatemala leads with four, followed by Mexico and Cuba with two each.

The officers of the association are: President, Frank E. Fitch. Secretary, Carl A. Ricker. Treasurer, Christopher Barry.

New Head Of Protestant Episcopal Church



The Right Reverend John Gardner Murray, Bishop, of Maryland whose election as Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church established a precedent, as it is the first time in 140 years that the office has been elective. His election took place at the annual meeting of church leaders in New Orleans Bishop Murray is 68 years old and is one of the wealthiest prelates in the Episcopal Church.

DIVORCE BROKERAGE BECOMES POPULAR PARIS PROFESSION

PARIS, Dec. 16— (AP) —Marriage brokerage has been almost entirely displaced by divorce brokerage as a profitable profession in Paris.

American fathers and mothers are extremely reluctant to provide the dot necessary to pay the marriage broker's fees. But wealthy husbands and wives who want their freedom are willing to pay liberally for fast action.

The brokers work on the steamers coming over from New York and haunt the fashionable hotels along the Champs Elysees and the Rue di Rivoli. Negotiations are carried on at tea dansants and at the merry dinner dances at Cino's and the Perroquet, which wealthy Americans frequent.

The methods are very similar to those of the American ambulance chaser. Divorce brokers make the acquaintance of all Americans on the Paris-bound boats who look unhappy. Casual references are finally made to the speed and lack of publicity with which Mrs. Gold Pots got her divorce in France the previous month.

"Oh, yes, it was that wonderful lawyer, Mr. X., who turned the trick. He is so clever and has never failed to get speedy results. And he is such a gentleman and so discreet."

Mr. X may be either a Frenchman or an American. The brokers pay little attention to nationalities. Many of the brokers are divorcees themselves and supply personal testimonials as to the painless and effective methods of the attorney they are touting.

An American woman of considerable wealth, who has never married, remarked to a group of friends in a hotel de luxe on the Place Vendome:

"A mere spinster isn't in it in Paris any more. The dancing men pay attention to the married women and try to get them to hit the divorce trail. It pays. It isn't necessary for married women to hire jiggilos any more. The jiggilos have all gone to work for the divorce lawyers. I think I shall apply for a job myself."

Competition has become so keen that one enterprising broker is trying to get steamship lines to announce special accomodations for divorce seekers in the third class so more less wealthy Americans may be induced to avail themselves of the French courts.

Painless divorces now are advertised on the billboards of Paris along with painless dentistry. There are special divorce newspapers and all Americans, immediately upon their arrival in Paris, receive announcements from bureaus which offer satisfactory settlement of all marital difficulties.

NOTRE DAME SIDETRACKS BIG STADIUM FOR NEW DORMITORIES

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 16 (AP)—Notre Dame University, which has ranked consistently high in collegiate football over the last decade, is one of the few outstanding schools that is still getting along with an obsolete athletic stadium.

The reason is that university authorities have flatly refused to permit construction of an up to date stadium until the institution has additional dormitories and college classrooms.

South Bend business men and alumni of the school have repeatedly urged the construction of a new stadium, but school officials have refused to listen. Although it aims to house all its students in dormitories on the campus, Notre Dame has had some 1,200 students living in South Bend residences for several years and has turned away hundreds more because of unavailability of dormitory quarters. Two new dormitories are now under construction.

The Notre Dame stadium is made up of wood stands, which have been enlarged to hold 27,000.

How to Quickly Limber Up Sore, Stiff, Swollen Joints

It was a high-class pharmacist who saw prescription after prescription fail to help hundreds of his customers to get rid of rheumatic swellings and stiff, inflamed, pain-tortured joints.

And it was this same man who asserted that a remedy could and would be compounded that would make creaky, swollen, tormented joints work with just as much smoothness as they ever did.

Now this prescription, rightly named Joint-Ease, after being tested successfully on many obstinate cases, is offered through progressive pharmacists to millions of people who suffer from ailing joints that need limbering up.

Swollen, twingy, inflamed, stiff, pain-tortured joints are usually caused by rheumatism, but whatever the cause, Joint Ease soaks straight in through skin and flesh right down to the tendons and ligaments of the joints—right where all the trouble starts—and then blessed relief comes quickly.

Remember, Joint-Ease is for ailments of the joints, whether in ankle, knee, hip, elbow, spine or finger, and when you rub it on, you may expect speedy and gratifying results.

It is now on sale at Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere for 60 cents a tube.

GERALD CHAPMAN NOT AT ALL DEPRESSED

HARTFORD, Dec. 16—(AP)—Gerald Chapman, convicted murderer of Policeman James Skelly, of New Britain, and bandit extraordinary, is well satisfied that the next battle ground in his legal fight to escape the death penalty will be in New York. He so declared himself to his counsel, Joseph M. Freedman, of Hartford, when the lawyer conferred with Chapman at the state prison in Wethersfield Tuesday afternoon.

Chapman was not at all depressed when he learned the decision in the United States district court, in which he sought a writ of habeas corpus to compel his return to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta to complete service of a sentence of 25 years for mail robbery, had been decided against him. Smoking a cigarette, he laughed and joked with his counsel over the situation in which he now found himself, which he did not consider much more serious than when the petition for the writ was brought to the attention of the federal court.

"There is always a legal excuse for such a decision," said Chapman in commenting on the decision. Asked what the excuse might be the prisoner replied, "the ends of justice must be served."

Attorney Freedman then reminded Chapman that in the appeal to the circuit court of appeals from the decision of Judge Thomas the scene would now be shifted to New York. Chapman declared "Well, I'm darned glad to get out of the state of Connecticut."

Chapman, of course, realizes that physically he will remain in Connecticut just so long as he remains in the custody of Warden Henry K. W. Scott of the state prison. It will be merely the transfer of the arguments in the case from the district of Connecticut to New York where are heard the arguments in the appeals to the circuit court for the second judicial district.

Chapman had read in a newspaper clipping furnished him a digest of the decision before his counsel had visited him at the prison, so was familiar with the text of the document. As the possibility of an adverse decision had been discussed with him several times, he was familiar with the plan of his counsel to carry the case higher up in the federal courts, and the probability of such action was not discussed at length.

DICKSON'S CONTRIBUTIONS TO YALE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 16—(AP)—Through the generosity of the late Frederick S. Dickson, Ph. B., Yale 1871, the 150th edition of "Tom Jones" has just been added to the collection of books by and concerning Henry Fielding which Mr. Dickson presented to Yale university in 1913 in appreciation of Professor Thomas L. Lounsbury.

"This gift," Andrew Keogh, university librarian, said today, "emphasizes again the fact that the collection presented by Mr. Dickson is the most complete in the world. The Yale library possesses every edition of Fielding's novels published during his lifetime; all the pamphlets known to be Fielding's including the exceedingly rare "Crisis: A Sermon," London, 1741, which was never reprinted in Fielding's works; all the plays, including 'Tumble Down Dick; or Phenton in the Sea,' London 1836, apparently the arest of all plays, of which the only other copy known is in the Bodleian library; the two earliest printed works, 'The Masquerade, a Poem,' London, 1728, and 'Love in Several Masques, a comedy,' London, 1728; an dthe various standard editions of his works, including many translations and imitations."

CHRONICLE OF MOVEMENTS OF "MELLIE" AND "GRANDMA"

BOSTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—"Mellie" and and "Grandma" Dunham came back to New England today but the arduous duties of a vaudeville star will prevent Maine's champion fiddler from returning to his home town of Norway before he starts his professional career on "the boards" of Keith's theatre.

Fresh from their laurels in New York and Detroit, where, in the latter city, Mellie's playing captivated Henry Ford, the aged couple admitted today that they were tired.

"Mellie" played a few tunes for Governor Fuller in the state house, visited the city hall and helped out a newspaper in its Santa Claus campaign, then passed the afternoon in a hotel, resting. He refused invitations to attend a theatre, saying he wanted to be all rested up for the start of his rehearsals for his vaudeville act.

New England's largest city will be the first to see the "Down East" fiddler as a real professional vaudeville artist. He will appear at Keith's theatre Monday night and then will tour the principal cities of the country. He signed the vaudeville contract in New York and admitted that he went there for just that purpose so he and "Gram" could get a few thousands ahead "to see them through." All the details of his act have not yet been arranged, but he probably will appear in a scene depicting the interior of an old fashioned New England farm house, such as the one "Mellie" lives in "down in Norway, Me."

"Mellie", set man and official foot apex tapping as he sawed out "Turkey in the straw," and other old time tunes in Governor Fuller's office today. The Massachusetts executive called the fiddler's visit "the most enjoyable incident since I have been in office" and presented him with a stickpin bearing the state seal.

REV. J. T. DALLAS ELECTED EPISCOPAL BISHOP OF N. H.

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 16—(AP)—Rev John Thomas Dallas, of St. Paul's cathedral, Boston, formerly rector of St. Thomas' church, Hanover, today was elected Episcopal bishop of New Hampshire to succeed the late Bishop Edward M. Parker of Concord, who died during the general convention of the Episcopal church at New Orleans.

By the laws of the church the election must be approved before the consecration of the bishop by a majority of the standing committees in every diocese in the United States and also by a majority of the bishops of the several American dioceses.

Dr. Dallas was elected on the eighth ballot taken by the special diocesan convention called to choose a bishop. On the third ballot he obtained a majority of the lay votes and on the eighth the clergy concurred with the majority of the laity. Rev. Arthur M. Dunstan, of Tilton, archdeacon of the New Hampshire diocese, was the second candidate in a list of 16 who received votes.

William Donald Travis, was arrested in West Haven on charges of perjury resulting from the investigation made of false swearing to marriage license applications at the Hartford bureau of vital statistics.

POETRY

Christmas Eve in a Wilderness

The boughs of pine are bent with snow;
Deep upon the ground below
Where bittersweet's red berries grow,
The heavy drifts lie still and white.
The icy wind that haunts the night
Awakes no murmur in the trees;
From hill to barren hill he flees,
As though afar his spirit sees
Something, or someone beckoning.
Perchance the lovely arms of spring

The night is starless, veils of cloud
The brilliant winter heavens enshroud;
The lonely hills and woods are bowed
In dim white silence, vale and field
Their lifeless mites to darkness yield.
Till lo, through the dark and silent night,
There comes a Wayfarer, his light
Sheds a pale radiance, growing bright
Till wilderness and midnight glow
With crystal stars of sparkling snow.

A little lantern in his hand,
And yet it shines through all that land,
As long ago an angel band
Scattered a heavenly glory far,
Ray on ray from a new-made star,
The Wayfarer is but a child,
Yet from the fields and hills beguiled,
And from the woods and the creatures wild
Awake and leap about his feet,
Their hungry eyes grown calm and sweet.

Rabbit and deer and fox and bear,
He feeds them with a manna rare,
Big and little beasts, they share
With one another all he gives.
Every little bird that lives
In wintry forests, from its nest
Comes and nestles in his breast;
And by his hand the trees are blest.
Lo, when he bids them all farewell,
Even the silence sings "Noel!"

—Dorothy Davis Coburn in Boston Transcript.

Wonderland

Sweet eyes by sorrow still unwet,
To you the world is radiant yet,
A palace-hall of splendid truth
Touched by the golden haze of youth,
Where hopes and joys are ever rife
Amid the mystery of life;
And seeking all to understand,
The world to you is Wonderland.

I turn and watch with unshed tears
The furrowed track of ended years:
I see the eager hopes that wane,
The joys that die in deathless pain,
The coward Faith that falsehoods shake,
The souls that faint, the hearts that break.
The Truth by livid lips bemoaned,
The Right defiled, the Wrong enthroned—
And, striving still to understand,
The world to me is Wonderland.

A little time, then by and by
The puzzled thought itself shall die,
When, like the throb of distant drums
The call inevitable comes
To blurring brain and weary limb,
And when the aching eyes grow dim.

—Harry Thurston Peck.

PAPERS SERVED IN THE ATWILL DIVORCE SUIT

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—Lionel Atwill, stage lover and play producer and Elsie Mackay, his actress wife, have come to the parting of the ways. It was learned today that Mrs. Atwill sailed for Europe from Boston last Saturday on the same ship with Max Montesole, English actor who was to have opened in a play being produced by Atwill. Atwill has brought suit for divorce against his wife, naming Montesole as co-respondent.

Mrs. Atwill has replied through her attorney and asks $350 a week allmony and $7,500 counsel fees. Montesole had won the affections of the producer's wife while staying as a guest at their home in Douglaston, L. I.

The papers in Atwill's divorce suit were served last Friday morning a few hours after he and three detectives and his negro chauffeur had raided an apartment in West 68th street and were alleged to have found his wife and Montesole there.

In her answer Mrs. Atwill denied all the allegations of her husband, insists that he refused to separate by agreement and kept her at his home by threats of disgraceful charges.

Arrangements were completed in New York, whereby the Snia Viscosa of Turin, Italy, said to be the second largest manufacturer of rayon in the world, will transform a part of its capitalization into American shares.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The False Alarm

Too much zeal, as you will see,
As bad as none may sometimes be.
—Paddy the Beaver.

Peter Rabbit felt very proud of being watchman for the Beaver family as they worked in the grove of poplars on the shore of their new pond in the Green Forest. He felt quite important, did Peter. He couldn't cut trees or help them, but he could keep watch while the others worked, and

"Good evening, Paddy," said Reddy most politely

this was really helping. Hadn't Paddy the Beaver said so?

However Paddy had given Peter a warning. "Remember," said he, "that there are but four enemies around here whom we fear."

"I thought you mentioned only three, Old Man Coyote, Buster Bear and Yowler the Bob Cat," Peter interrupted.

"I thought you would understand that that two-legged creature called man always is to be counted as an enemy," replied Paddy.

"Farmer Brown's boy isn't," declared Peter stoutly.

"Perhaps not, but just the same I'll keep out of sight when he is about," said Paddy. "We don't want to waste time by running for nothing, so just keep that in mind."

Peter promised that he would and began his duties as watchman. He kept his wobbly little nose wobbling all the time to test the air for the scent of any one approaching. He kept his long ears up and open for any suspicious sound. Every now and then he looked all about this way and that way. But he didn't put much faith in his eyes. It was too dark to see far anyway.

By this time each of the young Beavers had cut down a tree and all were now busy trimming off the limbs and getting ready to cut the trunks in logs which could be handled. Peter became so interested in watching that he forgot that he was supposed to be the watchman. Yes sir, he forgot it completely. Suddenly a wandering Little Night Breeze blew right in Peter's face and brought the scent of Reddy Fox. It was so strong that Peter knew that Reddy must be very near. Instantly Peter thumped with his hind feet. He thumped with all his might and headed for a handy hollow log as fast as his legs could take him.

At the sound of that thump Paddy the Beaver, Mrs. Paddy and the two young Beavers dropped their work and rushed for the water. In they plunged. They didn't stop to find out what the danger might be. It was enough for them that they had been warned. There would be time enough to find out later what the danger was. Almost at once the four brown heads appeared above the surface of the water, but each one in a Black Shadow. Four pairs of eyes searched the shore. Four pairs of ears listened for telltale sounds. Four noses searched the air for suspicious scent.

But though they looked and listened and smelled they found no trace of an enemy. "It must have been Yowler the Bob Cat or Old Man Coyote," whispered Paddy to Mrs. Paddy. "It couldn't have been Buster Bear, for he would have shown himself by this time. It wasn't one of those two-legged creatures because they never come here by night. We'll have to wait until Peter gives the signal that the way is clear and safe. Oh, dear, what a waste of time!"

It was a waste of time. You see they didn't dare go ashore and they waited and waited for Peter Rabbit to appear. But Peter didn't appear, and by this they understood that the danger was still there. They were sure that it was Yowler the Bob Cat. At last Paddy saw a figure moving near the shore. He swam a little nearer and recognized Reddy Fox.

"Good evening, Paddy," said Reddy, most politely. "How does it happen that you and your family are not at work?"

"Peter Rabbit warned us of danger," replied Paddy. "I suspect it must have been Yowler the Bob Cat. Have you seen him about?"

"No," replied Reddy. Then he began to chuckle.

"What are you laughing at?" demanded Paddy.

"At the way Peter frightened you with a false alarm," replied Reddy. "Peter was running from me. I suspect. I really didn't mean to hold up your work, Paddy."

Paddy fairly snorted with disgust. "All that time lost," he muttered, and led the way ashore.

MYSTIC

A few weeks ago, safety zones were painted on the Groton side commencing after crossing the bridge. The wide white markings at Gravel and Pearl streets that lead into West Main and the crossing from the sidewalk to the other side show up plainly as it does at Bank square, where large white letters and arrows direct the way to New London and Noank. Those having business at these places have noticed how much it aids the traveling public in having the right way to go so plainly indicated.

This (Thursday) evening the local post of the American Legion is to meet. There will be several addresses, the principal speaker being L. E. Vatel, and the guests of the evening will be all ex-service men and women. The auxiliary to the legion will have the honor of serving the lunch. It has been a very busy year for the post and the legion has accomplished much. It has been given honorable mention at the last state convention. There are several candidates for offices and many applications to be acted upon.

At the December meeting of the Missionary society of the Baptist church, held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John W. Phillips, Mrs. J. G. Osborne, vice president, presided. She read the Scripture and offered prayer. A few items of business were considered and then Mrs. Charles E. Wheeler read a carefully written paper on Latin America. She had studied the subject thoroughly and presented the facts in a clear way. Miss Harriet Fish read an article from a missionary, giving more information on the subject. The meetings are closed with a devotional service and Mrs. B. F. Davis was in charge and a number took part. Greetings will be sent to Mrs. L. P. Allen, the president, and Mrs. O. G. Buddington, who are ill.

George V. Douglas, of Boston, a salesman, met with an accident Tuesday afternoon. He came out of a store on West Main street in his hurry to catch an east-bound trolley car and was struck by a local automobile knocking him down. Dr. Gray, who was called, took several stitches to close the cut on his head and dressed the wound. He was cared for by friends and left later for home.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church is to meet this (Thursday) afternoon for work with Mrs. William Henderson.

The Junior guild of the Baptist church is planning to go to the Spicer home Monday evening, sing Christmas carols and carry gifts to the inmates. Those having anything to add to the gifts have been asked to send contributions to Mrs. Osborn at the parsonage.

Frank Karl is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, New London.

Mrs. May Judd has returned from a visit in Boston, and is with her daughter, Mrs. Amos Champlain, a White Hall place.

Mrs. Patrick Coffey, of Stonington visited her brother, Daniel Ivers, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Nieman, of New London, were visitors here Tuesday.

Mrs. O. G. Buddington, who has been a patient at Lawrence hospital for two weeks, is expected home soon.

The Christmas tree and entertainment for the primary department of the Baptist Sunday school, is to be held in the vestry Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Herbert Wolfe superintendent and her assistants have arranged a good time for the children.

The W. C. T. U. offered a prize this year to the teachers in the U. S., on How I Use Textbooks and the Library in Teaching Facts About Alcohol. The prize was won by Mrs. Ella M. Barkler, Hamilton City, Cal. It is published in this week's Union Signal, which local members have received.

GOSHEN

BREAK IN THE PRICES OF CRUDE RUBBER IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The crude rubber market was demoralized today and prices declined about ten cents a pound as a result of the nervousness of holders in London and on the continent and continued lack of support by American buyers. Smoked ribbed sheets dropped to 19 3-4 cents for spot while January-March closed easy at 20 cents offered. Tire factories are reported to have disposed of fair-sized lots early today. Prices are the lowest since September 11.

Edward Nivorosien, 16 year old wanderer who has sailed the seven seas as a stowaway on different ships, was found aboard the shipping board steamer Sacandaga, at Boston, by immigration authorities yesterday.

TWO NEW LONDON CHINESE HELD, AFTER NARCOTIC AGENTS' RAIDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Lee Quong, proprietor of the Chinese tea and coffee house, 121 Golden street, and Eng Wah Young, proprietor of a laundry, 97 Main street, who were arrested early this morning by a raiding force consisting of four narcotic agents from Providence and local police, were presented before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran, at the customs house, this forenoon. Probable cause was found and the accused were held in bail of $500 each, for trial at the next session of the United States district court at New Haven, in February. Quong and Young furnished sureties on their respective bonds for their appearance at that time.

The narcotic agents had received information that the narcotic act was being freely violated at both the tea and coffee house and laundry. When the raiders reached the two places a systematic search for opium was made, but only in the laundry was the drug located, about a pound of the drug being concealed. At the tea and coffee house only a pipe such as is used by opium smokers was found.

Young has two convictions against him for violation of the narcotic act. Quong has never been convicted in this state and his place is frequented by practically all the Chinese restaurant employes in the city, as well as the Chinese laundrymen. The place was under watch by the police at the time of the Hip Sing Tong and On Leong Ting factional war in New York several months ago.

Two fires caused the fire department considerable work today, but in neither instance was the damage sustained of a large amount. The first blaze occurred about 4:30 o'clock when the interior of the garage of the New Haven Dairy, Howard street, was discovered in flames. An alarm was rung in from Box 44, corner of Howard and Hamilton streets and five minutes later firemen were attacking the flames with chemicals. The fire was located near an oil storage tank and was burning fiercely when the fire apparatus reached the place, but a deluge of chemicals being emptied upon the fire, it was quickly extinguished. How the fire originated it is not definitely known, but it is believed that it started from spontaneous combustion. The loss will not exceed $500.

The second fire occurred shortly after 9 o'clock when a lively blaze was discovered in the two story wooden dwelling, 67 Potter street, occupied by Polish families and owned by Attorney Max Boyer. The fire was located at the rear of a stove and had made its way into one of the halls when the firemen, who responded to an alarm sent in from Box 24, Water street, arrived at the house. Several lines of hose were stretched to the lower floor and where the fire was located, but it was not until a half hour later that the blaze was extinguished after damage estimated at $1,000 had resulted.

Mrs. Edward Saunders, of Waterford; Franklin Chappell, of Oakdale; Mrs. Lester C. Chappell and infant daughter, Waterford; George Stockbridge, U. S. S. Erickson, state pier; Miss Mary Peterson, East Haddam, and Mrs. Ella Buddington, West Mystic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Bruno Benvenuti, 93 Smith street, and Fred Brooks, 91 West Colt street, to be suspended.

Raymond Vallee, 279 Crystal avenue, complained to the police last night that he had been the victim of a joker, but that he did not appreciate the idea of the joking perpetrated upon him. Vallee stated that he operated his automobile to a point on Masonic street, between Main and Union street and that when he attempted to drive the car to his home Vallee found that all of the air in the four tires had been removed and that each of the wheels was resting upon its rim.

Nolan Nesbit, 6 Union street, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Trogi, stationed at Norfolk, Va., was taken into custody this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Clarence Martin, charged with being a deserter. He was later delivered into the custody of Commander Denby and escorted to the United States Coast Guard academy for court martial. Nesbit, who is married, it is claimed, deserted his ship at Norfolk two or three weeks ago, and recently came to New London. This forenoon he went to the Waterman & Wolfe garage, Main street, where it was known to one of the proprietors that Nesbit was wanted by the federal authorities. The police were informed of Nesbit's appearance at the garage and Sergeant Smith and Patrolman Martin went there and placed Nesbit under arrest.

Theodore Bodenwein has sold a parcel of land at former Oak Grove park, off Norwood avenue, to Silvia Louise Silva.

New London friends of Frank A. Munsey, who is ill at the Lenox hotel in New York, with peritonitis and appendicitis, hope for his speedy recovery. Mr. Munsey was the first to recognize the fact that New London would support a first class all-the-year-round hotel and he established the Mohican. That enterprise cost him a tremendous sum of money, but Mr. Munsey had faith in the city and knew that its favorable location between New York and Boston, between New Haven and Providence and its splendid location at the mouth of the Thames with superior fishing and bathing facilities, would attract patronage. In that he estimated correctly and gave to this city a hotel that it is proud of and which is the home of many permanent residents here. Mr. Munsey has reached that age when an operation such as he has undergone is a hazard, so his friends here are anxiously awaiting day after day news that comes from his bedside.

The stores of New London never presented a more attractive appearance than they do now, arranged for the Christmas season and making a splendid showing of goods.

The order of Commissioner Andrews, which forbids the making of wine after the first of January, or at least which forbids the issuance of permits to make it, will be the most unpopular ruling ever emanating from the office of the prohibition forces. The Italian people almost without exception have made a practice of having wines in their homes and they are aggrieved over the prospect that will confront them at the beginning of the new year.

Guglielmo Ramaccia and Miss Chiarina Fratali, both of Poquonoc road, Groton, the latter the daughter of Mrs. Angelina Fratali, were married this morning at 9 o'clock at Sacred Heart church, Groton, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. William J. Fox, pastor. A large gathering of relatives and friends attended. Frank Guglianl, this city, was best man and Miss Rose Frank, of Thames street, Groton, attended the bride. The groom is employed at the Plant estate, Groton.

The grist for the police court started this afternoon with the arrest of a couple of inebriates. One was found on Main street by Patrolman Frank Linehan and because the unfortunate was in such a helpless condition he was lodged in a cell. The other drunk was picked up by Patrolman Clarence Martin when found boisterous in the Coffee Pot restaurant.

Adam Rumenisky, of Groton; Robert Banks, Poquonoc Bridge; John Oakes and Mrs. Tony Sarri, 29 Denison avenue, were patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon and today.

Frederick W. Mercier, president of the New England Carpet Lining Co., who has been confined to his home on Hillside avenue for several days, is reported as being greatly improved.

Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, has returned to his home, on Hempstead street, after having spent several days in Boston.

ARTHUR CHASE GOES TO JAIL—SCANDALL IMPLICATES GIRLS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Judge Prince, in the police court this morning, dealt with a trio of men who are devoid of moral character. He sent one of them to the county jail to stay half a year and ordered him to pay a fine of $100. The others were fined $100 each, but they escaped a term in jail. The first named is Arthur Chase, residing at 37 Maple avenue. He is 43, and has been guilty of offenses against chastity and the moral laws of the state. His associates in the crimes are young girls about 14 to 15 years. The other men are Joseph Santangelo and Thomas Muscarella, each about 23. They were charged with lascivious carriage and behavior and have been the companions in crime of the same girls with which Chase was associated. Their records extended over half a year. The mother of one of the girls started an investigation that revealed the whole dirty mess when she pursued her daughter and a sailor ostensibly away from the mother's house to attend a picture show. The story the pair told was not believed by the mother and she followed the daughter and her escort and witnessed them go into a rooming house in Golden street. Then the police and the policewoman were put on the trail of the girl and from her elicited a story that brought the whole lot into the police net. Judge Prince gave the parties warning in passing judgment that he was aware of what had been their conduct over many months and said he was more familiar with what their lives had been than they believed him to be. He told them they were fortunate that they were not arraigned on more serious charges and, held up to them a picture that took them into state prison. Mrs. Edith Palma, a young married woman with children, aged one and two years, whose husband does not live with her, was presented as a person who contributed to the delinquency complained of in the other cases referred to. Her trial was postponed for a week that others may be brought into the court, in bringing the case to the court the police have cleaned up a lot of vice.

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—The zoning law upon which New London is to operate has not yet been laid before the people. It is a certain thing that there must be hearings on any law that will be enforced, before it can be put into operation. That has not been done nor has there been any intimation that an effort will be made to establish zoning districts in New London. There is not any doubt as to whether the people will approve a law that will preserve certain districts as purely residential, but these districts must be newly established or they must be such sections as are already actually residential. The establishment of such will be for the benefit of the city just as the setting apart of districts for manufacturing and for the location of stores will be to the advantage of the people and for those who engage in business enterprises. It stands as a fact that if manufacturing can be located in a given section that the delivery of freight there and the getting of it away to consignees can be done cheaper than can the delivery of freight in small lots and by several trips of teams or automobiles to the one place. As there are sections of the city that are laid out for strictly residential purposes little shops and stores manifestly should not be allowed to encroach upon these sections. It has been known in the past that undesirables located in districts that were the homes of people who took pride in their homes and in the grounds surrounding them for no other purpose than to be paid to vacate the houses they occupied. It is recalled by old residents that the Billings property on Federal street was bought by a man who paid enough money to hold the title in the property, and that it was his purpose to establish a poor class of negroes there unless residents nearby should come forward dand purchase his holdings. This they did and the owner reaped a handsome profit on his investment of a small sum of money. The city planning board which has now become the zoning commission of the city is made up of able people who will adhere to the law and treat all fairly under that law.

MARRIED AT KILLINGLY DURING LAST AUGUST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Announcement is made of the wedding Aug. 19, 1925, of Norris M. Treadway, of this city, and Miss Vera B. Jones, of Cooper's Cove, Texas, the marriage taking place at Killingly. Mr. and Mrs. Treadway are making their home at 504 Ocean avenue.

DIVING TEST OF S-19 TO TAKE PLACE OFF MONTAUK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—S-19, stationed at the Submarine Base, is scheduled to be given a diving test in adjacent waters within the next few days, although the definite date of the test is not known at the base, according to Lieut. Com. Flanagan. He stated this afternoon that the test would take place probably within the next three or four days. When the test does occurr it will be in the vicinity of Montauk Point.

The S-19 ran aground several weeks ago near Chatham, Mass., and since that time she has undergone repairs at the navy yards at Portsmouth, N. H., and Brooklyn. The test of the undersea craft will be in charge of Lieut. C. F. Martin, who was in command of the craft when she grounded, but who later was exonerated from all responsibility for the mishap by a board of inquiry.

A man's busy day is when he stays at home to rest and his wife gets him to do a few little odd jobs around the house.

WORLD COURT TO COME BEFORE SENATE TODAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—The long pending proposal that the United States adhere to the world court comes before the next senate tomorrow under a special order.

The resolution of adherence is that long democrat on the foreign relations committee, and contains five reservations. The two principal ones are that adhesion shall not be taken to involve any legal relation on the part of the United States to the league of nations and that the United States shall be in no manner bound by any advisory opinion of the court.

The court question will be considered in open executive session and will be the subject of extended debate. While two presidents have recommended American adhesion, the administration must look to the democrats for the margin of votes necessary for ratification.

Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, as well as the other "irreconcilables", in the league of nations fight are opposed to adhesion on the ground that the court is the creature of the league. Proponents of the court dispute this. Contending that while organized under league auspices, the tribunal is wholly separate from the league.

Senator Swanson will open the discussion with a prepared address which will require several hours for delivery. He hopes to keep his resolution before the senate for several days at least, but some senate leaders believe it will be many weeks before th subject can be brought to a vote.

SIR BASIL THOMSON PLACED UNDER ARREST

LONDON, Dec. 16—(AP)—Sir Basil Thomson, former director of intelligence of Scotland Yard and internationally known as one of England's greatest secret service operators, was arrested last week charged with being concerned in an offense in Hyde Park. A woman was placed under arrest at the same time, at the police station the same time. At the police station he gave his name at "Hugh Thompson" and his age as 63, his real identity has just leaked out.

The woman gave the name of Felma De Lava, both were let out on bail for appearance in court Monday. They failed to appear, and summonses have been issued.

The case will come up January 1.

Sir Basil Thomson is prominent socially and is the son of a former archbishop of York. He has had a distinguished career, was in charge of the secret service during the war and had a large hand in convicting Sir Roger Casement for landing arms in Ireland in 1916. Casement was hanged in Pentonville prison.

Sir Basil resigned from the Scotland Yard secret service in 1921. He paid visits to the United States and Canada in 1922-23. He was the guest of various noted clubs and also of the New York police department, and delivered lectures in various American cities on the aspects of crime and the operations of Scotland Yard.

He has been extensively decorated by foreign governments and has written many books on subjects ranging from "The Story of Dartmoor prison," to "South Sea Yarns" and "The Diversions of a Prime Minister."

"Peggy" Davies Divorce

Countess Gosta Morner de Morsland, better known as Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the much married musical comedy and revue star, returned to America recently. She laughed when reporters asked her about the divorce rumor and denied contemplating such action against Count Morner. "We are as happy as can be expected after two years of married life," she said.

The average woman has but few speaking acquaintances; the majority listen.

William Lyon Mackenzie King, premier of the Dominion of Canada, reaches his 51st birthday anniversary today.

The great British battleship Rodney, 35,000 tons and the first British vessel to mount the 16-inch gun, is to be launched today at Birkenhead.

Something like 70,000 Holy Year pilgrims are expected to throng the Basilica of St. Peter's in Rome today to witness the solemn function of the public consistory to be held by the pope.

Shortly before adjournment last March, the U. S. senate appointed today as the day beginning what in all likelihood will be the final consideration of the so-called Harding-Hughes-Coolidge world court proposal, providing for American entry into the world court. The measure is also called the Swanson resolution, inasmuch as the Virginia senator, the ranking member on the foreign relations committee, introduced it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Y. M. C. A. Course Unusually Attractive—Opens Friday Evening

Lovers of real first class entertainment will appreciate the high class talent to appear in the annual Y. M. C. A. course which opens on Friday evening, December 18th. The course is certainly worthy of a large patronage. The opening concert will be given by the New York Artists, a company of three genuine artists of well known ability.

Ellen Keller, an American violinist of international fame, who has appeared with all the great symphony orchestras including Paris, London, Berlin, Vienna and Moscow will render several of her best selections; William P. Kelkard, "The Philosopher of Folly," whose mission is to help the world to laugh, has written a number of playets, songs and poems, has appeared in person and on the screen in almost every city in the United States and Canada; his contribution to Friday's program will be large.

Charles LaPierre, pianist and accompanist is a born musician, and his gift has been developed to a high degree of technical perfection; he has often demonstrated his marked ability before very large audiences.

This opening number of the course is worth the price of the entire course of three. The second number will be a rich and rare program by "The Floyds," who are magicians of the front rank; they have been in the Lyceum platform for twenty years, and are popular in the United States, Canada and Mexico. The third number of the course will be presented by "The White Revue", a company of five young ladies, each one an artist in her line, and together they furnish a most attractive program. The costumes are bewitchingly beautiful.

This unusual course is offered for $2.00. It is hoped that a very large number will purchase course tickets at once, thereby demonstrating that the Norwich public appreciates genuinely fine entertainment.

Course tickets may be secured at Y. M. C. A. and Smith's Shoe Store. Single admission tickets are 75 cents and will be sold on the evening of the concert at Y. M. C. A. office.

Attractive Calendar

The Troy Steam Laundry is sending out to patrons a handsome 1926 calendar, in colors, with the slogan of the laundry "Satisfaction is our watchword."

Palace Theatre

"Tracked in the Snow Country," announced as the attraction at the Palace Theatre today, is one of those surefire melodramas of the Far North in which the amusement-seeking public have been showing keen interest for many years. There's the old miner with the beautiful daughter and his faithful dog living near a fabulously rich gold mine he has discovered. And there is the handsome young forest ranger who is in love with the daughter. And there is the villainous half-breed who is plotting to steal the mine for himself—and has unholy designs upon the daughter.

Rin-Tin-Tin, the celebrated "Wonder Dog" whom Warner Bros., have already presented in a number of exciting photoplays, is starred in this one. It is largely through the efforts of the dog that the villain is foiled and the ultimate happiness of the young lovers is made possible. June Marlowe, David Butler, and Mitchell Lewis—all of them well known to motion picture devotees—are the principal "humans" in the cast.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY DENIES SEPARATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—Bainbridge Colby, former secretary of state denied today that he and his wife are separated.

When Mrs. Colby sailed for Europe last night both she and her husband denied reports that she was going to Paris for the purpose of obtaining a divorce.

A member of the family at that time was quoted as saying that the Colbys had for some months been living in different parts of the city and had agreed upon an "amicable separation."

A charge of dynamite has sent many a poor man up for life.

GIRL LIBRARIAN ENCOURAGES JAIL INMATES TO READ

OTTUMWA, Iowa, Dec. 16—(AP)—Accompanied by a sturdy bailiff who carried an armload of books, Miss Harriet Mevers, assistant librarian here, each week visits the city jail to encourage cultivation of the reading habit.

One prisoner read four books on prohibition, and declared that if he had studied them earlier he never would have been arrested. Another studied along special lines so that when released he passed a civil service examination.

Zane Grey, Harold Bell Wright, Peter B. Kyne and James Oliver Curwood are the popular authors, but there are many calls for books on music, etiquette and birds.

The individual who stands still is sure to lose ground.

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss. December 8, 1925.

Upon the complaint of the said Herman John Greiner, claiming for the reasons therein set forth a divorce and the custody of a minor child, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of October, 1925.

It appearing to and being found by this Court that Jessie Elizabeth Rogers Greiner, the said defendant, is absent from this State and gone to parts unknown and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice heretofore issued, and now the plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.

Therefore ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Connecticut, once a week for two weeks successively, commencing on or before the 26th day of December, 1925.

By order of Court.

JOHN E. WALKER,
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

LEGAL NOTICE

State of Connecticut, County of New London, ss. December 8, 1925.

Upon the complaint of the said Herman John Greiner, claiming for the reasons therein set forth a divorce and the custody of a minor child, now pending before this Court, having been returned thereto on the first Tuesday of October, 1925.

It appearing to and being found by this Court that Jessie Elizabeth Rogers Greiner, the said defendant, is absent from this State and gone to parts unknown and that notice of the pendency of the complaint was given as required by order of notice heretofore issued, and now the plaintiff asks for a further order of notice in the premises.

Therefore ordered, that notice of the pendency of said complaint be given by publishing this order in the Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper printed in Norwich, Connecticut, once a week for two weeks successively, commencing on or before the 26th day of December, 1925.

By order of Court.

JOHN H. WALKER,
Assistant Clerk of the Superior Court for New London County.

GOULD CHILDREN EXCLUDED FROM SHARE OF $4,000,000 FUND

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—A judgment excluding the three children of the late George J. Gould by his second wife from participating in a trust fund and from his father's estate, and ordering its distribution among his seven other children, was entered today in the New York supreme court.

The judgment deprives the three younger children of a share in a fund of approximately $4,000,000, established by Jay Gould, the founder of the family fortune for the children of George Jay Gould.

The children thus excluded are George Sinclair Gould, Jane Sinclair Gould and Guinevere Gould. They were born before their mother, who was Frances Sinclair, became the second wife of George J. Gould, but their status were legitimized after the marriage.

If the judgment filed today is allowed to stand their share will go to the seven other children, who are the present Jay Gould, Kingdon Gould, Marjorie Gould Dresel, Lady Decies, formerly Vivien Gould, George Gould, Jr., Edith Gould Wainwright, and Gloria Gould Bishop.

Charges Against Government Official

Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs at Washington has been charged by representatives of the seven Indian tribes of Montana, as having intentionally permitted the property of Indians to be misappropriated, wasted and squandered. They forwarded the charges to President Coolidge and requested that he be removed.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKETS AT A GLANCE.

New York.

Stocks irregular; over 20 rail shares at new highs.

Bonds firm; railroad issues lead advance.

Foreign exchanges steady; French francs recover.

Cotton lower; spot houses selling.

Sugar barely steady; commission house selling.

Coffee easier; lower Brazilian market.

Chicago.

Wheat firm; despite bearish official Argentine estimate.

Corn barely steady; good weather.

Cattle steady.

Hogs higher; good demand for medium weights.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(By The A. P.)—Heavy liquidation of the industrial shares under cover of the strength of the railroad issues, featured today's active stock market. Selling of the industrials was inspired by the announcement that larger insurance companies had drastically restricted loans on real estate and building projects, by cautionary commission house advices and by an apparent growing speculative belief that most of the good news in sight had been discounted by the recent advance. Total sales aggregated 2,361,400 shares.

Chief financial interest outside the stock market centered in the lowering of call money rates, a rally of nearly 10 points in French francs on the announcement that Paul Doumer had accepted the post of French minister, a further advance in wheat prices and a renewal of selling pressure against cotton futures.

The average of 20 leading railroad issues was elevated to a new record high level, with about two dozen individual issues breaking into new high ground. Simultaneous strength and activity of Rock Island and Southern Pacific led to a revival of merger rumors, but these lacked official confirmation. Rock Island was bid up nearly four points to 57 3-8, the highest price ever recorded for the present stock, on total transactions of nearly 75,000 shares. Southern Pacific advanced over a point to 103 3-8, or within a small fraction of the year's top. Pennsylvania advanced a point to 55 1-4, the highest price since 1917. The announcement that freight traffic for the week ended December 5 exceeded 1,000,000 cars, the highest figure ever recorded in the last month of the year, stimulated the demand for the rails.

Among the many other rails to sell at new peak prices for a year, or longer, were Atchison, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred, Chicago and Northwestern, Erie, Great Northern preferred, Kansas City Southern, New Haven, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Norfolk and Western, Pere Marquette and Southern Railway. Early gains of 1 to 4 points in most of these issues were reduced in the last hour of selling inspired by the sharp breaks in some of the high priced industrial specialties.

Chrysler broke 12 1-2 points to 194 and then rallied to 196. United States Cast Iron Pipe dropped 7 1-2 points to 194 but snapped back to 198, and American Can, DuPont, General Electric, Hudson Motors, Mack Truck, American Brake Shoe, American Safety Razor, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Commercial Solvents B, Foundation Company, Otis Elevator, and United Railways Investment preferred showed net declines of three to six points.

Selling of the motors was influenced by the announcement that a "tremendous reduction" on Dodge cars will take place on January 1. Steel shares turned reactionary despite the heavy railroad demand reported in the weekly mercantile reviews. Gulf States Steel showed a net loss of 3 points at 91 and United States Steel common, Bethlehem, Crucible, Republic and Youngstown Sheet and Tube closed a point or so lower. Oils failed to respond to reports of another drastic reduction in crude production last week.

Among the few industrials to show independent strength were Montgomery Ward, Weber and Hellbroner, American Ice, Fleischmann, May Department Stores, Continental Insurance and Columbia Carbon, all of which touched new 1925 maximum prices.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent., and then dropped to 4 1-2, with some "outside loans" reported below that figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

French francs rallied to 3.68 cents and then eased to 3.64. Demand sterling ruled steady around $4.84 5-8. Most of the other European rates moved within narrow and irregular limits. Japanese yen held firm at the year's high of 43 3-4 cents.
